Chamberlain Refuses Demand Of Opposition

Says Minister to Coordinate All Economic Activities Would Change Position of Prime Minister

LARGE STEAMSHIP SUNK

5,063-Ton Vaclite and 1,178-Ton Highwave Both Torpedoed — Vaclite in Convoy at Time—Crew Picked Up by Italian Ship

London, Feb. 1.—(CP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain in the House of Commons today rejected an opposition demand that he include in his war cabinet a Minister to co-ordinate economic activities.

Replying to a motion by Herbert Morrision, Labor, for such a change —a subject of political controversy —the Prime Minister said:—

"It seems to me the existence of a minister who would be the dictator over all (economic) departments the right honourable member described would change the position of the Prime Minister and I do not see what the Prime Minister would have left to do by the time this gentleman had given his orders to all departments."

London, Feb. 1 (CP).—Great Britain's economic front comes under fire in the House of Commons today when the Labor party makes a formal demand for appointment of an economic minister to the war cabinet.

In probably the most important test of strength between supporters of the government and its opposition since the outbreak of war, the Laborites are expected to contend that organization of the vital economic phase of the struggle has lagged behind the rest of Britain's war effort.

Support for the cabinet change cut across party lines. The strongly pro-government London Times join-

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

The comfort zone! We all seek the "comfort zone", which is a certain limited range of temperature and humidity giving bodily comfort. The limitations of the zone of comfort vary from season to season and with the country. For instance, the comfort zone in winter lies in brackets of higher temperatures and humidities than in summer, when lower temperatures, and drier air are enjoyed; also people living in the tropics are comfortable in higher temperature and humidities which might be oppressive to those living in United States or Canada. At this time of year people enjoy about 70 degrees temperature and 65 per cent humidity.

JAPAN TO PURSUE COURSE MARKED AGAINST CHINA

Leaders Hope for Britain and U.S. to Accept New Order in East Asia

Tokyo, Feb. 1—(CP)—Japan will unswervingly pursue the course it has embarked upon in China, Government leaders told the Diet, when it opened its 75th session today.

The theme of the "new order in East Asia" was elaborated by the new Premier, Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, by Foreign Minister Hachira Arita, War Minister Shunroku Hata and Navy Minister Zengo Yoshida, all of whom proclaimed Japan's determination to overcome all obstacles to its policies whether put in its way by the Chinese Government or the governments of third powers.

Premier Yonai and Arita stressed Japan's continuing desire to "adjust relations with the powers from an independent standpoint". The Foreign Minister said Japan looked for this adjustment on the basis of British and American acceptance of the "new order in East Asia".

Not Interfering With Third Power

With this acceptance, security of third-power rights in China was assured, he said, for Japan "has absolutely no desire to do away with the rights and interests of third powers in China".

300 RUSS PLANES SHOT DOWN IN 2 MONTHS' WAR

20,340 Bombs Dropped in 624 Red Raids Says Finnish Report

SOVIET COMMUNIQUE

Somewhere in Finland, Feb. 1—(AP)—The Finnish command summarized the second month of the war today in a statement which said the invading army of Soviet Russia had lost "huge numbers of men and an immense amount of booty."

It did not give exact figures on the Soviet casualties but army communiques have specified a total of more than 12,000 Russian dead to date, and unoffical reports have placed them far higner.

(Some neutral observers have remarked that the reported Russian casualties are far in excess of those in other wars on the basis of numbers engaged).

PROVINCIAL TAX ON CORPORATIONS INCREASED 50 P.C.

Bill Introduced in Legislature is Retroactive to Some Corporations

SOME TAXED SEPARATE

Amendments to Succession Duty Act Under Heavy Fire in Legislature

Toronto, Feb. 1—(CP)— Ontario today had a foretaste of the increased taxation the Provincial budget scheduled to be presented next week by Premier Mitchell Hepburn, Provincial Treasurer will bring.

The foretaste was a government bill, introduced in the Legislature yesterday, to increase by 150 per cent the provincial tax on corporation net incomes. The base rate for taxation on these incomes is five per cent under the bill brought in to amend the Corporation Tax Act. Base rate in the present statute is two per cent.

An unusual feature in such legislation is a clause making the measure retroactive insofar as it affects corporations with fiscal years that ended on or after Jan. 1, 1939, and on or before Oct. 31, 1939.

NEW RESTRICTIONS ON ELECTRICITY IMPOSED BY JAPS

Shortage Said Due to Severe Drought Which Has Affected Country's Hydro Electric Power Production

INDUSTRY PARALYZED

Tokyo, Feb. 1 (AP)—The government arranged today to rush almost 1,000,000 tons of coal to power plants in an effort to relieve an electricity famine which virtually has paralyzed Japan's industrial system.

Drastic new restrictions which have been imposed on electricity users probably can be lifted by the end of the month, a government official said, but further reductions are expected before then.

The Osaka district, Japan's chief manufacturing centre, was operating on schedules in some cases of 75 per cent below normal under orders for a 10-day curtailment.

Further reductions impended in the Osaka region and similar restructions were scheduled for Feb. 10 in Tokyo and Yokohama.

Numerous factories which require an uninterrupted flow of electricity were planning complete shutdowns.

Osaka, a city of 3,500,000 had rationed current after a 14-hour total suspension and still was a city of gloom with even street cars operating on curtailed schedules.

Many electrically-operated steel and iron furnaces had ceased operations and other large factories

Pontiff Hopes New Zealand Will be Spared Horrors of War

Vatican City, Feb. 1 (AP).—Pope Pius XII today broadcast blessings to New Zealand Catholics and expressed hope that they would be "mercifully protected from the horrors of war".

He was addressing the National Eucharistic Congress at Wellington. The Pope spoke in English.

Speaking from his study in the ten minute broadcast, the Pontiff said he shared the joy of his hearers in celebrating "the end of the first century and the beginning of the second century of Catholic life in New Zealand.

He urged them to "live as God-fearing and earnest Catholics," extolling faith, prayer and sacrifice.

Expressing hope that Christ would "rule over the whole life of your nation, the life of each one of you and your social life," the Pope asked that "his peace descend upon your daily life and mercifully protect you from the horrors of war."

Wellington, Feb. 1 (CP-Reuters)—Amid scenes of ecclesiastic splendor, a Eucharistic Congress opened here today in celebration of the centennial of the Roman Catholic Church in New Zealand. Pope Pius broadcast a greeting in English from the Vatican.

Pontifical Mass was celebrated in the presence of Mgr. Vlovanni Panico, Papal delegate, and numerous members of the clergy of New Zealand and from overseas and a large gathering of the faithful. The Mass was celebrated by Rt. Rev. James Liston, Bishop of Auckland.

The sermon was delivered by Most Rev. Thomas O'Shea, Archbishop of Wellington.

"The Congress," he said, "will be a crusade of prayer for a just and early peace to save civilization from one of the most mortal blows ever dealt to it."

BODIES IN ONE BED

Mrs. Mary Levere, Mother, is Believed to Have Risen and Started Wood Fire and Then Returned to Rest

Brockville, Ont., Feb. 1—(CP)—Mrs. Mary Levere and her three children died of suffocation at dawn today when fire broke out in their home on the outskirts of Brockville. The bodies were badly burned.

The fire was discovered nearly an hour after the husband and father, John Levere, left the small frame residence for volunteer Salvation Army work at the police station where he prepared breakfast for transients.

It is believed that Mrs. Levere arose and started a wood fire in a box stove downstairs, then went back to bed with her children, first taking the baby from her crib. All the bodies were found in one bed.

Investigating police and firemen said death had been due to suffocation from smoke.

The fire was discovered by pedestrians passing along Keefer street some distance from the residence

Mount Olympus, 'Home of Gods' Shaken By Quake

London, Feb. 1—(CP)—A Reuters News Agency dispatch from Salonika, Greece, today reported "some loss of life" in an earthquake which shook the Mount Olympus region. Several houses collapsed.

Mount Olympus, which the ancient Greeks called the Home of the Gods, is 50 miles southeast of Salonika in a rugged region of east central Greece.

There are no large cities in the region but small villages and towns dot the area overlooking the Gulf of Salonika. The peak of Mt. Olympus, highest point in a range of the same name is 9,793 feet.

BALANCE SHEET ANSWER TO HITLER

Paris, Feb. 1 (CP—Havas)—Commenting on Prime Minister Chamberlain's speech in London yesterday, Le Petit Journal today said he countered with a balance sheet Adolf Hitler's "hysterical" speech of the previous day.

Le Jour-Echo de Paris said "The British Prime Minister did not lower himself to reply to the diatribes of the master of the Third Reich, to personal attacks he opposed contempt; to violence serene firmness."

Goering Seeks Chancellorship Under Hitler, Says Report

Field Marshal Said to be Perfectly Loyal to Fuehrer, but to feel That He Should Exercise Powers in International and Foreign Affairs — Army Commanders Reported to Back Goering Before Ribbentrop, Himmler and Goebbels

Stockholm, Sweden, Feb. 1—(CP-Havas) — In an article reporting discord among the Nazi leaders, the Berlin correspondent of the Goeteborgs Handels-Och Sjoefartsidning today said Field Marshal Hermann Goering, while perfectly loyal to Adolf Hitler, thinks it necessary for himself to become chancellor under Hitler.

Under this scheme Goering, who is now virtual economic dictator, also would exercise similar powers in internal and foreign affairs.

Army commanders were said to back Goering in opposition to foreign minister Joachin Von Ribbentrop, Heinrich Himmler, chief of all German police, and Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels.

Goering was said to be making personal efforts to secure greater cooperation from Italy, and to have turned against Von Ribbentrop because Finland had been abandoned to Soviet influence by the German foreign office without the prior knowledge of Goering or the high command.

REDS BOMB HOSPITAL

By ZADE WERNER

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Helsingfors, Feb. 1 (AP). — The Finnish command insists its forces are holding defence lines decided upon immediately after the Soviet invasion started two months ago.

The declaration came from General Hugo Oesterman, commander of the army under Baron Gustaf Mannerheim, at his headquarters "somewhere in Finland"—accompanied by reports of a fierce Russian aerial smash at the nerve centre of Northern Finland's communications and of a Finnish victory over a Siberian ski battalion.

Twenty-seven Red army planes, attacking in waves, were reported to have bombed Rovaniemi yesterday, leaving fifteen dead and sixty wounded. Among the casualties, according to the Finnish report, were children and nurses. A hospital was said to have been shattered by bombs.

A total of 150 bombs were reported dropped on Rovaniemi, railway and highway junction in the northern "waistline" part of Finland, in

OTTAWA LISTS CONTRACTS LET SINCE JULY 14TH

RAILWAY EQUIPMENT

Ottawa, Feb. 1 (CP). — Lists of contracts awarded by the Defence Purchasing Board from July 14 to Oct. 31, totalling $41,288,907 and by the War Supply Board from Nov. 1 to Dec. 31, amounting to $19,744,549 were made public today.

The War Supply Board, under the chairmanship of Wallace Campbell, took over the duties of the Defence Purchasing Board which had been under the direction of R. C. Vaughan, on Nov. 1 last.

The list of contracts was contained in two pamphlets, one covering the Defence Purchasing Board, the other covering the War Supply Board.

These contrasts were to have been tabled in the House of Commons at the last session of parliament but, after the House dissolved four hours following the opening, it was decided to issue the list in book form.

After the War Supply Board took over the letting of contracts, Transport Minister Howe, as minister responsible for its activities, started issuing in December a weekly list of contracts covering those of $5,000 or more.

However, contracts handled by the Defence Purchasing Board heretofore have not been made public and the two booklets issued today cover orders down to such small figures as $4.86 for silver solder purchaser Nov. 17 from the Johnson Matthew Company of Toronto.

The largest contracts in the Purchasing Board's list were for railway equipment. Equipment for the Canadian National Railways totalled $13,847,850, and for the Canadian Pacific $8,591,500, which with sales tax made a total of $24,234,498.

All the contracts for railway equipment were awarded on Oct. 20, and brought the total contracts for October up to $36,056,796. The totals for the other month for the Purchasing Board were, July $222,350, August $3,138,273 and September $1,871,487.

November contracts awarded by the War Supply Board totalled $13,272,966 and those for December were $6,501,581.

Large Assortment

The War Supply Board orders covers everything from toothbrushes for soldiers to ballast boxes for aircraft.

It was explained the list was a record of orders placed rather than of payment made and in many instance the estimated costs were used because final figures will not be available until the transactions have been completed.

Some orders were placed for immediate delivery. In many others delivery dates were set ranging from a few day to several week. Other orders were placed on an "as required" basis.

Arnold Wellman And Wife Victims of Double Murder

Tragic Events Believed to Have Taken Place on Wednesday — 77 - Year Farmer is Discovered Where He Had Been Milking Cow

WIFE SHOT IN BED

Mrs. Wellman Writing Letter at Time — Unfinished Sheet is Found on Blood-Stained Bed Coverlet

Victims of one of the most brutal murders ever committed in this district, the shotgun-blasted bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Wellman, 77 and 75 respectively, well-known farmers residing two miles west of Harold, were found in their house and barn, this morning by a mail-carrier, approximately police believe, some sixteen hours after the crime had been committed.

The body of Mrs. Wellman was discovered in bed, a blood-spattered unfinished letter to her daughter, lying on the coverlets. The top of her head had been blown off by what is said to be the discharge of a shotgun.

In the cow-stable of the barn, with a milk pail clutched between his legs, lying beside a cow he had been milking at the time, was the body of Mr. Wellman, the top of the head blown off. He had been shot from behind, it is believed, as the impact of the discharge hurled him against the cow's body ,and he then fell backward to the floor of the cow stable. The cow was covered with blood. A milk-stool lay near by.

Gruesome Discovery

Edward Faulkner, mail- courier, and a friend of the family, made the gruesome discovery when making his daily rounds this morning. Accustomed to a greeting from Mrs. Wellman, but knowing that she had been confined to her bed for a day or so with a heart condition, he opened the bedroom door to greet her. Sick at the sight of what he saw, he rushed to the barn and there discovered the body of Mr. Wellman.

Gun is Missing

Drawers of bureaus and dressers in the house had been ransacked, and their contents strewn over the floor. Dr. Marvin Wellman, of the Ontario Hospital, Whitby, son of the slain couple, told police over the telephone today, that his father usually kept a twelve-gauge shotgun standing in a corner near a bureau. The gun is missing. Mr. and Mrs. Wellman lived alone.

Police are of the opinion that the crime was committed some time late yesterday afternoon as Mr. Wellman was in the habit of milking his cows in the early morning and late afternoon. The fact that his body was found in the position it was, and that Dr. Carleton, Stirling physician, called in to conduct a post-mortem stated that rigor mortis had set in for some time, substantiated police theories to this effect.

Charles Dunham, a neighbor of the Wellman family, told police that he had been cutting wood with his son in a field adjacent to the Wellman property yesterday afternoon, and had noticed a man leave the Wellman house and walk across the fields to the road. Another neighbor stated that a horse and cutter had been tethered approximately a quarter-mile down the road from the Wellman property. Later it had disappeared.

Dr. Carleton, Stirling, Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson, Belleville, County Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan and provincial police under Sergeant Harry Thompson, are at the scene of the crime investigating every angle.

Besides Dr. Marvin Wellman, another son, Dr. A. L. Wellman, of Waterloo, Ont., and Dr. Iona V. Wellman, Chicago survive.

"It is quite apparent that robbery was the motive for this double crime," Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., stated and investigating police agreed today after viewing the scene. The Wellmans were successful farmers in the community and it is supposed their assailant was seeking money, as all of the drawers in the bureau in Mrs. Wellman's bedroom had been ransacked. A bureau drawer in the kitchen cabinet was also disturbed, police officers found in their investigation.

During the early stages of the investigation it had been believed that the Wellmans had been victims of either an axe or hatchet murderous attack, but later police found a felt piece of wadding used in a shotgun cartridge. It was following the finding of the wadding that Provincial and Mounted Police later found shot gun pellets imbedded in the pillow which Mrs. Wellman had apparently been leaning against while writing the letter to her daughter.

This afternoon Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan notified Dr. E. R. Frankish, provincial Medico-Legal expert, who is being rushed to Harold by motorcar to assist the investigations. Mr. Donnan later instructed the police to refrain from moving the bodies and no inquest will be held until Dr. Frankish has made a complete survey of the case.

When interviewed by The Ontario Intelligencer at the scene of the dual tragedy, Mrs. W. Faulkner, a neighbor lady, stated the Wellmans were old and respected residents of Rawdon Township. "I don't know of a single enemy these elderly people might have. They were well liked by every person in the community," stated Mrs. Faulkner, who is also the mother of Edward Faulkner, the mail carrier, who discovered the bodies this morning.

Everett Wellman, a nephew of the deceased persons, arrived early upon scene and was noticeably affected when police authorities informed him there was no doubt but that the elderly couple had been shot to death with a shot gun. "I don't understand it, why, they didn't have a bad friend in the world. Whoever did this terrible deed must have had robbery in mind," added Mr. Wellman.

County Constable Chief Clare Hayes of Tweed, impaneled a coroner's jury composed of farmers of the district and Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., conducted the preliminary investigation at the scene of the killings. Charles Dunham, a neighbor farmer, identified the bodies and the inquest adjourned to be resumed at Stirling on Feb. 7. This morning's hearing was heard before Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson, who visited the scene of the accident with Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan.

The coroner's jury was composed of Messrs. T. M. Reid, foreman, Raymond McGee, Fred Thain, Elmer Cotton and Stewart Hoover, all Rawdon Township farmers.

B.C. Copper Shipped to Russia Provincial Mine Officials Say

Victoria, Feb. 1 (CP). — British Columbia copper is being shipped in large quantities to Russia, provincial mines officials here said Wednesday.

They explained the copper from some British Columbia mines goes to Tacoma, Wash., where it is smelter and then goes into the world market.

(C. P. Browning, general manager of the Britannia Mining and Smelting Company's mine on Howe Sound, said the mine produced no refined copper but shipped concentrates to Tacoma, where they were sold before smelting. He said the mine does not know the ultimate destination of the metal.

Ottawa, Feb. 1 (CP).—All exports of copper from Canada are licensed and the government can deny licences in order to safeguard domestic and military requirements of copper and to carry out more effectually regulations respecting trading with the enemy.

British Columbia copper which was reported to have gone to a Tacoma, Wash., smelter and then was shipped to Russia was licensed for export to the United States, it was indicated here, but the government had no control over its re-export to the Soviet.

Exhibition Hockey Game Played Here

Rattling home goals in a most prolific manner puckster representing Ken Smith's news store triumphed over the Upper Canada News sextette by a 16 to 8 score at the Hume Arena in the late hours of last night.

The goal-keeping of Jack Dell, in the nets for the winners, proved an obstacle to the willing "news agency" pucksters, while the Semark brothers accounted for the greater number of the winners' goals.

Colborne, Forster and Brown lead the losers, but in vain, while Referee Joe Ball ruled the pastime without fear of favour, which was not exactly appreciated by the more zealous players, who occasionally languished in the "cooler" for their misdemeanours.

COBBLERS BEAT STIRLING SQUAD

Foxboro, Feb. 1 (Special)— Displaying the most finished exhibition of combination played on their own ice this season, the Bata "shoemakers" completed the initial half of the season's Trent Valley League schedule last night when they outplayed and outsmarted the Stirling "Bombers" to give them a decisive 6-2 drubbing with the score about indicative of the play.

After the first period when the winners were held about even by the Stirling squad, the losers went into the lead with two goals at the start of the second canto, but the lead was short-lived as "Acey" Reid soloed from the faceoff and knotted the count again after only twenty-five seconds had elapsed. From then on the Stirling lads were never in the picture and although they tried hard were unable to cope with the dizzy display of combination set up by the winners, and rapidly faded when two quick goals by Dore put the Bata team into the lead. Guay and Stojan combined in the last period for the prettiest goal of the night with Guay on the receiving end of a pass to step around the defence and beat the Stirling goalie all the way. McDonald and Foster duplicated the performance a couple of moments later to give the Bata lads a four goal lead and then hung on until the end of the game with the Stirling "Bombers" trying hard to cut into the margin.

Reid, for Bata was easily the speediest man on the ice getting a goal and an assist with McDonald and Dore accounting for two apiece in a good display of aggressiveness. Romhanji stood out in goal for the winners and was afforded good protection by the well-knit defence of Guay and Stojan. Armstrong proved the only Stirling player to keep up with Bata's pace, slipping through for two goals, one a set-up by Harry Ingram and the other from a scramble in front of the nets.

The teams:

Stirling—goal—Hart; defence—Ingram and Jones: centre—Armstrong; wings — Richardson and Barnum; subs—Dainard, Morton, Bolte and May.

Bata—goal— Romhanji; defence—Guay and Stojan; centre—Reid; wings—Foster and Elder; subs—Rose, Lawrence, McDonald and Dore.

Much Speculation Over Possible Liberal Candidates in P.E. - Lennox

Dr. Hall, Warden McCabe, W. G. Paul of Lennox and Burt Pearsall of P. E. Are Mentioned

G. TUSTIN, CON. CHOICE

Reconnaisance of political ground in preparation for the forthcoming Federal siege, was begun in Prince Edward Lennox riding this week by members of the Liberal party as the opposition sat pat with their nomination of the sitting member George A. Tustin of Napanee.

So far no third party has raised a head in the riding and all indications point to a real old-fashioned two-party struggle.

While the political situation insofar as nominations are concerned are clear in the Conservative camp, the Liberals thus far can only speculate as to whom will be its candidate.

From the Prince Edward section of the riding the names of four men have been suggested, one from Prince Edward and the other three from Lennox. These are: Dr. Hall, the present mayor of Napanee who was victorious in the recent municipal election; Warden G. McCabe, youthful head of Lennox County Council, and W. G. Paul of Napanee, ex-mayor and a former member of the county council.

The Prince Edward name mentioned is that of Burt Pearsall, Reeve of Hallowell and Warden of the county in 1938. Nothing, however, will be decided until the Liberal Convention is held in Napanee in the near future.

Problems of Swine Raising Discussed By L. M. Kerr

TELLS OF DISEASES

Foxboro, Feb. 1 (Special)—Talking on the problems of present day swine raising, on their care, the prevention and cure of diseases peculiar to these animals, together with other subjects of general interest, Mr. L. M. Kerr, B.S.A., of Kent County, Ontario, yesterday afternoon gave a very interesting and instructive lecture to a large group of farmers in the Sidney town hall at Wallbridge.

Introduced to his audience by District Agricultural Representative, Mr. Linn Fair of Stirling, Mr. Kerr imparted a wealth of valuable information to his listeners, telling of his own experience in Western Ontario as a hog-raiser and advocating to local men the same system that he had used for the past number of years with considerable success. It was absolutely essential, said Mr. Kerr, that, for the duration of the war at least, Canadian farmers produce all the bacon type hogs possible as the British government were anxious to enter into an agreement with Canada to take all our surplus bacon at a certain specified price providing that it came up to the required standard.

Tells of Diseases

In speaking of the diseases associated with hog-raising, Mr. Kerr named shipping fever as the greatest enemy. So suddenly does this disease strike that within merely a few hours from its first taking effect a farmer's complete stock of hogs may be wiped out, often before he realizes the seriousness of the situation. The disease is very highly contagious and it has been known for persons to carry it from one farm to another. Mr. Kerr named over the various symptoms by which the disease could be detected and advocated inoculation with a serum as the only possible remedy for hogs already infected while the serum was also used as a preventative with regular injections being advised to guarantee immunity. Trouble with worms and anemia were also quite common with hogs and Mr. Kerr advised worm powders as being the one sure way of getting rid of worms with a thorough and complete disinfection of pens following. In the case of anemia which, he said was caused by the lack of mineral in the hog's feeding ration, it was advised to build up the animal's condition by giving reduced iron in specified quantities and at different stages of development.

General Discussion

Following the lecture by Mr. Kerr the meeting was thrown open to general discussion after which Mr. Fair introduced commercial fertilizer as the next topic of interest to farmers. A great many farmers were buying fertilizer, stated Mr. Fair, without the least idea as to which was the proper mixture for their type of soil and in many cases the wrong mixture was being applied. In order to prevent such a needless waste of money Mr. Fair advised that six or seven samples of both top soil and sub-soil should be taken and this sent to the nearest Agricultural college for analysis and then, when the returns came back, he would know in which element his land was deficient and could purchase his fertilizer accordingly. When asked if continued use of commerial fertilizer would tend to destroy the mechanical condition of the land and make it hard to work, Mr. Kerr assured the farmers that proper use of fertilizer together with the use of ordinary barnyard manure, would, on the contrary, result in improved workability of the soil while a considerable increase in production should also be noted. No farmer is justified in the purchase of commercial fertilizer for his land unless, after careful comparisons, he notes that the increase in production considerably more than pays for the added expense.

In closing, Mr. Fair advised the farmers of a seed show which was to be held in Stirling on March 20 under the auspices of the local agricultural branch and invited every farmer having seed grain for sale to bring a fair sample to Stirling on that date to be exhibited to possible buyers. Mr. Lawrence Ketcheson acting in capacity of chairman for the afternoon, extended a very hearty vote of thanks to both Mr. Kerr and Mr. Fair for their part of the afternoon's program and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

REAL HITLER NOW WELL KNOWN

The longer the world's acquaintance with Hitler, even from the distance of being outside of Germany, the more clearly the fact stands out that with his coming upon the world scene of politics, the greatest influence for destruction and unrest appeared, and the more clearly is defined the type of man the world has to suppress and abolish from influence.

His Tuesday speech showed his type as it is:—hollow admirations, lies, repetitions of old complaints against the entire world outside of Germany, nervous violence and screaming in utterance, callous reference to or glossing over of such tragedies as the conquest of Austria by trickery, the destruction of the neighbor state of the Czechs and the outrage on Poland, boasts of the power possessed by the Germans whom he dare not trust with the truth of what is going on and with his plans except to make the constant iteration on the theme that Germany has been downtrodden but that she is proud and must have a place.

That Hitler is grown mad with the lust for power, with bitterness, with envy, that he is an unscrupulous foe and that he, with the leading Nazis, is determined to go through ruthlessly with his projects whatever the cost in life and suffering to the individual and to the world is clear. He tricks his people through the war to hold power as he tricked them before the war to obtain power.

There is recognized in him the greatest menace to peace and harmony that has come to the world.

It is recognized that the world must fight it out with this enemy, who is the enemy of every progressive movement and agency. It is not only the Allies who realize this but the nonbelligerents as well.

NO NEUTRALS FEAR POWER OF ALLIES

Prime Minister Chamberlain was able to tell a great story on Wednesday of construction of aircraft now sevenfold what it was of four years ago, the establishment of 67 flying schools in Canada and vast expansion in war efforts in every field.

What he said about the sense of security the world feels even in the presence of the gigantic armaments of Britain and France was a ringing note in his address, "There is not a single nonbelligerent country that feels itself threatened by this enormous accumulation of powers." He asked the neutral states to consider that while there are natural inconveniences and loss, "we have never sunk a neutral ship and we have never wittingly sacrificed a single neutral life."

That fact is recognized among the nations. Against this straight truth all the lies of Hitler cannot prevail. If Hitler would dare say so he would say that Germany has gone out of her way to raid the neutrals almost as savagely as she would Britain and France. Nonbelligerents suffer but they place their troubles and losses at the doorstep of the man in Berlin.

In short as Mr. Chamberlain said, "It is becoming clearer every day from the actions of the Germans themselves that we are fighting not only for ourselves but for every country that feels itself oppressed by the fear that some day they may find themselves in the position successively occupied by Czecho-Slovakia, Poland and now by Finland." And Britain does not question the right of neutrals to decide their course under neutrality.

WHAT NAME COULD HE CHOOSE?

A despatch the other day was sent from Zurich stating that Adolf Hitler might on his 51st birthday, April 20th., proclaim himself Emperor of the Reich and Austria. A year ago there was a story told that he might have himself proclaimed German Emperor. It was at the time when the Polish and Danzig question was becoming critical.

What title. if the No. 1 National Socialist wanted a title and decided to take it, could he take? How would "Emperor Adolf the First" suit? Or would he be likely to add to his own name that of the Prussian king, whose career he has studied and who has intrigued him most, that of Frederick the Great, and call himself "Emperor Adolf Frederick" or might only the name of "Emperor Frederick" be used.

The name Adolf might not quite suit. There was a king once named Gustav Adolphus, a great military hero who was a Swede. In the earliest days of the seventeenth century he became one of the great figures of history. He fought Denmark, turned against the Russians and drove them from Karelia and part of Livonia which were later secured to him by treaty. Then he fought Poland and afterwards turned his attention to Germany and in a short time seized almost all of Pomerania. He took many fortified towns and conquered a large part of Germany but was killed at the battle of Luetzen when only 42 years of age. He was a severe disciplinarian but was beloved by his soldiers.

But there is then the name of Frederick.

The story of Germany which has torn the world and twice upset the peace in less than a generation is practically the story of Prussia. It is no wonder Hitler likes it and ponders on the life of Frederick the Great. Prussia had got her start with the peace of Westphalia which ended the Thirty Years' War. The Great Elector Frederick William formed a standing army. His son added to his title of elector of Brandenburg, that of King of Prussia.

Frederick the Great was instructed on his father's orders only in the details of military training and service. His state had a population of two and a quarter million when he came to the throne two hundred years ago. When he died he left a population of 6,000,000. He raised the status of Prussia because he was legislator and general and he had a cabinet of distinguished men during his reign of 46 years. It is said " the story of his wars would be a history of Europe." The Prussians waged many wars. Frederick spent much time on organization of the army. On the death of the Emperor Charles Sixth he had invaded Silesia and gained most of Silesia from Austria by the Peace of Breslau. Two years later in 1742 he reopened the struggle and succeeded in effecting the Treaty of Dresden, a repetition of the Treaty of Breslau. In 1756 the Hapsburgs formed an alliance against Prussia with France, Russia, Saxony and Sweden, While England sided with Frederick. Then began the Seven Years' War which taxed the resources of Frederick's kingdom to the utmost. This same Frederick the Great was associated with the partition of Poland between Austria, Prussia and Russia, which brought into being West Prussia.

It was he who started that confederation of German Princes which continued until the German Empire was created. He had a long friendship with the famous French literary figure Voltaire.

After the long wars with Napoleon the German states were organized as a federation, each state being independent. In 1830 came free trade among the German states. In 1848 a national assembly met at Berlin to draw up a constitution but the rivalry of Austria and Prussia was such that the King of Prussia refused the title of Emperor of the Germans. Then came Bismark with his "iron and blood" policy which made possible the union of the German nation. Bismark encouraged the rivalry of Prussia and Austria and was preparing for the war with Austria. Prussia won that war in 1866 and in 1867 the North German Confederation came about with the King of Prussia as president. The Franco-Prussian war of 1870-71 was followed by the change of Confederation to the Empire and William I, King of Prussia, was proclaimed Emperor.

The Empire ceased in 1918 with the flight of Kaiser Wilhelm to Holland and with the revolution.

Throughout German history one sees Prussian militarism asserting itself until it broke in the Great War. The story of the rebirth of German militarism until Hitler is recent history.

JANUARY SETS RECORD

January 1940, the war January, has passed into history. It did not make a record for snow but it certainly made a record for zero weather, no fewer than eighteen nights being sub-zero. The last part of the month was severe by reason of the sustained cold spell, which for about half the time kept the mercury low.

Many days have been bright and clear with the sun shining, one of the conditions so much to be desired during winter.

January 1940 was a month for sport. Severe weather has kept the snow unpacked and there is a good basis for skiing and snow-shoeing, while there has been plenty of ice for skating.

Advises Lords Act Their Age

The Earl of Glasgow wants a little more decorum from his fellow members of the House of Lords. Every time one of the ministers is scheduled to make an important statement in Commons, there was such a rush for the peers' gallery, that the scrum "was dangerous to life and limb." "I am not lecturing your lordships, but only trying to save you from harm," he pleaded.

There was joy, unadulterated joy, in the local arena last night when the local kids came to life with a start and handed the Picton Pirates the short end of a 10 to 7 score, thus sending that ambitious bunch into obscurity for the balance of the season. It was surely a fast and furious game and the excitement ran high and the crowd was the largest this season. The following composed the Belleville team: Duesberry, Brown, Marshall, Patterson, Connolly, Bone, Frechette. Referee—Moxam.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Reports from the Finnish war bring three rather definite indications that Finland's weakness in air power is being corrected to some extent as Russian aircraft range over Finland dropping bombs by the thousand without discrimination as to objective.

From Bergen, Norway, the arrival of 11 United States-made pursuit planes, destined for Finland, has been reported. The Finnish air force has attacked a Russian harbor, Russian motor lorry columns and Russian railway stations. Out of an estimated 200 Russian planes which raided Finland in a single day 20 were shot down.

Air power assumes increasing importance in the Finnish war as spring approaches. Military experts are more or less agreed the country is unsuitable for large-scale operations except in winter when the lakes, marshes and rivers are frozen.

If the Russians are stopped on land in the winter they may be unable to continue a land offensive later when the lack of roads will tell against them. There will be nothing to stop them from carrying on the warfare from the air the year round except a growing Finnish air force.

The Italian planes and pilots sent to Finland early in the war are reported to be giving a good account of themselves and if the Finns have pilots to fly the United States planes now on their way they should be a welcome addition.

Restore House Of Port Royal

Restoration of the Port Royal Habitation at Granville, N.S., where the settlers of New France spent their initial Canadian winter in 1605 is almost complete.

Work on this landmark is being done by the Surveys and Engineering branch of the Mines Department. The new habitation is an exact, full-size replica of the original built by the French under Champlain.

Timbers of the building were put together with wooden pins, the practice when the sons of France came first to Canada. Hinges and latches were reproduced in the typical workmanship of the period. Local field stone was used in the construction of the chimneys, bricks in the bake-over, blacksmith's forge and fireplaces were made on the spot by old-time brickmakers. Much archaeological and historical research was done by representatives of several societies and museums. Scientific soil reading was used to establish the original position of the buildings.

Picton to San Francisco By Car and Trailer, Topic Of Interesting Letter

The following letter describes in an interesting manner a trip by car and trailer from Picton to San Francisco, by Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Williams of Picton and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Franklin, Toronto. It was received by Mr. and Mrs. McDonald, Picton, from Mr. Franklin and printed in the Picton Gazette.

San Francisco,
Golden Gate Trailer Park,
Jan. 19th, 1940.

"Here we are in Frisco, the first half of our trip over. I will try and give you an idea of what we have seen and enjoyed. As I am not very good at writing a story you may have to put your imagination to work. Well, here goes:

We started Monday morning, Jan. 1st, at 9.40; the weather was quite cold, the roads not very good. During the day's drive we saw what I think were natural gas wells. I think these were somewhere in the Chatham district. We stopped about half way to Detroit and had lunch in a restaurant. We arrived in Detroit without any trouble at the border. We found a trailer park where we stayed for the night. We got up at six o'clock Tuesday morning and it was quite cold and cloudy. We left about 8:30 intending to make Indianapolis. We stopped at one o'clock for lunch. We stopped about twenty-five miles short of our intended destination, doing 250 miles. We got up Wedesday morning at six bells, and the weather was very cold—7 below zero. Andrew could not get the car started and we had to be towed, getting started at 10:20. The weather was clear, roads were very good until early afternoon when they became very bad and we could not drive more than 20 miles an hour. After a very nerve-wracking drive we arrived at Effingham. There was no regular camp there so we parked alongside a service station for the night. We gained one hour that day going from Indiana to Illinois. We left Thursday morning at 8 o'clock and as we had been told the roads were very bad west of here we decided to go south. The roads were terrible during the morning but improved as we got further south. We arrived at a place called Terra Haute where Andrew had a great lot of fun seeing so many of the Colonial folks. This city was very dirty and smoky. We made better time than we expected and got to the city of Cairo. We crossed the bridge at the junction of the Ohio and Mississippi Rivers. This took us into the State of Missouri. We stopped at Sodus trailer park. We got up at six o'clock and again the weather was very cold, 6 below zero, and was very much of a surprise as the temperature the night before was 33 above. Again we could not get the car started and had to be towed, leaving about 9:30. Today the roads were very good.

Parts of Arkansas Very Poor.

During the morning we crossed into the State of Arkansas. We were very much surprised at the poor looking homes and the land looked useless. The houses were all built on stilts and were in a very rundown condition. We stopped to make some purchases and had a chat with a storekeeper who told us the people were very poor. However we had a very enjoyable trip today getting to the City of Little Rock where we had to buy a new gas stove to cook with as the one in the trailer gave out. We had our supper and went to bed early. Again we got up at six; the weather was cloudy and quite cool, the roads good. After crossing the city I noticed that this part of Arkansas appeared much more prosperous. The homes were much better and well kept, and the land looked more fertile. About 12:30 it came on a sleet storm so we had to put into a trailer park at the city of Texarkana. We spent the afternoon writing cards and getting caught up a little in our writing. We had quite a time keeping Andrew home as he would go out to talk with folks. One gets quite a lot of fun from the southern drawl. The people here are very nice and sociable.

On Sunday morning after an inspection of the highway we decided the roads were passable and left at 8 o'clock. The first few miles were good but the road became very bad again and very slippery. We took the wrong highway at Maud and after consulting a map took a road across to Naples. This road was in terrible condition, all hills and dales and icy. I was driving and I am quite sure had I been sitting on dozens of eggs, I would not have broken one. Going up the hills the car and trailer would slip first one way and then the other and big ditches on both sides. I thought we would never make it but after great skill and professional driving (ah hum!) we arrived on our proper highway again. The weather cleared and the roads became much better and as we neared the city of Dallas, Texas, there was not a sign of snow or ice. We got to Dallas at six o'clock and camped for the night.

Fine Weather at Dallas, Texas.

The alarm went this morning at six o'clock but we found no electricity so had to stay in bed until it was daylight which was about seven o'clock. The weather was beautiful, the sun was shining in a cloudless sky and it was warm. We left camp about ten o'clock. The scenery was beautiful and the fields were nice and green. We did not drive very fast this morning as we wanted to see all the beauty of the fields, a few flowers and shrubbery. We only drove one hundred miles before dinner. We took highway No. 80A which was very rough, but the afternoon drive was wonderful, finally arriving at the city of Abilene and stopping at the Green Gables trailer camp. It was our intention today to do 295 miles but we fell short, doing only 190.

Land of Oil Wells.

Tuesday morning we left Abilene at 8:30. Again the sun was shining in a cloudless sky and was lovely and warm. During our drive we passed plenty of oil wells. We saw a big volume of smoke in the distance and we thought there was a big fire somewhere. On drawing closer we found it was coming from one of the oil wells and upon enquiry we were told it had been burning for years and that these fires cannot be put out. Another thing that aroused our curiosity was the long pipe about ten feet high which was lighted at the top. We found out that this was gas and had to be burned or else there would be an explosion. I must say that it was a most beautiful sight at night with hundreds of these burning with a flame of one to three feet high and fluttering in the breeze. During the day we also saw men plowing in the fields. I had often wondered what a cotton field looked like and today we saw all kinds of cotton fields and also saw people picking cotton. Today was a most enjoyable drive. I could hardly believe it to be true and I felt like pinching myself to see if I were awake. However, we arrived at the city of Picoes and found the Hillcrest trailer courts where we remained for the night. I must say here that today was so warm we were driving with our hats and coats off. At this place the thermometer reads just 70 degrees.

Today, Wednesday, we left camp at eight o'clock. The weather was lovely, the sun shining bright and warm. At this place we started into the mountains which were on both sides of us and the road was as straight as far as the eye could see. We drove in a valley where the land was a little on the sandy side and a cactus plant here and there, until finally late in the morning it became a regular desert. We saw all kinds of cactus, tumbleweed and sage. After a very delightful day we arrived at the city of Deming. We stopped alongside a service station for the night.

Fine Drive Through Mountains.

We got up on Thursday morning and were on our way by 8 a.m. The weather continued bright and warm. We were still driving in shirt sleeves and bare heads. The drive today is most beautiful with mountains still on both sides of us and we are now in the desert which is full of all kinds of cactus, tumbleweed and sage brush. The mountains are beautiful, being all colors of the rainbow —as a matter of fact they were too lovely to describe. Today we drove a long way on level ground until late afternoon we started to go through the mountains. The roads now were winding up the sides of the mountains with hairpin turns and I would say corkscrew turns which looked very dangerous. When we were going up these roads we could see 5,000 feet up on one side of the car and look down into the canyon on the other side another 5,000 feet. The roadway ran along these cliffs with no guard rails and one mistake here and it would be goodbye forever. Well, we reached the top and the old saying, 'What goes up must come down' applied to us also. We had the hairpin and corkscrew turns the same going down as we did going up and I may say it was very thrilling.

However, again after the most skillful driving we reached the bottom and came upon the beautiful Collidge dam ,a most wonderful sight. We parked our car and had a look at the dam. The scenery was beyond description. After looking over the dam we started away again on another uphill grind. We drove uphill for eight miles in second gear, still having the hairpin and corkscrew turns with us. After a thrilling day's drive we arrived at the city of Miami. There being no trailer park here. we had to go back to the city of Globe and parked there for the night.

This morning, Friday, we left at 8:40 and the weather was still lovely and warm and after passing through Miami we started to repeat yesterday's climbing. We climbed for 23 miles in second gear. The folks complained at this point of a funny feeling in the ears but I did not notice anything myself. We came down the other side and it was really very thrilling. We reached level ground again but the mountains were still on both sides of us. We took a few pictures of the scenery, had lunch and were away again. When we were approaching the city of Phoenix, we saw our first orange groves and what a beautiful sight it was, with different kinds of palm trees and orange groves. After passing through the city we were in the desert again. We finally reached the state line of Arizona and California where we had to have an inspection of things we had in the trailer. We found out that one was not allowed to bring certain kinds of fruit into California, for example, the party in front of us had brought some oranges which they were not permitted to take with them. We had dug up a couple of cactus plants for souvenirs. The inspector took these and cut the roots off and gave us back the tops. It appears that the cactus in Arizona has a root disease that does not appear in the cactus of California. On arriving at the state line we had to put our watches back one hour, which made three hours since we left home. We continued on our way until we arrived at the city of Blythe where we stayed for the night.

Desert Drive Interesting.

We left Blythe at 8:30 Saturday, the weather being lovely and warm. We drove most of the day through desert with snow clad mountains on both sides of us. We saw all kinds of different cactus again. We stopped in the middle of the desert for lunch and wandered around a bit. As we were nearing Los Angeles we saw lots of orange groves just loaded with fruit and much to our surprise saw date palms with plenty of dates on them. We saw also lots of nut trees, pepper trees and palm trees. We arrived in Los Angeles at six o'clock and found a trailer park. After supper we drove through the city and saw the radio broadcasting studios, beautiful buildings. We found Andrew's friends and had a nice visit. We were going to stay in Los Angeles and go to hear and see Jack Benny's broadcast but were told that it takes six months to get a ticket, so we did not feel like waiting that long. We arrived back at trailer park about midnight.

Get First View of Pacific.

This being Sunday we did not get up until nine o'clock. The weather is again bright and warm. From here we took highway No. 101. The scenery was lovely and we got our first glimpse of the Pacific Ocean about one o'clock—a most beautiful sight! There were several ocean-going boats on the horizon and a few that we could see quite plain. We followed the shores for about 50 miles. We saw people fishing with rod and line and also some in bathing suits but we did not see anyone in the water. We also saw some oil wells out in the Pacific Ocean. They were about a quarter of a mile out. After a beautiful morning drive we arrived at the city of Ventura. We ordered T-bone steak and what a steak it was. I thought it was the beef itself they were bringing in. I never saw the likes of it! They brought it in on a platter like we use for Sunday roasts. However we got through it all right and drove to Santa Maria where we remained for the night. This morning we started out on what we hoped was the last lap of the first half of our journey. The weather was nice and bright but not quite so warm as we have been having, although we can still drive with our coats off. The mountains are again on both sides of us. The country here is quite hilly with plenty of green grass. We saw lots of cattle and a few ranches but no cowboys. The cattle on the hills in the distance look like large dogs but the ones close to us look large and fat. We got off the highway but got back again without loss of time. We arrived at a place called Colmas at six o'clock which is about eight miles from San Francisco. We had the evening repast and took a drive through the city, which is about the same size as Toronto.

Today the weather is really lovely. In the evening we went to a show. Wednesday we arose at nine o'clock. We had lunch and went for a drive through the city which is very beautiful. We saw Nick Lucas in the vaudeville and the picture we saw was "Reno".

Arrive At Destination.

We arose at 9:30 today, Thursday, the weather being beautiful and quite warm. Andrew did not have to go to town today so we were going for a tour of the city. First of all we went to the Bell Telephone building where we were taken to the top of the building which is 425 feet high. We got a beautiful view of the city. We saw the Golden Gate bridge, also Treasure Island where the exposition was held. After our view from the building we took a drive through Frisco's Chinatown. We saw all kinds of silkware which was beautiful but very expensive. We then took a drive along the wharves where we saw lots of ocean-going boats. We then went across the Golden Gate Bridge which is eight miles long. This took us into Oakland, a very nice city. We had dinner in Oakland and walked through some of the stores. The prices are about the same as at home. We then returned to Frisco and saw a good movie.

Today is Friday and it is cloudy and quite cool. After supper we went to the city and took in another show, going to the Warfield theatre.

Well, today is Saturday, Jan. 20, and the sun is shining bright and it is lovely and warm again. Andrew and I are writing with the windows wide open; a few flies are bothering us, which we swat at and miss once in a while. The ladies are doing a little shopping. Well, this is our last day in Frisco. We are starting tomorrow on our homeward journey. Our mileage at present is about 4,000 miles. I can assure you that we have certainly enjoyed ourselves.

Air-Tight Ship To Bunker Subs

A naval engineer named Yukevitch, who invented the bulging bow technique used to stabilize the liner Normandie, has presented to the French and British admiralties a plan to counteract the mine menace.

His idea is to make all compartments of the vessel under water completely air tight, so the pressure of the air kept in them will resist the inrush of water through a mine-rift in the hull. Water would penetrate only in small quantities, and the vessel would thus keep afloat.

Yukevitch's plan, which would not work against the impact of a shell, is to prevent air from escaping through the top of these compartments which are already air tight at the bottom and along their sides. He proposes to seal all openings through to the decks above with solid rubber kept in place with iron grills.

Califorina Trip is Interestingly Described

Stirling, Feb. 1.—Arriving recently in Los Angeles, Calif., after a transcontinental motor trip, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Elliott of Stirling described their interesting trip in a recent letter to Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Morrow. Travelling through Western Canada they visited principal cities in the western provinces, stopping for a few days in Victoria, B.C., Boise, Idaho, Grand Forks, N.D., and Escanaba, Mich. One busy travelling day mentioned in the letter was one in which they had breakfast in Boise, Idaho, luncheon in McDermott, Ore., dinner in Reno, Nevada, and slept that night in Colfax, Calif. The next morning they continued to Sacramento, Calif., where the ladies enjoyed a shopping tour.

After arriving in Los Angeles they heard that the drizzling rain would, according to the weather bureau, continue for some time. This proved incorrect but on the day after their arrival they were in the biggest rainstorm they had ever experienced with water knee deep in the flats and up to the car axles in most places. Having experienced such a "Californian rain" they hoped to miss any stray earthquakes or "truly unusual weather".

The social side of California was more pleasantly displayed as the Stirling couple enjoyed luncheon with relatives at a Beverly Hills Country Club. So arriving at their destination which climaxed a most thrilling trip, Mr. and Mrs. Elliott are now comfortably established for their stay in the movie city at a very comfortable and modern apartment While in Los Angeles they expect to take in several of the specified tours of movieland and are thoroughly enjoying the southern warmth.

REV. C. T. OLMSTEAD SPECIAL SPEAKER

Mrs. Cole, 45 West Bridge Street, under the auspices of Mrs. Denton's and Mrs. Hagerman's groups was hostess to about 50 members and friends of the W.C.T.U. on Tuesday. Two fine numbers given during the p.m. by way of entertainment were a local duet by Mrs. W. H. McBrien and Mrs. Harry Hill and a piano solo by Mrs. Hubbs. During the devotional conducted by Mrs. Denton a quotations was given from Roger Babson brilliant economist as follows:

"For every $1 of revenue we have received from liquor we have lost $20 in legitimate trade and the cost of damage done to society."

The President, Mrs. Moore, introduced Mr. Olmstead, who congratulated the society, remarking he was five times surprised, even shocked because he expected to meet a dozen women not 40 or 50. The surprise however, seemed to onspire him, for his address was exceedingly interesting while his original humor held his listeners at attention the following facts were impressed on all.

1 Prayer was the very finest and most effective means of accomplishing good in the temperance work.

2 Education of children along the lines of temperance was the next best means of accomplishing results. Never allow children to study pictures or advertising matter that encourages intemperance. By all means discourage the use of drinking anything from bottles.

3 When you vote know the person for whom you vote. One may be deceived by "prohibition platforms."

4 Evangelize souls, evangelize methods, but by all means evangelize and never forget we are fighting a crafty devil, Satan himself.

Mrs. Farnsworth thanked the speaker for his splendid address.

Mrs. Cordes and Mrs. Ragsdale assisted Mrs. Denton and Mrs. Hagerman to serve a dainty lunch from a dining table decorated with candles and yellow daffodils.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Invalidism Has Made Her in Arrears With Living

Dear Miss Fairfax:

When I am entering my 'teens, I became ill and was kept in the house and bed most of the time, undergoing a serious operation, which nearly took my life. I had to give up everything —school, friends —and amused myself the best I could.

I am 32 years of age now and realize I must find my place in life and make myself agreeable to people. On account of not meeting anyone or going places during these past years, I have become very shy. The gentlemen I meet either are married or have girls. Perhaps I've waited too long and am too old. My family have done for me what they could. I've been taught the fundamentals of keeping a pleasant home. But I don't know how or where to go on from here.

Do you think you could help me, please Miss Fairfax? I should be forever grateful and thank you so much.

Perplexed

First, please let me say that I'm glad you live next door to a big city. If you lived in a rural community, it would be hard to make new contacts. In New York, there are dozens, scores, even hundreds of women's clubs. In what are you interested?—is it civics, home economics, Republican or Democratic Club, Political Study Club, Music, Drama, Art?

As your letter was very well written and highly intelligent but too long to print, I'm sure you're eligible to belong to any of the better organizations. So much for your leisure time.

Now to get down to basic principles. Have you a job? Or has this long spell of invalidism prevented you from getting the necessary training to hold a job. Look into Vocational Training or Adult Education and qualify for employment. And please forget the notion that at thirty-two life has passed you by. You're at an age when the crudities of youth are outgrown, and you should be at your best at the present time.

Mother sits in the Parlour When She Has Company

Dear Miss Fairfax,

My mother sits in the parlour whenever I have gentlemen callers. She says that's the proper thing to do, an she wants our friends to understand her girls are well looked after, and not up on the auction block. Our oldest sister had to elope. Please write something about this, as she reads your column.

Lila.

Your mother evidently belongs to the age when chaperons were regarded as necessary as food and air. With the passing of Queen Victoria, watching girls every minute came to an end. A decent girl was supposed to be able to look after herself. Suggest to your mamma ever so gently, that you don't want to follow in the footsteps of your older sister and elope.

Family Misunderstanding All Around

Dear Miss Fairfax

My husband's sister took a violent dislike to me the first day we met, and has kept it up ever since. Recently she thought she had discovered me in something dishonorable, and broadcast the news to relatives and friends. Then she discovered that her brother was the real culprit and she's been trying to butter me up ever since to pacify me.

Perhaps the majority of people to whom she has broadcast this slander have taken it with a grain of salt or do not believe any part of it. I'd like to know your reaction to this family row.

Reader

Like a growing plant, fertilised with unsavory things, slanderous accusations have a way of purifying themselves. From what you have told me in your letter, which I haven't space to print, it seems that will be the case with your sister-in-law's malicious broadcasting. Think what a well-bred heroine you will appear when it comes out that you held your peace, even when you were vilified.

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Daily Newspaper Plays Part in Social Relationships

"My chief interest in life is what's going on in the world. I never dare omit reading the newspaper for a single day."

If you don't read the newspapers and, therefore, don't know what's going on in the world, if you sit like a dullard while well-informed people are doing their best to include you in a conversation about current events—learn a lesson from these wise words of Mrs. A. E. Fraser, New York City's oldest clubwoman, who died this week.

Mrs. Fraser, 103 years old, was famous throughout the country for the alertness with which she followed current events. On her one hundredth birthday she acted as toastmaster at the opening of the forty-second annual convention of the New York Federation of Woman's Clubs!

For the past six years this distinguished old lady was interviewed on her birthday, and all those who knew her or who knew about her looked forward to reading her words of deep and high-hearted philosophy. The last birthday interview was on March 23, 1939, and it was on this occasion that this inspiring lady said the wise words I quoted above.

You couldn't possibly imagine this alert-minded lady, full of life and spirit, looking vague and unintelligent when references to "what's going on in the world" were being made in conversation. She was wide-awake, but there are too many of us who are mentally sound asleep when world events and affairs are mentioned.

Too many of us are willing to give all kinds of inadequate excuses for the fact that we are too lazy or too indifferent to find out what's going on outside our own little circles, to read the newspapers. Then during a conversation these people are unable to follow references to the day's or week's happenings. They expect other people to "carry" them through the conversation, explain every reference.

It's a grim and dreary performance for the people who do read newspapers to try to carry on an active conversation with people who are sluggards about doing their newspaper "home work". No matter how thrilling or devastating or world-rocking is the news of the day, no matter what name is the day's dramatic name, no matter what's what in the news, these non-news-readers snore a "I don't know about that. "What happened?" or inexcusably, "How do you ever get time to read the newspapers? I am always too busy". Dull truants from the school of world happenings!

Mrs. Fraser was no such dawdler about acquiring the exciting news of every day of the century in which she lived. Even at 103, she kept herself informed—did not "dare omit reading the newspapers for a single day". And so she could and did enter a conversation intelligently and intelligibly.

Courtesy Tip

"Don't mention it" never seems to me a courteous way to acknowledge thanks. I like better something like this, "It was a pleasure to me to be of help", or "Thank you for letting me do this for you."

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Adenoids

After yesterday's discussion of tonsils, it is appropriate to give some attention to the subject of adenoids in children. The parent is likely to hear these mentioned most often in connection with tonsils, and it is natural that this should be the cause, for they are composed of the same material—adenoid tissue, which as in the case of the tonsils, is in the body's first line of defense against disease.

Adenoid tissue is composed of large masses of little round cells that under normal conditions, cover the back of the throat in a thin layer that doesn't interfere with breathing or talking. When the infection enters the throat, the adenoid tissue becomes a defending force. It swells up, affecting breathing and talking. When the infection is defeated and leaves, this swelling departs and the tissue returns to its normal size. If the infection isn't completely cleared up, swollen adenoids remain.

There are all sorts and degrees of enlarged adenoids. Sometimes the whole mass of tissue is diseased and swollen, sometimes only a part of it. But whatever the nature of the enlargement, it isn't hard to see the result and understand how adenoids would interfere with breathing, particularly breathing through the nose. The tissue when swollen sticks into the space between the nose and the back of the throat so that the child is driven to breathe through his mouth.

This child is a picture that I am sure you have all seen: a thin, scraggly youngter whose constantly open mouth gives him a stupid look. Such a picture is typical of an enlarged adenoid case and should indicate an early operation.

There are other effects that make enlarged adenoids easily recognizable. Often the voice of the victim indicates what is wrong. The production of sound in the throat depends in part on the passages at the back of the throat. When these are blocked by enlarged adenoids, the voice of the sufferer has an indistinct, clogged, nasal tone.

One of the more serious aspects of diseased adenoids is that children having them often develop infections in the ears. There is a small tube connecting the middle ear with the throat. It opens into the throat at a point where there is adenoidal tissue. When the adenoids become diseased, the infection may spread up the tube into the ear, to involve the mastoids and cause other serious, sometimes fatal, damage.

Fortunately, the symptoms of enlarged, or diseased, adenoids are fairly plain to anyone. When you see them in your child, or think you do, by all means have your doctor look the child over.

Adenoids are easy to remove Probably the doctor will give a general anaesthetic and the operation will take but a few minutes.

The meeting opened with the singing of a hymn and the Scripture lesson was read by Mrs. Nora Wescott followed by prayer by Rev. W. J. Walker. The remaining portion of the program was directed by Don Thompson, convener of the Christian Citizenship Department. The topic of the evening taken from the study book "Pathfinder" dealt with the subject "Fascism, Nazism and Communism as elements assailing Christianity". The address was one exceptionally well given and revealed considerable study of modern conditions and the problems faced by Christianity in various parts of the world. An interesting musical contribution to the program was an instrumental solo by Miss Marie McKee and a reading entitled "Legends of the Northlands" was given by Miss Greta Nicholson. The meeting closed with the use of another hymn and the Mizpah Benediction.

FIGHT COLDS
by helping nature build up your cold-fighting resistance

If you suffer one cold right after another, here's sensational news! Mrs. Elizabeth Vickery writes: "I used to catch colds very easily. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery helped to strengthen me just splendidly. I ate better, had more stamina, and was troubled very little with colds."

This great medicine, formulated by a practicing physician, helps combat colds this way: (1) It stimulates the appetite. (2) It promotes flow of gastric juices. Thus you eat more; your digestion improves; your body gets greater nourishment which helps nature build up your cold-fighting resistance.

So successful has Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery been that over 30,000,000 bottles have already been used. Proof of its remarkable benefits. Get Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery from your druggist today. Don't suffer unnecessarily from colds.

DETROIT WINGS MEETING RANGERS IN GAME TONIGHT

Chicago Also Plays Americans in New York With Hawks Favored

THOMPSON STARRING

Howe, Goodfellow and Brown Going in Mid-Season Style

(By the Canadian Press)

How tough can the Red Wings get at Detroit, where they have lost only once in their last seven National Hockey League starts before the home folks?

The Wings play the league-leading New York Rangers at Detroit tonight and, if they can apply an ounce of pressure more than usual, they may stop the blueshirts from running into another long victory streak. The night's other encounter involves Chicago and the Americans at New York.

The last time the Rangers were in the motor city, they were held to a scoreless draw by the upstart Red Wings. After that the New York Club won 10 straight games before dropping a decision to the Black Hawks at Chicago.

Now the Rangers have won five straight games and gained a three-point lead over the second-place Boston Bruins, who have played one more game than the leaders.

Tiny Thompson, the veteran goaltender who joined Detroit last season after a long period with Boston, is one reason for the Wings' frequent surprises. Captain Ebbie Goodfellow, the one-time forward who has given the defence its main punch in recent season, is another.

Syd Howe, once the league's scoring sensation, breaks out in a splurge when least expected. More lately Connie Brown, young centre from Cornwall, Ont., has been punching money goals for the Wings.

Moreover, Manager Jack Adams has been working on the Wings' power play and it might prove strong enough to beat that New Ranger up-the-ice system for killing penalties.

BIRDMEN BATTLE WITH TIRCOLOR

Can Make Second Place Secure by Winning Over Queens

With O.H.A. games scheduled at the Hume Arena for tonight and Friday night, Belleville hockey fans will have an opportunity of seeing two spirited games. This evening the fast and bruising Queens Intermediates make their lone appearance of the current O.H.A. season in Belleville when they meet the Air Force "Bees" in a scheduled match.

The Air Force "Bees" are holding second position in their group, but must win over the sturdy Queens sextette to cement their holdings, especially with the group-leading Gananoquè squad setting such a torrid pace. The only games the "Bees" and the Queen's "students" have lost this season were against Gananoque and tonight's contest will mark the first meeting of these two clubs.

Facing elimination in defeat the Belleville Redmen skate out to meet "Toots" Holway's Air Force Intermediate "A" club. On their two previous O.H.A. meetings the Flyers have won by a 6-3 score on each occasion, but Friday night the Redmen will be at full strength for the first time since they played in the Kingston Van Horne series.

Actually the Redmen can yet tie the Flyers for second place in the district O.H.A. group by winning their three remaining contests. Skipper St. Louis' local sextette are confident they have been running in a streak of ill luck and on Friday night the locals will take to the ice with determination in their hearts. Efforts to strengthen the Redmen with "Stewie" McElrath and "Robbie" Robinson, of the Campbellford Trent Valley League, were being made today. On the other hand the Flyers are smarting under Monday's 5-0 reverse at the hands of the Petes and a bruising affair is almost a certainty when these ancient enemies of the ice lanes clash before a local crowd.

CARRY TWO-POINT LEAD

Montreal, Feb. 1—(CP)—Montreal Royals are carrying a two-point lead into the final month of regular play in the Quebec Senior Hockey League.

When the schedule opened last November, Royals, champions of eastern Canada last season, were heavy favorites to breeze through to an easy championship. They have found the going tougher than expected but still are rated highly and favored to win. Royals gained a point on the second place Montreal Concordias last night by beating Quebec Aces, who have played 13 games in a row without a victory, 3-2. The Civics, meantime, were being held to a 3-3 draw by the scrappy Verdun Maple Leafs.

LOSER PUNCHED HELPLESS

That is gross understatement.

Punched helpless, Rowan was catapulted clear out of the ring by Watson's left. His nose was broken as he hit the floor and he was unconscious six minutes. Then he was taken to a hospital.

PROVIDENCE REDS DEFEAT EAGLES

Fifth Time This Season Providence Has Won Over New Haven

(By the Canadian Press)

New Haven Eagles can thank their stars that Providence Reds are not their only opponents in the International - American Hockey League. One of the reasons why the Eagles and Reds are tied for first place in the circuit's eastern division is because the Rhode Island team has won each time the clubs have met.

The Reds made it five victories in a row over New Haven last night by a 4-3 score. Meantime, Indianapolis Capitals consolidated their hold in first place in the western section by beating Philadelphia Ramblers 4-1 while Pittsburgh Hornets drubbed Hershey Bears 6-0.

Providence built up a 4-0 lead against New Haven yet it took some great goal-tending by Phil Stein in the third period to save them from at least a tie.

After Normie Mann, Windy Steele, Hub Wilson and Red Doran had scored for the Reds, Gus Mancuso, Don Willson and Coach Jimmy Ward counted for the Eagles. Ward's goal was the only one of the third period but the Eagles, noted for their comebacks, peppered Stein from all angles.

The Capitals took a 3-1 lead against Philadelphia in the first period and got their fourth goal in the second. Don Deacon, Ron Hudson, Lloyd Douglass and Carl Liscombe scored for the winners while Herb Foster fired in the Ramblers' goal.

The Hornets had it all over Hershey. Sherf scored twice and Mickey Drouillard, Don Metz, Hank Goldup and Pete Kelly scored singles.

With Yanks in 1921

Baker in 1937

By Central Press Canadian

Milking cows was "Home Run" Baker's recipe for success.

Down on the eastern shore of Maryland he was chaperone to a herd of cows. He got the vise-like grip which later made him a home run king by milking the bossies. Franklin Baker developed his squat, muscular frame in the farm wagon.

Baker loved baseball. He wanted to pitch. The semi-pro ball club at Ridgely, Md., heard about him and gave him a job. A wise manager moved the husky, big-shouldered youngster to third base. He stuck there. He looked awkward and ungainly when he scooped them out of the dirt. But few men could dig them up and throw them the way Baker could.

Mack Signs Him

Baker's apparent awkwardness cost him his first big chance, with the Baltimore Orioles. Heartsick, he went back to the Maryland farm for a while. Meanwhile, Connie Mack had heard about the big fellow and came down to see for himself. One look was all he needed.

Baker was trembling with eagerness to deliver for the famous Connie Mack. Baker had the fire and enthusiasm it requires to make and keep the grade in professional baseball's fast company. When they can smack the ball like Baker they are bound to come through.

The Maryland farm boy joined the Mackmen and became a member of Mack's far-famed "$100,000 infield." He batted .334 that year. The bleachers loved him. The grandstands adored him.

Two crashing home runs brought Frank Baker his celebrated nickname. He cracked out the first one, a towering drive, off one of Rube Marquard's pitches in the 1911 world series. Later, in the same series, he laced another one out of the park off the great Christy Mathewson.

Grand Total—27 Homers

"Ye-ay!" screamed the bleachers. "Home Run" Baker ever after that. "Home Run" Baker ecer after that.

Baker led the American league in home runs in 1911, 1912 and 1914, but home runs were scare in those days. Baker poled nine homers in 1911, 10 in 1912 and eight in 1914.

Connie Mack sold Baker to New York and Baker quit baseball. "Home Run" told Mack that New York was too far from his Maryland farm. Baker loved the eastern shore as only a country boy loves his birthplace. Still protesting, the great home run hitter went into exile from professional baseball. He returned to the farm in Maryland.

In its 100 historic years baseball has produced its Ruths, Kleins, Foxxes and Gehrigs, but "Home Run" Baker was the daddy of 'em all—the home run king of yesterday.

B.C.I. and Albert College Cagers Divide Dual Bill

Collegiate Juniors Eked Out 23 to 22 Win, While Albert Seniors Win 35-25

GROUP NOW TIED

Reversing the scores of the week previous, Albert College and the Belleville Collegiate C.O.S.S.A. interscholastic cagers again split points in their weekly doubleheader of basketball in the Bay of Quinte group of the C.O.S.S.A., when the Belleville Collegiate juniors eked out a last-second 23-22 victory over the Albert kids, while the Albert seniors ran rampant to beat the B.C.I. seniors 35 to 25 on the Albert College gymn floor yesterday. One week previous the results had been the very opposite, which leaves each squad in the group with one win and a loss in an all-tie standing in both the senior and junior district cage groups.

In the senior game the squads looked quite evenly matched in the first half, that terminated with Pete Beach's homesters leading by a scant 11 to 10 count. Paced by their elongated forwards, "Des" Partridge and Ed Powell, the Albert squad ran wild to score 24 points, to the Collegiate's 15, giving the College a decided edge. Powell and Partridge scored 26 of the winners' points, with Powell leading with 14. Alan Argue, with nine points, paced the "Collegians," trailed by Bill Pigden, Max Vechter and Gord Griffin.

Foul Shot Wins

Blake Kerr's sinking of an awarded foul shot in the last second of play gave the B.C.I. juniors a 23 to 22 victory over the Albert kids in the curtain-raiser. The Collegiate led 18 to 12 at the halfway mark, but the Albert kids rallied in the dying moments to tie the score, when Kerr was awarded a foul shot, that was sunk to assure a B.C.I. victory as the final bell sounded. Dobbin, with 14 points, was the chief scoring threat for the Albert kids, while Parliament, Scott and Mott shared the Collegiate scoring punch.

The junior game was clean throughout, while the senior contest saw considerable contact and heavy checking with the result that a total of 23 penalty shots were awarded. Albert having 13 to their credit. The box scores:

MUSH MARCH

Chicago Black Hawks.

Mush March

Only Dit Clapper of Boston Bruins has seen longer continuous service with one club in the National League than Harold (Mush) March — stocky right wing with Chicago Black Hawks, who jumped straight from junior ranks in the fall of 1928 to a job with the Hawks and has remained with them ever since, making the current campaign his twelfth. Mush is a great two-way player, never an exceptionally high scorer, but a steady dependable forward. His best season was 1935-36, when he counted 16 goals, got credit for 19 assists for a point total of 35, his high in all divisions. All told, he's counted 108 goals, 120 assists and spent 370 minutes on various penalty benches. Sitton, Sask., was his birthplace 31 years ago. Played junior with Regina Monarchs, helping them to a Memorial Cup triumph the winter before he turned pro. Mush is one of the "mighty mites" of major league warfare, reaching only to the five foot five mark in altitude and scaling around 150 pounds, but he stands up under the gruelling in fine style. Handy player to have on your side in a clutch and he's never scored less than two goals in any of the four Stanley Cup playdowns he's taken part in. Best game other than hockey is golf, at which he is much better than average.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Feb. 1 (AP)—Hot stove league; the dopesters say Wally Moses still is ticketed for the Tigers for just about half the freight Connie Mack paid on Benny McCoy......(McCoy, by the way, called up every club that bid for him and thanked them for their interest) .... The Brooklyn Eagle hints today the next manager of the Dodgers' Montreal farm will be a gent named "R——s H——y—which might spell Rogers Hornsby ....The Yanks once turned down $35,000 for Walter Judnich, the outfielder who goes to the Browns for less than half that.

N.Y. consensus: Eddie Shore is great on the ice, but not so hot at the gate. Only 7,000 turned out to see his debut with the Americans ....Odds on the Americans (with Shore in there) were 1-3—longest in months.

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

It is quite some time since a Queen's University hockey team has made its appearance on a local ice, so tonight's Air Force-Queen's Intermediate "B" game at the Hume ice igaloo should prove enticing, if only for the purpose of seeing that old Queen's style of hockey—speed personified. However, on the other hand the Air Force "Bees" cannot afford to lose to the "Presbyterians" if the "Birdmen" hope to retain their present grasp on the second rung of the league ladder. Both Queens and the Flyers' "Bees" play a wide open style of hockey, that always proves interesting from the spectators' viewpoint. So it's Intermediate "B" hockey tonight and Intermediate "A" Friday night when the Air Force and Redmen clash for the third time this season. Strangely enough the Flyers beat the Redmen by the identical same score in their two previous O.H.A. meetings, 6-3 being the score on each occasion, while in the Van Horne series the Flyers won by a scant 2-1 score.

Feeling that their charges are not receiving adequate practice in the district junior O.H.A. group, the Belleville Quintes are endeavouring to negotiate an exhibition game with the fast Perth "Blue Wings," 1939 Dominion junior semi-finalists. Secretary Jack Yanover was in communication with the Perth management and only the matter of a playing date could not be decided upon as the Blue Wings desire a Saturday playing date here in Belleville, which is out of the question, insofar as the Quintes are concerned. Although exhibition hockey games never proved popular in Belleville the fans should rally to the cause if the Blue Wings accept a playing date in Belleville, as the patrons will get a gander at one of the best junior hockey clubs in the Dominion in the Perth sextette. Incidentally next Friday is an open date in Belleville hockey circles and might prove an ideal night on which to try an exhibition game here.

Entertaining feelings that the Belleville hockey fans always get the breaks when it comes to excitement at hockey games, the Peterborough scribe adds the following paragraph regarding Monday night's Flyer-Pete game: "As the timer's gong sounded to end the first period, Heal slapped home the rubber on Tompkins' assist. The Fliers protested bitterly, claiming the period was over and the goal should not count. 'I didn't hear the gong,' maintained Referee Bill Steen of Kingston, who had the job when Joe Smith couldn't come. So it remained. The Buckland Buckaroos got another in a heated second and then poured in three more spoons of blackstrap in the third as the goalie came to a boil. An appetizing dish to those of us from Peter's borough! Starr kidded Gibson in the second and the angry goalie conked him with his stick, Eddie suffering a cut on the head—and there was no penalty. In the third, Kingston and Higgins mixed it and got the air, and they began throwing punches again in the cooler. Gibson tore over but Coughlin got in and stopped him. this pair mixing. Gardner, at one time, dropped his gloves and stick and stepped up to Gibson, but the latter didn't force the issue that time. Yeah, 'twas hot all right—and the Petes always looked a bit faster and a few goals better than the Fliers."

Do you remember when sixteen years ago today the first goal was scored against a Canadian hockey team in Olympic competition, when Great Britain got two goals at Chamonix, in the 1924 Olympics. Canada, represented by Toronto Granites won the game 19-2 and went on to win the world title two days later by defeating the United States 6-1.

The city interscholastic basketball loop is providing some real surprises. For instance last week the B.C.I. seniors beat Pete Beach's Albert seniors, while George Laughlin's Collegiate junior lost to the Albert kids. Yesterday, however, when the two squads returned to Albert College for the return match the shoe was reversed—the Albert seniors beat the B.C.I. seniors with ease, while the Collegiate juniors staged a last-second rally to score a penalty shot to win and now the four squads are back exactly where they started a week ago. However, the return of competitive basketball to the B.C.I. should be heralded by the Belleville O.B.A. squads, as the secondary schools should be productive of future O.B.A. material in any city. Incidentally last night's scheduled Belleville "Y" and Smith's Falls O.B.A. game was postponed and will be played at Queen's University as a four point game next Wednesday night.

Joe Shortt's "Y" Volleyball League got under way the other night with three games. Gerald Vance's city "fire-fighters" found out that others could play volleyball when a gang of kids from St. Mikes beat the firemen two straight games. The agile O.S.D. kids triumphed over a picked Y.M.C.A. team and a team from the Bata Shoe Company beat Albert College quite badly. With six teams already in the fold one night a week will be devoted to volleyball only on the "Y" gymnasium floor.

SPORT SPICE — In an exhibition basketball game played at the B.C.I. last night, the Peterboro Flamors beat the Air Force Flyers 45 to 28...President Calder of the N.H.L., says his referees are quite capable officials, to which there seems to be some doubt, especially when the league governors are around to tell the whistle-tooters off occasionally... There is to be night baseball at Sportsman's Park in St. Louis in 1940, which means both the Cardinals and the Browns will have access to the floodlights..Now we find ten of the 16 major league clubs ready to play night baseball, so — the major can't be wrong...and here's thirty so we can grab a bite before taking in tonight's Queen's at Flyer puck scramble.

Moira

Moira, Feb. 2.—On Monday evening the Community League was held in the vestry. The meeting opened with a hymn followed by prayer by Miss Helen Salisbury. The Scripture Lesson was read by Miss Dorothy Thompson after which a pleasing piano duet was given by Mrs. James Vanderwater and Mrs. James Hart. The topic for the evening was capably take by Mrs. Nelson Welsh. Poems and verses relating to all the provinces of Canada were read and some interesting facts told about each of these provinces. Mr. Gordon Foster rendered a piano solo, after which Mr. Don McInroy and Mr. Earl Thompson sang a duet accompanied on the guitar. Another hymn was sung and the meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer. Mr. Milton Vanderwater and Mr. Ross Ketcheson each conducted a contest and lunch was then served.

BADGETT QUADS ONE YEAR OLD

Youngsters Normal, Healthy Babies in Every Respect, Physician Reports

Galveston, Tex., Feb. 1—(AP)—The Badgett girl quadruplets are one year old today.

The youngsters are normal, lively babies, healthy in every respect.

At birth their combined weight was a little under 16 pounds. Now they boast a hefty total of 80, with Joan at the top of the heap with 26. Jeraldine, Jeanette and Joyce tip the scales at about 18 pounds each.

Only the parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. Ellis Badgett, a few relatives and close friends can tell Jeraldine, Jeanette and Joyce apart. All have light blue eyes and curly blond hair. Joan smiles and shows four teeth, but the other three have six.

KISS YOUR TIRED FEELING GOODBYE!

Pepless Many Suffer Low Blood Count—And Don't Know It.

The baffling thing about low blood count is that you can weigh about as much as you ever did — even look healthy and strong, yet — you can feel as if you had lead in your legs, dopey, tired and pepless.

Low blood count means you haven't got enough red blood corpuscles. It is their vital job to carry life-giving oxygen from your lungs throughout your body. And just as it takes oxygen to explode gasoline in your car and make the power to turn the wheels, so you must have plenty of oxygen to explode the energy in your body and give you going power.

Get Dr. Williams Pink Pills today. They are world-famous for the help they give in increasing the number and strength of red corpuscles. Then with your blood count up, you'll feel like bounding up the stairs as if you were floating on air. Ask your druggist for Dr. Williams Pink Pills today.

300 RUSS PLANES

General Hugo Oesterman, Finnish army commander, received foreign correspondents at his field headquarters yesterday, but was silent on the number of Russian and Finnish casualties.

After two months of fighting, the chief of the Finnish Civil Air defences reported Tuesday that 300 Soviet planes had been shot down and 800 Russian airmen killed.

400 Civilians Killed

Finnish civilian casualties were given as 400 dead and 930 wounded in 642 raids in which 20,340 bombs were dropped on 207 localities.

Fifteen were killed and 60 wounded in a raid by 27 Soviet bombers on Rovaniemi in northwest Finland yesterday.

Numerous communiques have been listed, thousands of pieces of armament and tons of ammunition and other equipment captured from the Russians. Five hundred tanks were reported captured or destroyed through mid-January.

Notably brief Russian communiques usually have reported that there were "no developments" or that the Red army made advances "in all directions." They have listed 70 planes of Finland's small air force as shot down.

Soviet Statements

An official Russian summary of casualties for the first three weeks of the war was issued Dec. 23, listing Finnish dead at 2,200 and wounded at more than 10,000, with Russian dead 1,823 and wounded 7,000.

The Leningrad command reported that during the first three weeks 1,302 Finns were taken prisoner, including 123 commissioned and non-commissioned officers. It made no mention of any Russians taken prisoner.

In a communique Jan. 13, the Red army acknowledged the loss of 900 men on the Suomussalmi front but said most of these were victims of the cold weather. It denied reports that 14,000 men of the 44th division had been killed. It was not made clear whether the 900 listed as dead were included among the 1,823 reported Dec. 23.

P. J. Buller, Regional Treasurer, Central Region, Canadian National Railways, Toronto, who today retired on pension after an outstanding service of 47 years with the company.

Trailer Travel

Miami, Florida, Jan. 26—(Special)—This is Friday morning in Miami in the deep south where an all-time low of the mercury of 27 is feared but at the same time Miami probably is the warmest spot on the North American continent. So what? Well to northern visitors it is merely a little uncomfortable and only requires a little more clothing.

Dade County, in which Miami is the principal city, is a county where some 32,000 acres are planted to a truck crop in the muck lands south of the city. This crop is composed of young tomato plants, beans, peppers, cabbage and squash. Dade County growers are waging a fierce fight to save this valuable crop. With extensive damage due to the frost in the north and central sections of the state this deep south crop will have much added value to the growers. Yesterday everybody able to help was rushed into the bean fields to pick the green beans before Jack Frost got in his deadly work. Some growers even pulled up the plants and got them under cover where the green beans will be picked off later when there is time. Airplanes used for dusting crops were brought into play early this morning (4 a.m.) to fly over the green crop fields to stir up the air in the hope this would prevent the frost from settling. Some thirty planes droned over the huge fields, flying low thereby keeping the air circulating. Other devices used included paper covering and the hauling in of old ties and roots and stumps which were set burning to windward of the almost freezing north-west wind. The smoke and heat thus created drifted across the fields, affording a measure of protection from the frost.

Citrus growers in Dade County are not so alarmed as temperatures in this county are unthinkable that would harm orange and grape fruit groves. It is not a citrus growing county compared with the sections further north and in the central portions of the state. The growers in this section are not equipped with smudge pots or other means of fighting off a killing frost. Citrus trees are not damaged unless it gets much colder, around 20 degrees and remains a considerable time. Further north no doubt serious damage to the citrus groves will take place. Fancy 24 degrees of frost is forecast for northwest Florida in the extreme portions. We understand if this severe weather occurs it will be a state low and compares with the snow and frost of some latest to arrive is Maj G. C. Dugas, ruined and even the sap in the palms froze solid, bursting open the trunks.

On the west coast three years ago where your correspondent spent the winter some three hundred miles north of Miami we learned that if a person wanted a really warm climate for the cold winter months he must get further south, as far south as Palm Beach in any case. The winter we spent at Clearwater, eighteen miles north of St. Petersburg, frost was wiped off the top of what we call our "car" three times. Not so hot. This morning we spent a few hours sitting in the sun protected from the wind by a beach umbrella. We found the sun hot and very lovely. At Miami Beach yesterday a few "tough guys" braved the surf while winter-clad life guards looked on. This present cold snap holds the record for length of time and severity. We do not complain but feel for the visitors who only have a limited time to spend here, to get their tan and sand in their shoes. A lot of rain has fallen since we arrived in the last week of November. The winter of 1939-1940 is decidedly cool compared with the former one. A number of natives are running to the service stations for radiator protection but of course this needful northern commodity is not stocked here. Strawberries are now coming forward but look half ripe. Today will tell the story whether great damage will be done to the vegetable crops in this vicinity.

Some Swank

Hot or cold they all come to Miami for the winter months or at least to the southern portion of the east coast of Florida. One of the latest to arrive is Maj. Graham of of Georgia. The Major arrived in a 12-cylinder custom built limousine plated with gold, instrument panel and all gadgets plated with Georgia gold, along with a charming bride of one month. The Major is the lucky stiff that struck $60,000 a ton ore under an abandoned Georgia gold mine at Dahlonega, Ga., while working in solid rock under the old John C. Calhoun mine in the Georgia mountains. Dahlonega is only a few miles south of the Tennessee state line. Some few miles south of this rich strike a Georgia friend has offered me a 160 acres at $30 per acre upon which he guarantees gold will be found. He informs me it will be no trouble to pan a few dollars each day from the gravel in the creek bottoms upon this acreage. My friend from Georgia is of the opinion the exceedingly rich strike of Major Dugas at Dahlonega will peter out as the state is not and has never been known as a gold producing state.

Kidney Acids Rob Your Rest

Many people never seem to get a good night's rest. They turn and toss—lie awake and count sheep. Often they blame it on "nerves" when it may be their kidneys. Healthy kidneys filter poisons from the blood. If they are faulty and fail, poisons stay in the system and sleeplessness, headache, backache often follow. If you don't sleep well, try Dodd's Kidney Pills—for half a century the favorite remedy. 103

AT THE CAPITOL

"Our Fighting Navy"

Speaking of "Our Fighting Navy" which is now headlining the splendid doublt bill at the Capitol, one enthusiast said: "It is the best all-round reproduction of the British navy in action I have ever seen." Be that as it may, it is certainly true that "Our Fighting Navy" is an authentic version of spirit and action as big guns boom and shells scream across the water. Richard Cromwell, H. B. Warner, Robert Douglas, Noah Beery and others lend a touch of distinction to the picture that is seldom equalled and the sinking of a British battleship is magnetically realistic because the picture was made in co-operation with the British admiralty and the Navy League. It is the type of one-man action you will remember. Completing a well-balanced show at the Capitol is Roy Rogers and George "Bobby" Hayes who star in "The Days of Jesse James."

AT THE BELLE

"Everything Happens at Night"

There's a different Sonja Henie at the Belle Theatre, where her latest 20th Century-Fox picture "Everything Happens at Night," is playing. It's even a more remarkable Sonja Henie, if that were possible, for in addition to her amazing artistry and genius on skates and skis, the famous blonde star displays a new dramatic talent in a punch-packed story that makes her tops among the actresses of the screen.

With the support of two leading men, Ray Milland and Robert Cummings, Sonja gives us a picture that rates first in entertainment among any the season has thus far presented. Darryl F. Zanuck selected Irving Cummings to direct and his deft touches add to the enjoyment of this outstanding production.

Maurice Moscovich, Leonid Kinskey, Alan Dinehart, and Fritz Feld are included in the cast. The screenplay by Art Arthur and Robert Harari has the breathtaking Swiss Alps as a locale, with Sonja navigating the slippery slopes on skis with the ease and grace of her performances on the ice. There's plenty of suspense, danger and adventure in the timely story, with hilarious comedy supplied by the rivalry between Ray and Bob for Sonja as well as for the biggest new scoop of the year. Both lads are reporters who encounter Sonja on the trail of a great story, and through her they find it. The result is a great story for all fans.

DEMOCRACY LIVES EVEN IN AN INTERNMENT CAMP

Old British Principle of Responsible Government Finds Practical Application

RULES APPLIED

(By Frank Flaherty, Canadian Press Writer)

Petawawa, Ont., Feb. 1—(CP)—Even in a Canadian internment camp where the majority of the prisoners are Nazis the spirit of democracy lives on.

In the administration of the internment camp for eastern Canada near here a measure of democracy prevails and the old British principle of responsible government finds practical application.

While the word of the camp commandant, Lieut.-Col. H. E. Pense, formerly of Kingston, is law, the prisoners deal with their guardians through representatives nominated by themselves. Each hut which may contain as many as 50 men is headed by a "hut representative" who is the spokesman for the prisoners and is responsible for the orderly conduct of the men in the hut. The hut representative is nominated by the votes of the men in the hut but, of course, must be acceptable to the commandant. If a man is nominated whom the commandant considers undesirable he simply tells the men to select some one else.

Put Responsibility on Men

"We put as much responsibility for internal government as possible on the hut representatives," said Col. Pense.

Thus if a detail of prisoners is required to shovel snow, the hut representatives select the required number from their huts. They see that the huts are kept clean. To a large extent they see that the prisoners behave.

Sometimes if a prisoner is acting badly a word to the hut representative to the effect the whole hut may get in trouble is sufficient to induce the prisoners themselves to bring the offender into line. The majority, acting for its own interests, will make the minority conform.

Just as in the wider sphere of democratic government the elected representative, to maintain his post, must first of all satisfy the electors and secondly perform his duties efficiently, in this case to the satisfaction of the camp authorities, or conditions will arise which make him no longer satisfactory to his electors.

Can't Speak For Whole Camp.

No larger unit than the hut is tolerated in the camp. The authorities will not recognize any association of the camp as a whole nor any prisoner purporting to speak for the camp as a whole. To do so, they feel, would place too much power in the hands of one man.

"Very reasonable prisoners" was the way one officer described the Germans confined in the woodland prison in the Ottawa valley.

On taking charge of the prisoners Col. Pense told them: "We will treat you fairly and we will treat you with consideration if you obey the regulations and my orders. On the other hand if you attempt to escape you will be warned and, if you don't stop then you will be fired on."

Surrounded By Wire.

The prison compound is surrounded by two barbed wire fences, between which pace armed sentries. At each corner is a tower from which other sentries can watch the whole of the three-acre compound area. Some 50 feet inside the inner fence a single strong of wire is stretched and prisoners may not pass that wire.

A roll call is taken morning and night. The morning roll call starts the day off just after 7 a.m. At both calls the prisoners are required to answer their names and are counted, just in case one man should answer for a missing comrade. The evening roll call is at 6:45 p.m. and after that prisoners are locked in their huts. At 10 p.m. lights are turned out.

PROVINCIAL TAX

Budgeted for $10,000,000

Premier Hepburn budgeted for $10,000,000 corporation tax revenue in the fiscal year to end March 31 next. The retroactive feature in the new measure may jump this by 50 per cent or more. Many corporations have fiscal years ending in November or December and they will not be affected immediately.

Along with the measure came Premier Hepburn's prediction that the budget might affect the standard of living of every person in Ontario. Conservative Leader George Drew said the Premier seemed to be preparing the House for "a gravediggers' budget, not a sunshine budget." The gravedigger reference was to the bill amending the Succession Duty Act which didn't get far yesterday in committee stage in face of determined Conservative opposition.

Premier Hepburn said the Province was prepared to take a secondary position to the Federal Government in taxing measures. But if Provincial revenues were not bolstered someway, there might have to be reductions in various muncipal subsidies.

dcEah-Ruanib.'

Base Rate Increased

The corporation tax amendments, in addition to the increase in the base rate, provide for a one-quarter increase, also retroactive, on taxes payable to the Province in respect of income by insurance companies, railways, telegraph companies, banks, telephone companies, express companies and car companies. All these corporations in the act are dealt with separately from the class of general corporations.

The tax calculated on the net income derived by railways from the operation of hotels is increased to five per cent from two per cent by another section.

Another clause in the bill provides that every tax and penalty under the Corporations Tax Act imposed on an incorporated company, owing, operating or using a railway shall be a special lien on the property. Priority to such a lien is given as follows:

"In priority to every claim, privilege, lien or encumbrance, whether heretofore or hereafter created of every person and the lien and its priority shall not be lost or impaired by any neglect, omission or error of any minister, officer, servant or agent of the Crown or by want of registration.

The legislature adjourned yesterday with the government bill amending the Succession Duty Act still in committee stage and under heavy fire from the Conservative opposition.

Injunction Cause of Bill

The bill, sponsored by Attorney-General Conant, is designed to facilitate collection of duties from estates that have been previously closed by the treasury, but are now opened for investigation. Premier Hepburn said an injunction issued to halt investigation of one estate was responsible for the bill.

Col. Drew attacked the Succession Duty Bill as a measure of "legalized blackmail" in those clauses which would empower treasury officials to put an arbitrary valuation on certain classes of assets and allow no appeal from the decision.

The Opposition chief proposed the bill be referred to the Legal Bills Committee, but Premier Hepburn said lawyers hadn't succeeded in drafting an invulnerable measure before. If the government had listened more to its own officials charged with enforcement of the act and less to lawyers, it might have been better.

Premier Cheered

The Liberals cheered as the Premier said he found himself in complete disagreement with Col. Drew, something the Premier hasn't said often this session.

The "legalized blackmail" charge was unfair, said the Premier. The treasury officials had a sense of fairness and used it in administering the act.

The injunction issued by an Ontario court in the case of one estate was likened by the Premier to the action of Prime Minister Mackenzie King in dissolving parliament and this in turn was likened to the action of the commander of the Graf Spee in sinking his ship. The injunction, the dissolution and the sinking all halted effective action.

Creating Unrest?

Mr. Hepburn charged Mr. King was going to "gag" his opponents on the radio. The prime minister would fight his "battle from a bombproof shelter somewhere in Laurier House".

Reference of the measure to the Legal Bills Committee would mean that the lawyers would "chew it to pieces for a month and then report back in complete disagreement," the premier said.

Leslie Frost (Con. Victoria) said the government was creating unrest in the minds of people generally with its Succession Duty legislation. If the right of appeal from officials' decisions were given it would cause officials to be fair and reasonable.

"We have officials more capable of passing on financial statements than judges," said the Premier. "They (the Judges) might read the financial statements, but they wouldn't understand them." Ontario's Succession Duty rates were abnormally low and no flight of capital would be caused by the legislation.

Conservatives lost the final skirmish in the first major legislative battle of the session when the local government Extension Act received third reading by 45-22. Former Attorney General Arthur Roebuck (Ind. Lib. Toronto - Bellwoods) joined the Conservatives in voting against the bill.

Extension Bill Passes

The Extension Bill makes effective a two-year term for municipally-elected bodies, effective Feb. 1, 1941, unless a municipality votes itself out of its provisions.

Education Minister Simpson introduced a measure to put the Teachers' and Inspectors' Superannuation Fund on a more solid basis. Payment into the fund by its prospective beneficiaries are to be increased from three per cent to 3 1-2 percent. No increased contribution will be made by the provincial government.

MR. W. E. TOOGOOD

Rheumatic Pains Kept Him in Distress

"I certainly had a long period of suffering with rheumatic pains," said Mr. Toogood. "My shoulders were so full of this affliction that I couldn't raise my arms above my head. My stomach was so gassy and upset that my food would not digest properly but would ferment and turn sour. I always felt bloated up with gas. My liver was sluggish and I was subject to dizzy spells.

"I had been trying medicines and treatments of various kinds for my suffering, but got no relief, and I certainly was discouraged. Finally I heard about Mosby's Tonic and what it was doing for so many people. I got this medicine and started taking it. Before my first bottle was gone I could see that this medicine was helping me. I continued with it for a few weeks longer, and now, I can hardly believe the change it has made in me. It has relieved those rheumatic pains so that I can raise my arms above my head. This medicine also had a Splendid action on my stomach and cleared out the gas. I don't have dizzy spells like I used to and I feel better than IN YEARS. I want to endorse such a medicine to others."

Acts on Bowels, Stomach; Helps You in General

MOSBY'S TONIC acts in several ways at one and the same time. That is, it contains 20 ingredients, including 15 Roots and Herbs. So it helps you IN GENERAL. It cleanses the bowels and clears gas and bloat from stomach. It enlivens the liver, cleans sickening bile from the system and relieves biliousness, sick headache and yellowish "muddy" complexion. Is it a Cold or the Flu?

Before the great influenza epidemic of 1918-19, a cold in the head was called a cold, but now it is not unusual for many to tell their friends and neighbors that they have just had an attack of influenza, when, as a matter of fact, they have been suffering with just "the common cold".

Of course, it does not really matter whether the symptoms were due to influenza or to a cold, because the treatment should be the same for both ailments—rest in bed and applications of heat by various methods.

However, influenza is the more serious condition because it causes greater and more prolonged prostration, more likelihood of complications, and leaves organisms in the body (particularly in the sinuses) after all the symptoms have disappeared. And these organisms in the sinuses can be made active very easily by dampness and exposure to cold and dust.

How are you to know whether the symptoms—sneezing, chills, fever—are due to influenza or the common cold.

In the absence of an epidemic of influenza, it should be remembered that the common cold is given its name because it is so common—the commonest ailment known.

The early symptoms of the common cold are sneezing, burning and stuffiness of the nose, first a thin watery discharge which "thickens" and "plugs" the nose, making it difficult to breathe. Symptoms come on gradually, and patient is not greatly prostrated.

The early symptoms of influenza are different in that the symptoms come on suddenly; perhaps one or two days after exposure the patient may fall from severe prostration.

The cough in influenza is hard and dry, and little or nothing is brought up from bronchial tubes even after a severe coughing spell, whereas in the common cold, as noted above, there is first a profuse watery discharge from the nose and later the patient is able to cough up thick mucous. The voice is usually more affected by a cold than by influenza.

The suddenness and the great prostation then are the outstanding symptoms in influenza.

However, whether symptoms are due to the common cold or to influenza, the treatment is the same—rest and heat. The same complications—bronchitis, pneumonia, and broncho-pneumonia can develop from either a cold or influenza.

Mud In Your Eyes

By FRANK L. PARKE

He had, Jud Draper decided amiably, more things to be grateful for than any other young man in America. He was grateful to the hospital authorities for releasing him into the world on such a May morning. When the deep coat of mud which roofed the walk was all there was left of winter.

He was grateful, too, to the city fathers. For having foreseen the mud. And at the first sign of spring having stretched out rods of stout, wide boards to outwit it. He was grateful finally, to the doctor. For having taken some fourteen odd scraps of bone in a bag of twisted flesh and having made of them something a hundred and eighty pound of man could move about on. And for meeting any and all situations with the liberally and unclassifiably accented announcement that "We moost approshe this busy-ness of leeving with coo-rash, with deeg-neety an' with humore!"

Which was, Jud was beginning to believe, not a formula to be sneezed at. As he hade the turn by Washington's statue he made out in his mind a list of items to be treated by the doctor's nostrums. First he would have to get that leg into serviceable shape. Then he would have to see what handsprings his office had taken in his absence.

And then he saw the girl.

He saw her and stopped. There wasn't much of her but what there was had lovely brown hair and a small, happy mouth. She was sitting on one of the benches watching what were pigeons or doves, or perhaps both. Jud didn't know. All he knew was that he couldn't stand there watching her forever. Much as he would have liked to.

He hurried on, and after he passed her, he knew something else. Knew it as surely as he knew that he was Jud Draper and that he had a bum leg. He knew that no matter how far he went or how many lifetimes he spent going there, he would never see anyone half as lovely as she!

Which was, of course, ridiculous. You might, in the course of events, see a pretty girl, even an uncommonly pretty girl on a park bench. And you might, perhaps, decide that she'd be exceptionally swell company on a dance floor or around the festive bowl or on the afterdeck of a yacht. But a decision like that didn't throw dynamite into your heartbeat. It didn't make you want to pull up trees and push over buildings. And that was what Jud felt like doing. Game leg, cane and all.

He could, he knew, do the conventional thing. He could walk right up to the girl and mutter, "I beg your pardon, but didn't we meet at—" and he would garble the last word into an unrecognizable hash. To which, if Jud were any judge of women, the girl would say, "On your way, John Silver, on your way!"

And quite right, too. But that didn't butter any toast. And there would be no point in attempting to follow her, find out where she lived. The bum leg couldn't be depended on for that sort of effort. Suddenly he remembered the doctor and his counsel concerning "coo-rash, deegneety an' hu-more." He turned and went back towards the girl. This time he didn't stop and look at her. But apparently he didn't pay as much attention to his walking as he should have. For when he was just abreast of her, the heel of his cane slipped from the board and landed in a puddle, sending a fine spray of muddy water at the bench and at the girl.

"Oh!" she exclaimed, and covered her face with her hands. Instantly Jud's good knee was supporting him on the bench beside her and he was taking over the job of holding her head and tenderly demanding, "Where?"

The girl hesitated and then she said. "I think it's this one." And she pointed to her left eye.

Expertly Judd whipped a clean handkerchief from the pocket of his coat.

"Just a second," he promised her confidently, "and everything will be under control." But it took more than a handkerchief back into place and twisted into a more conventional position on the bench. She was lovelier than he had thought. "I'm glad," he told her. "I was worried. A thing like that," he informed her profoundly, "can be very serious."

The girl nodded. "I know," she agreed. "My grandmother caught a cinder in her eye on her first train trip. And sixty-four years later she died in bed."

When they had finished laughing, Jud said, "I'm Jud Draper."

"Not," the girl demanded, "Jud Draper of the U.S.A.?"

Jud bowed. "The very same," he told her simply.

The girl held out her hand. "I'm Carolyn Hughes."

"Haryuh, Carolyn?" said Jud.

"Haryuh, Jud" said Carolyn.

"A little worried," he admitted. "I'd thought of mentioning lunch."

"And," Carolyn inquired, "something stands in the way?"

"Yes," he confessed. He reached for his stick and stood up. "A guilty conscience," he informed her. "I've got a bunch—no, that isn't right—I've got a conviction that you and I are going to see a lot more of each other. And I don't want to start off on the wrong foot." He paused uneasily and then he blurted, "Carolyn, that wasn't any accident. I splashed that mud in your eye on purpose!"

Carolyn smiled and stood up. "I know," she told him as she linked her arm in his. "I know, Jud, but it missed me!"

Jesse James and his famous gang in a scene from the new Republic picture, "Days of Jesse James," starring Roy Rogers and George "Gabby" Hayes, now showing at the Capitol.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was looking at the movie page in the paper, saying to pop, Well you cant sneer scoffingly at the pictures this week, Willyum.

Shucks, I was just about to begin a little sneering scoff, pop said, and ma said, There are 3 different educational films at 3 different places all showing this week. For instants Booboo of the Jungles at the Mawsoleum, she said.

I've heard about that one, it sounds pretty thrilling, pop said. It's suppose to show true shots of humming birds chasing boa constricters and giant moths wressling with pigmy sloths, and all sorts of nonsense, he said, and ma said, And then there's Yanfong, Eskimo Boy at the Narcissis, all about native family life at the North Pole, it must be quite instructive, and the 3rd one is A Trip Through the Microscope right around the corner at The Little Grand.

I suppose that one shows native family life in a drop of water, pop said, and ma said, Yes it does, it gives you a vague idea of the fantastic unheard of things going on in every sip we swallow, so you cant deny that any one of the pictures would be well worth seeing.

There's not a scoff left in me, I vote for A Trip Through a Microscope, it's the nearest, pop said, and ma said, That'll be just fine, and I have just one suggestion. Suppose we go to see Pierre Sandrew and Thelma Lavaleer in Playing with Love at the De Looks, because this is its last night and the other 3 are just starting, so that will give us 3 sure choices for the rest of the week, they say Thelma Lavaleer was never better.

I believe it, she never has been yet, pop said. It's a woman's world, let's go, he said.

Wich they did.

NEW YORK STOCKS

New York, Feb. 1—(AP)—Buying apathy again dominated the Stock Market today and leading issues drowsed in a narrow groove. Minor plus and minus signs were well scattered near the fourth hour. Bonds were up here and there and commodities irregularly lower.

Stocks receiving support were Wheeling Steel, Bethlehem, Sperry, tinental Motors, Goodyear, Sperry, Glenn Martin, Loew's, Martin Parry, Anaconda and International Paper.

Backward were U.S. Steel, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Tidewater Associated Oil, Westinghouse, Johns-Manville, Allied Chemical and Du Pont.

Canadian stocks were generally inactive. Canadian Pacific and Lake Shore Mines improved trifles and Dome Mines dipped. In the bond market Canada 4s was easy.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 1—(CP)—On Toronto Exchange today despite the thin demand for stocks prices firmed narrowly and index gains were showing for the Industrials, Golds and Western Oils at noon. Base Metals were off slightly. Trading dwindled to an aggregate turnover of 157,000 shares for the first three hours.

Steels, miscellaneous industrials and the Senior Oils ruled higher and the Foods boarded as many gains as losses.

In the Golds Macassa showed an advance of 15 cents to 4.70. Bide were weak and Dome and Lake Shore and most of the secondary issues remained steady. Steep Rock and Pend Oreille were the weak spots in the Base Metal list.

A gain of 8 to 10 cents for Home Oil was the only change of consequence in the Western Oil list.

300 Siberians Slain.

The killing of 300 Siberian soldiers who had emulated the ski tactics which the Finns themselves have found so effective, was told of in dispatches from Danish war correspondents .

The remainder of the 600-man battalion was said to have escaped. The location of the clash was not given but the Red force was identified as the third Siberian ski battalion.

Heavy fighting was reported still in progress northeast of Lake Ladoga, where Finnish observers said recapture of the Finnish town of Pitkaranta permitted encirclement of Russian divisions out to flank the Mannerheim Line on the Karelian Isthmus.

(Last night's Russian communique, however, said yesterday was marked only by "activities of scouts" and Russian aerial reconnoitring.)

General Oesterman declared Russian troops had failed to advance at any point beyond the lines chosen by the Finns for their major resistance.

"The spirit of our troops remains wonderful," Oesterman said. "Every man fills his post without cringing. He knows what he is fighting for."

CHAMBERLAIN

ed in the chorus calling for correction of what it called "inadequate representation" of the economic side in the war cabinet.

Many Physical Losses.

On the psysical side of the war, the latest reported British losses credited to torpedoes and bombs were the 5,063-ton steamship Vaclite and the 1,178-ton steamship Highwave, the former torpedoed in convoy and the latter, bombed off the British coast.

The announcement of the loss of the Vaclite followed disclosure by Prime Minister Chamberlain yesterday that the attacking submarine had been sunk by British planes and warships. The Vaclite's crew was picked up by an Italian ship.

The entire crew of eighteen of the Highwave reached Flushing, the Netherlands, last night, two of them wounded by machine-gun fire. They said a German plane dropped twenty bombs at their ship Monday before a direct hit sent her under.

Royal Brown Probably Lost

Apparently also lost was the 4,630-ton British vessel Royal Brown with 12 of her crew. Fifteen men who abandoned the ship Tuesday in the North Sea when a bomb struck amidships reached the British coast in a lifeboat yesterday. A second lifeboat was missing.

They said a German plane first machine-gunned the decks, killing the ship's anti-aircraft gunner before he could get into action. Four members of the crew were killed outright and eight others were drowned.

Full dress parliamentary debate on what has grown into a bitter, nationwide controversy drew leading speakers of the main parties, including Prime Minister Chamberlain, Sir John Simon, Clement R. Attlee and Sir Archibald Sinclair, representing, respectively, the Conservative, Liberal National, Labor and Liberal parties.

A labor motion presented by Herbert Morrison called for inclusion in the war cabinet of a Minister charged specificially with "planning to the best advantage the resources of the nation for successful prosecution of the war and for meeting the requirements of the civilian population."

Not Member of Cabinet

Britain already has a Minister of Economic Warfare but he is not a member of the War Cabinet. He is Ronald Hibbert Cross and his job amounts to the duties of Minister of Blockade in the first Great War. His main work is breaking down Germany's trade.

The proposed ministerial job would entail building up Britain's trade. Also outside the war cabinet are the Secretary of the Board of Trade, the Secretary of Overseas Trade and the Minister of Shipping, all of whose work is part of the general economic effort.

The war cabinet consists of Mr. Chamberlain, Sir John, who is Chancellor of Exchequer, Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax, Lord Chatfield, Minister for Co-ordination of Defence, Winston Churchill, First Lord of the Admiralty, War Secretary Oliver Stanley, Air Secretary Sir Kingsley Wood, Sir Samuel Hoare, Lord Privy Seal, and Lord Hankey, Minister without portfolio.

Old Kentucky CIGARETTES

May be Adopted Later

With Mr. Chamberlain resisting change in what labor called the "topsy turvy structure" of economic administration, the government sought to keep its supporters in line with the assurance that this field is not being neglected and that the proposed revision of the system can be adopted later if circumstances justify it.

JAPAN TO PURSUE

The Premier and the Foreign Minister stressed Japan's policy of non-involvement in the second Great War. Arita predicted that "drastic changes" would result from the war, regardless of its outcome, which would nave "tremendous" effects on the situation in the Far East with which Japan must be prepared to deal.

Canvassed Long Range

Arita's address, the annual Foreign Minister's report at the opening session of the Diet, canvassed the whole range of Japan's international relations. Unlike last year, when the Diet applauded wildly over plans for Japan's "new order" in East Asia, Arita's summary was met with silence.

Arita expressed hope for speedy progress in normalization of Japan's relations with Great Britain, the United States, and Soviet Russia and expressed continuing friendly feelings for Germany and Italy as co-signatories of the Anti-Comintern Pact which, he said, retains its full validity.

Japan's hope of putting her trade relations with the United States back on a treaty basis was emphasized by Arita.

Although the foreign minister gave no hint of immediate plans for the future, Premier Yonai declared the government is attempting to expedite enforcement of a planned economy in Manchoukuo and China in accordance with the "new order".

Relieve Power Famine.

Yonai called on the people to meet all contingencies as the government completed plans to rush nearly 1,000,000 tons of coal to power electricity generators and relieve a power famine which has crippled the nation's huge industrial machine. The power shortage is ascribed partly to a tie-up in coal transport because of wartime demands on shipping.

"It is natural when we are engaged in a stupendous enterprise unparalleled in history," the premier declared, "that the people should be forced to endure restrictions that might well be intolerable in normal times.

"I hope that nation will keep alive its wartime consciousness to the fullest degree."

Outlines General Theme

Without setting forth concrete plans, Arita outlined these general themes of Japanese Foreign policy:

The United States

Arita expressed hope that a new treaty could be concluded to end the day-to-day status of Japanese-American trade as a result of the United States' abrogation last Friday of the 1911 commercial treaty with Japan.

Third Powers in China

The Foreign Minister disavowed any Japanese intention to eliminate "legitimate rights and interests of the United States and other third powers."

Soviet Russia

Arita said Japan would search for "concrete and practical solutions" to the main issues—primarily trade and boundaries—separating the two nations.

China

Arita declared the new central government with Wang, former Chinese Premier now at odds with Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek, as Premier would be established in the "near future."

Great Britain

The Foreign Minister said Japan is doing her "utmost" to settle satisfactorily the incident Jan. 31 when a British warship took 21 German passengers off a Japanese liner.

Some observers foresaw a compromise solution of the issue which has aroused sharp feeling in Japan.

Germany and Italy

Relations with Germany and Italy "have grown increasingly cordial ever since the conclusion of the anti-comintern agreement," Arita said. He added that Japan's "policy of defence against the comintern remains unaltered."

He cited Japan's gratitude to Germany and Italy for their "sympathy and support" since the beginning of "the China affair."

which was then a mass of flames. The fire department was called by telephone and immediately on arrival of the firemen water from two lines of hose was thrown into the burning building.

Firemen Entered Burning Dwelling

On arriving at the scene the firemen learned that four occupants of the house were in the upper portion and despite the flames, which at that time were intense, a ladder was raised to a window at the rear. Firemen entered, but all four occupants of the bed were found dead.

The position of the four bodies in the bed led the firemen and the coroner, Dr. T. F. Robertson, to believe the four had been overcome in their sleep as no traces of movement were visible. The covers on the bed were burned to cinders.

Mrs. Levere occupied the outside place on the east side of the bed with the baby, Palma, next to her, Edmund, the second youngest was next with the body of Gary, the eldest of the three children, on the outside.

Burns on Bodies

Mrs. Levere's hands were charred, apparently having been outside the covers of the bed when the flames caught the bed coverings. Some burns about the face were also noticed. The hands of Edmund and Gary, also on the outside of the covers were badly burned while the face of Palma was burned on the side uppermost from the pillow.

Mrs. Levere was born in Brockville 24 years ago and previous to her marriage was Mary Marrs. A daughter of Mrs. Leo Mallette, she was married five years ago. In addition to her husband, Mrs. Levere is survived by one brother, Joseph Marrs, of Brockville, and a number of half-brothers and half-sisters also of Brockville.

2 Children Burned at Brandon

Brandon, Man., Feb. 1 (CP)—Two children were burned to death here today when fire destroyed their home.

The victims were Roy William, four years, and Robert Dave, two, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Gerring. Bodies of the children were found huddled in their bedroom.

Mrs. Gerring was alone with the children when the fire broke out, apparently in the kitchen. It spread so rapidly the mother was unable to reach her children and was forced to flee.

Seven Lose Lives in Pennsylvania

Freeport, Pa., Feb. 1 (AP)— A family of seven, trapped on the second floor, burned to death today as fire swept their six-room frame home in this town, 20 miles northeast of Pittsburgh.

The victims were Omar Brown, 38, an electrician, his wife, Mrs. Marion Brown, 35, three sons, Omar Jr., 11, Joe Lee, eight, and Charles Thomas, 10; and two daughters, Betty Lou, 15, and Helen Fay, 13.

All bodies, burned beyond recognition, were recovered. The mother and one of the smaller children reached the head of the stairs before they collapsed.

Firemen said cause of the fire had not been determined and probably never would be known.

were running on short-hour schedules with frequent holidays planned.

Although Japan is almost self-sufficient for coal, there was a shortage ascribed to a lack of miners and insufficient equipment.

This difficulty was agrgavated by clogged transportation facilities resulting from wartime demands on shipping and by a drought which has cut down the nation's hydro-electric resources.

Many small vessels were bucking stormy seas with coal cargoes from continental ports and the government announced two 50,000-ton coal orders, from Canada and British India, were due for delivery sometime this month.

Canadian Active Army Service Goes to School

Major-General A. J. Gunn and Dr. S. A. Corbett, head organization to look after educational and personal problems of members of the Canadian Active Service Force.

Classrooms in Canadian schools and lecture halls in Canadian universities are echoing these days to the thud of army boots as more than 4,000 members of the Canadian Active Service Forces go back to school to prepare themselves for a return to civil life.

Under the facilities of a vast educational program, provided by the joint co-operation of tre Canadian Legion and the Canadian Association for Adult Education, the men of the fores are studying academic, manual and social studies. Their instructors are the best educationists in the country, volunteers who give their time to the job of helping the men prepare themselves for peace and learn, at the same time, how to be better soldiers.

Men Learn Vocations

Part of a big job given it by the government, education is regarded by the Legion War Services as the most important undertaking it has faced, with its power to help the men learn vocations which will benefit them on their return, and at the same time provide them with a realization that they are citizens in uniform now who will some day become citizens in civilian life, with an important stake in maintaining in peacetime the principles for which they are willing to fight. Other phases of the work are personal services to the men, and provision of recreation, entertainment and hut facilities.

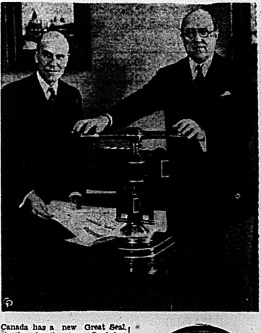
Formation of the program was achieved shortly after the outbreak of war, when the government created the separate organization of Canadian Legion War Services and assigned it the task. The belief was that men who served during the last war were best equipped to know the problems of men now in the services, and how best to solve those problems. Typical of such problems, handled by the personal services volunteers, are financial matters in which the men want advice in budgeting to pay debts contracted during peacetime, and advice on how to arrange for allowances for dependents.

To head the big organization, Major-General J. A. Gunn was appointed president. To head the educational work, Dr E. A. Corbett, national director of the Canadian Association for Adult Education, was chosen. Dr. Corbett, a war veteran, was formerly director of extension at the University of Alberta, and is recognized as one of Canada's greatest educational authorities. The full-time facilities of every university in Canada, every department of education, and 47 other institutions have been given to the work.

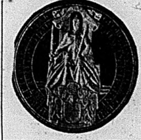
MRS. CHAMBERLAIN ACCEPTS

Mrs. Neville Chamberlain, wife of the British prime minister, accepts refreshments from a Canadian soldier during a visit in Bloomsbury, England, to the King George and Queen Elizabeth Victoria League Club for Service Men from Overseas.

NEW GREAT SEAL OF CANADA



Canada has a new Great Seal. It is the fourth since Confederation. Upon the death of a reigning sovereign, a new seal is made, bearing the figure and name of the succeeding sovereign. The new one RIGHT, authorized by royal warrant by His Majesty King George VI, bears the figure of the King robed and crowned and seated upon his throne, with orb and sceptre with the arms of Canada and the inscription: Georgius VI. D.G. MAG. BRIT. HIB. ET. TERR. TRANSMAR. QUAE. IN. DIT. SUNT, BRIT. REX. F.D. IND. IMP.



Each time after this seal has been used it is locked in its box and placed in a special compartment in a vault in the office of the under-secretary of state of Canada. It was used for the first time on Jan. 25, when Hon. Ernest Lapointe, acting secretary of state. ABOVE, impressed the parchment appointing Dr. Henry Laureys, Montreal, high commissioner, for Canada, to the Union of South Africa.

"Blond Baby"

By LEE CALVERT

Stella Norton poked the pillows into a more comfortable angle at her back and picked up the open letter on the counterpane. Two warnings in one morning were sufficient to rouse her to action. Etta's telephone call had followed immediately on the receipt of a letter from the ingenue of the company whose innuendoes had not been as carefully veiled as she had hoped.

It would be like Billy to get roped by a chorus girl. Stella was frankly panicked.

"I had a letter yesterday from Fay Campbell who is in Chi with 'Pretty Baby'," Etta had said in the cat-has-eaten-a-mouse-tone. "She says that Billy sure likes 'em young and snappy. There's a blond baby—"

"Oh, yes," Stella broke in, confident, however, that Etta would not believe the hastily invented lie, "that's Margie Ray's cousin and Billy got her with the show."

It was only the second time in their twenty years of married life that Stella had been separated from Billy. The first had been when Jane Ann was born eighteen years before. Jane Ann was the most exquisite mortal ever created, in her parents' opinion, and was still safely tucked away from the turmoil of their theatrical world in a small exclusive school in Cleveland.

Warnings had reached her then, as now, and just a few weeks after the infant's birth, Stella had lost no time in rejoining the troupe of which Billy Taylor was the leading comedian. The chorus girl who had understudied her none too well on the stage, had endeavored to replace her out of the theatre.

Poor Billy! He was so susceptible. A trim ankle was as provocative to him as a sweet pea to a bee. Not that Stella believed that he had ever been more than mentally untrue to her. But it had been a slightly difficult life keeping him clear of scrapes.

"There's no fool like an old one," she muttered. "At your age, Billy Taylor, you should have some sense."

An inconsiderate appendix had sent her to the hospital just a few days before June Francis opened in Cleveland. For six weeks she had raged and fumed, for not only a well founded fear of Billy's misadventures prompted her anxiety, but also an acknowledged fact that Billy never played as well as when she was present.

"Billy ought to consider Jane Ann," Stella fussed. "Doctor or no doctor, I'm going to leave for Chicago tomorrow. I won't wait another week. That may be too late."

Stella carefully timed her arrival in Chicago. She drove directly to the hotel where Billy and she always stayed and had her bags checked in the parcel room.

"Don't you want to go up, Miss Norton?" the clerk who knew her, inquired.

"It's a surprise for Mr. Taylor," she refused. "I'll go directly to the theatre, but if I should miss him, please do not mention that I am here."

She would drive to the theatre and park the taxi opposite the stage entrance, she would follow Billy, and. . . . It was another nasty mess she feared, but she was not taking any chances with her happiness or Jane Ann's. Billy of course would be penitent, as always.

Stella sat back in the corner of her cab watching. The matinee jam evaporated. One by one the members of the company emerged, blinking in the bright light of the late afternoon sun. Stella's heart beat more rapidly. Any moment now and Billy would come.

The echo of Billy's effervescent chuckle reached her and she leaned as far forward as she dared, without being seen as the comedian's long slight figure appeared. With him was Jane Ann clinging adorningly to her father's arm.

What was Jane Ann doing there in Chicago? Stella shook her head to clear her eyes and then leaning forward, her arms extended, called to the pair standing in the shadow of the stage door.

"Billy—Jane Ann."

"Stella!"

"Stella!" Billy Taylor was half in and half out of the automobile, his arms around her and his lips on hers. "Stella, old girl, this is a surprise! I didn't expect you for weeks."

"So I see," she lifted her daughter's face to hers. "Jane Ann, what are you doing here?"

"Oh Mommie, darling," Jane Ann flung herself in the waiting arms, almost strangling her mother in her embrace. "I knew you would never let me go on the stage; not for years and years and years. When Daddy left Cleveland I ran away and met him at the train and he just had to take me with him, didn't you, Billy dear?" she appealed. "And Mommie, darling, no one knows who I am. I use a stage name and I'm in the chorus, and I love it so."

Stella Norton sat between them, an arm encircling each. This was the one time she need have no fear of a Blond Baby. Perhaps if Jane Ann were with him, Billy would be so busy teaching her the tricks of the game he knew so well he would have no time for anyone else. And after twenty years of vigilance, some rest was due her . . .

"Oh, Mommie," their daughter was pleading, "please don't send me back."

Stella patted her hand gently. "You haven't an ounce of sense, Billy Taylor," she scolded, but both husband and daughter read the laughter in her voice. "The minute my back is turned you get into mischief, both of you!"

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper ma said to pop, I'm glad of one thing, Willyum, and that is I'm not a Russian in Russia.

I'm glad I'm not a Rusian anywhere, not for eny personel reasons but just because it's my nature to be easily sattisfied, pop said, and ma said, The ladies at the bridge club were speaking about the unspeakable atrocities that those poor Russian prisoners are put through in their dark cold cells to ring confessions that they never committed.

O well, let's dont believe everything we hear, even in a bridge club, pop said. The world is so full of propaganda that we proberly shouldn't believe anything at all unless it's first been pasturized and then passed by the Truth Only Magazine, he said, and ma said, Now please dont accuse me of being so narrow minded as to believe things fabricated out to whole cloth made of thin air, but when stories are bilt on foundations they cease to be empty facts.

Do you mean to say there were some escaped Russians at the bridge club? pop said, and ma said, I mean to say I'll never forget Mrs. Sockernoff.

Who the dooce was she for Peet sake? pop said, and ma said, She was a pure blooded Russian who used to be a saleswoman in Hookbinders millinery department, and I couldn't make up my mind about a little Frentch model that I realize now was proberly the most becoming hat I ever tried on, and Mrs. Sockernoff promised on her word of honor to put it aside so I could thresh it out in my mind for a day or 2, and she sold it over her own word of honor that same afternoon, so dont let anybody try to vindicate Russians in my presents, so now you know why I believe everything I hear against them.

Ruffly speaking it's the same reason certain people believe everything they hear against the Prentch and the Armenians, not to mention the Weltch and the Vegetarians, I'll tell you later, pop said.

And he got in back of the sporting page.

GIRL AT THE FRONT

by ROB EDEN

"These, too, were on the body. The ring on a finger—the watch in his pocket. Do you recognize them?"

Claire gingerly took the ring in her hand and turned it over and over. It was a cameo in an old-fashioned setting. She had seen it many times on Bill Cameron's finger. He had seen her looking at it one day, and slipped it from his hand for her to examine more closely.

"It was my father's," he said. "I've worn it ever since his death."

"Yes, it's his ring". Claire lips scarcely moved as she confirmed the identification.

"And the watch" Sanford held it out to her and replaced the ring in the envelope.

The watch was a very thin model, the case plain with a small monogram engraved on the back. The girl traced out the initials. "W.A.C."—William Amherst Cameron. She handed the watch back, and nodded her head, dully.

"Yes, this belonged to Bill, too", she said. How many times she had seen it on the desk of his office in Washington. Cameron had a habit of taking it from his pocket and putting it on the blotter before him when he called her in for dictation.

"I have an early appointment", he told her once, grinning as he saw her eyes on the watch. But she knew it was only a habit. He always did it when he dictated whether he had an appointment or not.

"Bornet called me more than an hour ago and had me go down to the morgue", Sanford went on. "He had instructed all branches of the police to notify him immediately if any bodies were found.

"He was positive himself after examining the papers and other things found on the body, and phoned me to come down. I was convinced myself when I went over the papers."

"Then you made the identification?" Claire's eyes ached, her voice echoed dully in her own ears. She didn't know whey she was asking these questions which seemed so obvious.

"Yes. The embassy will attend to everything. He will be buried here, temporarily. After the war is over, we'll see that he's taken home if that is what his family wishes".

"You're absolutely positive?"

"Yes. The only thing we need to make it complete is finger-prints. Bornet has taken those already. I've cabled Washington send a copy of Cameron's prints from the fyles there. It is just a matter of form, but of course we can't pass up any possible chance to make the identification absolute."

Claire nodded.

"I suppose you'll want to be going back as soon as possible, now", Sanford suggested, kindly. "I think I can get you on a neutral boat which is sailing from Marseilles day after tomorrow for Mexico. From there, you can get a boat to New York. Will that be all right, Claire."

"Yes—that will be all right".

"Is there anything else I can do for you"?

"When — when will the services be?,"

"Tomorrow morning — that is this morning —at ten o'clock from the undertaker's chapel Ordinarily, services would be at the American church, but under the circumstances, I think this will be best. The rector will be asked to officiate. I'll attend to that later this morning."

"I'll want to be there", Claire said. Sanford gave her the address and then left, explaining he had many things to do before the hour of the services.

Claire sat in a deep leather chair in the lobby after he had gone, her brain numbed by the shock of the news she had just heard. Bill Cameron was dead! Nothing else mattered, now.

She tried to think of things they had done together. She recalled little jokes they had had between themselves. Every moment of intimacy she could remember, and there were not many of them, came crowding into her mind.

Suddenly, she felt tears welling from her eyes, and when he looked toward the desk, everything seemed blurred. With an effort she controlled herself and dried her eyes with her handkerchief Again she glanced toward the desk, and then started up from her chair. The clock over the reception desk pointed at five minutes to two.

She walked with dragging steps to the elevator, opened the door and as it slid shut, pressed the button for the fourth floor. There she alighted and walked down the corridor to the stairs, and climbed to the fifth floor. A dim blue light made it barely possible to read the numbers on the doors.

At Room 567, she paused and looked around. There was no one else in the corridor. She turned the knob and walked in. The room was dark.

CHAPTER TEN

Hazardous Assignment

If Claire hadn't been so stunned by the news Sanford had brought her— that Bill Cameron was dead —she undoubtedly would have screamed when she entered the dark room and felt a hand reach out and touch hers. As it was, a violent shudder went through her body, a shudder of fright.

There was a slight click behind her and she knew the door had been closed, and then a low voice spoke, reassuringly.

"Don't be alarmed, Miss Dutton. There is no one here who will harm you."

"Why is it necessary to be in absolute darkness"? she demanded "If there is no danger . . . "

"It is for your own protection. I don't want you to see my face—to be able to recognize me if you should see me again."

"But I do know who you are", she blurted out. "You're . . . "

"Stop!" the man's voice commanded, sharply. "You may think you know who I am, but you are not sure. If any one should ever question you about 'Z.Y.' try to make you reveal my identity, you can truthfully say you don't know who I am. You never have seen my face."

"But I recognize your voice," she insisted.

"No you didn't," the man went on. "You've never heard my voice before. You've never seen me. You have no idea who I really am. You must believe what I am saying. It is for your own protection, as well as mine. Now do you understand?"

"Yes". If Noel Yorke wanted to keep up this pretense, even when they were alone, there was nothing she could do about it. "But why did you have me come here?"

"You want to find Bill Cameron, don't you"?

"I did. That's why I came back to Paris. That's why I've been trying my best to get some hint about him ever since I returned. But now—now it's too late."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean that he is dead. Welles Sandford just told me that a body found in the Seine, with Mr. Cameron's papers and ring and watch and his clothes, undoubtedly was his. He has identified the body and has arranged for burial."

"That is wrong, Miss Dutton. Absolutely wrong. I don't know anything about this body that was found, but I know it isn't Cameron's. He is very much alive, but whether he lives much longer may depend upon you."

"Bill is alive?" A shock like an electric current shot through the girl's body. Her mind, which had been dull, slow to grasp the meaning of even the most simple things since Sanford told her that Cameron was dead, suddenly was sharp, alert again. Hope surged up inside her again, and then faded. "Please—please, Mr. Yo—Z. Y., don't tell me that if it's not true. I can't stand another shock such as I've just had."

"I'm telling you the truth. I can tell you more—if you'll listen. Bill Cameron, until today, was still in France. He was smuggled across the frontier just after dusk, and by now undoubtedly is in Berlin. He is a prisoner, but he is alive and well. We know that much."

"But why, if you knew where he was, didn't you do something?" Claire demanded. "Why wasn't he rescued?"

"We didn't locate him and his captors—espionage agents — until too late. They had already slipped across the border with him when we picked up the trail."

"But why was he captured? What can any one hope to gain by that? Our country is neutral. He can't be held as a prisoner of war."

"They know that Cameron can tell them about the big offensive that is being planned for late this week. They know that he knows the plans decided upon at the last war conference between the Allied leaders. That's why he was kidnapped. At the same time, the incendiary powder was planted with your baggage as a sort of afterthought. It would strike a severe blow to France to lose the St. Croix, and it was hoped its destruction might cause ill feeling in the United States because the lives of American citizens on board were jeopardized or lost."

Claire felt tears coursing down her cheeks, tears of happiness. Bill was alive! He was alive! And she had thought him dead! True, he was in danger, terrible danger, but he was alive. "Z. Y." had convinced her of that.

"What—what can I do to help?' she asked, eagerly, "I'll do anything—anything to help Bill—Mr. Cameron."

"I hoped you might volunteer," the voice said in the darkness "We are desperately short of the right sort of people—people equipped by intelligence and education and with the courage to serve. Are you sure you have the nerve to go through with a very desperate venture—one that may cost you your life should you fail?"

"If it will help Mr. Cameron — yes. I'll dare anything."

"Remember, it will require quick-wittedness as much as courage. Do you think you can qualify?"

"Yes," Claire said, simply, and she was certain in her own mind at that moment that there was no danger she wouldn't face, no terror she wouldn't experience to help the man she now knew she loved more than life itself.

"Good. Then listen closely. Word must be got to Cameron to pretend to break down and tell what he knows about the Allied war plans. He must tell the Germans the truth when they force him to talk—except in one particular. He must tell them the big drive is to start at ten a.m. on the day set."

"But Mr. Cameron would never be tortured into revealing confidential information," Claire protested.

"He must tell. That's our new strategy. We'll let them know our plans, but we'll set up our time twelve hours, and still catch them unprepared. Don't you see?"

The new plans were now clear to Claire, and she nodded in the dark. The simple change would spell the difference between victory and defeat.

"I understand," Claire said. "Please forgive me if I appear a bit stupid. But I have been through so much tonight."

"Two others have started already on the same mission you will undertake," the voice went on, ignoring her apologies. "They may not get through. Some one has to—so you have been chosen, if you'll do it.

"You mean, go into Germany?"

"Yes. Do you want to back down?"

"No. No, I'll do it, if it's at all possible."

"Good. Then listen to me carefully. You will be flown to Berlin tonight. You are to be at the Chamonix Field at five o'clock. There you will inquire for Captain Le Fevre. You will carry no baggage. You will leave your passport here—all means of identification. Is your clothing marked?"

Claire said that her more intimate clothing bore her name on tabs, sewed tightly for identification when it went to the laundry.

"Tear all the tabs out," the voice instructed. "Remove all labels of stores from any of your things you will wear."

"But what shall I do with out a passport in case I am questioned?" the girl asked.

"You will be provided with one before you land in Germany—a false one, naturally. The description will fit you, however, and the photograph will resemble you closely enough to get by."

"You think of everything, don't you?" she commented, admiration in her voice.

"In our business, we have to think of everything—or we don't stay in it very long. You must remember that—every minute of the time you are in Germany. Leave absolutely nothing to chance— do nothing carelessly or on impulse. Everything you do must be carefully considered in advance with full regard for the consequences in case you are suddenly challenged or subjected to questioning. Understand?"

Claire said she did.

"When you reach Berlin, you are to go to the address on this paper I am giving you. It is on the Jaeger strasse. It is a little news depot and tobacco shop run by Frau Weber. You are to hand her this key when you are certain you are speaking to Frau Weber." Claire felt a cold key pressed into her hand, together with a small bit of paper. "From then on, you will act on your own initiative."

Accurate Calculations Enabled Cruisers to Meet with Graf Spee

AWAY TWO YEARS

Plymouth, Feb. 1 (CP)—An officer of the British cruiser Ajax today told a dramatic story of the day-long running battle between the British cruisers Ajax, Achilles and Exeter and the German pocket battleship Graf Spee off the coast of South America last December. The Graf Spee was forced into Montevideo where she was scuttled. Her captain later committed suicide.

A press association reporter was the first newspaperman permitted to board the Ajax after she docked here yesterday for her first stop in a British port in two years.

The newsman saw the damage inflicted on the Ajax during the battle. The cruiser's mainmast was damaged and one gun was destroyed. Another gun turret had been patched up by the crew on the homeward journey and a shell had passed through the cabin of Rear-Admiral Henry Harwood, who commanded the British flotilla.

"We were searching, along with the Exeter and the Achilles, for the Graf Spee," said the officer who described the battle. "We did not know definitely that she was in those waters but we had worked it out that if she was heading for South America she would be somewhere in our proximity at that time and our calculations were remarkably accurate.

Opened Fire at 17 Miles

"She was first seen about 6 a.m. (on Dec. 13) and she immediately opened fire at a range of 29,000 yards. Almost at once she began to concentrate her heavy armament of 11-inch guns on the Exeter. At the same time she turned her secondary armament of four 6.9-inch guns on the Ajax.

"For 50 minutes it was a real dog fight and then the Exeter had to drop out. The action lasted another 31 minutes and during that time most of the Graf Spee's heavy guns were turned on the Ajax. Right through the action the Graf Spee was using a smoke screen and tried to run away but the cruisers were always a little faster and gradually closed the gap. With the Exeter out of action we closed in at breakneck speed and that was the beginning of the chase which lasted all day until 10 o'clock at night."

Another officer said an airplane attached to the Ajax "once circled so close to the Graf Spee that she got a piece of shrapnel through a wing."

27 Holeh in the Spee.

Montevideo, Feb. 1 (CP-Havas.)—Almost all of the naval battle between the German pocket battleship Admiral Graf Spee and the British cruisers Ajax, Achilles and Exeter off this port last Dec. 13 took place in Uruguayan waters, Uruguay claimed tonight in a ninety-page blue book covering the naval battle, the scuttling of the Graf Spee and the internment of the German tanker Tacoma.

The blue book contained fifty-one documents dealing with the naval battle and the dramatic incidents which followed it. Included was a description of the combat which ended the raiding career of the Graf Spee, a description of the damages inflicted on the German warship, and the reasons for the internment of the Tacoma.

The description of the running fight between the Graf Spee and the three British cruisers was supplied by Capt. Fernando J. Fuentes, commander of the cruiser Uruguay. From the Uruguayan warship he watched the lighter but speedier British cruisers darting in and out of smoke screens in an effort to bring the Nazi raider to bay for about six hours before the Graf Spee finally sought refuge in the Plata River.

"Except for the first few minutes at the beginning, the entire combat took place in jurisdictional waters," Captain Fuentes' report concluded.

Damage suffered by the German warship was described by the technical committee sent aboard the Graf Spee by the Uruguayan Government. The chairman of the committee said there were twenty-seven holes in the warship, and heavy damage caused in the galley, diningroom and laundry.

The commission estimated that provisional repairs could have been made in three days.

In explaining the internment of the Tacoma, the Uruguayan government said that it left this port on Dec. 17 after taking on a cargo of fuel oil and gasoline. It departed without authorization and without a pilot, the blue book said, and took approximately 800 men off the Graf Spee before the warship was sent to the bottom by its own crew. On Dec. 30 the Tacoma was given twenty-four hours to leave port, and when it failed to do so it was interned the following day.

Line of Job Seekers Grows Though Cops Say Forms Not Ready For Two Weeks

New York, Feb. 1 (AP).—"Listen, lady," the cop pleaded; "there's no jobs today. If you want to wait, you'll have to stand here two whole weeks. Your feet'll get sore."

The lady at the head of a two-block line of more than 2,000 men and women job seekers eyed him grimly.

"I'll wait," she said. "I've been here since six o'clock this morning. Nobody's going to get my place."

For hours, a dozen police roved up and down the line informing the standees that application blanks for 220 jobs as census takers in Jamaica, Long Island, would not be ready until Feb. 15.

But nobody budged. Toward noon the line began to lengthen.

Hint Columbus Seamen May Be Sent Home In Japanese Fishing Boats

San Francisco, Feb. 1— AP)—The future of 512 seamen from the scuttled German liner Columbus was hidden today in official silence and surrounded with reports they were being spirited across the Pacific in small groups aboard Japanese fishing craft.

German Consular spokesmen denied reports any of the men had left Angel Island, immigration station in San Francisco Bay, where they have been quartered since their arrival from the east Jan. 19.

The sailors, headed by Captain William Daehne, master of the Columbus, had intended to reach home via the Pacific, Japan and Russia, but British seizpre of 21 Russia, but British seizure of 21 anese liner Asama Maru caused cancellation of their plans.

The Chronicle said it had learned reliably that one group of the Columbus' seamen already had been taken to San Pedro for the voyage to Japan via fishing craft Other groups, the newspaper said would be picked up at Portland and Seattle.

FRENCH PATROLS PENETRATE 2 MI. INTO GERMANY

Four Parties Return With Prisoners and Valuable Information.

IN SAAR AND VOSGES

Paris, Feb. 1—(CP) — French war reports said today that four patrols penetrated deep into Germany yesterday, returning with prisoners and valuable information on German troop displacements.

Two of the patrols were said to have worked their way two miles into German territory between the frontier and the Saar River. The others operated in the Vosges district, the reports said.

Premier Daladier today reviewed the diplomatic and military situation for members of the cabinet meeting under his chairmanship at the war office. The brief official communique on the session gave no further details of the matters discussed.

CAPT. PODERJAY LEAVES PRISON

Former Yugoslavian Officer Has Served 5 Years for Bigamous Marriage to Bride Who Disappeared

Auburn, N.Y., Feb. 1 (AP) —The door of Auburn Prison swings open today to eject Captain Ivan Poderjay, who served five years for bigamous marriage to a bride who disappeared on her honeymoon.

The former Yugoslavian officer faces only a semblance of complete freedom, however, as immigration officials wait to hold him for deportation.

Agnes Colonia Tufverson, brilliant corporation lawyer, resigned her job in 1933 to become the 43-year-old bride of Captain Poderjay, international bon vivant.

The marriage took place in New York's Little-Church-Round-the-Corner and the happy bride prepared for their European honeymoon.

Poderjay, at least, sailed. Agnes' sisters were mystified by her strange farewell telephone call the night of the sailing.

There was a cablegram from London, then silence.

The bride's sisters, worried, stirred the New York Missing Persons Bureau into activity.

Earlier Marriage Discovered

It was discovered that nine months before his marriage to Miss Tufverson, Poderjay was married to a French woman, Mlle. Suzanne Ferrand.

More than a year later the captain was found in Vienna, in company with Mlle. Ferrand.

Articles from Agnes' trousseau were found in her apartment. It could not be established that she had ever left New York.

Poderjay said his bride had gone to India.

Extradiated by the Austrian government on a New York indictment charging bigamy, he pleaded guilty and was sentenced from 2½ to 5 years. He finished serving the maximum of the sentence today.

DEAR DIARY!

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 1 (AP)—Mrs. Paul E. Purks found this salute to cold weather of the past in the diary of her grandfather:

"Feb. 1, 1875—The river has been frozen over with ice six inches thick. In the middle was a table from which a fellow supplied the crowd with liquor at a dime a glass. It has been 8 or 10 below here."

National Services of Prayer For People of Finland Held at St. Paul's Cathedral

Final Issue of "Right Against Wrong" Will Probably Be Decided By May of This Year, Says Archbishop of Canterbury — Scandinavian Envoys Attend Service of Intercession.

London, Feb. 1 (CP)—The final issue of the struggle of "right against wrong" probably will be decided by May of this year, the Archbishop of Canterbury declared today at a national service of intercession for the Finnish people, held in St. Paul's Cathedral.

The service was broadcast to Finland and Scandinavia and was attended by Scandinavian envoys and the Lord Mayor of London.

The primate read a message from the primate of Finland and the Bishop of Tammersfors (Tampere) appealing for "effective help that shall not come too late."

The Archbishop said this appeal was "a cry which comes straight from the soul of Finland."

JOHN BARRYMORE GIVEN WELCOME

New York, Feb. 1.—(AP)—John Barrymore returned to Broadway after 15 years' absence last night and found the warming welcome given a prodigal son.

Playing the leading role in the farce, "My Dear Children", a part that frequently went into biographical comment on episodes in his real life, Barrymore gave a "straight' performance and only once or twice went into the ad lib and humorous comments that marked the play's long run in Chicago.

The one happening not on the program came at the end when Barrymore came on stage to acknowledge the enthusiastic applause of an audience of first night celebrities.

"In the still watches of the night", he said, "I have often wondered what I would say when I would come back to Broadway after 15 years. I decided that the best thing was for me to be simple, to say that your welcome is a thing that to be back on Broadway is that to be back on Broadwy is something divine. I am so thankful that I am back here".

Barrymore was held on stage as the audience remained seated, cheering. Then an unidentified man in Hamlet costume, his face painted in the white and black mask of a clown, leaped across the footlights and began babbling to Barrymore a mad speech about Shakespeare. Barrymore quietly took him by the scruff of the neck and firmly escorted him into the wings.

"Our heaviest stagehand just sat on top of our unexpected visitor", Barrymore said as he came out and took his final bow, and more cheers.

Florida Vegetable Growers Work Day And Night Replanting

Miami, Fla., Feb. 1 — (AP) — Stringing emergency headlights on their tractors, farms in the rich Florida redlands are working 24-hour shifts replanting the winter vegetable crops destroyed by last week's disastrous freeze.

They are battling against time to get new crops ready for the market ahead of competing farm sections farther south. Every day they save means money in their pockets, because prices are most profitable during the relatively short season when other farms are frozen out of the market.

This area, its tender tomato, bean and cabbage plants ruined by below-freezing temperatures Saturday night, staggered beneath cash losses estimated as high as $10,000,000 in this county alone.

"As soon as we realized how bad it was," said one grower, "we started replanting. We put automobile lights on the tractors and put double shifts of men to work. We've been going without a stop."

A. L. ELLIOTT, M.P.P., TO BACK LIBERALS

Toronto, Feb. 1—(CP) — A. L. Elliott, Liberal member of the Ontario Legislature for Peterborough, today announced he would support Federal Liberal candidates in the Peterborough ridings.

The member said that because of his work in connection with the legislature's timber inquiry he would be unable to attend the Liberal executive meeting tonight in Peterborough.

Mr. Elliott said: "I will certainly be supporting the Federal candidates in the Peterborough ridings. Two weeks ago today when the vote of censure in the legislature was considered I had left the chamber to attend a banquet in Peterborough before the discussion took place that precipitated the resolution. I have never joined in any criticism of the war effort of the Federal administration.

"With national figures like Lapointe, Ralston, Crerar and Gardiner supporting Mackenzie King, it is my opinion that the people of Canada will hesitate before replacing these tried administrators in this time of a national emergency."

QUAKE IN GREECE

3 DEFENCE ARMS ACT IN UNISON

Army, Navy and R.C.A.F. Serve as One Tremendous Sentry

By CHARLES B. LYNCH
Canadian Press Staff Writer

At an East Coast Canadian Port, Feb. 1 (CP)—The job of the liaison officer in Canada's defence "trinity" is no soft touch.

Army, navy and air force co-operate today as never before in the Dominion's history. Modern defence methods demand it and the three arms of the service have achieved it.

When a convoy leaves this port, the navy and the air force go to work. Officers of both services admit they couldn't do the job effectively alone.

When ships approach the coast, the air force, navy and army look them over, usually in that order. Should the need arise, the navy would probably say when to fire, the army do the firing, and the air force the observation work.

Orders Same as for Lone Soldier

The three Canadian services are thus combined as one tremendously powerful sentry. Their orders are the same as those issued to the lone soldier on "sentry go."

If a ship, plane or—though it's improbable—body of men acts suspiciously when challenged, the orders are to open fire. Considerable discretion is used, of course. It would probably take more than a slip-up in signals to cause the coastal batteries to open fire on an incoming British man-o-war. But any incomer who muffs the formalities, intentionally or otherwise, had best be prepared for a hectic time.

It is one of the main jobs of the liaison officer to make sure Canadian shells aren't directed at Canadian ships or planes.

When Royal Canadian Air Force planes take off, air force liaison officers promptly notify the army and navy. They give the number of planes involved, where they're going and what they're up to.

Of course, there is the story about the liaison officer who was slow in notifying the army about a night flight of air force planes. Searchlights flashed into action and the order to fire was on the tip of an anti-aircraft officer's tongue when a frantic phone call saved the day.

Each Service's Contribution

For the exchange of all vital information, each service has three liaison officers with each of the other two. These men are kept constantly busy with telephone calls. Every movement of every plane, ship or army unit must be accounted for, if possible in advance.

Each officer works an eight hour shift, and thus liaison service is kept up 24 hours a day.

They are the links which keep Canada's chain of defence forces together, giving the Dominion one of the most compact and, for its size, efficient defence units in the world today.

TO OUTLINE PACT WITH RAILWAYS IN WHITE PAPER

London, Feb. 1—(CP) — Prime Minister Chamberlain announced today that terms of a financial agreement between the government and the nation's railways would be outlined in a "white paper" as soon as the arrangement is completed—probably next week. The government is entering into a large number of financial agreements of all kinds, he said, and it was impracticable to disclose the terms.

At the same time the Minister of Health, Walter Elliot, informed the House of Commons that 36.8 per cent of the children removed from London to safer areas during the early days of the war had returned to their homes. He did not answer a question as to whether he would consider making removal of children from London compulsory.

Home Secretary Sir John Anderson disclosed that 415 aliens had been interned in Britain at the start of the war, and that 554 others had been interned after examination by tribunals.

2,300 JEWISH REFUGEES SAIL

Sulina, Rumania, Feb. 1 —(AP)—A group of 2,300 Jewish emigrants from Austria and former Czecho-Slovakia sailed aboard the Turkish freighter Vakarla today for Palestine though lacking entry permits. Included were lawyers, artists, actors and doctors who had waited here three months in squalid conditions before they were able to charter a ship.

ONLY ONE NAZI AIRPLANE FALLS ON BRITISH SOIL

British Arms Experts Examined Every Bullet Hole in Wreck of Single Machine — All Other Machines Shot Down Fell Into Sea

STUDY IS VALUABLE

London, Feb. 1.— (CP) — Only one of the German aircraft shot down by Royal Air Force fighter planes while raiding Britain since the war started fell on land. All the others have crashed into the sea.

But armament experts examined and analyzed every bullet hole in the wreckage of the single machine which cracked up near Edinburgh. Such examinations are a valuable aid in their task of helping to beat the bomber.

The armorers—the men who put the sting into R.A.F. fighter planes—are eagerly awaiting another chance to study the results of their work.

The fighter pilot is like a man hidden in a flying gun battery. He aims his aircraft like an arrow and hurls it, spitting destruction, at the enemy. On the ground below are the men reponsible for his guns. They check and overhaul the guns and reload the ammunition while the plane is refuelled.

The armament officer responsible for this work is a specialist concerned not only with loading guns and bombs but with training those who fire or drop them.

Armorers also go through a rigorous course. Before an aircraftman can wear the armorer's badge (a winged bomb) he must learn everything about the upkeep and maintenance not only of machine guns but also small arms, camera guns, bombs and the delicate business of sighting and harmonizing the armament.

S. A. WOMEN KNIT 10,000 PAIRS SOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 1. —(CP)— Ten thousand pairs of socks have been knitted by Salvation Army women and distributed to Canadian soldiers, it was reported today by Mrs. George W. Peacock, in charge of the Red Shield Women's Auxiliary of the Salvation Army. More than 10,000 women of the Salvation Army in Canada are engaged in war work, Mrs. Peacock said.

British and Swedish Ships Reported Sunk

London, Feb. 1—(CP)—Sinking of the 4,450-ton British steamship Bancrest, formerly called Ambassador, and the Swedish freighter Sylvia, 1,524 tons, as the result of torpedo and bomb attacks was disclosed today.

The Sylvia was bombed Jan. 27 and the Bancrest was torpedoed.

A French vessel, the 1,782-ton Honfleuraise, also was attacked but reports did not say whether she was damaged or sunk.

One member of the Bancrest crew was lost and 33 were saved.

FARMERS ACT TO CLEAR ROADS

Lake City, Mich., Feb. 1— AP)—Appriximately 200 farmers of a snow-isolated section of Missaukee County broke into a state garage last night to get snowploughs with which to clear 18 miles of highway. The farmers complained the road had not been cleared because of a dispute between state and county on maintenance costs.

TWO FISH TUGS LOCKED IN ICE

Muskegon, Mich., Feb. 1—(AP)—Two Kenosha, Wis., fish tugs were locked in the ice 2 1-2 miles northwest of this harbor today and the coastguard cutter Escanaba stood by awaiting an opportunity to help.

The tugs have been ice-bound since Wednesday afternoon. Only an off-shore wind will free the tugs, marine men said. The ice field at the harbor mouth is between five and six miles wide and is blocking the Escanaba.

The tugs are the Harry H. and the Naomi King. It was not known here how many were aboard or how extensive were the flood supplies of the crews.

The steamers Nevada and City of Milwaukee both broke free of the ice and reached port last night after a four-hour struggle.

CANCER PROBLEMS ARE DISCUSSED

Dr. Gordon Richards Says Crying Need is for Treatment of Individual

Toronto, Feb. 1 (CP)—Treatment for the individual, not an educational campaign for the public, is the most crying need in the cancer problem, Dr. Gordon Richards, Director of Radio Therapy at Toronto General Hospital, said here Wednesday at a meeting for th eorganization of a Toronto district provincial council of the Canadian Society for the control of cancer.

A Caner Control Society to be in earnest must be prepared "to forward all steps on behalf of the poor beggar who has cancer and that costs a lot of money," said Dr. Richards, expressing the opinion that Ontario's cancer treatment centres were too numerous. Better results would be obtained with more centralized treatment centres.

Early Treatment

Dr. Richards gave some figures on a 10-year survey of cancer treatment at Toronto General by radio therapy. In cases of cancer of the tongue, almost exclusively a male affliction, cures reached 90 per cent of the cases caught in the first stage. Cures dropped to 60 per cent in the group of patients not treated until the second stage while cures were only four per cent in the fourth stage.

Cure of cancer of the lip is almost a certainty when it is caught in its early stage, said Dr. Richards.

E. E. Reid, London, President of the Ontario Society, was chairman for last night's organization meeting.

Dr. T. C. Routley, Secretary of the Canadian Medical Association, said the medical profession believed the laymen have a job to do in the cancer educational campaign. The profession would give a lead in making the public cancer conscious —not to be confused with causing cancer phobia.

The trustees of the $500,000 King George V Silver Jubilee cancer fund have decided that the fund must be left intact, said Dr. Routley. Half the interest on the $500,000 was being paid the Canadian Society for the control of cancer and half was being paid the Canadian Medical Association.

Dr. G. Stewart Cameron, Peterborough, said a committee of the Ontario Medical Association two weeks ago discussed the problem of the indigent cancer patient in need of expensive treatment. A survey would be undertaken to determine the need for a fund that would look after such cases.

A woman delegate said it was difficult to educate people regarding cancer without causing fear. Women would stay away from meetings if they thought cancer was to be discussed.

Probabilities

Lower Lake region—Strong northerly winds, decreasing on Saturday; mostly fair and cold today and Saturday. Sunday—Fair and becoming somewhat milder.

England Building Big Bomber With Guns in Tail to Permit Fire in Any Direction — Not as Speedy as Junkers

"Go Ahead" Signal Given Chamberlain When Parliament Refuses Labor Motion to Add Economic Minister to War Cabinet

London, Feb. 2 (CP)—The Royal Air Force is prepared to reply in kind to any large scale German bombings which might come in the spring, authoritative sources asserted today.

Speedy, fighting planes with machine guns in the tails to permit fire in any direction were described as Great Britain's means of meeting the anticipated attack by a new German bomber built for speedy performance at high altitudes.

"There is evidence the Germans are pressing construction of fast, long range bombers," an aviation source said. He described the new type as a twin-motored Junkers bomber JU-88, carrying a crew of three or four and three guns, one in the nose and two in the fuselage.

"With this weapon in his hands, it seems unlikely the enemy will capitulate without attempting a desperate aerial attack on Britain's vital targets," the source declared.

Use In Large Numbers.

He said Germany probably would use the new bomber in "considerable numbers".

Experts expressed the belief that Germany thus far had not used the new Junkers.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

The sun's gifts! The earth has been receiving from the sun for millions of years both light and heat which, as we all know, are necessary to life in all its forms-from the one-cell organism to the most complex plant or animal. The earliest attempt to measure the heat from the sun was done by exposing water in a box blackened on the exposed side. A thermometer in the water indicated how many degrees the water rose in a certain time Owing to the varying influence of the atmospheres a true measure of the sun's radiation should be made outside the atmosphere. As this can not be done, the amount of losses in the atmosphere is estimated by exposing the instruments from dawn to noon. The instruments now used do not differ in principles from those first used.

CANADIAN ACTOR WED IN LONDON

Robertson Davies, Son of Publisher of Whig Standard, Kingston, Takes Bride

London, Feb. 2 — (CP Cable)—Robertson Davies, Canadian actor, director and author, and Brenda Newbold, stage manager of the old Vic Theatre, were married today in an informal ceremony at Chelsea Old Church, with Rev. R. E. Sadleir officiating.

Mr. Davies, 26-year-old son of Rupert Davies, President of the Kingston Whig-Standard and President of the Canadian Press, met Miss Newbold three years ago when both started working at the old Vic. Miss Newbold, who is 23, was born in Melbourne, Australia.

The wedding was attended by many theatrical friends and the bride was given away by Tyrone Guthrie, director of the Old Vic. As all of Mr. Davies' most intimate friends are on army duty, the couple decided not to have attendants.

Because the bridegroom considers wedding music to be unusually gloomy, he selected pieces from Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro," which were particularly appropriate in view of the many guests who are members of the Sadler's Wells Opera Company which is associated with the Old Vic.

SOLDIER DIES OF HIS INJURIES

Private John Hamilton Slipped Beneath Freight Train

Hamilton, Ont., Feb. 2—(CP)—Private John Hamilton, 35, of the Second Division supply column of the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps, died in hospital early today, three hours after he slipped beneath a freight train.

Hamilton slipped on fresh snow as he looked over his shoulder at some children at play and slipped beneath the wheels of the Canadian National Railways train. He suffered amputation of the right leg and was extricated by a rescue crew after being dragged 100 yards before the train could stop. Because the train was on a grade it was split before the injured man could be released.

Correspondent May Be Tried By Military Court

Tokyo, Feb. 2 — (CP-Havas)—Yachichiro Suma, Foreign Office spokesman, revealed today that James Young, imprisoned International News Service correspondent, has been charged with violation of the army criminal code and will be tried possibly by a military court.

The American newspaperman was arrested here on Jan. 20. The specific charges against him, Suma said, are that he sent from Shanghai and other points in China, articles and dispatches of an "extremely slanderous" nature regarding the Japanese forces in China and that following his return to Tokyo he spread similar reports and rumors harmful to Japan in private conversations.

Helsingfors, Feb. 2 —(AP)— Russian planes were reported by the Finnish high command today to have dropped "many" patrols by parachute over Finnish soil but defence troops captured or killed the invaders.

The new danger from the skies—introduced before by the Russians but always, the Finns say, without success—came on the Karelian Isthmus where the Russians also showed another wrinkle of modern warfare in the use of tank-pushed armored sledger.

After a battle on the Isthmus the high command said "the enemy was repulsed." The communique, covering yesterday's fighting, also reported the Russians beaten back after attacks against Finnish-held islands in Lake Ladoga, northeast of the Isthmus front.

Announcement Made

In its announcement of the attempt to hurdle Finnish defences with troops from the air, the high command said, "during the day enemy planes dropped many parachutist patrols. These were partly captured and partly annihilated."

In the air warfare the army announced that at least five and possibly eight Russian raiders were shot down yesterday while civilian casualties among the Finns were "one killed and some wounded."

The violent Red army onslaught on the Karelian Isthmus defences broke a long-standing quiet.

The coincidence between the sudden spurt of Soviet attacks, accompanied by widespread air raids, and the new offer of Finnish President Kyosti Kallio yesterday of "an honorable peace" told Finns what, if any, was likely to be Moscow's answer.

SUGGESTS JAPAN WITHDRAW ARMY

Saito Throws Japanese Lower House Into Turmoil

Tokyo, Feb. 2—(AP)—The Lower House of Japan's parliament was thrown into turmoil today when a member criticized the government's China policy and suggested that Japanese troops be withdrawn to make possible a negotiated peace.

Takao Saito, a leader of the Minseito, strongest of Japanese political parties, pointedly asked the government to explain the meaning of "the new order in East Asia"—the term used officially for the program of making China an economic and military dependency of Japan.

Cries of 'No, No'

Saito is famous for his criticisms of the army and caused similar sensations in the 1935 and 1938 Diet Sessions by attacking military domination of national policy.

Cries of "No! No!" greeted his assertion today that "Peace can only be invited when a country keeps its armed power in the background". His hearers understood this to be a suggestion that the army be withdrawn from China before any attempt to make peace with the proposed Wang Ching-Wei regime.

Emotional Disturbances Blamed For 'Common Cold' in Some Persons

Chicago, Feb. 2 (AP).—Emotional disturbances may precipitate the 'common cold" in some individuals, a Chicago psychoanalyst said today

Investigations of the relation of such disturbances to various ailments have been conducted at the Chicago Institute for Psychoanalysis.

Dr. Leon Saul said the studies led to a belief that prolonged or severe frustrations of wishes for love, care or relaxation may be important factors in causing colds in some persons.

One investigation, he said, disclosed a group of nine individuals who suffered colds regularly in situations of frustration of strong, mostly unconscious demands "with more or less repressed rage."

"This observation in no way implied that all emotional states or thwarting results in colds, nor obviously that this study in any sense shows the exclusive cause," he said.

Nazi Pressure Exerted On Rumania Is Cause of Balkan Entente Parley

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Feb. 2—AP) — German pressure on Rumania to obtain acceptance of a sweeping plan to make her industries, petroleum production and agriculture adjuncts of the Reich's economic structure was reported by informed persons today as the meeting of the Balkan entente opened here.

Rumania, the informants said, already has made some concessions to Germany regarding the plan but is looking to her partners in the entente—Turkey, Greece and Yugoslavia—to support her in a policy of economic neutrality which would enable her to resist encroachments which might involve her in war.

Under this policy, proposed after it was decided it was futile for Rumania to ask the other members of the entente for a military alliance, the four nations would sell supplies both to Germany and the Allies but only to the extent of normal, peacetime trade.

Wants to Seynchronise Industry

Under Germany's program, it was said, Rumanian industry would be synchronized with that of the Reich and become virtually a part of Field Marshal Hermann Goering's four-year plan for self-sufficiency.

Germany would liquidate a large debt to Rumania by wholesale shipments of munitions and other manufactures.

Rumanian industry would discontinue manufactures duplicating Germany's and concentrate on products Germany could use.

Rumania would keep a steady stream of oil, wheat and timber moving to the Reich—as much as could be transported.

German technicians would be sent to Rumania to improve production and accelerate shipments.

Briefly, the reported plan virtually would freeze out Great Britain and France from Rumania and involve a written or implied German guarantee of Rumania's frontiers.

Fear German Thrust

Rumania was said to fear a German thrust should she balk at Germany's determination to get needed supplies and to be nervous about the British-French guarantees of help because of her distance from them.

Thus she wants to follow a middle course with her entente partners.

The main argument of the Rumanian Foreign Minister, Grigore Gafencu, is that the situation of the other entente nations is analogous to Rumania's and greater safety for all lies in close collaboration and economic as well as political neutrality.

While Yugoslavia apparently is disposed to go along with such a policy, Greece and Turkey are farther from Germany and, more closely tied with the Allies, would face difficulties in upsetting trade gains they have made with the Allies since the outbreak of war.

Turkey Ready to Help

On the other hand, Turkey is regarded as the only entente member that might be willing to go to war for Rumania if she were attacked by Germany or Russia.

Bound to Britain and France by a mutual assistance pact, Turkey was described by her Foreign Minister, Sukru Saracoglu, on the eve of the conference, as in the same position as Italy: "not neutral but merely a non-belligerent."

Closed Conference

A plan for "economic neutrality" under which Rumania, Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia would sell supplies both to Germany and the Allies but only to the extent of normal, peacetime trade was up first for discussion in the closed conference.

The plan appeared to be Rumania's substitute for her original request for military guarantees from her partners, to be invoked if necessary against either Germany or Russia. It seemed plain Rumania could not win such promises.

Nazi Atrocities in Poland Cause Unspeakable Suffering

One Case Listed of 5,000 Men Being Imprisoned for Six Weeks in Cavalry Stables

PRIESTS HUMILIATED

Paris, Feb. 2 (AP). — The Polish government in exile is piecing together a story of atrocities in the German-occupied portion of Poland which it says rival or surpass the most barbarous treatment of a conquered people in history.

In its series of "white papers", which are being issued periodically and are to be assembled in a book later, the Polish government describes the land that Germany seized as one of hunger, stark fear, wrecked churches and hospitals, and executions. It says deportations of the populace are conducted with methodical brutality.

A similar paper was issued last night by the Polish envoys to Italy and the Vatican.

Tales of atrocities and suffering also are reported from that portion of Poland which fell to Soviet Russia.

Ottawa, Feb. 2—(CP) — Whirlwind election campaigns will be launched by all major parties within a fortnight and the big political guns will fire up and down the country for six weeks with the Liberal administration's war record the opposition's chief target as well as the government's main defence.

At national headquarters here, the Liberal, Conservative and co-operative commonwealth federation parties are completing plans for their appeals to the electorate in the March 26 general election. PAIR BLUDGEONED WITH HATCHET IN MONTREAL

Widow and Daughter Discovered by Another Daughter Early Last Night

ROBBERY MOTIVE

Montreal, Feb. 2 (CP) — Police pressed a search today for the slayer of a widow and her daughter whose bodies were hurled into a heap at the bottom of a cellar stairway after they had been bludgeoned to death with a hatchet.

Mrs. Mary Helen Fahey, 67, and her daughter Loretta, 28, were the victims of one of the most vicous murders here in recent years. Their bodies were found early last night by another daughter.

Police believe robbery was the motive, for the weekly pay cheque the daughter usually brought home on Thursdays from her part time job was missing and Mrs. Fahey's purse had been emptied of whatever money it contained.

AMENDMENTS TO JUDICATURE ACT READY FOR HOUSE

Amendments Will be Based on Barlow Report Submitted Last December

KEEN DEBATE

Col. Drew Objects Strongly to Amendments to Succession Duty Act Passed

Toronto, Feb. 2 (CP)—Amendments to the Judicature Act, based chiefly on the recommendations of the Barlow report on the overhauling of Ontario's judicial procedures, will be introduced into the legislature by the government—possibly today.

Attorney-General Conant made the announcement such a bill was planned when the House rose yesterday. It was not stated whether changes will be made in the Grand Jury system, the abolition of which has been advocated in some quarters.

No statement was forthcoming from the Attorney-General in the provisions of the amendment, but it was understood several sections of the report submitted last year by Fred H. Barlow, Master of the Supreme Court of Ontario, would be incorporated. Mr. Barlow had been appointed by the Attorney-General to inquire into the administration of law in the province with a view to more efficient procedure and economy.

Report Submitted in December

When the main report was submitted in December, Mr. Conant said he was hopeful that many, if not all, of the recommendations would be adopted.

Among the suggestions was that Grand Juries be abolished; that the County Court, the Court of General Sessions of the Peace, the County Judges' Criminal Court and the Surrogate Court be consolidated; that coroner's inquests be dispensed with in certain cases; that the Court Crier's position be abolished; and that the province be divided into judicial districts.

Archbishop Forbes Collapses As Bishop Consecrated

Ottawa, Feb. 2—(CP) — Most Rev. Guillaume Forbes, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Ottawa, collapsed today during the consecration of Mgr. Alexandre Vachon as Bishop of Ottawa and was carried from the Basilica.

Archbishop Forbes who has been in ill health, was said to be in serious condition.

He left hospital only recently and for a time there was conjecture whether he would feel strong enough to participate in the consecration of the former Rector of Laval University at Quebec as Bishop and Coadjutor Archbishop of Ottawa.

Police Search For Possible Clues In Double Murder

Shot-Gun Thought Missing From Wellman Home, is Found Covered With Dust Behind Cupboard

EXPERTS VISIT SCENE

Bodies of Victims Removed to Stirling for Postmortem by Dr. E. R. Frankish, Medico - Legal Expert — Powder Burns Found on Mrs. Wellman's Head

Harold, Ont., Feb. 2—Police said today that the slayer of Arnold Wellman, 77 and his wife, Nancy, 75, did not use a shotgun belonging to Wellman when the aged couple were killed Wednesday. The theory was discarded when Dr. A. L. Wellman of Waterloo, Ont., found his father's shotgun behind a cupboard. "The gun was covered with dust," Dr. Wellman said. "It looked as if it hadn't been used for years.'

Provincial Police today continued their search for the believed murderer of Arnold and Nancy Wellman, aged Rawdon farm couple, who were found by a mail courier early Thursday shot to death on their farm in the vicinity of what is commonly known as Wellman's Settlement, three miles west of the village of Harold in this county.

Police are acting on the assumption that the person responsible for this heinous crime may be still in the neighborhood. "We are going to search every inch of the countryside seeking further information and the possible apprehension of the party responsible for the most atrocious crime I've seen in many years," Inspector Albert Ward of the Criminal Investigation Department of the Provincial Police stated to the Ontario Intelligencer at the scene of the crime this morning, where Inspector Ward took over complete charge of the investigation today.

Grain Stolen

Police also revealed there undoubtedly had been a quantity of grain stolen from the granary beneath the Wellman barn, but they were unable to ascertain the amount missing. "We do not believe at this stage that the bureau drawers in Mrs. Wellman's rooms were ransacked, as at first was believed," added Inspector Ward.

Believe Gun Fired at Short Range

Powder burns were found by medical experts at the hairline of Mrs. Wellman's head today, which revealed to the authorities that her assailant had been standing at least three feet from his victim when he discharged the shell that virtually blasted the top of Mrs. Wellman's head off. The murderer stalked Mr. Wellman from behind however, and fired at a greater range as no powder marks were found on his head, the top of which also had been virtually blown off. Particles of the late Mr. Wellman's skull were found today at the extreme north end of the cow stable, in which he was shot to death, indicating to investigators that the victim's head had been turned sideways as he was milking a cow.

Bodies Taken to Funeral Parlour

Today the bodies of the two victims were ordered moved from the scene of the crime to G. J. Duffin's funeral parlour in Stirling, where a complete post mortem was ordered by Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson of this city. Rigor mortis had long since set in.

This morning Dr. E. R. Frankish, provincial medico-legal expert of Toronto, and Prof. J. Robinson, University of Toronto pathologist, viewed the bodies at scene of the crimes and later returned to Stirling, where they were to complete their investigations during the post-mortem, which is being conducted by these two provincial medical experts. Reports of these findings will be given into the hands of Dr. Robertson and Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., late this afternoon.

Couple Very Hospitable

While speaking to the Ontario Intelligencer today neighbors of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wellman stated that the aged couple were very hospitable people and were known to have taken strangers into their home, where these men remained for weeks, with no questions as to their identity or past ever being asked by the hosts. "I have known Mr. and Mrs. Wellman for many years and on several occasions have visited their home to find them hosts to a wandering transient, who was treated like one of the family," added Dr. J. J. Robertson at the scene of the accident this morning.

Provincial Police further revealed today that it had been impossible to ascertain the amount of money that might have been in the Wellman home prior to the shooting, as only Mr. and Mrs. Wellman had knowledge of any cash kept in the home. Friends, however stated the family was in the habit of keeping a sum of cash on hand for emergency.

Early today the two sons of the murdered victims, Dr. Marvin Wellman of the Ontario Hospital, Whitby and Dr. A. L. Wellman of Waterloo, arrived home to find the bodies of their murdered parents still on the premises. A daughter, Dr. Iona V. Wellman, of Chicago, is enroute home.

Guards Placed.

As a precaution only and due to the fact that the bodies of the murdered victims remained at the scene of the crimes again last night, Inspector Frank Gardner ordered an all night guard placed around the Wellman home last night. Provincial Constables Carl Fisher and Jack Morgan kept vigil. Early today the provincial police under Inspector Ward and Sergeant H. E. Thompson resumed their investigations, but no reports were received at 2 p.m. this afternoon, The Ontario Intelligencer learned by long distance telephone.

FARM COUPLE BRUTALLY MURDERED

The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Wellman were found on their farm near Harold, Ontario, with their heads practically blown off by the blasts from a shot-gun, thought to have been fired by thieves.

Compromise Solution Believed Under Way In Seizure Issue

Tokyo, Feb. 2—(AP) — Progress toward a compromise solution in which Great Britain would return some of the 21 German seamen seized Jan. 21 from a Japanese liner was believed to have been achieved today in another conference between the British Ambassador, Sir Robert Craigie, and Masayuki Tani, Japanese Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs.

Another session originally scheduled for this afternoon was not held and the foreign office said no further meetings were planned at present, indicating details of a settlement may already have been decided.

Eight Reilly Brothers In Canadian Army

Part of the Reilly "Expeditionary Force" has arrived in England. Three brothers of the Wellington, Ontario family are already in England, while five more are in the army awaiting call.

Stalwart sons of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Reilly who emigrated from Londonderry, Ireland, in 1924 and set up house with their sixteen children in the Prince Edward county village, they are all red-haired and blue-eyed "rarin' to go and if this bird Hitler as much as lays a finger on wan of us, then he'll have the whole dom family to reckon with."

Eleven boys and five girls make up the family. They resembled the proverbial "stairway" as they tumbled out of a train fifteen years ago and went to work in this section of the country.

When the boys grew up two of them joined the Hastings and Prince Edward regiment "just to keep off the streets." Edward Reilly now of Toronto said, "The colonel was putting on a drive for men and asked us if there were any more at home. I said there was. He said 'bring them along.' And I did."

Today in the army are Thomas, William, Robert, John, James, Matthew, Stewart and Edward, ranging in age from John 21 to Thomas the eldest, 45. Thomas, William and John are already overseas and on their first leave went to Belfast where they let their relations know they were back in the old country.

John was the first to enlist, and shortly afterwards Jim and William came down from Simcoe where they were working in the tobacco fields and joined the regiment.

"The rest of us," says Edward, "are rar' to go and have had several years' training in the militia. At present he is in Toronto. Thomas, Robert and Stewart are in Wellington and Matthew is in Simcoe. Of the three remaining brothers, Joseph is married in Toronto with six children; Hugh is married and lives in Simcoe while Sam lives in Philadelphia with his family. Of the five sisters in the family, three are married, one works in Wellington and the other is in Toronto taking a business course.

Thomas is one of the veterans of the family. For a number of years he was a member of the Royal Irish Constabulary, prior to coming to Canada. During the last war, Samuel, the father of the family who is now retired, served in the Irish police for home protection known as the "B Specials."

"We are all ready to go whenever Canada needs us," says Edward, "and the whole family intends to do their bit in helping to win the war."

MR. PRIMO MARCUZ

New, Scientific Medicine is now being introduced to the public daily in this city at Lattimer's Drug Store, your Tamblyn Dealer, 228 Front Street. Just a few days ago, Mr. Primo Marcuz, of 966 Pierre Ave., Windsor, Ont., made the following statement. Mr. Marcuz is employed at the Ford Motor Co., and his Grateful Testimonial about Mosby's Tonic reads as follows:

Food Soured, Fermented, Caused Gas Bloating

"I had become a regular victim of stomach gas and sluggish kidneys," said Mr. Marcuz. "I had such an upset stomach that everything I ate would sour and ferment in my stomach and I would fill up with loads of gas. I was afraid to eat because of the gas pains I always suffered afterward. My kidneys were so sluggish that I was subject to sharp pains across my back. Also had chronic constipation.

"Well, that's the condition I was in, and I certainly was a discouraged person, for I tried about every medicine I heard of and never got any real results from anything. Then one day I read about Mosby's Tonic and what it was doing for so many people. I got it and now I want to say that it has done me more good than all the other medicines I took put together. It cleared the gas and sourness from my stomach so that I can eat without distress now. It also relieved those pains in my back and regulated my bowels. I can't praise Mosby's Tonic enough after what it did for me, and I gladly give you my statement and urge others, who suffer like I did, to get this splendid Medicine and take it."

Mosby's Tonic is a medicine of many Ingredients, that is, it contains 15 roots and herbs blended with 5 other splendid medicaments. 20 INGREDIENTS IN ALL. GOERING AND CHANCELLORSHIP

A despatch to a Stockholm newspaper from its Berlin correspondent, tells of discord among the Nazis. Field Marshal Goering, while said to be perfectly loyal to Adolf Hitler, feels, according to the article, that it is necessary for him to become chancellor under Hitler, thereby having dictatorial powers in internal and foreign affairs similar to those he exercises in the field of national economy. It is said the army leaders back Goering in opposition to Von Ribbentrop, Himmler, the Gestapo chief and Dr. Goebbels. Goering is said to have favored continuance of the relations with Italy and to have been angered by the abandonment of the Finns to Soviet influence because Germany had interests in Finland.

It is noted that Hitler the other day stressed the relations with Italy as the same as they ever were. The Italians, it is reported, did not like that and thereby they are much like those people who sometimes find their acquaintances too familiar and talkative.

It is a fact that Von Ribbentrop has not been much in the public eye since the Russian influence began to exert itself in the Baltic area.

How far the strife or discord among Nazi leaders has proceeded, there is no way of knowing. The fact that the army of which Goering is the head, backs Goering, and that Hitler has named Goering as his successor in the event of his death, is sufficient proof that the army is the chief force in Germany. It is said by some observers that if there should be any revolutionary trend in Germany, it is the army which would have to lead it, because the army possesses weapons against which ordinary outbreaks would be helpless.

With this strife it may of course be that Hitler is looked upon as something like the self-defined emperors of old. Or it may be that as he stands in isolation from the rest of the party, the leading Nazis do the quarreling among themselves.

How this all effects Hitler is difficult to say. But his aloofness is calculated to inspire a sort of prophet-emperor respect for himself but it isolates him and is the source of his weakness. He does not know what wise advice and control mean and it is generally believed that he is moody, subject to spells and likely to make rash decisions.

The subordinate Nazis have the example of their leader in his dealings with individuals and nations and the distance between Hitler and them naturally has stirred up ambitions among his subordinates. How he looks upon these would be interesting knowledge.

FIGHTING ON SKIS IN MODERN WAR

Russians, living in a country, a large part of which must be as cold as the very cold parts of Finland, neglected one means of transportation in winter. At least they did not utilize the ski until they found the Finns using this means of winter travel to perfect achievement in the co-ordination of the war scheme.

Seeing the use the Finns had made the Russians have employed a Siberian ski battalion but the Finns cut up three hundred of the six hundred enemy ski soldiers but the other three hundred succeeded in making their escape. Evidently the Finnish ski soldiers are men of great resource as their generals are.

Why the Russian army neglected this method of foot travel seems difficult to understand for the Russian army used ski troops for reconnaissance not more than a generation ago. It is said that a ski detachment of Russian infantry in 1891 travelled 697 kilometers in ten days.

It may be that the Russians depended on planes for reconnaisance and scouting but there the Finns foiled them again. The Finnish scouts are dressed in white and seem to the eyesight about as substantial as the filmy ghosts they might be for all the Soviet troops might know. It is almost impossible to see them on the snow.

The Finnish branch of the Scandinavians does not forget its past. The Finns know what the ski has meant to that great peninsula which juts into the North Sea and into the Arctic Ocean and on the Gulf of Bothnia. Away back in the year 1200 skis played an effective part in the victory of Isen, near Oslo.

New York Times quotes the London Times whose correspondent has searched through the chronicles of Saxo Grammaticus and found that Norwegian ski troops from Finnmark overwhelmed a superior Danish force near the familiar place of today—Petsamo, in the year 1204. Finns had their ski troops fighting the Russians in 1590 when the eastern neighbors started to invade the peninsula. In the eighteenth century ski training was part of the army training in Sweden and Norway. In 1808-09 Swedes and Finns used skis to overwhelm another invading force from Russia, who were trying to cut Finland in two at Suomussalmi, so familiar a name in the newspapers today.

Russians have shown scientific developments but neither they nor any others have succeeded in supplanting the skis. Troops can move silently at a very great speed across the wastes. The ski troops are a very mobile arm of the forces.

The Soviet, engaged in so much activity, forgot the ski and its history until they found the ski playing a vital part in the victories of the defenders of the northern republic in the past two months.

A news despatch the other day noted that the Russians were recommending the importance of ski training. But skiing cannot be learned in a day. The Finns have the lead with the ski. Even those who use skis must have to undergo long training as units to become effective as a battalion.

RELIGIOUS BACKGROUND ESSENTIAL

British newspapers have remarked that Hitler unintentionally paid a tribute to Prime Minister Chamberlain as a Bible-carrying man. The Britons think none the less of Mr. Chamberlain if he impresses the German Chancellor as a man who has a religious background, emotions, feelings and feels there is something divine in life.

Hitler's sneers and attempts at humor were poor efforts indeed, especially as made by the leader of a nation. It is not the custom for representatives of one country to refer to the religious persuasions of the public men of other countries. That is something which should be beyond attack.

But then Hitler has attacked everything, including religion.

The world probably traces the Nazi state to this very thing, the lack of a religious background of life in Nazism. Nazism's offences against humanity and civilization prove the lack of a religious motive.

Quakes In 1940 Anyone's Guess Expert Assures

It's just "guesswork" predicting earthquakes any closer than within two weeks of their occurrence and within 500 miles of their location according to Ernest A. Hodgson, Dominion seismologist.

Mr. Hodgson was commenting particularly on a prediction made by Edgar C. Thrupp of Vancouver, who forecast that 1940 will bring the most destructive earthquakes of the 20th century. Thrupp said that July 20 to Aug. 5 would be the first period of greatest risk and the second would be Oct. 20 to Nov. 10.

The Dominion seismologist noted definite dated quakes that have been predicted at various times by the Vancouver man and of similar predictions by other unofficial "earthquake prognosticators".

"From 20 to 30 earthquakes occur every year which are sufficiently severe to form the basis for an 'I told you so' should one occur on the dates mentioned in the forecast," says the Dominion official. "The prediction of earthquakes for the world in general, as attempted by Thrupp, is, at least yet, an impossibility."

Effect of Planets.

Hodgson explained that a tabulation of all major earthquakes of the world such as has been carried out by seismologists for the past 40 years or so gives some idea of the number and geographical distribution which may be expected, but it still does not permit a system of prediction.

"Thrupp's predictions," remarked the seismologist, "are said to be based on his assumption that earthquakes are the result of gravitational forces between the various planets.

"Now if the planets were to combine their attraction (which of course they never quite do) the total effect would still be less than that exerted by the moon.

"The correlation between the occurrence of earthquakes and the moon's attraction has been studied by various investigators. Some found no correlation whatever. All agree that if there is a correlation it is very slight—certainly not sufficient to form the basis for a system of earthquake prediction."

ARMORED SLEDGES

Today Helsingfors residents sought bomb shelters again when ten Russian planes appeared over the outskirts of the capital. Anti-aircraft fire turned the planes back. The alarm lasted from 1:10 to 1:48 p.m. (6:10 to 6:48 a.m. EST.).

It was announced officially that bombing activity yesterday was fairly heavy, with twenty localities, mostly rural, attacked. Two persons were killed and seven wounded, it was said. The Finns charged that civilians frequently were machine-gunned in the raids.

The offensive in Karelia, where entrenched Finns were reported to be holding against the new style Russian battle tactics, was aimed directly at the seaport of Viborg (Viipuri), Finland's second largest city, and pivoted on attacks in the vicinity of Summa, twenty miles to the south.

Repulsed At Petsamo.

A Finnish army communique reported Russian attacks repulsed in the Petsamo area of the far north, on the Salla front just above the Arctic Circle and on the Lake Ladoga front in the southeast.

For the first time, inhabitants of Helsingfors were roused from their beds by a night alarm when the sirens sent them to shelter five minutes after midnight today. No planes were sighted and the alarm was ended in twenty minutes.

Several buildings were set afire in an air raid at Rovaniemi in the north, however, and bombing attacks occurred at Hangoe (Hanko), Katka and Abo (Turku), in the south.

An Associated Press correspondent with the Finnish armies on the Mannerheim Line said Red army infantry charged behind the advancing tank-sledge barrier on the isthmus front after six hours of artillery preparation.

In this new assault, in which 130 fighting and bombing planes participated, machine gunners and riflemen on the sledges protected the tanks from Finnish grenade throwers.

The fighting lasted through the night but Finnish officers said the defence line was intact and that fifteen Soviet batteries had been silenced. Finnish artillery was reported also to have scored direct hits on columns of field cannon, tanks, armored cars and infantry before they could reach fighting positions.

Two Russian observation balloons and one airplane were reported shot down.

(The Russian communique said "nothing of importance took place at the front" yesterday but reported Soviet fliers had made reconnoitring flighs and had "bombed military objectives". Three Finnish airplanes were brought down, it said.)

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Why We Sometimes Get Blue and Discouraged

A man of thirty-five after doing excellent work at one branch of his organization was notified that he was being transferred to a larger branch with an increase of salary. To make sure that everything would be in the best of order for the man taking over his present situation, he worked day and night, regardless of any regularity of eating or sleeping. As the day approached he found himself worrying about his fitness for the promotion. He became blue and discouraged and was about to turn down the promotion. In desperation, he consulted his physician.

The physician found that there was nothing abnormal except a slight yellowishness of the skin. He learned from the patient that he had been working hard to get things in order, had been irregular in his meals, eating much pastry at a neighboring restaurant as he hadn't time to go home for lunch or dinner. He was afraid the new position would be too much for him.

The physician explained that keeping his mind tensed kept his body tensed and interfered with the proper working of stomach, liver, gall bladder and intestinal movement or action, and that bile, instead of flowing freely into the intestine, was backing up into the stomach and into the blood. Also, the gall bladder was not emptying its thick bile often enough. Accordingly, what is known as the dye test was made and it was found that the liver was not filtering its poisons out promptly and that the gall bladder took about twice as long to empty (after a fat meal) as it should had it been in normal condition.

Some bending exercises, the use of bile, a course of Epsom salts, an enema every week, together with four small meals daily, restored the liver to normal which, together with a more rapid emptying of the gall bladder, removed the patient's dread and fear. He entered into his new work with enthusiasm.

Do not blame your blueness, your lack of courage, your fear of work, upon any mental overwork or disturbance. Very often if you get your liver and gall bladder working properly, these symptoms will disappear.

Seven Years of Hitler

On January 30, seven years ago, the aging President von Hindenburg appointed Adolf Hitler Chancellor of Germany at the head of a coalition Cabinet. The Reichstag fire, the dictatorship and concentration camps, the rearmament and imperial conquests of the next seven years were still to come; but all over Germany the Brown Shirts exulted. Endless columns of them swung through the Brandenburg Gate in Berlin holding torches that heightened the blood-red of their swastika banners. The crowds were ecstatic; the Brown Shirts were sure that their moment of history had come. How well they knew!

Outside Germany—and inside it too—democratic leaders did not know what was happening, and did not care to know. Paris, as usual, was in the throes of a Cabinet crisis; a young Radical named Edouard Daladier was chosen as Premier. London felt some misgivings, but looked upon Hitler as a bizarre adventurer who would be tamed by the responsibilities of office. Washington was struggling with a depression at home and absorbed in war debt discussions abroad. Wall Street took the news from Berlin calmly. We were told, even from Berlin, that Hitler was a "prisoner of the Right," who would not be allowed to carry out his program. Industrialists in Germany looked at the reassuring Prussian features of Alfred Hugenberg, their representative and spokesman in the new Cabinet, and felt confident that Hitler would do his bidding and theirs. It was fashionable to predict that Hitler would "blow up" within a few months, now that he had passed at last from agitation to action.

From these tragically mistaken judgments of 1933 we can understand, to some extent, how Hitler was able to paralyze Europe with fear and at length grip it by the throat in 1939. "Mein Kampf" was ten years old when he first came to power. His record was known, his ambitions of limitless power were publicly avowed. Unlike others who have aspired to world conquest, he was cynical enough to show his blueprint to the world. In Europe and America there were students of German affairs who saw the man as a portent and a peril; their warnings were disregarded. Apparent for all to see in 1933 was the economic and spiritual sickness in Germany that was to lead so quickly to the mental breakdown of a great people; yet nothing effective had been done to help in the days of Bruening, when there might still have been time.

Likewise the terrifying implications of a Hitler as leader of seventy million Germans were not faced at the time, or for years afterward. The British did not really comprehend them until the ultimatum of Godesberg in the Munich crisis of 1938; and even then they hoped, for six months more, that something would "turn up". It was so much easier for British and French statesmen to assure their public that all would be well, to trust in Hitler's soothing deceptions and ignore the menace in his party and his program. The influence of Mr. Micawber on democratic foreign policy was not the least of the factors which enabled the Cabinet "prisoner" of January, 1933, to engulf Europe in war six and a half years later.

When at last this latest of Europe's recurrent challenges by a military adventurer is defeated, whole peoples will be weary. There will be a desperate longing in all countries to slide back into the peace and quiet of happier days. Politicians, sensing the public mood, will no doubt be able to win elections again with a cry of "normalcy" as we heard it in 1920, or of "tranquility," as the British listened to it in 1922. Mental indolence is always at a premium after an exhausting war; and it will be so pleasant again, not only in our own fortunate country but in the surviving democracies of Western Europe, to ignore disagreeable facts abroad and concentrate solely on internal affairs. But the career of Hitler has shown in seven short years that social improvement, cultural advancement, material happiness for millions upon millions of "little men" can be shattered by one fanatical leader who is not watched in time.—N.Y. Times.

ROTHERMERE TELLS OF PREWAR EFFORT

London, (CP)—How he warned Hitler in July that British political questions had disappeared and the Empire was united is told by Lord Rothermere in his new book "My Fight to Rearm Britain."

Referring to his last letter to Hitler emphasizing British unity, he writes: "I have no means of knowing whether or not Herr Hitler absorbed this picture of the British breed, but with him, as with Herr von Ribbentrop, I had done my best to dispel any illusions as to Britain's determination to resist further aggression by force if necessary."

Seed Grain

Western Ontario has 200,000 bushels of high grade seed grain available for farm needs in increasing production to meet wartime demands. Middlesex County, for example, has more registered seed on hand now than at any time in history.

There are two ways by which farmers can increase their production. One is by sowing greater acreage; the other by seeking higher yield of the same acreage.

The higher yield from the same amount of soil has a distinct advantage over the other plan. Expanding acreage means more work, probably with fewer men due to army and industrial demands. It is obviously more economical to produce more grain off the same number of acres than it is to get more grain off a larger area of cultivated land.

This is where the necessity for the best possible seed enters the rural picture. Sowing poor seed is inefficient farming, and there is no room for inefficiency in any phase of Canadian life during this present war.

There is little doubt but that the acreage devoted to grains, particularly those of a feed variety, will increase in Ontario due to the conflict. But farmers would do well to seek to step up the production of the presently worked land, in addition to cultivating additional fields. They will not want to waste any efforts, and the use of poor seed is one form of wasted effort.—Windsor Star.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

News from the Far East to the effect that Japan's relations with Soviet Russia have not materially improved goes a certain distance towards clarifying the position of the eastern island empire in relation to the European war. It tends to dispel fears of a combination of three or perhaps four totalitarian powers against the democratic states.

Since Nazi Germany, the architect of the Anti-Comintern Pact between Germany, Italy and Japan, cut the foundations from the pact by concluding a deal with Communist Russia, Japan's position has been obscure. Of the three Anti-Comintern powers Japan alone had immediate difficulties with Russia. They were boundary clashes which led to a fair-sized undeclared war between the two powers and Russia's influence in and assistance to China in its fight against Japanese invasion.

German diplomats are said to have tried to bring Japan and Russia together. The two countries actually entered negotiations for a settlement of boundary disputes but these negotiations ended in a deadlock.

In a review of Japanese foreign policy in the Diet yesterday Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita said Japan was determined to purge China of anti-Japanese and pro-comintern influence. This admission of a continued clash between Japanese and Soviet influences in China, coupled with the breakdown of negotiations of the boundary question would seem to push the prospect of any real co-operation between Japan and Russia into the fairly remote future.

While the foreign minister expressed a hope for improvement in relations with Russia he was more positive in his hopes for an improvement in relations with Great Britain and this in the face of the sharp British-Japanese dispute over the stopping of a Japanese passenger ship by a British warship seeking German seamen.

"Is that all 'Z. Y.'" the girl asked.

"No one must know that you are leaving—not even Danny Brooks or Welles Sanford. I know that I can trust you, Claire."

It was the first time the man had used her given name, and she reacted as though it had been a friendly pat on the cheek.

"That's all now, Miss Dutton," the voice went on, evenly. "You won't hear from me again. You are to leave here now and go to your own room."

"About the services for the man supposed to be Mr. Cameron—should I attend those this morning?" she asked.

"Oh, yes, by all means. And be properly—er—grief-stricken. Claire felt the man move away from her, and a moment later heard the door click and saw a vagupe bluish haze which indicated that the way into the corridor was open.

"Good-bye, Mr. Z. Y." she said.

"Good luck, Claire," the voice answered. She was in the hall, and when she turned a moment later, the door of the room she had just left was closed.

CHAPTER 11

Careful Preparations

It was only two-thirty when Claire left "Z. Y." in room 567 and went back to her own room, and she could scarcely believe that so much could have happened in a short half hour.

Most important was the definite assurance from Noel Yorke, or "Z. Y." as he insisted upon being known in his secret dealings with her, that Bill Cameron was alive. True, he was in danger—terrible danger—but he was alive! The shock of learning that after hearing just a short time before that he was dead had been a terrific one and Claire found herself so nervously exhausted that she sank down on her bed without removing her clothes.

It was eight o'clock when she awakened, the light still burning in her room. She looked curiously at the key which Yorke had given her, the key she was to use as her means of reaching Cameron if she should get through to Berlin. She had gone to sleep with it clutched in her hand, and it was lying on top of the covers.

It was an ordinary key, so far as she could make out, an oldfashioned door key. Attached to it, however, was a small brass tag and on it was impressed a Nazi swastika. She placed the key carefully in her purse, and after a brisk shower, felt rested and relaxed from the nervous strain under which she had been laboring ever since Cameron vanished so mysteriously.

After breakfast, she forced herself to go through the mockery of attending the funeral services in the tiny chapel for the man who was being buried under the name of William Amherst Cameron. Welles Sanford was there and so was Danny Brooks. Claire sat dry-eyed, looking straight before her, as the rector read the brief services. She scarcely heard the words he spoke, so busy was her mind with the task she had to perform if she were to see her employer again.

When the services were over, she returned to her hotel with Danny. The correspondent was very sympathetic and seemed greatly affected himself by the death of his good friend. Claire was on the point once, as they drove along, of suddenly blurting out the truth—that the man over whom the services had been held was not Bill Cameron—that it was some one else, some unknown upon whom a gang of spies had planted Cameron's clothes, his papers, his watch and ring, expecting to deceive his friends into believing the American secret diplomat was dead.

But fortunately she remembered Yorke's warning in time, and bit her lips to hold back the words that came surging for utterance. To tell Danny that much would entail too much explanation. She would have to tell what she was going to do—the desperate plan Yorke had concocted and in which she was to take such an important part.

"You mustn't tell any one a word or you'll risk losing everything," he had warned when she left him.

So she told Danny nothing, and declined his invitation to dinner that night.

"I just don't feel up to it, Danny," she explained. "I think I'll go away for a day or two—somewhere outside of Paris, where I can rest."

"Good idea," he approved. "Let me know when you get back. Maybe there's something I may be able to do to help you."

She thanked him and said good-bye at the hotel.

Instead of getting off at her own floor, on impulse she rode up to the fifth floor. Slowly she walked down the corridor, looking for room 567. The door was open as she reached it, and a chambermaid was bustling in and out busy with her cleaning.

At the end of the corridor, as Claire turned, she saw a woman suddenly enter the room. As she arrived opposite the open door again, she glanced in and saw the woman rummaging in a drawer of the dresser. In the mirror above it, she saw the reflection of the women's features—she was pretty, very pretty.

It was a face that was easy to remember, and Claire had no difficulty recognizing the woman later in the dining-room when, as she was having a late luncheon, she saw her leave a table on the far side of the room and walk slowly toward the doorway.

She called her waiter over and asked if he knew the woman.

"Why, of course, Mademoiselle," he answered, quickly. "She is Madame Dacier. Her husband is English, I believe."

"Has she been here before?"

"Yes, indeed. They have been here a month or more."

Claire thanked him, and pondered the mystery of the Daciers for the rest of the time she was eating her lunch.

Was Noel Yorke masquerading under the name of Dacier? Was he married to this very pretty young woman? If not, who were they? They must be identified in some way with Noel or he could not have used their room for the rendezvous in the early hours of the morning.

The more she thought about it, the more confused she became, and finally she gave it up. Someday, perhaps, she would know the answers to her questions. Someday, perhaps, when this war was over she would meet Noel Yorke naturally, not in dark taxicabs or darkened rooms, and would hear from his own lips the explanation of many things.

She spent the rest of the afternoon in her room. One letter she wrote to her aunt, who lived in Connecticut, her only living relative. In it she explained in detail what she intended to do. Of her plans to risk a flight into Germany. She confessed to her aunt that she was doing it not so much because she felt it was her duty—as she had told Yorke—but because of her love for Bill Cameron. It was the first time she had definitely committed herself by putting it in writing and somehow it seemed the natural thing for her to do.

When she had finished the letter, she sealed it in an envelope with her aunt's address on the outside. Then she wrote another note—this one to Welles Sanford. In it she explained that she was leaving Paris for a few days on a secret mission. If he did not hear from her within ten days, he was to dispatch the enclosed letter to her aunt. Otherwise, he was to put it in a safe place so that it would not possibly find its way into the mails or fall into other hands.

To Sanford, she gave no other explanation. She knew that Yorke did not want him to know now of her trip, of what she planned to do. If he did later, he would tell Sanford himself.

When her letter writing was completed, she carefully laid out the clothes she was going to wear, and with her manicure scissors removed all labels and other means of identifications, as Yorke had instructed her. Then she changed to the plainest suit she owned, a woollen suit with a short skirt. It would be warm and serviceable.

In one pocket she slipped an extra pair of stockings, but otherwise she carried no baggage whatever. In her handbag she placed several handkerchiefs and her toothbrush, and made sure the key Yorke handed her was safely in one of the pockets. Except for a compact and lipstick, the bag was empty.

Her passport and money she placed in a large envelope and deposited it at the desk when she left.

"I am going away for a few days with friends," she told the clerk. "I am leaving my baggage in my room. I may send for it, but if I don't, I'll be back within a week."

When she left the hotel at four o'clock, the only thing she carried with her besides her large purse was her gas mask, slung over her shoulder. That had become as much a part of her regular equipment as her shoes and stockings.

At a few minutes before five, she arrived at the Chamonix field and inquired for Captain Le Fevre. When he came up to her, she introduced herself as Claire Dutton and he immediately led her to a plane standing on the runway. Its propeller was turning, and two mechanics were standing by. Apparently, it was ready to take to the air.

"Miss Dutton," Captain Le Fevre said as they stopped beside the plane, "may I introduce your pilot to you—Captain Martin. Captain Martin, Miss Dutton."

Claire's mouth opened in astonishment as the aviator raised the goggles from his eyes, pushing them up on his flying helmet, and smiled down at her.

"Hop in, Claire," he said.

CHAPTER 12

Hostile Territory

If Claire was surpirsed at finding Rene Martin as her pilot, her surprise was shared by the dashing young aviator who, as Danny Brooks had told her, cheerfully gave up a brilliant future in the Ministry of War to do his bit for his country in the air.

Captain Martin recovered first, and smiled broadly at the American girl.

"Well, fancy meeting you here," facetiously. He handed down a parachute and with the help of Captain Le Fevre she adjusted the straps over her shoulders and snapped the belt securely about her waist. She listened carefully as Le Fevre told her how to use the 'chute in case of an emergency.

"You merely go overboard, count ten slowly, and then give the ring a hard pull," he said.

"Sounds simple," Claire remarked.

"You haven't lived until you've become a member of the Caterpillar Club," Rene laughed. "All right—jump in and we'll be on our way."

"It's really a pleasure," he continued as she settled into her place in the two-seat pursuit plane, "to be flying a friend. Usually it's some one I've never seen before and I always have a nervous feeling that they may knock me on the head with a wrench or jab a gun in my back. All right, hold on, here we go."

He waved to the mechanics, who jerked the chocks from in front of the wheels, speeded up his motor, and the plane started to move. In a moment it was racing down the runway and almost instantly started to rise.

Claire had flown many times before but always in transport planes, never in a small wasplike ship like this. As the wind tore at her face and hair she was grateful for the helmet Le Fevre had given her and the goggles she slipped over her eyes. It was an exhilarating experience, one she'd never forget, she knew.

The plane climbed with breathtaking speed, and then levelled off as Rene headed northward. He turned and motioned to Claire to put the earphones on and started a gay conversation as though they were seated together at a cafe, instead of two miles up in the air, racing along at nearly 200 miles an hour.

"We're headed for Metz," he told her, "and there we'll change to another plane which I'll fly into Germany."

"How far?" she asked.

"Just outside of Berlin," he answered. "I certainly was surprised to see you. I didn't know you were in the service."

"I'm not," she said. "That is, I haven't been until today when someone put this plan up to me to try to reach Bill Cameron.

She felt herself blushing as Rene hummed "L'amour, toujour, l'amour" into the mouthpiece, and then glanced over his shoulder at her, grinning.

"You've made this trip before—into Germany, I mean?" she asked.

"On an average of twice a week. It's great sport. Much more fun than sitting about a stuffy office at the Ministry, making a career for myself."

"But isn't it dangerous?"

He shrugged and didn't answer. Instead, he put the plane into a dive. Claire felt herself pushed back against the back of her bucket seat as thought a heavy hand were shoving her. The lights of a city loomed up at a distance. Rene skirted it, then a minute later was dropping down rapidly and soon she felt the wheels of the undercarriage skimming along the concrete runway as smoothly as a car skimming along a level road.

With a swoop, Rene turned the plane and it headed toward a large hangar. Several men in uniform were running toward them, and as Martin brought the plane to a stop they dashed up and took the machine in charge.

Rene was out of his safety belt, climbed down to the ground and ran off toward the hangar. Claire climbed out and was assisted to the ground by one of the men whom she recognized as an officer.

"Captain Martin?" she asked, puzzled by Rene's disappearance.

"He'll be back presently. He's gone to change his clothes, also his identity. When he returns, he'll be Ober-Lieutenant Hans Murten of the 22nd Aerial Squadron." The officer laughed as he saw the expression on Claire's face.

"Naturally," he went on, "he'll have to fly a German plane—impersonate a German officer. His papers will be in perfect order. If anything should go wrong, he has every chance to get away with his deception until he can get help from one of our people."

"I see," Claire said.

The officer handed her a passport and a purse of German money, then took her gas mask from her and gave her one of German make.

"From the moment you leave this field," he said, "you must remember that your name is Clara Dietrich. This is the way you are described in the passport. The dangerous part for you is if something should happen to the plane. Rene would have a pretty hard time explaining to a Nazi officer how he happened to have a pretty girl in his ship, even if his papers are in order.

"After he leaves you, your danger will be much less. You will have your passport for identification. You speak German well, I am told, so you should have no trouble on that score." He paused and turned at the sound of approaching footsteps. Claire gasped. Rene was approaching, but it was an entirely different Rene from the smart Frenchman she had known. His whole appearance seemed to take on a changed aspect with his donning a Nazi uniform. There was an arrogance, a conceit reflected in his features that had not been there before. His disguise went much deeper than a mere change of clothing. He actually, for the time, became a German officer.

"Ready, Fraulein Dietrich?" he snapped at her.

"Ready, Herr Lieutenant," she answered, and was rewarded by a smile as his features relaxed for a moment into the familiar devil-may-care expression characteristic of Rene Martin.

A German-made parachute replaced the one she had been wearing, and she stepped into a plane half again as large as the one in which they had flown from the Chamonix field. It bore the Nazi insignia.

Once in the cockpit, she adjusted the earphones without prompting, and a minute later they were in the air, with the shouts of good-bye and the best of luck from the men on the ground still ringing in their ears.

Rene circled and circled, gaining altitude, keeping the Metz field in sight until he reached an altitude of 12,000 feet, and then with a flirt of his wings set a course northeast.

"Well, here we go, Claire," he called through the earphones. "Far down below us, where you see those orange-colored flashes is our Maginot Line. Fifty miles up ahead there, although it doesn't seem that far from this height, is the Siegfred Line, tossing tons of steel back at our fortresses."

It was fascinating to peer over the edge of the cockpit and see the bright bursts of fire more than two miles below them, with occasional flares soaring into the air and bursting far underneath them.

It wasn't long until they were well past the long lines of fortresses, and well over Germany. Rene had been silent for some time when Claire was startled to hear his voice suddenly lifted gaily in song. He was singing the "Marseillaise"! The surge of the national anthem of France sent cold thrills chasing up and down her spine, and she found herself humming the air, too, into the mouthpiece strapped in front of her mouth.

Surely, she thought, no man and woman ever had sung that song before during wartime two miles in the air over German territory, and she smiled as she wondered what the Nazis would think if they could hear somehow hear them shouting a defiant song to the heavens.

She turned on the small light in the dash in front of her, fished the false passport from her purse, and examined it closely. It had a picture of her, all right. The same picture that was in her American passport. Where it had been obtained she had no idea and refused to puzzle over it. She was beginning to believe that anything was possible to an efficient organization such as France had engaged in counter-espionage work.

Her name was printed out, Clara Dietrich, 24, with a Berlin address. Her occupation was given as a stenographer. She memorized the address carefully, repeating it over and over to herself so that in case she were asked to give it suddenly, it would roll glibly off her tongue.

The ground beneath was in complete darkness as the plane sped along. It was cold so high in the air, and she was glad she had accepted a heavy flying jacket from the officer before she left the field at Metz. She would have been half frozen without it.

The only sound she could hear was the steady droning of the motor and when it suddenly stopped, the silence seemed deafening in contrast. She looked nervously at the back of Rene's head. He didn't seem excited or worried. He apparently knew what he was doing. She felt the plane diving, and then a few moments later saw a brief flash of bright light. Then there was black darkness again. How Rene had found the crude field in the dark she never knew; he must have used some sort of magic.

In contrast to the smooth landing at Metz, this was a bumpy one, the plane careening and bouncing over the ground and finally coming to an abrupt stop.

No False Moves

In the vague dimness, Claire was able to guess that Rene had set his plane down in a clearing, as in the distance, against the skyline, she could make out the ragged edges of a solid row of trees.

Idling down his plane, Rene leaped to the ground and in a moment was helping Claire from her seat.

"Slip out of the 'chute and leave it in the ship," he whispered. "Be sure to take your gas mask. Berlin is about thirty miles away, and there is a main road less than a mile from here. A bus line runs there that will take you right into the centre of town. If you don't know the city, buy a street map and study it, and then throw it away so it won't be found on you in case you have any trouble. Understand?"

"Yes," she whispered.

"This is a clearing in a heavy woods," he hurried on. "You're near Pichelsdorf. It's too late now to get a bus into town. I'd advise you to hide out in the woods for the rest of the night, and as soon as it's daylight start walking. It's straight ahead from here. You'll find a path through the woods, which will bring you out onto the main road. Look about you closely as you go, as you'll have to find your way back here for me to pick you up. If there is any change, you will be notified. You'd better run now for the protection of the woods and stay there till it gets light."

He leaned over suddenly and kissed her on the lips.

"Good-bye, my dear, and good luck. Don't be frightened—just keep your head, and you'll be all right. Au revoir."

She started on a run straight ahead, one hand thrust out in front of her in case she should encounter anything.

She heard Rene's plane roar as he speeded up the motor, and then the plane was racing down the field.

Suddenly she heard the sound of motors high overhead, and then the sharp report of anti-aircraft guns. The flashes were beyond the woods, but she could see their reflection against the black sky.

Between the sharp reports of the anti-aircraft guns, she heard the hollow rattle of machine guns high overhead. Instinctively she threw herself flat on the ground. There must be a dogfight going on almost directly above her. She breathed a prayer that Rene would not be sighted—that somehow he would slip away and wing his way swiftly back to the safety of the Allied lines.

She had a momentary fear that he might be sighted and shot down by a French or an English plane, but then realized that in the darkness the Nazi insignia on his ship could not be seen and unless he got caught in the middle of a dogfight, there was slight danger of his coming to grief. His chief peril would be motor failure, and that was scarcely worth worrying about. It was different now from flying in the first World War when it was almost an epochal event for a ship to make 200 miles without running out of fuel or collapsing under the strain.

The salvos from the anti-aircraft batteries stopped as suddenly as they had started, and she assumed, as she got to her feet, that the raid—if it was a raid—was over. She wondered whether the Nazis hadn't mistaken a cruising air fleet of their own for a squadron of enemy planes.

She walked slowly on and soon reached the fringe of trees. Although she had matches in her purse, plain sulphur matches, she didn't dare to light one to try to find the path Rene had told her about. After stumbling into first one tree and then another she finally decided it would be wiser to stay where she was until it was light enough to find the path. If she wandered around in the dark, she would lose her sense of direction entirely and if she took the wrong path, there was no telling where she would land.

She found a small hillock of grass and settled herself as comfortably as she could. Strangely enough, despite her danger—in the midst of enemy country, and not knowing what moment some one might come to the clearing and discover her—she was very tired.

The nervous strain she had been under since Bill's disappearance hadn't been helped much by the nerve-wracking flight halfway across Germany, and she started nodding sleepily. She caught herself several times, rubbed her eyes with her knuckles and resolved that she would stay wide awake. She told herself it might be fatal if she didn't.

But her body was weaker than her will power, and it slowly relaxed as she slumped into a sound sleep.

Terror seized her when she awoke to find the jet darkness of the night had turned to a dull gray. She tried to get quickly to her feet, but her muscles were cramped and it took several minutes of rubbing legs and ankles before she could stand without prickly pains shooting through her.

She glanced at her watch and was relieved to see that it was only 6.30. She was farther north than Paris and dawn came later here. Claire glanced about, and the path which had proved so elusive in the darkness was the matter of only a few yards away from where she had slept.

Looking carefully around and seeing nothing, she cautiously started down the path through the woods. It was a winding path but she knew that its general direction was north from the clearing. It was much darker among the trees, but enough light filtered through for her to find her way, and after nearly half an hour of careful walking she saw the trees thinning out in front of her. She slowed her pace and before emerging from the woods looked carefully out in every direction. Ahead, about a quarter of a mile, she could see the concrete strip of a main highway, and she walked in that direction.

Reaching the road, she turned left in the direction she knew Berlin was, and saw a clump of trees dotted by spires, indicating a small village not far distant. She started in that direction and had gone no more than two hundred yards when she heard the roar of a bus on the road behind her.

Frantically Claire gestured for the driver to stop and when he pulled his heavy vehicle up, she clambered aboard.

"Berlin," she told the man and produced a ten-mark note.

"Three marks, Fraulein," the driver said. He was elderly, obviously beyond regular military age.

The Stars Say

For Saturday, February 3

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

AN EXCEEDINGLY active and progressive day, with all business interests moving under high pressure, is read from the prevailing planetary influences. It is a time for bold initiative and enterprise in putting over major projects, particularly in new directions and on entirely new and original lines. The energies, both physical and mental are under fresh stimuli for accomplishing big and novel ideas and plans, this with the assistance from those in power. But in all agreements and writings be cautious.

Those whose birthday it is are under splendid promise of a year of progress and achievement in new and original lines of endeavor, with the initiative and ingenuity under high tension. These creative and inventive urges will be recognized and supported substantially by influential persons who are able to promote large projects. In all contracts or agreements, however, be careful with signatures and alert to duplicity.

A child born on this day may be bold, audacious and courageous. It may have great initiative and inventive genius, winning support of those in high places for promoting important enterprises.

Fashion Flashes

IT'S NEW and it's flattering—the long-sleeved nightie of Alencon lace in ecru shade. Neckline and cuffs are frilled, and an orange satin sash circles the waistline.

It's time for a suit under the fur coat. A lovely new blouse is of red silk jersey with six flap pockets, three on each side. Round neckline and elbow length sleeves.

Comfort and beauty mingle in a smart linen dinner ensemble made for Florida. The basque bodice is red and the wide black skirt is embroidered in wool in contrasting, small colorful flowers.

Among the new fur capes is a snowy ermine, fashioned on full, bell-shaped lines. The skins are matched diagonally in the back terminating in points.

AT THE BELLE

"That's Right—You're Wrong"

Something delightfully new under the screen sun is the tuneful comedy, "That's Right—You're Wrong," which comes next to the Belle theatre.

Starring Kay Kyser with his orchestra and Adolphe Menjou, the picture breaks sharply away from the conventional boy-meets-girl success-story theme on which most band leader films have been based. With engaging candor, the producers admit that such a theme is threadbare—and develop their plot around the ingenious thesis that it is impossible to find any other theme.

Consequently, the story deals with the hilarious but futile efforts of a big Hollywood film company to make a picture with Kyser and his band, and in so doing it offers gay and laughter-packed entertainment. Kyser and his musicians portray themselves throughout and Menjou has the role of the luckless producer assigned to the task of bringing Kyser to the screen.

At first, Kyser and his followers are enthusiastic, and proceed to go Hollywood in a big way. But presently Menjou discovers that his trusted pair of scenario-writers have concocted an utterly unsuitable story for Kyser, and are unable to think up a good one.

Faced with this impasse, Menjou tries to get Kyser to tear up his contract. The batonist fights back, his manoeuvres speeding up the film furiously to a hilarity-packed climax.

"That's Right—You're Wrong" crowds an immense amount of snappy new music, Hollywood satire and uproarious novelty entertainment into its footage. As part of its plot action, the film presents "The College of Musical Knowledge," the radio audience-participation show which has earned Kyser renown over the air lanes.

Kyser scores notably in his initial effort and with Menjou easily grabs the laugh-getter honors of the film. Lucille Ball is excellent as the glamor girl and May Robson furnishes much of the fun as Kyser's redoubtable grandmother. Edward Everett Horton, Roscoe Karns, Dennis O'Keefe and Moroni Olsen, along with Kyser soloists, Ginny Simms, Harry Babbitt, Sully Mason and Ish Kabibble, earn abundant comedy laurels. David Butler produced and directed "That's Right—You're Wrong" for RKO Radio Pictures.

"Sky Game," thrilling and entertaining sportoscope, a funny Merrie Melodie Cartoon, "Good Egg," and the popular Paramount British Newsreel will be exhibited on the same program. "The Executioner" is the title of the thrilling chapter of the popular "Daredevils of The Red Circle," serial to be presented at the Belle week end matinee.

Sonja Henie Leaving

Sonja Henie is now closing a highly successful engagement at the Belle, where "Everything Happens at Night," her thrilling different picture which reveals the popular star as having exceptional dramatic talents, plus her shimmering ice-and-snow surprises she alone can give. Sonja's romantic interest is shared by Ray Milland and Robert Cummings.

Charlie Chang Thriller

"Charlie Chan in City in Darkness," the new 20th Century-Fox thriler announced as the added feature attraction is keeping audiences gasping with the thrills and terrors of a Paris Blackout. Sidney Toler again plays the oriental sleuth, who this time is commandeered in a great human emergency.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Our Fighting Navy"

"Our Fighting Navy,' a story of the fleet in action in a South American revolution, is the feature of the program now playing at the Capitol Theatre.

One of the duties of the British navy is to protect its nationals in a foreign country. The president of this country refuses to listen to the warning of the British consul about the approaching upheaval, so that when it comes he insists on going to the British consulate to apologize for his misunderstanding of the situation. This leads to complications, for the consul is unwilling to surrender him to the bunch of cut-throats who are after his blood. The navy then steps in and takes charge and the story goes on from there. The film is a good, fast-moving action picture, well studded with stars, such as Richard Cromwell, H. B. Warner and Noah Beery.

The second feature, a thrilling western features Roy Rogers in "Days of Jesse James" with George "Gabby" Hayes. A colored cartoon. "Land of the Midnight Sun" and the second chapter of the thrilling detective serial "Red Barry" rounds a very entertaining bill that the whole family can enjoy.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Why Not a Dutch-Treat Club?

At this time of the year especially, so many letters come to this column from young people who are desperately despairing lonesome.

They are either shy (oh yes, there are still plenty of shy youngsters of both sexes to be found) or they feel they have not a proper place to entertain, and if they had couldn't afford to do it. Some others have strict parents who have completely forgotten they were ever young themselves. And some just don't know how to do things or get a follow-up bid after a first date.

The solution of the problem for all those young people laboring under its disadvantages of shyness, scant pay envelopes, home responsibilities, is to get some enterprising girl who really knows how to do things to start a Dutch-Treat Club.

After it's once in running order, it gathers momentum like the proverbial snowball going down hill. I am printing today a letter from a girl whose Dutch-Treat Club has become very successful.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"It seemed to me when I got a job in the big city that the gates of Heaven were opening. I was a small town girl and the only thing open to me in the way of amusement was to go to the drugstore and indulge in fattening sundaes and get terribly stupid books out of the lending library.

"I'd been to the state university, so I found the home town pretty much of a doghouse. When I got to town, it was worse, because at home I did know people, and in the big city, I didn't know a soul.

"I met plenty of young men, but few had money to take girls places. Some of them had obligations at home, others were studying. Some must have had the rainy-day in view.

"In the same office with me was a girl who had a good idea. She started up a Dutch-Treat Club. She rounded up three couples, and the arrangement was that we were all to go out together, fifty-fifty. Our amusements were to be the movies, dances at good hotels, where for a cover charge and a snack you could dance the soles off your slippers. We went to games——football and baseball.

"Two of the girls shared an apartment, which boasted a kitchenette, and I had 'kitchen privileges' where I lived. One of the boys dug up 'kitchen privileges' at the house of a relative, so we started about even, as far as expense for gas and electricity went.

"For eats, except for salads and pastry, we clung to the can-opener, and no one was allowed to have more than two courses. Marvels can be worked with canned spaghetti if put in a baking dish and topped with grated Parmesan cheese, browned. The same can be done with canned beans. Salmon loaf with green peas is good and substantial. One ambitious hostess stuffed an eggplant with shrimps in Creole style, and there wasn't enough of that left to feed a fly. We always had coffee, and either salad or dessert.

"As for romance, no. It was not to be thought about on our salaries but we enjoyed going places, and it was a thousand times better than staying home and having no one to go about with. I'm strong for the Dutch-Treat Club. And I hope you will recommend it in your column tto other young people taking root in big cities. If they'd like figures I'll be glad to tell just what it cost.

Mary Anne."

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Housewarming

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

1—I am to move into my new home within two weeks. Some of my friends insist it is proper for me to give a housewarming, that is, that I should invite all my friends to come to see our new home and for me to serve refreshments. They also tell me that the guests are expected to bring gifts to the housewarming.

Now that seems to me as if I would be asking for presents, which they would feel that they had to bring, whether they wished to or not, I don't like that idea.

2—Is there a difference between a housewarming and "open house"?

D.

1—I think that a housewarming is one of the pleasantest kinds of parties to give and to attend, and I do hope that you and your husband will decide to give this party to welcome your friends to your new home. Usually it is the hostess and host who invite their friends to a housewarming. Sometimes their friends plan a surprise housewarming party . . . but I've never liked this idea as much as having the hosts give the party.

There needn't be any planned entertainment, for the showing off of the new house (which must be in perfect order, so that guests can peek into closets and everywhere) and the serving of refreshments will consume the time.

Guests aren't expected to bring presents. Most of them don't. But if they wish to, they may, and you accept them in the generous spirit of friendliness. Just give your housewarming with the delightful idea of welcoming your guests to your new Great Adventure.

2—"Open house" means just what it implies that you open your house to greet your guests to a party. But a "housewarming" means that you open your new house, to show it to your guests and to welcome them to its hospitality.

Don't Appear Anxious

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

I met a very nice chap at a winter restort during the past week-end. When he was leaving he said that he would get in touch with me in the city.

Would it be improper for me to send him a greeting-card before I hear from him?

H.

I suggest that you wait for this young man to make the first move to continue this friendship. You have given him this privilege of getting in touch with you when he returns to the city, and undoubtedly he won't need a reminder. Better for you not to appear too anxious, even if you aren't especially anxious.

Congenital Dislocation of the Hip

Diagnosis of congenital dislocation of the hip in early childhood is extremely important. I think that was made clear when I told here some days ago what success we had in clearing up the hip malformation with which one of the Quintupelts, Annette, was born. If we had not discovered the defect until she began walking, she might have had a bad limp today.

Unless it is discovered that the hip is not fully formed before the child begins to walk, the child's first steps will cause further malformation. Early diagnosis isn't easy. Even when the child does start to walk, it is naturally unsteady at first, and so the symptoms of a malformed hip may be overlooked until the child has been walking for some time. The abnormally small socket and the undeveloped head of the thigh bone change in shape and position with the strain imposed by walking and so the condition becomes increasingly difficult to remedy.

Annette, born two months prematurely, had rickets, as did all five of the little girls. Until those rickets were completely cured we did not let any of the babies stand or put their weight on their legs. I think they were five months old before any of them were allowed to stand, and we kept Annette off her feet longer than that to give that bad hip a chance to become normal.

Naturally, when we discovered Annette's malformation, we went very carefully over the others to see if they had any similar afflictions. But not one of them had.

We were lucky in the case of Annette, for generally speaking even under the best of circumstances and even when the diagnosis is made quite early, the treatment for congenital hip dislocation is long and severe. If the child has a full fledged case of this faulty bone formation we may expect the treatment to require for the hip to remain in a cast at least eight months before any walking is done. If the condition passes unnoticed until the child has been walking a short time it will take a much longer time before we can expect the proper result.

The treatment consists of placing the child under an anaesthetic and manipulating the hip until the surgeon feels the hip bone slip into place. The hip will stay in place while the legs are spread apart, so they are put into a cast with the legs spread as far as possible. At intervals of about three weeks the cast is taken off and renewed and each time the legs are brought a little closer together.

Even when the child can lie with legs together without dislocation, he must be kept off his feet for a long time. For if full strength has not come to the tissues that form the joint, dislocation will occur again.

In cases where the child has walked for a long time before the reformity is noticed, a serious operation is often necessary.

FINGERPRINT EXPERT JOINS INVESTIGATION

Edward Wright, of C.I.D., of Ontario, to Visit Scene of Double Murder at Harold—Provincial Police Take Precautions of Removing the Drawers of Bureau from Mrs. Wellman's Bedroom for Preservation of Possible Prints

Edward Wright, Ontario Provincial Police fingerprint expert, arrived in Belleville this (Friday) afternoon from Toronto to assist in the investigation of the double murder of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Wellman, aged Rawdon farm couple, who were found shot to death on their farm early Thursday. Inspector Frank Gardner of the local detachment of the O.P.P., informed the Ontario Intelligencer of Mr. Wright's arrival late in the afternoon. He said the fingerprint expert would be taken to the scene of the crimes by Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson.

Inspector Gardner added that drawers from the bureau in the bedroom occupied by Mrs. Wellman at the time of her death, had been removed from the Wellman residence and are at present in the local Provincial Police offices for examination by Mr. Wright. Even the top of the bedroom bureau was carefully removed by the O.P.P. for Mr. Wright's examination. Enroute to the Wellman home, Mr. Wright planned to visit the Duffin funeral parlours in Stirling, where a postmortem was being held over the murdered victims and to fingerprint the dead couple in order to eliminate their fingerprints from those found upon articles removed from the Wellman home, Inspector Gardner added.

ACTIVITY NOTED ON RHINE FRONT STATE OFFICIALS

RIVER BOUNDARY

Paris, Feb. 2—(CP-Havas)—Military observers noted today that the calm which reigned all along the Rhine front during the first months of the war has now given place to continuous, sometimes sharp, activity.

Thus yesterday saw an exchange of machine gun bursts and artillery fire on the "river front."

The greatest river of western Europe, which for 125 miles forms the frontier between Germany and France, was prepared for river vessels at the end of the last century.

To this end the course of the river was regulated and confined between two lines of high dikes. In some places the width of the river was reduced to 80 yards. Elsewhere it is 100 yards wide.

Rhine Bridges Destroyed

Virtually all Rhine bridges were destroyed by the French engineering corps last October. Wreckage twisted by explosions barely emerges from the stream.

Approaches to the only remaining bridge, that of Kehl facing Strasbourg, are covered with real, though small, fortresses and its surface can be swept by automatic weapons.

TORONTO MAN GIVEN 4 YEARS

Convicted of Manslaughter in the Death of George Flude, Fellow Employee

Toronto, Feb. 2—(CP)—Edward Patrick O'Hanlan, Toronto milkman convicted of manslaughter in connection with the death of George Flude, a fellow employee, was sentenced today to four years in Kingston Penitentiary by Mr. Justice W. D. Roach in assize court.

O'Hanlan, 28, was convicted Jan. 25 on a charge of manslaughter which a jury reduced from a charge of murder. The milkman told the jury he struck Flude three times with a heavy hammer during a struggle following a drinking bout last July 10.

Body of the 31-year-old Flude was unearthed by police in a garage behind a Toronto home last Oct. 22, more than three months after the death. O'Hanlan admitted renting the garage and placing the body there. A rope was found about the corpse and O'Hanlan said he used it to drag the body into an automobile following the fight.

In a police statement, O'Hanlan said Flude accused him of attempting to steal Flude's milk route. He added that Flude struck at him with a hammer and that he took the tool from him and struck back.

"We find the accused man guilty of manslaughter under extreme provocation," the jury said in its verdict.

German Bomber Flew Over Ship 'Only About Mast High' Killing Three with Machine-Gun Fire

London, Feb. 2 (CP).—A dramatic account of the German aerial attack in the North Sea on the 4,364-ton Newcastle steamship Royal Crown was given today by its third officer, Alan Borthwick, 25.

Borthwick, who reached his home in South Shields last night, told how a German bomber flew over the ship "only about mast high" and killed three members of the crew with machine gun fire. Bombs were dropped.

"Both lifeboats were destroyed," Borthwick said, "and we had to go twenty miles to reach shore by a small boat.

"Our boat did this through the superb seamanship of First Officer Anthony Totts, of Manchester, in charge.

"Another boat must have capsized. Bodies of several men who were in it were afterwards washed ashore.

"Second Engineer Robert Dunn of South Shields had a remarkable escape when his room was shattered by an explosion. He is in a hospital suffering from shock.

"I am afraid there are only fifteen survivors out of a crew of 37.

"The plane dropped three bombs, one of which fell into the engine room and set fire to the ship. The chief engineer and the third engineer must have been killed outright.

"I was on the bridge when the bomber first appeared overhead and I threw myself down while the plane blazed away with its machine gun. I saw one colored seaman riddled with bullets, and when the bomber came back for the second time two other colored men were killed."

"The first two bombs missed the ship but the third fell into the engine room behind the funnel."

Washington, Feb. 2 (AP). — The United States army took the wraps off one of its newest air weapons today, a cannon-carrying pursuit plane designed to make 400 miles an hour, but delayed giving it complete tests.

Captain George E. Price, crack test pilot from Wright Field, Dayton, O., took the small, swift fighter aloft, but landed within a half hour and reported that until minor vibrations of engine and propeller were corrected the plane should not be flown at full speed. Mechanics went to work immediately to prepare it for additional trials.

The plane, known as the "Aircobra", and nicknamed the "flying bullet", is one of the fastest owned by the air corps. In addition to its six-mile-a-minute speed, it is capable of attaining altitudes of 36,000 feet and has a cruising range of more than 500 miles with a full load.

It is designed to carry four machine guns and a 37-millimetre cannon firing high explosive shells, all operated automatically by the press of a button in the pilot's cockpit.

The craft was built by the Bell Aircraft Corporation, Buffalo, N.Y., and production already has begun on an unspecified number of planes of the same type under an army contract.

Streamlined to the greatest degree known, the plane is equipped with a tricycle type landing gear which prevents it from nosing over when the brakes are applied quickly. Its 1,000-horsepower engine is mounted behind the cockpit giving the pilot additional visibility in all directions.

Anti-War Bloc Voted Down By Smuts After Bitter Debate

South African Senate Approves Motion 21 to 13 Confirming Gov'ts. War Policy

COALITION STRONG

Cape Town, Feb. 2 (CP).—Faced with a newly-united opposition that apparently is determined to fight the government at every turn on the question of war and peace, Prime Minister Jan Smuts has won another round in the bitter political battle that has raged in South Africa since it entered the war last Sept. 4.

General Smuts' latest victory against the combined forces of Gen. J. B. M. Hertzog, his predecessor in office, and the Nationalist Extremist, Dr. D. F. Malan, was recorded in the senate last night when it approved 21 to 13 a motion confirming the government's war policy.

An amendment, proposed by A. P. J. Fourie, cabinet minister in General Hertzog's administration which was defeated last fall on the question of declaring war against Germany, was rejected by a similar margin.

It called for a separate peace with Nazi Germany. A similar resolution by General Hertzog in the house of assembly was firmly rejected last Saturday by a vote of 81 to 59.

Both Houses now have ratified the government's war policy, which brought General Smuts into power and placed General Hertzog on the opposition benches. Last Sunday General Hertzog and Dr. Malan, leader of the Nationalist group, buried long-standing differences and formed a coalition which called for establishment of South Africa as a republic detached from the Empire.

General Smuts, during yesterday's debate in the senate, spoke critically of "armchair warriors who say they will defend Southwest Africa (formerly a Germany colony) to the last drop of their blood." He said that Adolf Hitler had planned to seize Southwest Africa after taking Poland.

Battle Before Second Reading.

On Monday the battle will begin again in the House of Assembly, where the government's war emergency bill is to come up for second reading. The measure is designed to validate emergency regulations and remove disabilities to which members of parliament and others have been subjected by reason of their service in the defence of the Union.

The legislation received first reading last Wednesday. Normally this would have gone through without debate but the new coalition is determined to take every opportunity to re-open the war issue with the government, and consequently bitter discussion occurred almost at once.

It was during this debate, in which Afrikanders hurled such epithets as "jingoes" and "rooineks" (meaning "Red Necks", a derogatory term applied in the Union to Englishmen) across the floor, that General Smuts said he would not go to the country.

He pointed out the the African parliament was elected little more than a year ago, with a working majority, and that no analogy could be drawn with the forthcoming elections in Canada, where parliament almost completed its normal term.

Observers believe that Dr. Malan has the better of the coalition bargain. Dr. Malan's followers are numerically weaker in parliament, but stronger in the country than their new allies. The coalition party is called Herinigde Nasionale or Volksparty (Reunited National or Peoples' Party).

1938 Party Standing.

In the 1938 general election, when Generals Smuts and Hertzog formed a coalition they were returned to power as the United Party with 112 seats. Dr. Malan obtained 27 seats and the remaining seats were divided among the Dominion Party, 7, Labor 3 and Socialists 1.

With the Smuts-Hertzog break, political observers pointed out that on the basis of last Saturday's vote General Hertzog has taken from the United Party some 30-odd votes. These combined with the Malanites will give the opposition at best 60 votes, so that General Smuts is assured a majority so long as his party members adhere to his policies.

Last Saturday's vote represented a majority gain for General Smuts' war policy of nine more votes than he received last September.

(The Ministry of Information in London said yesterday that South Africa authorities are studying the activities of a Nazi spy ring operating from Portuguese East Africa and using racing pigeons to carry information from South Africa.)

Groundhog Feels Outlook Is For 6 Weeks of Winter, Scientist Cannot Predict

Toronto, Feb. 2 (CP)—Brr-rr. The groundhog stepped from his dwelling today, saw the sun and scurried back. That means, according to legend, six more weeks of winter because this is Candlemas Day.

The animal saw its shadow because the sun shone in Toronto district with a temperature of near-zero. Milder weather is predicted during the week end.

The scientific weatherman scoffed at the groundhog theory and said that "nobody can call a shot accurately on what the rest of the winter is due to be."

MINING ENGINEER LOSES LIFE IN FORCED LANDING

William Donaghue Had Had Long Experience in Mining in South America and in British Columbia and the Northwest

William Donaghue, formerly of Kemptville, Ontario, a well-known mining man died in hospital at McMurray, Alberta, on Friday last, as a result of injuries sustained when a plane in which he was travelling, struck a stump of a tree in a forced landing on its way out from Fort Radium where he was mine captain in the Eldorado Mine. With him in the plane at the time was H. Maki, a native of Finland, also fatally injured, who died on the same day in hospital of the injuries he sustained.

Mr. Donaghue was a cousin of the Rev. R. E. Newman, minister of Holloway Street United Church, Belleville. Both went to school together as boys.

The funeral of Mr. Donaghue will be held on Sunday at Kemptville, where his widow and family live, the body arriving on Saturday. Rev. Mr. Newman will attend the last rites and his place at the services at Holloway Street Church on that day will be taken by Rev. Mr. Harrison in the morning and Rev. Mr. Farnsworth in the evening.

William Donaghue was a mining engineer and had long experience in mines in Peru. When the first Great War broke out he returned home and enlisted and served overseas. After the war he returned to Peru and then came to British Columbia. Last year he came home and was then engaged at the Eldorado radium mine and it is believed he was on his way home to Ontario when the plane making the forced landing was penetrated by the stump of a tree.

He had charge of the underground operations at the Eldorado Mine.

H. Maki, the other man who was fatally injured was a native of Finland and thought to have been making his way back home to join his countrymen in the fight with Russia.

Filling of Raceway Will Make Possible Supplementary Roading

With detrimental factors against operations such as spring thaws and possible flood, only a few weeks away, the Regional Planning Committee of Belleville City Council under the chairmanship of Alderman Harold Armstrong, is speeding up its efforts to complete the filling of the old Walker raceway that parallels the Moira River on its east bank near Upper Front Street.

With wintry weather and the sub-zero temperatures of the past few weeks effectively halting any attempts at obtaining fill from the river bottom as has been the case up to the present, members of the committee have ordered that all city garbage of a "cindery" and "ashy" nature be deposited in the old ravine. This work is proving highly satisfactory and officials are highly optimistic that the work of filling the raceway will be completed before spring sets in.

When filled the raceway will be graded and covered with cinders, while the proposed new roadway entrance near the Belvedere Hotel entrance near the Belvidere Hotel to its exit near the footbridge will be completed as soon as conditions permit.

An enjoyable time was spent last night at the home of Mrs. M. Tufts, Cedar Street, when the members of Mrs. Jo Adams' group of Christ Church Guild met to do her honor. The evening was spent playing cards the prize winners being Mrs. J. Adams, Mrs. C. Symons, second, Mrs. Embury Adams, consolation.

A dainty lunch was served after which Mrs. W. Adams read an address to Mrs. Jo Adams in which was expressed the appreciation felt by friends of the 1939 group for the loyal way she had led the group for the past two years. As a token of the love and esteem in which she was held Mrs. Adams was presented by Mrs. Tufts with a silver tray, cream and sugar. Mrs. Adams although taken completely by surprise thanked the members for their loyal support in past and also for the gift.

REDMEN AT FULL STRENGTH FOR FRAY

The courageous Belleville Redmen, which is being operated for the remainder of the season by the players, will be at full strength, when they meet the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" in their scheduled Intermediate "A" game of the O.H.A. at the Hume arena this evening. Coach St. Louis announced this afternoon that the Jackson brothers would rejoin the Redmen after being absent for last week's game. Coach "Toots" Holway was non-committal regarding the outcome and stated the Airmen would also be at full strength for tonight's important tusale. Belleville needs a victory to remain in the league running.

Kingston Firm Gets Order To Build 3 Armed Trawlers

Kingston, Feb. 2.— The Kingston Shipbuilding Company announced through its superintendent, Melville Thompson, on Thursday that it had received an order from the War Supply Board for three armed trawlers, one to be built this year, and completed by November next and two to be completed in 1941. Officials of the Kingston Shipbuilding Company are awaiting details of the construction contract.

Start in Six Weeks

Although no definite date has been set when construction work will begin, company officials said at lease six weeks would elapse until material is transported here for building purposes. It is estimated that 200 men will be needed on the job but they will not report for work until construction material is ready.

It was not known definitely what amount would be spent on building each vessel, but it was estimated the cost of each would be about half a million dollars. They will be of steel construction, 190 feet long, will draw about 13 feet of water, and will need reinforced construction to mount guns.

Pleads Guilty To Conversion of Funds to Own Use

"You've let yourself in for something this time" was Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan's comment in police court today, addressing George L. Fraser of Belleville, after he had pleaded guilty to nine charges of conversion of funds to his own use, and another of obtaining a car under false pretenses. He was remanded until February 9th., for sentence by presiding Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C.

Fraser's arrest occurred after a series of quiet investigations by Plainclothesman Fred Isard. He had acted as an agent for a nursery firm and had solicited orders for such. The charges read that he did unlawfully convert to his own use funds the property of the firm of Stone and Wellington.

Woman Remanded

Anita Dillabaugh, attractive young woman charged with issuance of worthless cheques, was remanded until February 5th., at the request of the Crown following the receipt of a telegram pertaining to the case.

Given Suspended Sentence

John Wilson, Belleville youth who had formerly pleaded not guilty to receiving goods knowing them to be stolen was arraigned for sentence before the bench today. He had been arrested and charged, in connection with the theft of radios on which John Finkle had been found guilty and sentenced a short time ago.

Ormonde Butler, accused's counsel, told the court that, in his opinion, if the evidence submitted did warrant the bench finding his client guilty, it did not call for any thing more than a suspended sentence. "It is quite clear, this man knew the radio was stolen", was the Crown's comment. Wilson was given two-months' suspended sentence and levied costs amounting to $17.85.

Richard Armstrong, R.C.A.F., who pleaded guilty to theft of cigarettes was given one month's suspended sentence, and levied costs of $13.25.

FINNS WILL NEED PLENTY OF HELP

Sir W. Citrine Believes British Aid Will Arrive in Time

Helsinfors, Feb. 2—(AP) — Sir Walter Citrine, head of a British labor delegation touring Finland, declared today that the Finns "will need plenty of help" to hold off the Russian invasion.

"I haven't a very high opinion of the Red army," said Sir Walter, "but it must be remembered that their manpower is inexhaustible, whereas Finland is small."

He added that "very extensive help is under way in England for Finland and I am sure it will arrive in time."

Sir Walter, president of the International Federation of Trade Unions, voiced his opinion as the delegation completed an 11-day tour of Finnish industrial centres and the front and prepared to depart by way of Stockholm for Copenhagen. The delegation will attend a conference of Scandinavian labor representatives in Copenhagen tomorrow.

He characterized as "sheer nonsense" Russian reports that the Finnish Government is oppressing labor.

TRENTON POLICE PROBE BREAK-INS

Two Stores Entered During Night and Quantity of Goods Taken

Trenton, Feb. 2 (Special)—Police investigated two break-ins in this town today and the authorities are of the opinion that both break-ins were perpetrated by the same person or persons. The fur warehouse of Fred Gitelman at the rear of Freeman's cigar store , Dundas Street was entered by breaking a padlock on the door and a quantity of skins were taken including 11 skunk skins, 2 cow hides, one horse hide, 2 deer skins, and two goat skins valued at $30. Police in the neighboring cities and villages were notified of the loss and asked to keep a sharp lookout for the stolen property.

The grain warehouse owned by B. W. Powers and Sons was entered through a broken window at the rear of the warehouse and many bags in the building were ripped with a knife and the contents strewn over the floor. A quantity of grain was believed taken but the owners are not definite as to the amount until a full check has been made. It is believed by the police this was a "spite job" and every effort will be made to apprehend those responsible for the theft and destruction.

Frankford, Feb. 2 (Special) — William Turner, 65, of this village was struck and knocked down by a Rogers taxi shortly after seven o'clock this morning and was rushed to Belleville General Hospital after being attended at the scene by Dr. E. M. McMullen. It is believed the man sustained a fractured spine but definite injuries will not be ascertained until an X-ray is taken according to Dr. G. H. Stoble, who is in attendance at this institution. The name of the driver of the taxi was not obtained although it is believed to be one of the Roger family but he was not held by the police after an investigation had been made. It is understood the man walked directly into the path of the car and that the driver was unable to avoid striking the man. His condition at the hospital late today was given as "only fair."

Basketball:

Grade X basketball is coming along well with one team, "Invincible XK" (self-styled), as yet undefeated. The play-off game was played Wednesday night after 4 o'clock between XK (the only team who have never been defeated) and the runner-up XD & G. XK were the victors, the score being XK 13 and XD & G 6.

XII A Sleigh Ride Party:

On Wednesday evening, January 24th about 8 p.m. about thirty of XII A's members "embarked" on the prime social event of the school year (at least as far as we are concerned!)—a sleigh ride, consisting mostly of bumping and being bumped off.

After several hours of enjoyment of this fine sport the "students" (?) returned to the gym for an hour or so of dancing (just cheerily stubbed toes to most of us!)

After that a "fulsome" lunch was consumed with astonishing rapidity and the party ended to a "call for arms" for a dishwashing squad.

Mr. Heard kindly acted as chaperone and we hope—had as much fun as "we-all."

Were of a Light Form and No Deaths Resulted States Health Inspector McGinnis in Annual Report

180 COMPLAINTS

Following is the report for 1939 of Mr. Hope McGinnis, local inspector of health as submitted to Dr. G. S. Cronk and members of the Board of Health.

Contagious Diseases

Scarlet Fever 17; Measles 6; Mumps 4; Diphtheria 1; Whooping Cough 2.

Mostly all cases were of a light form and no deaths occurred. The diphtheria case was contracted outside the city. At the close of the year we had no cases under quarantine.

We had a most fortunate year as far as contagious diseases were concerned and due to the Isolation Hospital being in operation for such a short period our department will be away under the appropriation granted by the City Council.

The usual number of municipal water supply samples were forwarded to the Provincial Department of Health for the regulation tests. Samples of water from a number of private wells and from the Girl Guides' camp were also forwarded, as were samples of milk from the producers who supply milk to our city dairies.

Samples of ice from the ice crop area in the bay from which our local ice dealers procure their supplies were collected under my personal supervision and forwarded to the lamoratory. All samples were reported back as Class A.

Victoria Park Bathing Pool

During the bathing season I made as many as four and five visits a week to this place for inspections. The life guard, Mr. Ritchie, I found to be very efficient and solicitous for the welfare of the bathers. The pool is cleaned out twice a week and chlorinated with the proper dosage according to the tests made by me with the ortho-toliden testing solution. Samples of the water were also forwarded to the Department for classification. The water supplied for the pool is the same as our municipal water supply, filtered.

Tourist Homes

These places, some twenty in number, were duly inspected and all were found to be complying with the Provincial Department of Health regulations.

Tourist Camp

During the tourist season I made several visits to this place and found sanitary conditions perfectly satisfactory. The supervisor there keeps things in splendid condition.

Routine and Special Inspections

In January Mr. Ball of the Sanitary Engineering Branch of the Provincial Department of Health visited Belleville on his usual district inspection tour and we made the rounds of all the dairies and some of the cafes. New regulations by the Provincial Department were fully gone into by Mr. Ball and all parts of the pasteurizers which come into direct contact with milk or cream were disassembled and thoroughly inspected as was all other equipment used in the handling, processing or storing of milk. Dairies that deal only in cream were also inspected and valuable and important information given regarding the new regulations.

In addition to sending samples of milk to the Laboratory for tests, we are now also sending samples of cream and other milk products, excepting cheese and butter, for bacterial plate counts.

Recording charts attached to the pasteurizers are at various times collected and read and then sent to the Department for their information as to whether or not the proper holding period of the pasteurization process is being observed.

I am pleased to state that the reports from the Laboratory on milk supplied in Belleville are even better than those of last year, 1938 and they were good.

We have seven pasteurized dairies. The consumption of milk for the year 1939 totalled 5,290 quarts per day, an increase of 205 quarts over that of last year.

Milk Producers

The usual general inspections of sanitary conditions of the premises and the cattle of all milk producers who supply milk to our city distributors were made. These inspections covered Prince Edward County, Sidney and Thurlow; fifty-two in number. With the exception of three cases I found conditions very satisfactory and several were excellent; a decided improvement was shown over last year.

Cafes and Restaurants

Many inspections throughout the year were made in these places to ascertain the sanitary conditions and also see that in other matters the regulations of the Provincial Department of Health were being carried out. I must say that in our cafes, restaurants and hotels things are well looked after in this respect, not only in the dining rooms but in that very important place where the food is prepared, namely the kitchen.

In my last annual report I drew attention to a regulation dealing with the supplying of milk to patrons in all public eating places. Just to bring it to mind again for all parties interested I repeat it below.

"Milk served to patrons must be in individual sealed containers opened in their presence before being served. Milk left over in a container and not consumed at the table or counter and taken back to the kitchen must not be re-served to patrons. It may, however, be used for cooking purposes".

General inspections throughout the year were made at various periods in butcher shops, stores where meat is sold, bakeries, butter market outside market and the beaches. Dumping grounds and the rear premises of Front St. merchants, the river banks, parks and schools were also inspected. The butter market and out-door market are inspected twice a week.

Complaints

Complaint received and promptly attended to, and in many cases where it was deemed necessary rechecked, numbered 180. Several cases reported were, as usual, without any justification, but investigations have to be made anyway.

Classification of complaints is as follows: Garbage, back yards, cellars, odours and surface water, catch basin odours, blocked sewers, lanes, dumping grounds, premises not connected up with sanitary sewers.

As a board we are pleased to report progress in the project of an isolation wing in conjunction with the Belleville General Hospital and we extend thanks to the City Council for their splendid co-operation in making this much needed service possible. The isolation wing should be completed sometime during the current year and then Belleville will be assured of the proper hospitalization of all isolation cases.

We would also like to pay the highest tribute to our late member of the board of health, Mr. Fred E. Houston, who so capably served on our board for the past four years. His services and interest in public welfare will be greatly missed by all those who served with him.

In conclusion I wish to express my sincere appreciation of the co-operation I received from all parties who worked with me in the discharge of my duties as Inspector of the local Health Department, especially from Dr. G. S. Cronk, M.O.H. and the Chairman of the Board, Mr. George H. Griffin.

Detroit Wings Score Upset By Defeating N. Y. Rangers While Amerks Down Hawks

SHORE LEADS AMERKS

Defenceman Lays Down Two Passes for Goals Besides Playing Strong Defence

By JACK CALDER

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

However shrewd Art Ross was when he started letting veteran Boston players go, he may be haunted a little these nights by the idea of what they might do to his National Hockey League championship plans some time.

There's a danger in handing such men as Tiny Thompson and Eddie Shore to other clubs, no matter how good the youngsters who replace them. One of those two, both released from the Ross grip within the last year, might catch the Bruins in a vital game during the season's stretch and make Ross wish he had thought twice.

Thompson, who was sold to Detroit last season after goal-tending ten good years for Boston, was the individual star last night when the Red Wings shut out the league-leading New York Rangers 2-0 at Detroit.

Amerks Win Second In Row.

Playing his second game with the Americans since leaving the Bruins, Shore fired the old men of Manhattan to a 5-2 success over Chicago Black Hawks at New York last night. If Shore isn't itching to get at Boston, then he's just kidding in those cracks about Ross.

It was a tremendous achievement for Thompson, since the Rangers had won fifteen of their previous sixteen starts and their last five in a row. It was also Tiny's second shutout of the season over the leaders. He has allowed the Rangers one goal in their three games at Detroit.

Captain Ebbie Goodfellow made the plays for both goals, Don Grosso getting the first after four minutes of the second period and Modere Bruneteau the other a minute after the third chapter started.

Game Is Turbulent.

Through sixty turbulent minutes, Thompson's baseball hands caught the best of the drives that the concerted, organized Ranger attack brought to his net. The going was so heavy Jimmy Orlando of Detroit and Dutch Hiller of the visitors staged a third-period fist fight that brought major penalties to them and a misconduct sentence to Bryan Hextall of the Rangers for joining in.

The Americans were nursing a 1-0 lead, as a result of Johnny Gagnon's first-period goal, when Shore started driving down from the defence in the third. He created a play that Charley Conacher turned into the second goal with a 40-foot shot and he laid down a perfect pass for Lorne Carr to make the score 3-0. Jack Portland of the Hawks was serving a penalty when those two were counted.

Art Chapman got another American goal before Bill Carse struck for Chicago. Tommy Anderson raised the lead to 5-1 just before Bill Thoms closed the scoring for the Hawks.

ALEX SHIBICKY

Rangers.

Alex. Shibicky

Chief scoring threat of the Rangers in their second-place finish in the National Hockey League last season was Alex. Shibicky, left wing on what is generally regarded as the team's best line, that comprising Alex. and the Colville brothers. Shibicky bagged 24 counters last season, second only to Roy Conacher's 26, and is having another good season, although not as productive in a scoring way. Has two traits that bear the Ranger trademark—he came up through the farm system as all but two of his teammates have done, and he plays the "wrong wing", that is, shoots right from his present left wing beat. Born at Brooklands, near Winnipeg, 26 years ago this May, and played his amateur hockey around the Manitoba capital until seen by Lester Patrick at his famous fall "school". Signed to play with New York Rangers, which he did in 1934-35. One season there and he jumped to Philadelphia Ramblers and thence to the parent team, making this his fourth full season in the N.H.L. His scoring totals until the beginning of this season read: 59 goals, 37 assists for 96 points, a very healthy mark for so short a time. In addition he's put in 86 minutes with the penalty timers. His middle name is Dimitri, which stamps him as something out of the ordinary. A stylish skater with a good shot.

CANADIENS MAY SIGN 3 AMATEURS TO BOLSTER TEAM

OTHER RUMORS

Pete Lepine May be Ousted as Coach and Position Given to Tommy Gorman

Montreal, Feb. 2 (CP)—Card by card, hands were dealt out today to the principals involved as a hockey-speculating public weighed rumor, denial and fact in the talk swirling about the efforts of Montreal Canadiens to bolster themselves for the last part of the National Hockey League race.

This is the way the case stands now:

1. Rumor—that coach Pete Lepine is on the way out, and possibly would be succeeded by Tommy Gorman, once the manager of Montreal Maroons.

2. Denial—President Ernest Savard: "There is no question of Lepine being out as a coach. He is there for the season and will stay."

3. Fact—that the crack St. Hyacinthe amateur line of the Lemay brothers, Tony and Albert, and Gordie Poirier is close to making the jump to professional ranks.

The Lemays and Poirier, all high scorers in the Provincial Senior League and the most publicized amateur hockey players in Eastern Canada, admitted this morning that they will sign as pros "if a few details in the contracts are changed".

"The terms are quite generous," said Poirier, and both the Lemays agreed. "But there are a couple of things that we would like changed in the contracts. If the club will agree to the changes then I'm quite willing to sign a contract."

Must Get Permission.

A stumbling block, although Canadiens' officials believe that an agreement can be reached, is the fact that the professional club has to obtain the consent of the St. Hyacinthe Club before the Lemays and Poirier can be signed in conformity with a Canadian Amateur Hockey Association-N.H.L. agreement.

"All three contracts are the same," declared Albert Lemay, "and Tony and I are after the same changes as Gordie. I don't think that the St. Hyacinthe club will stand in our way if we do finally decide to turn pro. In any case, I don't think that we'll turn for another four or five days yet. We're going to continue practising with the club."

Gorman, presently general manager of the Canadian Arena Company, which controls the Forum where Canadiens play their home games, declared that "rather than go back into hockey I would go down to South America and start a revolution."

In the days that Gorman led the now-defunct Maroons his feuding with Manager Conny Smythe of Toronto Maple Leafs often hit the hockey headlines. Gorman just couldn't resist another oral jab at his one-time arch-enemy.

"If I went back into hockey I would have to associate with fellows like Conny Smythe," he said laughingly, "so I'm not going back into hockey."

On Being Well Dressed

TROUSERS

The hang of your trousers is important. Trousers for business suits should break slightly above the instep. Narrower country trousers are worn higher and do not break. Suspenders give a better hang, but for sports a belt is worn. Well cut trousers should be from four to five inches wider at knee than at cuff. Full seated trousers mean comfort, and suit jackets should completely cover the seat of the trousers.

CAPITALS CINCH FOR TOP RUNG

Indianapolis Run Lead Over Nearest Team to Twelve Points

(By the Canadian Press)

Indianapolis Capitals haven't yet clinched first place in the International-American Hockey League's western division, but at the rate they're going they should be a shoo-in.

The Capitals ran their lead over the second place Pittsburgh Hornets up to 12 points last night by lacing Syracuse Stars 8-3. The eight goals raised the team's total for 38 to 130, far better than any other eight clubs in the circuit.

Carl Liscombe got his first of two goals 53 seconds after the game began and the Capitals kept up the pace for an easy victory. In addition to Liscombe, Giesebrecht, Wilder, Hec Kilrea, Don Deacon, Bob Whitelaw and Thomson scored for Indianapolis. Norm Locking, Eddie Convey and Doggie Kuhn got the Syracuse goals.

AIR FORCE 'BEES' RETAIN HOLD ON SECOND PLACE

Defeat Queens 4-2 With Mere Handful of Fans in Attendance

Queens Awarded Goal When Air Force Player Throws His Stick

Firing home two goals in a belated third period rally, the Air Force "Bees" retained a firm hold on second place in the district Intermediate "B" O.H.A. group with a 4 to 2 win over the Queen's Intermediates and before a mere handful of fans at the Hume area last evening. The Air Force sextette led each period of play by a 1-0 and 2-1 count.

Playing wide open hockey, that bordered at times on the shinny type, Floyd opened the scoring as he fell through the Queen's defence to regain his balance and grab the rubber for a clean goal. Sigurdson put the Air Force two to the good, when he whipped the rubber passed Tremblay from a pass by Hunt. As Mathewson of the "Tri-color" skated into the Flyers' zone in possession late in the middle session "Wiggy" Riggs, former Belleville puckster threw his stick and immediately Referee "Bouncer" Holway awarded a goal to Queen's.

Count Knotted

Lind knotted the count for the visitors early in the last frame, when he drove a hard shot, high into the net behind McKenna making the score 2-2. Queen's moved five to the attack for the next few minutes, but on breakaways the Air Force was out-lucked, when two of the thrusts hit the Queen's goal posts. However, Hunt finally broke the deadlock when he scored Sigurdson's pass-out and Wheeler cinched the decision with a rink-length solo effort.

Both goal-tenders displayed some splendid defensive play, as Crawford, Harrison, Sigurdson and Floyd proved most effective for the Air Force with Hepburn, Dewar, Lind and Mathewson carrying the mail for the losers. With three wins and two losses to their credit the Air Force "Bees" have to win but one more game to cinch second place in their group standing.

The line-ups:

Queen's: goal, Tremblay; defence, Bassarab, Dewar; centre, Hepburn; wings, Connors, Lind; subs, Grisdale, Savory and Matheson.

DENNIS' AMERKS DOWN CANADIENS

Score is 4-1 and Puts Americans right in Race for the Juvenile City Title

Bill Dennis' Americans pushed the Canadiens into the cellar position of the Belleville Juvenile Hockey League when the "Amerks" swept to a 4 to 1 win over Franke Collins' squad at the Hume Arena last night.

The teams played at even terms in the initial frame as Cronk scored for the Americans and Theobald bagged the only Canadien goal. Kellar scored the only goal of the middle season from McGuire, while Reid and Kellar both beat Thompson for American goals in the last session, Kellar's counter coming as the result of some fine combination play, Cronk and Rosebush getting assists.

Mills in the American nets was exceptionally good and was given good protection as the Flying Canadiens carried the play in desperation during the last few minutes of play.

The line-ups:

Americans—Goal, Mills; defence, Sharpe and McGuire; centre, Kellar; wings, Cronk and Rosebush; subs, Carson, Asselstine, Rose, Cook and Reid.

Canadiens—Goal, Thompson; defence, McBride and Hunter; centre, Bennett; wings, Barrett and Theobald; subs, Symons, Rogers and Hutchinson.

Referees — Don Lee and Cliff Howie.

Summary:

Second Period
Americans, Kellar (McGuire) 2.15
Penalties—Cook.

Tris Speaker—Was He Best Centre Fielder of All Time?

Texas cowpuncher

In early youth

Cleveland star

With Red Sox, 1914

(By Central Press Canadian)

Tris Speaker climbed off a telephone pole and up to the dizzy peaks of stardom.

Young Tris was just another small town boy in Texas when the local telephone company gave him a dollar-a-day job mending 'phone wires. Tris was fond of digging his shoe spikes into the creosote poles to daydream of pitching while he tinkered with the 'phone lines.

"Spoke's" dreams of becoming a great southpaw pitcher went glimmering right away. He lost six straight games for the Waco ball club. Tris was ready to go back in disgust to the telephone poles and his dollar a day, when he was shifted into the outfield. There he found himself.

Forges Ahead

When anybody has the spunky determination, the speed and timing of "Texas Tris" he is bound to come through. Baseball never ignores a real comer for long. Let a man show real ability, as Speaker began to do, in hitting, fielding and base stealing, and the scouts will be camping on his doorstep. Baseball will find you in the most hidden hamlet if you can slug and snare a ball better than your fellow player. Tris could.

Speaker went up to the big leagues, and with the Red Sox, the Giants and the Phillies he began batting the cover off the ball. He stole scores of bases and committed downright base-hit burglary in centre field.

Won World Title

"Spoke" turned base hits into put-outs, roaming centre field like a hungry tiger. Tris was one of the fastest, most accurate throwing outfielders the major leagues ever saw. It was said that "Spoke" played centre field and second base at the same time. He stood the packed crowds on their ears in the world series of 1912, when he made an unassisted play from centre field.

"Spoke" joined the Cleveland Indians in 1918. Four years later he led them to their only world title.

In 22 years in the majors, Speaker made 3,515 hits and finished with a grand average of .344.

The "Grey Eagle" of baseball played some after managing Cleveland. He tried his hand at ownership and then quit to enter business in Cleveland, where he now lives.

Speaker is chairman of the Cleveland boxing commission, and recently attempted to head an indoor baseball league which folded after several games had been played.

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

HASTINGS RURAL LEAGUE GAMES

Tweed, Feb. 2 (Special)—Tweed and Farnsworth played a three-all draw in an East Hastings rural league game at the arena last night. The game, the first of a double-header, was a nip-and-tuck battle all the way with little to chose between them. Two goals were scored in the opening period, each team securing one goal. Prout opened the scoring for Tweed, with McCaw getting the equalizer.

Tweed scored twice in the second period, without a reply from Farnsworth, Prout scoring his second goal of the game; with Thompson securing the other goal. In the final period Farnsworth tallied twice as McCaw and D. Palmateer ran in two fast goals, while keeping Tweed off the score-sheet. The game ended in a draw with the teams dividing the points.

The Second Game

In the second game Plainfield and Roslin engaged in a thrilling battle that had the rival supporters in an uproar. G. Denyes opened the scoring in the first period, the only goal of the period. Plainfield added a second goal in the next frame with Dunning the marksman. This goal proved to be the winning counter.

Roslin scored its only goal of the game in the final period when he bulged the twine on a nice shot. This was the only goal of the game, with the final score, Plainfield 2, Roslin 1. R. Sayers refereed both games, giving general satisfaction. A large crowd of fans supporters of the rival teams was on hand to cheer for their favorites.

Tweed: goal, McIlroy; defence, Emerson, Hayes; centre, Prout; wings, Thompson and Cronk; subs, Sherry, Doran, Gilroy.

Jury Gives Hauptmann's Son $23,500 Damages

New York, Feb. 2 (AP)—A Supreme Court jury yesterday awarded Manfried Hauptmann, 6-year-old son of the Lindbergh baby kidnapper, $23,500 for injuries he received when he was struck by the automobile of Cartoonist Frank Moser, May 5, 1936.

The jury also awarded $2,000 to the boy's mother, Mrs. Bruno Richard Hauptmann. Mrs. Hauptmann had asked $100,000 damages, charging Moser with negligence and contending the boy was rendered epileptic and permanently injured.

The council in committee also recommended that the Fire By-law now in force be submitted to council at the next regular meeting for the information of new members, relative to powers, etc., delegated to the committee known as the Fire Committee.

It was also recommended that salaries of City Hall employees be paid in cash in future instead of by cheque as has been the custom.

WANNAMAKER MILE FEATURES MEET

Millrose Games at New York Will See Nothing but Champions Competing

New York, Feb. 2 —(AP)— Any aspiring trackman facing the starter at the swank Millrose games Saturday who doesn't own a championship of some sort will be about as welcome as a spectator who doesn't own a ticket.

The big meet that opens the Garden season—this is the 33rd renewal of the event—has an entry list studded with champions of all descriptions, and a finer field would be hard to imagine.

The Wannamaker Mile is the feature. Entered are Glenn Cunningham, six time winner and holder of the world indoor mile mark; Charles Fenske, Louis Zamperini, Gene Venzke, former winner, Blain Rideout, National Amateur Athletic Union outoor 1,500 metre champion, and Les MacMitchell.

Allan Tolmich and Larry O'Connor, 60-yard high hurdle recordmakers head a field that includes Marsh Farmer and Jay Shields.

Charlie Beetham, the national 600 king, should get a real test from Jimmy Herbert who holds the indoor world mark and Sanford Goldberg, the flying fireman who is the Met 100-yard champion.

Between the Lines

Ken J. Colling

They say, with the exception of not being able to turn a grindstone backwards, there is nothing impossible. It may be there is no connection between a grindstone and the Belleville Redmen, but it must be remembered that the Redmen can still get into the district Intermediate "A" playdowns in the O.H.A. which isn't impossible until the scarlet-clad Belleville pucksters lose one more game. The St. Louis-led sextette skate out to meet the Air Force here tonight in a game that means everything to Belleville and nearly as much to the Flyers. Defeat means exit for the Redmen, so it naturally follows the Belleville team can be depended upon to give their all against the Holway-led sextette this evening. When the Air Force lost to the Petes on Monday the Petes have only to win one more game against the Flyers to cinch the group top rung, but the Flyers are still hoping for the top position and will be just as keenly interested in winning tonight as will be the Redmen. Tonight's tilt will doubtless be the tit-bit of the season's scheduled games.

The scoring records of the Flyers and Redmen are quite varied. For instance in five games played the Airmen have scored 19 goals, while in the same number of games the Redmen have actually out-scored the Airmen by three goals, the Belleville team having 22 counters to their credit, which shows that the scarlet-clad Bellevillians pack slightly a stronger scoring punch than do the Flyers to date. However, defensively the "birdmen" have had less goals scored on them than any team in the group. Laurie Gibson has fished exactly 21 pucks from behind him this season, while collective Ken Watt and Ab Hinton have seen 54 goals scored against them in five games. As for the group-leading Peterboro' sextette, the Petes have scored 57 goals in six games, while goalie Harding has seen 23 pucks flash by him into the Liftlock City net. Championships do not pay-off in averages, but scoring averages are handy items to know when laying one's coin of the realm on the line.

Judge W. G. Bramham, Chairman of the National Commission of Professional Baseball Leagues, recently rejected an application for affiliation received from the Quebec Provincial Baseball League. Down in the "lower province" they have been playing a fast class of semi-professional baseball for some years. The Quebec loop is composed of clubs from Quebec City, Three Rivers, Sherbrooke, Granby and St. Hyacinthe, with Sorel and Drummondville having previously been members. While on the subject, Judge Bramham also rejected, as a possible candidate for the job of managing the Montreal Royals, the name of Del Bissonnette, former Brooklyn Dodger star. Bissonnette was turned down by the Commission for his alleged activities in outlaw baseball in years passed. Jean Barrette, president of the Quebec loop, is still anticipating a favorable gesture from Judge Bramham, but unless Bissonnette is dropped from the Quebec ball loop it is doubtful if their application will be favourably received into organized baseball.

There wasn't much hockey to it, but the fans got a great kick out of watching a youngster named Floyd battle his way around the Hume Arena last night as the Air Force "Bees" eked out a last period 4-2 win over the Queen's Intermediates. After trailing for two periods Queens rallied to knot the count at two-all early in the last period and the game seemed headed for overtime before Hunt sank the winning counter and Wheeler made the Flyers' fans breath more easily as he registered a solo effort. There was plenty of slashing as the game bordered upon shinny at times, but the fans, that is the few dozen faithfuls, seemed to enjoy seeing the boys whack each other around in a most unorthodox manner, although no amount of illegal play was productive. To "Wiggy" Riggs should go the credit of one of the Queens goals, as Riggs threw his stick at Matheson and Referee Holway promptly awarded a goal, which is according to the present-day rules and regulations.

Do you remember when representative Fiorello la Guardia, now Mayor of New York, attempted in the United States Congress 15 years ago today to put a 90 per cent tax on sales of professional baseball players bought for more than $5,000? He argued that pro ball was the only field where individuals failed to profit through improved ability and transfer of their services. The bill didn't get very far.

It begins to look as though all the Americans needed was a sparkplug like Eddie Shore to set them into winning ways. Since joining the Amerks, Red Dutton's team has won two games with Shore as the leader and last night they scored five big goals. Another N.H.L. upset was seen when the Red Wings blanked the Rangers at 2-0 which leaves the Wings only one point in front of the Amerks.

SPORT SPICE — Local hockey fans should appreciate the courageousness of the Redmen in their scrap for existence—a little moral support might work wonders...Bill Dennis' Americans of our city's Juvenile Hockey loop, may be hard to stop, now they have tested the sweetness of victory..The Dennis-Reid combination downed the lowly Canadiens 4-1 last night...Tommy German says he doesn't want any part of another N.H.L. job as manager ...Tommy was approached to manage the Canadiens, but then who could blame him for his rejection?...In our above paragraph relative to the rejection of the Quebec. Provincial. Baseball League, the statements included were given out by Larry McPhail.

SOFT SOAP

By JANE HARVEY

It was an early fall morning in the big city. Busses were pursuing their quiet pilgrimages past. Mrs. Hannigan's bed of zinnias glowed with beauty in the morning sun. Karen, scrubbing the front steps, paused a moment to admire them.

Suite suddenly, the landlady's ample figure filled the doorway:

"Karen! Where's your soap?"

"But of course—in the water."

"Meltin' itself soft! Take it out! I never see such soap bills. A body'd think you eat it!"

"I am not that hungry—yet" flashed Karen, red staining her fair cheeks. "And if I leave it not in the water, I get me no suds."

"Take it out! I won't speak to you again!" hissed Mrs. Haningan.

"But that would be lovely," sighed the girl under her breath.

The landlady stepped back into the house to greet her guests with her warm motherly smile and Karen turned to her work. Obediently, she took the bar of yellow soap from the water and laid it on the step beside her. She wielded the scrubbing brush with a fine fervor which was not wholly inspired by a desire for cleanliness. Some of it was merely an outlet for her charged emotions. For Karen was in love and there was no one in America in whom she could confide her big secret.

He—the glorified hero of her dreams—was a roomer and boarder at Mrs. Hannigan's. He was as stalwart as a Norse god should be and a countryman of Karen's. Also, he was quite unaware of her existence except as the maid who cleaned his room and scrubbed the front steps.

On this bright morning she was finding life difficult and hard to endure. Great sighs welled up from her heart and spilled over her red lips. When she heard the guests pushing back their chairs in the dining room, she tipped back upon her heels and carefully brushed the hair from her forehead. Soon her hero would appear. He would pass her on the steps, throwing her a careless "Good morning!" This was the high moment of her [illegible] before she had secured the last wisp of yellow hair, the door opened and he stepped out. Karen rose quickly to her feet, drawing aside to let him pass. He took a single stride out and down, stepped on Karen's soap and skidded into her with violence. Karen, startled out of her shyness, caught him in a warm embrace and held him so until he could recover his dignity and his balance.

"Dod ding the girl!" he burst out, and added: "Can't you keep your soap in the water where it belongs?"

"I am so—so sorry. It is so too bal you have almost a fall! But Mrs. Hannigan she tell me -'ways keep the soap out of the water. So I do and you have almost kill yourself."

Oscar Helversen—for such was her hero's name—met the pleading of her anchusa-blue eyes with a steely glare.

"I have troubles enough without my neck yet!" he barked.

"You have troubles?" murmured Karen, softly. "I am sorry for that, too."

He turned the full battery of his attention upon her and found her very easy to look at. He murmured something about catching a bus and went on his way.

When Oscar arrived at the boarding house that night, his nostrils were greeted with the odor of mutton. Oscar hated mutton. He decided on impulse, to go out for dinner. On his way up to his room he met Karen. She was altogether lovely in a dark blue suit with white cuffs and collar. She wore a small hat and carried a suit case.

"Going out?" he asked.

"Way out," she sighed. "Mrs. Hannigan saw you slip this morning and tell me to go."

"But—where—"

"The W. Y. till I find work."

"But—seeing it was my fault—maybe we better go out to dinner somewhere and talk it over—"

"But I would love that!" cried Karen, her blue eyes shining.

Oscar took her suitcase from her and they went to a nearby cafe.

It was a delightful supper piled on trays and carried to a secluded table. They talked—but not about their troubles. Troubles were postponed or dissolved or chemically changed into something magic so that they no longer existed for Karen and Oscar.

Other evenings followed: 'til Karen and Oscar decided that two can live as cheaply as one and much more happily.

It was several months after the ceremony when Oscar digging about in his wife's dresser drawer for a bit of court plaster, came upon a battered yellow substance with a disagreeable and familiar odor.

"Karen!" he called. "Kum haar!" Karen came.

Karen took the yellow thing tenderly in her hand and a beatific smile curved her lips.

"This is the piece of soap which I have not—for once—waste and which has sent you leaping into my arms, Oscar. Mrs. Hanningan tell me I must leave it out of the water—and I did."

"Well, Karen, Mrs. Hannigan—for once—was right!"

"Yes—she was right! If I leave the soap in the water, I would get me a good suds. But I have leave it out of the water and I have get me a good husband. Which is much, much better—Oscar!"

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was reading her Home and table magazine, saying to pop, Here's a full page avvertizement for that wonderful new French perfume that everybody is raving about. It's called Precious Moments and it's put out by the Markee de Bellair, he's famous for his perfumes, she said.

He sounds like a fine smelling chap, pop said, and ma said, Of course it's rather expensive, 10 dollers for a little bottle, but when you think of the history of perfume and how it has been developed through the ages, and the time and expense that goes into every drop, no wonder. There's a very intristing article on the subject in this very magazine, it's a sort of a perfume number. It seems that the art of making perfume goes all the way back to the earliest known times when savage priests used it in performing their mystic rights, and since then the art has progressed by giant leeps and bounds until today there are thousands and thousands of acres of flowers under cultivation just for the famous perfumeries of France, she said.

I understand that the base of every perfume is civet, musk and ambergris, pop said, and ma said, I forget how many hundreds and hundreds of pounds of flowers have to give up their lives for just one pint of the essential oil.

Do you know what civet is? pop said. It's a sort of secretion taken from the civet cat, wich I understand is a sort of Asiatic skunk, he said, and ma said, Such nonsense. Many perfumes were brought to their highest stage of perfection during the days of the famous litterary sallons of Paris, in the time of Madam Pompadore and the other great ladies of her set, she said.

Ambergris is found only in whales with a stummick ache, and do you know where they get musk from? pop said, and ma said, I dont care to know, thanks. O deer, you've taken al; the romance out of the subject, at least for the time being, she said.

Meaning it wouldn't sound like 10 dollers worth again till the next time she thought of it.

Madoc Junction

Madoc Junction—On Friday evening, January 26th., friends and neighbors in the community gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Stapley, to show honour to their son, Donald, who had recently donned the uniform for his King and Country.

A bounteous lunch was served and then the friends dispersed to their homes after wishing Don the best of luck.

A number of friends motored to Picton to spend Sunday with Pte. Donald Stapley, who was leaving Monday morning for Quebec.

Mr. and Mrs. Melville Tanner and baby and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Stapley and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Sam Danford on Sunday.

PAIR BLUDGEONED

The women, Deputy Police Director Armand Brodeur, said, apparently were killed in the kitchen of their two-storey Pointe St. Charles home. There were flecks of blood on the floor, although an attempt had been made to wipe it clean, and the hatchet, with traces of blood on the head, was found in the same room.

Police Seek Son.

Police said they were seeking 21-year-old James Fahey, son of the widow and one of six members of the family living in the house. He had not returned home early today.

"We want to ask him a few questions," Brodeur said.

Winnifred Fahey, 24, found the bodies when she arrived home from work. Her screams for help attracted the attention of a neighbor who summoned police.

Trading Quiet on Produce Markets

Toronto, Feb. 2.—Lack of buying interest weakened butter prices on the Toronto open produce market yesterday, while top-grade eggs recorded new gains on dwindling receipts. Cheese was unchanged in quiet trading.

With trading extremely dull, the butter market developed an unsettled undertone. Offerings were not heavy, but buyers displayed no interest, and first-grade Ontario creamery solids eased to a range of 27¼c to 27½c. Sales were made at both prices. Holders of Western butter asked 27½c, but no sales were reported in this line.

Egg supplies were somewhat lighter than usual, but appeared to be ample for local requirements. Chiefly as a result of increased out-of-town inquiries, buying activity between dealers became brisk, and the market took on a firm tone. In the graded section "A" large eggs firmed to 22c, "A" medium to 20c, and "A" pullets to 19c.

STIRLING LOSES TO TWEED H.S.

Doyle, Substitute Goalie, Played Star Game in 4-3 Victory

Tweed, February 2 (Special) — Playing without the services of their first-string goalkeeper, Jack Wagar, Tweed High School defeated Stirling High School by a score of 4 to 3 in a closely-contested game last night. Doyle, who substituted, turned in an excellent game in his first appearance in the twine and aided his team not a little to turn in its first win in three starts.

Stirling opened the scoring with Patterson getting his first goal midway through the opening frame. R. Walker made it 2 to 0 for the visitors before the period closed when he took McGee's pass after getting in the clear. Tweed failed to get on the score sheet before the gong sounded.

In the second frame the locals had things all their own way and scored three goals without a reply to secure a lead which they maintained until the final gong. Trudeau opened the scoring and Courneyea tied things up before the half-way mark. Luffman's goal put the locals in the lead as tight defensive work on the part of Porritt and Courneyea in front of Doyle forced the visitors to resort to long range shooting.

D. Patterson's second goal again knotted the count, but Trudeau matched him with his second marker which proved to be the winning tally.

The game was clean and fast with all the boys attending strictly to business. C. A. Wells, Stirling, and F. Geraldi, officiated to the general satisfaction of all.

Stirling High—goal—H. Morgan; defence—R. Pyear, J. W. Walker; centre—R. Walker; wings—McGee, Francis; subs—Murray, Donahue, Patterson, Bastedo and McIntosh.

Tweed High—goal—Doyle; defence — Porritt and Courneyea; centre—Langevin; wings— Bergeron, Luffman; subs—Vance, Trudeau, Connor, Hayes and D. Meraw.

Bear Sees His Shadow; Two Winters in One Year

If Old Adage is True Then Ice, Blizzards, Coal-Bills Will Continue

BEAR TAKES PEEP

"If Candlemas is fair and clear,
There'll be twa winters in the year."

So runs an old Scottish rhyme, and if there is any truth in it then Belleville and district may resign themselves to the fact that six more weeks of winter will be in vogue before the gentle Spring zephyrs bring respite from the blasts of Old Man Winter.

Today is known in the United States as "Groundhog Day" but better known in Canada as the day on which the bear comes out of his lair to see if his shadow is visible. If it is, then Bruin promptly ducks back into his winter quarters and hibernates for another six weeks, intimating that snow and ice will be around for that period at least. If not, then all is hunkey-dory insofar as Spring is concerned, and the folks and people can start shedding their winter undies and begin looking up Spring styles, seed catalogues, the new radio and automobile models and another girl friend.

However, according to legend, residents of this city and district are due for a continuation of snow, ice, blizzards and coal-bills. For today Old Sol came out in all the brilliancy of his glory, the first time incidentally in several days, and shone over a snow-covered landscape. And Brer Bruin, unless he had a severe dose of astigmatism, had little or no difficulty in discerning his shadow., providing he had eaten regularly all winter.

So in all probability, out in Bruin-land, all the bears, little and big, poked cold snouts from warm winter lairs, sniffed the cool breezes, took a look at a white-blanketed countryside, noticed those black things that imitated their every move, and promptly hopped back into the bear blankets for another six weeks of undisturbed snoozing. And superstitious humans, emulating next winter's rugs, saw the sunshine and the shadows, sighed deeply, reached for the phone, called the coal man, and resigned themselves wearily to their fate.

OBITUARY

LATE MRS. ROBERT LOUGH
(Marmora)

Marmora (Special)—Attended by a large number of relatives and friends, the funeral of the late Mrs. Robert Lough took place on Thursday afternoon from her late residence to Marmora United Church where service was conducted by Rev. Dr. W. P. Fletcher. In addition to the hymns "Safe in the Arms of Jesus," and "Abide With Me," the choir rendered "We Shall Say Goodnight Here but Good morning up There." Mrs. E. C. Prentice sang "He Will Wipe Away All Tears." Six grandsons of the deceased acted as pall bearers — Herbert, Eldon and Ray Bonter and and Wilfred, Percy and Ray Lough. Interment was made in Marmora Protestant cemetery.

LATE M. W. CONNOR
(Madoc)

The funeral of the late Matthew Wilson Connor, one of the oldest and most highly respected residents of Madoc, was held from his late residence to Lakeview Cemetery in Madoc, on Wednesday afternoon. The funeral which was conducted by Rev. A. Poulter of Trinity United Church, assisted by Rev. H. L. Morrison, Tweed, and Rev. Winters, Madoc, was under the auspices of Madoc Masonic Lodge No. 48 A.F. and A.M., of which the deceased was a fifty-year veteran, having joined the Order in 1887.

The late Mr. Connor, who had celebrated his eighty - seventh birthday on January 27th passed away suddenly at his place of business on Monday morning, January 29th. Despite his advanced age he enjoyed remarkably good health and continued active up to the time of his death. His death came as a decided shock to his family and wide circle of friends, as he had seldom been ill during his entire life.

The late Wilson Connor was born in Sidney Township on January 27th, 1853, the eldest of eleven children born to William Connor and Mary Cheetam. Only one member of the family remains, a brother, Rev. Joe Connor, who is a retired Methodist minister living in Taylorridge, Illinois. His father, who taught school in Sidney Township for a number of years, later moved to Belleville where the late Wilson Connor lived until 1867. When he was eleven years of age, circumstances required that he leave school and make his own way in the world. For the next six years he worked in a brickyard and as a baker's apprentice. At the age of 17, he entered the employ of C. F. Smith Hardware Co., where he remained until 1887. Here he learned tinsmithing and plumbing.

In 1887, Mr. Connor moved to Madoc, where he has since resided. In partnership with Harry S. Price he went into the retail hardware business, under the firm name of M. W. Connor & Co. Three years later this partnership was dissolved and a new firm was organized, known as Connor and Richardson, with W. H. Richardson, now living in Tweed as a partner. In 1899 this partnership was also dissolved and Mr. Connor took into partnership with him, his eldest son, William E. Connor, at the present time associated with him in the firm of M. W. Connor and Son.

In 1937, Mr. Connor celebrated a half-century as a successful hardware merchant. He became the first Canadian member of the Fifty Year Club of the Hardware Age, an American trade journal. Mr. Connor was an enthusiastic bowler and gardener, his chief hobby being gardening.

Active in Trinity United Church, Madoc during all his long life, he was one of the original trustees of the former M. E. Church. For many years a member of the Official Board before Church Union in 1925, he became a member of the Session at that time and at the time of his death was its oldest member. He was a regular attendant at church services and a loyal supporter of his church. He was also a life-long member of the Conservative party.

On January 28th, 1874, Mr. Connor married Matilda Marsh, and they spent nearly sixty-four years of happy wedded life together, until Mrs. Connor passed away after a lengthy illness on October 26th, 1937. Thirteen children, of whom nine are still living, were born to Mr. and Mrs. Connor. Those surviving are William E. Connor, Madoc; Charles F. Connor, Vancouver, B. C.; Alfred L. Connor, Madoc; John W. Connor, Kingston; S. Howard Connor, Tweed; Russel M. Connor, Waterford; Mrs. A. W Reid (Florence), Millbrook; Mrs E. Demorest, (May), Madoc; Mrs. (Dr.) N. P. Truemner (Lora) Arthur. Surviving also are one brother, Josiah, twenty-one grandchildren and eight great grandchildren.

The funeral was held on Wednesday, January 31st, under the auspices of the Masonic Order of which the deceased had been a member for the past fifty-three years. The honorary pall-bearers were Wm. McMechan, Percy Caverly, Frank Dafoe, William McBain, Roy Taylor and W. D. Nickle —members of the Session. The pallbearers were members of the Masonic Order—Frank Smith Alex Cochrane, Fred Curry, Percy H. Naylor, George Wright and Chas. Whytock.

All the daughters were at home at the time of the funeral and all the sons with the exception of Charles F., who lives in British Columbia.

NAZI PRESSURE

The plan to freeze Balkan exports to the belligerents at pre-war levels was supported by Rumania and Yugoslavia, according to reliable reports, as the best means of keeping the present battle of trade from turning into a battle of arms.

Turkey, bound to the Allies with mutual assistance treaties, and Greece, guaranteed against attack by the Allies, were understood to be less enthusiastic.

Rumania also has received pledges from the Allies of all support in their power to resist any threat of her independence but with German and Russian troops close to her borders, her position perhaps is the most perilous of all neutral states.

Sell Largely to Allies

Turkish and Greek trade with Germany has greatly diminished since the war started, replaced by larger sales to the Allies. For these nations to return to pre-war quotas might mean severe economic disturbances.

Thus anything agreed upon along the line of "economic neutrality" is likely to represent a compromise between the two northern Balkan states—Rumania and Yugoslavia—and the two other entente members who are further removed by geography from a possible German push.

The latest footnotes of the Balkan conference, reflecting chiefly on Rumania's position, came yesterday from Germany, Britain and Italy:

1. German Foreign Minister Joachim Von Ribbentrop said that Germany and Russia do not want to extend the war into the Balkans.

2. Disclosure in London that Great Britain is following a policy of watchful waiting to see how far Rumania goes in satisfying Germany's demands for oil.

3. The Italian press campaign urging territorial revision in the Balkans, chiefly on behalf of Hungary's claim upon Rumania for restoration of Transylvania.

Disguised as Newsmen

London, Feb. 2—(CP)—The Daily Sketch reported today that 300 Nazi agents disguised as newspaper men are among 3,000 foreigners who arrived yesterday in Belgrade for the Balkan Entente Conference.

The newspaper said that according to official data not more than eight per cent of the self-styled German newspaper men are actual correspondents.

A great number of them, the paper continued, are members of the Nazi propaganda organization of "whisperers" whose activities have recently been uncovered in the Netherlands and in Belgium.

The first to arrive in the Yugoslav capital started a rumor that "Germany will take radical steps if any sort of Balkan bloc is formed," the Daily Sketch said.

Cut Export of Goods

London, Feb. 2.—(CP) — Great Britain was reliably reported today to be planning to cut export of goods to Rumania as a weapon on her struggle with Germany for Rumanian oil.

Britain, it was said, is planning to permit export of goods Rumania needs only to the extent that Rumania sends oil to Britain.

At the same time it was reported British officials were more optimistic about early clarification and settlement of the uncertain Rumanian economic policy.

Economic discussions at the Balkan entente meeting opening at Belgrade today were expected to have a bearing on Rumania's attitude toward sharing her supplies with belligerent nations.

Fears that Germany is gaining the upper hand over Rumanian economic policy, especially regarding oil, has led Britain to slow exports of materials from here. Resumption is expected to be gradual, depending upon the future division of oil supplies among Germany and the Western Allies.

Trying to Convince Entente

Berlin, Feb. 2.—(AP)— German spokesmen, intently watching the Balkan Entente Conference at Belgrade, made energetic efforts today to convince the Balkan State they have nothing to fear from the Reich.

Official quarters echoed Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop's statement yesterday that neither Germany nor Russia plans military action in southeastern Europe.

At the same time it was insisted Great Britain and France want to spread the war to the Balakns with the object of creating an eastern front.

Dr. Karl Clodius, German economic expert for Balkan affairs, is in Rome for discussions concerning which there probably will be no announcement.

CAMPAIGN TO BE

The Social Credit Party also is laying elaborate plans for a rapid campaign and Hon. W. D. Herridge, leader of the New Democracy movement which is associated with social credit in the Federal arena, said last night he would announce his election plans shortly.

Radio Hours Allotted

Broadcasting time for the various political parties on the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation was decided upon yesterday and a total of 12 3-4 hours allotted. The Liberals will have 5 1-4 hours, Conservatives 4 3-4 hours, C.C.F. 1 1-2 hours and Social Crediters 1 1-4 hours. This network time is provided without charge and paid political broadcasts will be confined to local and provincial broadcasts through private stations.

For the duration of the campaign the C.B.C. will not broadcast service club speeches by political figures but some of them will be recorded electrically for broadcast following the vote.

War Contract List Published

Publication of a lengthy list of government war contracts and announcement of a wartime Fishery Advisory Board were other developments in the capital yesterday.

The contracts were those awarded by the Defence Purchasing Board and its successor, the War Supply Board, from July 14, 1939 to Dec. 31. They totalled $61,063,456 covering items of practically every description and brought the total announced war contracts to date to more than $80,000,000.

The Fishery Board, announced by Fisheries Miniser Michaud, has 11 members under the chairmanship of J. J. Cowie, acting Federal Deputy Minister of Fisheries. Mr. Michaud said its purpose is to arrange the orderly supply of fish to the British market and at the same time reasonably maintain existing market connections.

AMENDMENTS TO

The government yesterday brought its bill to amend the Succession Duty Act out of committee stage without one change being made in spite of two days of determined Conservative opposition. The act is designed to facilitate the collection of arrears of death duties and is retroactive to Sept. 22 last.

"This act is not going to hold water," said Conservative leader George Drew. "It is as bad as the one you passed at the special session." The bill will, if it does what the government thinks it will do, overcome an injunction granted to forestall investigation of a Kitchener estate.

One Clause Keenly Debated.

Most acrimonious debate came on the succession duty clause which provides there is to be no appeal from the valuation the treasurer may place on stocks or other securities, the market value of which may not be readily ascertainable.

Premier Hepburn said the government was willing to let the courts decide if an estate should be assessed, but the valuation of securities was not a job for the courts and the government didn't want to be tied up with endless litigation.

Col. Drew asked Mr. Conant to define the principle of the bill.

"The principle is the collection of revenue for the province," said Mr. Conant.

"You mean any weapon to get the money," said Col. Drew.

Wealth from war-torn Europe was looking for a place to come, said Col. Drew. Ontario should not discourage its import.

"In making Ontario a good place to live in, we don't want to make it a bad place to die," he urged, arguing for the provision of an appeal right.

As the debate waxed warm, Mr. Conant observed that Col. Drew seemed to know all the law in the British Empire.

Drew Hits Back.

"These large amendments are monuments to your stupidity," Col. Drew told Mr. Conant. He charged that under one penal section a person receiving a legacy of $1,000 might be liable to a penalty of $500,000 if he didn't tell all he knew about bequests to other persons.

"No person who has dealt honestly with his property will have anything to fear from this act," said Mr. Conant. "The person who has not so dealt, has no right to protection."

"You're trying to protect the lawyers who have been the worst dodgers," observed the premier to Col. Drew.

"This is as vicious a law as was ever introduced in Germany or Russia," said Col. Drew. "There is nothing there that more effectively destroys the rights of individuals. Because as he says 'we've got to get the money', he prepared to scuttle democratic principles."

Encouragement to mining prospectors is the purpose behind a bill brought in by Attorney-General Conant to amend the Securities Act.

The measure provides that upon the filing of a prospecting syndicate agreement with the Provincial Secretary or a mining recorder, the liability of the syndicate members or parties to the agreement shall be limited to the terms of the agreement, provided sole purpose of the syndicate or agreement is to finance prospecting or preliminary developments. Capital of such a syndicate is not to exceed $10,000.

Prospecting Vital Part.

"Prospecting is a vital part of the mining industry," said Mr. Conant. "We are seeking in the bill to encourage prospecting and the financing of prospecting expeditions."

Leopold Macaulay (Con. York South) has a new hat coming to him from Premier Mitchell Hepburn. Attorney General Conant lost the bet in which a hat was the stake, but the premier said he would take the bet and buy the hat if Mr. Macaulay would guarantee to wear it. Mr. Macaulay did.

The bet came when Mr. Macaulay said that in the debate on the Succession Duty Bill, Mr. Conant was quoting a Supreme Court of Canada judgment that had been upset by the Privy Council. Mr. Conant said he wasn't aware of this and Mr. Macaulay bet the hat that the judgment was upset on the very principle Mr. Conant was citing. He won.

Reach Courts Anyway.

Col. Fraser Hunter (Lib. Toronto-St. Patricks) said it didn't matter much how the act was worded. It would probably reach the courts anyway. "The Privy Council will horn in somehow," he predicted.

Second reading, approval in principle, was given to a bill putting in the statutes an agreement between the village of Point Edward, Canadian terminus of the Blue Water Bridge near Sarnia, and the Michigan State Bridge Commission, operator of the bridge.

The agreement, which will end litigation over taxes, provides that so long as the bridge is operated by a public authority, $5,000 taxes annually be paid to Point Edward.

AIR FORCE

In comparing the gun merits of the new German bombing plane and the new British pursuit ship, a two-seater called the Defiant, the informant said the fighter's tail gun was the advantage because the Junkers lacks such a weapon.

The Defiant's tail-gun is in a turret similar to the power-driven turret on Britain's Wellington bombers. It is regarded as a great advance over the armament of the older fighters like the Spitfire, which have fixed guns.

Guns In Nose and Wings.

Besides its tail-gun the Wellington bomber has guns in the nose and midway between the wings and tail. Moreover, airmen said, it has twice the 1,300 mile range reported for the new Junkers, but possibly less speed than the Junkers' maximum of 315 miles an hour.

Prime Minister Chamberlain was given a "go ahead" signal by the House of Commons last night to conduct his war program as an opposition demand for a special economic coordinator in the war cabinet was voted down.

The House rejected, 185 to 90, a Labor motion for the addition of a minister to plan "the resources of the nation for successful prosecution of the war."

Mr. Chamberlain said he had "reached the conclusion that this is no time for a change of this sort."

Limited leaves for the British Expeditionary Force, cancelled Jan. 14, have been resumed and the first group of soldiers will return from tht front tomorrow, the war office reported.

Bodies Thrown From Boat.

Twenty survivors from the 5,625-ton torpedoed Greek steamship Eleni Stathatos reached the Irish shore yesterday and told of having to throw the bodies of thirteen frozen comrades from the open boats in which the survivors spent four days in the icy Atlantic.

The crew escaped in two boats as their vessel went down last Sunday. The seamen said a German submarine fired the torpedo.

"A heavy sea was running and the weather was bitter cold," said Michael Ryan of County Limerick, Ireland, one of the survivors.

"Our hands and feet swelled up so much—we were tired of rowing—it was awful. It was a bad dream . . . we were always cold, we were always tired . . . we were always hungry.

"The worst of all came Wednesday. There were the dead in the boat—thirteen Greeks. They had frozen to death. We threw them overboard.

"Later the second boat capsized," Ryan continued. "We had the larger boat, and we got the men out of the water. Early today we saw the Irish coast but we were so tired we couldn't row any more. It was terrible.

"A motorboat finally came out—and here I am."

NAZI ADROCITIES

The Poles declare the papers contain only information which has been carefully investigated and verified, including an estimate that the Germans have executed 18,000 Poles of all classes.

6,000 Shot Down.

At Bydoszcz alone, the papers say, 6,000 persons had been shot down by the close of 1939, three months after Germany conquered the country.

As an example, one paper says the Bydgoszcz mayor, a Mr. Barciszewski, "was ordered to clean the automobile of the Gestapo (German secret police) with his tongue. He protested and was odiously beaten up and later shot to death."

The paper adds that "shortly after the Germans took Bydgoszcz 5,000 men, among them many priests were shut up in the cavalry regiment stables in Gdanska street.

"They were so packed that they had barely room to stand. They remained thus penned for six weeks. At night the prisoners slept one on top of another."

Far Worse Than Russian Cheka.

Charging that "the bestialty of the German police and jailers passes all limts," the paper says that "in comparison the tortures of the famous Cheka (former Russian secret police) appear most humane."

Speaking of forced mass migrations, another paper says, "recently a train carrying children expelled from the Poznan region was seen arriving at Sandomierz in Central Poland. When at a station a car was opened (it was a cattle car) 30 bodies were found of children who had died from the cold."

Such mass deportations, the paper states, "outdo in their systematic atrocity even the rapacious raids of the Tartars."

One of the Polish papers declares that at Gdynia, port on the Baltic Sea, priests are forced to wash the sidewalks on their hands and knees.

By the end of November, only 5,000 of Gdynia's orignal Polish population of 130,000 remained, it says, and whole streets were empty due to the mass deportations.

The Jews, it declares, ar "badly treated in particular," at Warsaw "since Dec. 10 they have been obliged to wear yellow armbands under penalty of serious punishment. A kind of ghetto has been created, with barricaded streets."

FRED THAIN CHARGED WITH DOUBLE MURDER

Two German Bombers, Raiding Shipping, Shot Down By R.A.F. Fighters

4 German Airmen Killed and Five Others Injured

Shipping Raids Take Place Near Yorkshire and Northumberland Coasts and R.A.F. Machines Intercept Enemy and Engage in Battle

MACHINE-GUN TRAWLER

Witnesses From Waterfront Hotel on Yorkshire Coast See Trawler Ablaze Three Miles Off Shore

London, Feb. 3 (CP)—Hard-hitting Royal Air Force fighter planes today shot down at least two and perhaps three German raiders along England's northeast coast.

The Air Ministry announced the downing of one German plane off the mouth of the river Tyne and another off the Yorkshire coast.

It said another enemy bomber engaged by British freighters off the coast of Northumberland "was very seriously damaged" and later reports said it had crashed into the sea. Its destruction, however, was not officially confirmed.

The Air Ministry said a ship went to the rescue of the crew of the bomber shot down off the Tyne.

Accounts Differ

Accounts differed as to the fate of the German plane downed in the Yorkshire area. An Air Ministry communique reported it "shot down in the sea," but a later version by the Press Association said that after a German bomber had attacked a coastal vessel it was chased inland by three British fighters and crashed in flames after a battle over a Yorkshire town.

One of the crew was reported killed and three injured. The

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Everlastingly frozen ground! Over 380 feet of frozen ground was measured at Yakoutsk, Siberia, and even at that depth the frost was not penetrated to the bottom. In parts of the South the ground is frozen in winter to a depth of only a few inches, and in some winters not at all. It is frozen deeper and deeper, varying each year, the farther north one goes. Finally northern point is reached when the ground is "everlastingly frozen", as it is called, which means that it never thaws out except at the surface each spring and summer. In spite of this, however, agriculture is carried on. Under such conditions certain precautions must be used in building roads and buildings.

GIANT TOWBOAT NOW ICE-BOUND

Mississippi Rivermen Awaiting Next Move of Unpredictable River

Memphis, Tenn., Feb. 3 (AP) — Locked in a vast ribbon of churning ice, the giant towboat Illinois clung to its temporary haven near Ridgely, Tenn., today as rivermen awaited anxiously the next move of the unpredictable Mississippi.

Ice-bound with its tow of 10 heavily laden barges for more than two weeks, the Federal Barge Line's all-steel boat with its crew of 33, nudged its way into a sheltered cove last night, dodging a 10-mile section of the huge gorge at Gayoso Bend which ripped loose and crunched its dangerous way downstream. Seven barges were swept away.

The loose barges, carrying farm implements, grain, steel and iron, were last seen about a mile downstream from the towboat.

The Line sent its towboat Hoover to Richardson's Landing, Tenn., below the Gayoso Pack, to be near the Illinois in the event of an emergency. The equipment and cargo of the Illinois is valued at about $1,000,000.

Italy Plans to Double Number of Airplanes

Rome, Feb. 3—(AP)—Italy plans at least to double the number of her military planes and pilots this year, General Francesco Pricolo, Under-Secretary for Aviation, announced today.

The size of Italy's present air force is a secret but the number of planes has been estimated officially to total 4,000 while pilots are variously estimated at 10,000 to 18,000.

GOLD LEAF SALVAGE PRESENTS PROBLEM

Kansas City, Feb. 3 —(AP) — G. W. Harriman has a clear title to $50,000 worth of gold that is right out where he can handle it and it's doing him no more good than Captain Kidd's buried treasure. Harriman, operator of the wrecking concern that is to dismantle the old Baltimore Hotel, is worrying over salvaging the gold leaf that decorates the vast public rooms.

THE GRAND JURY NOW ON WAY OUT IN PROVINCE

Attorney General Conant Brings in Bill to Abolish Body From Ontario Courts

Another Bill Introduced Would Reduce Jury in Civil Actions to Six

Toronto, Feb. 3—The Grand Jury —once a venerated institution in most British judicial systems but now generally discarded—has been started on its way out in Ontario.

Attorney-General Gordon Conant yesterday brought into the legislature a bill to abolish Grand Juries and announced the Federal authorities had given assurance the necessary amendments to the criminal code would be made.

Hon. Dr. Manion To Open Campaign At Brockville

Ottawa, Feb. 3 (CP) — Conservative Leader Manion will open his election campaign in Brockville, Ontario, where he will speak in support of Hon. H. A. Stewart, Conservative candidate, seeking re-election in Leeds, on February 8, after which he will hold a series of meetings in the Prairie Provinces and British Columbia, it was announced Friday from Dr. Manion's office.

The western itinerary has not been completed but probably will be announced next week. Dr. J. M. Robb, Conservative organizer, said committees to arrange for speakers supporting Dr. Manion will be set up in each province, working in co-operation with a central committee in Ottawa.

Statement Issued

In a statement issued Wednesday Dr. Manion said: "Suggest most respectfully that in these constituencies throughout Canada where nominations have not been made for the coming election, the National Conservative party make a patriotic endeavour to get together the people of all groups at open conventions with the object of exploring the possibility of naming some loyal, able, high type of citizen, of whatever party, as candidate."

Several conventions are being planned for next week and the week following but party officials here stated it is too soon to say to what extent the conventions are open to voters outside the Conservative party. Last year about 90 Conservative candidates were chosen leaving 156 yet to be selected if every constituency is to be contested.

BACK TO JAIL

Waukegan, Ill., Feb. 3—(AP) — Police released Charles Wilson, 56, a transient, and ordered him to leave town, but they didn't say how. So Wilson strode to the city's outskirts yesterday and stood on the railroad tracks with his thumb aloft as the southbound "400" flyer came roaring at him. The train screamed to a stop. Wilson went right back to jail.

NO MARRIAGE FEES

Braymer, Mo., Feb. 3—(AP)—Marriage fees are decidedly reasonable in the Davis Township this year. John Zumbrunnen, veteran Justice of the Peace advertised: "This being leap year and my 20th and last year in office, I will solemnize marriages free."

Many Cases of Common Cold May Be Symptoms of Children's Disease

Boston, Feb. 3—(AP)—Mrs. Naomi Turner, Arlington biologist, suggested today that the common cold—one of medicine's most persistent puzzles—in many cases may be nothing more than a mild case of some children's disease.

Writing in the New England Journal of Medicine, Mrs. Turner said studies of large groups of children disclosed that upper respiratory infections, with symptoms of a cold, were most prevalent after the pupils had been exposed to some communicable disease known to spread through the secretions of the respiratory tract.

Invariably, she wrote, this wave of colds appeared at the end of the incubation period for whatever disease it was to which the children had been exposed .

Generally, in medical circles, the cold has been deemed the result of a specific filterable virus, a causative agent. Mrs. Turner's theory, however, suggests that while such a virus may cause the ailment, many indispositions thus labelled, especially among children, actually may be mild cases of some other disease.

War Must Continue Until Nazi Threat as Military Power Is Ended—Stanley

Newcastle - on - Tyne, England, Feb. 3—(CP)—The war cannot be halted at half-time like a football game, but must go on until Germany's threat as a military power is ended, War Secretary Oliver Stanley said today.

His speech, fifth of a series by war cabinet ministers, was taken as a reply to peace advocates generally and was aimed directed at General J. B. M. Hertzog, former Prime Minister of South Africa, who has urged peace.

To stop now in the war that is five months old today would bring only a troubled truce, Mr. Stanley said.

Instead, he asserted, it must go on to victory and then peace aimed at making the Germans peaceful and happy members of a peaceful and happy Europe.

Must Restrict Power

"But never again," he added with vehemence, "under this leader or any other leader, under this regime or any other regime, must they have power to inflict upon the world the misery and suffering which twice in our life they have done."

Mr. Stanley singled out General Hertzog, calling him an "apologist" for Adolf Hitler. Hertzog's government went out of office last Sept. 6 when it lost in its stand for peace with Germany and only a few days ago he was defeated when he raised the issue again in the union parliament.

Blame Not All On Treaty.

"I see that the other day Herr Hitler had an apologist in the shape of General Hertzog," said Mr. Stanley. "In a recent speech General Hertzog put the blame for all our troubles upon the Treaty of Versailles."

Remarking that the treaty had imperfections, Mr. Stanley said: "We, with others, made our mistakes," but went on:

"Do you think that a victorious Germany would give a defeated Britain a Treaty of Versailles? Shorn of our empire, our fleet and our trade, we should be a small, overcrowded island, its recovery impossible and even its survival in doubt.

"For ourselves, we want nothing of Germany or of the Germans. We do not desire their destruction; we do not begrudge them their prosperity; we do not want to make of them the helots they have made of millions, or to make of their land the desert they have made of a quarter of Europe.

Want Peaceful Members.

"We want them to be peaceful and happy members of a peaceful and happy Europe."

Saying that "distance lends enchantment", Mr. Stanley suggested: "Let us call as our witnesses not people thousands of miles away, but people a little nearer to the scene" for judgment of Hitler.

Harold Neighborhood Shocked By Suddenness of Tragedy

Slaying of Mr. and Mrs. Wellman Lays Dark Blanket of Mourning Over Whole Community

FUNERAL SUNDAY

Harold, Ont.—(Staff) — A pure white mantle of snow covers these rolling hills of Rawdon Township. Tree-lined roads curving, rising in sharp knolls, and cedar-studded lanes weave a magical pattern of contrasting color against the sheer whiteness of the countryside. Farmhouses, curling smoke spiralling from low squat chimneys into the blue of the sky, dot the concession roads. Well-filled barns, mostly weatherbeaten, against a background of white-blanketed slopes of fertile fields.

Four days ago, this typical Hastings County countryside pursued the even tenor of its way. Its hardy sons, stalwart scions of the proudest families of a famous pioneer county, did their daily tasks, sought their humble amusements and followed their winter mode of living in an atmosphere of mutual contentment that bespoke years of happy associations.

Little did they realize that tragedy, stark, grim, ruthless was even then casting its shadow over the horizons of their little community. Death, in one of its most terrible forms, stalked through the fertile fields. Then it struck. A shotgun blazed. Once. Twice. And in a welter of blood, two of this community's most highly respected people, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Wellman, 77 and 75 years of age respectively, lay victims of a killer's lust.

Now another mantle hangs heavily over the rolling hills of this part of Rawdon. The black pall of tragedy, far-reaching in its envelopment, has wrapped the community in an embrace that is stunning in its effect. Horror, at the terrible swiftness, the ruthlessness, the savagery of the attack that blasted the lives from two of its most estimable residents, is evident at every turn.

But after the first numbing shock at news of the first double tragedy to occur in their midst had partially subsided; after the mind-wracking import of what had happened had slowly cleared to give way to clearer thinking, that wholehearted sympathy, that generous hospitality, and universal urge "to do something" that is the pioneer heritage of these simple farming folk, for a stricken family, gushed to the surface like the Spring waters that overflow the banks of the district creeks every year.

SAITO RESIGNS MEMBERSHIP IN POTENT MINSEITO

Member Stirred Up Political Strife With Criticism of Japanese Policies in China

INSULT ALLEGED

Tokyo, Feb. 3 (AP)—Takao Saito, who stirred up a political tempest by criticizing Japanese policies in China, resigned today from his political party, the Potent Minseito.

His resignation was offered on the advice of other Minseito leaders and promptly was accepted by the army, smarting under his advice that Japanese troops be withdrawn from China to pave the way for peace, demanded to be heard in answer in the Diet.

Two minor political parties issued statements demanding that Saito be expelled from the Lower House of Parliament.

Army leaders conferred in an emergency session and decided to send War Minister Shunroku Hata to the Chamber today to reply

Japanese Army Successfully Performs Gigantic Pincer Movement

RELENTLESS DRIVE

Hong Kong, Feb. 3—(AP)—Japanese reported today more than 200,000 Chinese troops had been thrown into perilous confusion in Kwangsi Province by a gigantic pincer movement.

The Japanese said their ground forces, supported by warplanes attacking in mass, were continuing a relentless onslaught along the entire front in the Province in China's deep south.

Belated Chinese reports conceded that a Japanese column had reached a point 31 miles northeast of Nanning, the Provincial capital, in a drive to sever China's vital links with British Burma and French Indo-China.

Finns Order Removal of Red Cross Signs, Said to Serve as Targets

Helsingfors, Feb. 3 (AP)—Nearly 100 Finnish civilians were said to have been killed in Soviet Russian air raids during the ninth week of the war.

The intensified Soviet air activity, while Finnish defenders held against fierce Red army attacks on the Karelian Isthmus, was reported to have taken at least 11 lives yesterday.

However, Finnish airmen struck back at Russian bases on the Baltic, and Finnish military sources said at least 35 Red army planes were shot down.

On the battlefronts, too, the Finns said the invaders continued to suffer heavy losses at the hands of white-clad riflemen despite their use of parachute troops and tank-driven steel sledges.

Group Capt. Edwards Given Promotion

Ottawa, Feb. 3—(CP)— Defence Minister Rogers announced today the appointment of Group Captain Harold Edwards to the post of Air Member for Personnel in the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Group Captain Edwards, who was head of the Directorate of Air Personnel, succeeds Air Commodore W. R. Kenny, recently appointed Air Attache of the Canadian Legation in Washington, as head of the personnel division and as a member of the Air Council. This post corresponds to that of Adjutant-General in the army.

Men Spend Time Watching, Waiting For Enemy Planes

London, Feb. 3 (CP).—In scores of lonely outposts along Britain's coasts men spend their time watching and listening for enemy airplanes. They are members of the Civil Observers Corps and someone has been on duty night and day since the early hours of Aug. 24.

Most are voluntary part-time workers who go on duty after business hours. They work for about four hours at a stretch—just watching the heavens and listening.

The exacting scrutiny has tuned up eyes and ears to an extraordinary pitch. Many can detect the sound of an airplane long before it gets into sight. They find it easy to detect the note of a foreign fighter.

It is a thankless job, though. The listening posts are in the open air and placed in the highest and most exposed position in the district. Many observers, however, have learned more about astronomy in these weeks than they would have thought possible in a lifetime.

Their work is important. Possibly their view of an enemy plane is the first and from their post goes the stand-by warning that causes Britain's great civil defence organization to prepare for action. A tip-off from such a post may result eventually in fighter planes being ordered to intercept the enemy.

Balkan Powers Seek Way Out To Ensure Safety From Conflict

(By Edward Kennedy, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Feb. 3 — (AP) — Fearful of the possibility that war may reach the Balkans by spring, the four powers of the Balkan entente sought today some formula which would ensure their safety during the next few months.

The Foreign Ministers of Yugoslavia, Rumania and Turkey and the Premier of Greece, in conference here, already have decided that in view of conflicting interests each country must be left free ot fend for itself.

This precluded any definite plan for cementing the entente into a stronger union and cost Rumania her chance for automatic support in case German demands for oil become unbearable.

The conference representatives still hoped, however, to agree on some common declaration and friendly program to improve their chances of escaping any imminent upheaval.

If the springtime can be passed without armed conflict, the Balkans hope the outlook will brighten.

Their difficulties are due to no lack of a desire for peace on their part, the present situation being that the nations of a region once traditionally called Europe's "tinderbox" are trying desperately to remain outside the war.

Farmer Neighbor Of Slain Wellmans Remanded to Feb. 8

Arrested at His Home by Inspector Ward of C.I.D. and Sergt. Thompson of Provincial Police as He Was Eating Supper With His Family

BROUGHT TO CITY

Two Charges Are Read to Fred Thain When He is Brought Before Miss Mary Butler, Justice of the Peace, at County Court House

Frederick Thain, 46 - year - old Rawdon Township farmer, was today formally arraigned at the County Court House, Belleville and charged with the murder of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Wellman. Thain was arrested by Provincial Police at his home last evening in the course of the investigation looking into the double murder, that had shocked the entire neighborhood, but this morning Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan K.C., instructed Provincial Police to arraign Thain on the dual murder charge. He was held in the Belleville Police station last night.

The accused man appeared before Miss Mary Butler, local Justice of the Peace, charged that he did murder Arnold and Nancy Wellman, contrary to section 259 of the Canadian Criminal Code. The charges were read separately and the accused man was remanded to the custody of the County jail until Thursday, Feb. 8th, exactly one week from the time the crime was first discovered.

Accused Asks Question

When he was remanded the only response that Thain made to the court was—"What is that, the trial?"

"No, that will be the preliminary hearing," replied Miss Butler, as Thain was not represented by counsel.

Thain was immediately given into the custody of Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn and Gaoler G. H. French and later lodged in the local cell block. The charges were signed by Provincial Constable W. E. Smith, who along with Provincial Constable D. Adair arraigned the accused man today.

Arrested Last Night.

Thain was arrested last night and brought to Belleville. This morning Inspector A. H. Ward, of the C.I.D. of the Provincial Police, and Sergeant H. E. Thompson, O.P.P., questioned Thain for over two hours at the city police station.

Inspector Albert H. Ward also denied previous stories to the effect that empty shot gun shells had been found in the vicinity of the crime yesterday.

Police today revealed the fact that a quantity of grist was found in the accused man's barn and the grain is being held for further investigation by the authorities.

Boots, Sacks, Seized.

While completing their investigations at the Thain home last evening, Inspector Ward and Sergeant Thompson took into their keeping one pair of rubber boots, several grain sacks and an old shot gun all of which are being held for investi-

CONTEMPLATES NO GUARANTEE

Berlin, Feb. 3 (AP).—Sources close to the government today declared Germany does not contemplate making any guarantees of Rumania's territorial integrity.

These Nazi spokesmen said they wanted to counteract reports abroad that the Reich is trying to create a new Balkan order which would include guarantees of Rumania's security in return for sweeping economic concessions. (Belgrade sources yesterday said Germany was bringing pressure to get Rumania to accept such a plan.)

Mathieson Beauty Salon Triumph In Decoration Art

Latest Developments in Beauty Science Featured in Smart, New Establishment.

Introducing to the ladies of Belleville and district the last word in smartness and convenience, the Mathieson Beauty Salon at 342 Front Street, was formally opened this afternoon when the public was extended a cordial invitation to make a visit of inspection to the establishment. Those who attended found an artistically designed Salon combining beauty of background with efficiency of arrangements for the comfort of patrons.

Finished in soft peach tones, with pastel blue of the draperies forming an interesting contrast the Salon reflects skill and thought in its decorative plan. The reception room, furnished with royal chrome chairs upholstered in cream leather, and modernistic desk with concealed lighting playing cleverly on an inset cosmetic display, seems to extend a welcome to the visitor. Lighting fixtures in chrome, ingeniously inserted in the booth partitions have been chosen to eliminate glare and shadows.

Booths for facial treatments and care of the hair, carry out the peach and blue decorations, with touches of black as accent. The tile effect of the deeper blue floor is very attractive. Next the facial booth is a cloakroom for clients and a powder table in an alcove before a large circular mirror. A cloak room for the operators in an added convenience. Each series of permanent wave booths has a connecting shampoo booth. Large windows assuring plenty of light and fresh air, are finished with glass curtains of sheerest net. Throughout, the shop with its smart interior decoration and modernistic fittings is a splendid achievement in workmanship and designing a credit to the planning of its proprietor and the craftsmanship of the workman under the direction of Mr. J. E. Foster.

The Mathieson Beauty Salon is in charge of Theda Mathieson, a native of Picton, who has for twenty-four years conducted a Beauty Salon on St. Clair Avenue, and is now opening a Belleville branch. A competent and experienced staff will take care of every beauty problem. One of the specialties of the Salon will be personality hair styling and a staff member, formerly with Antoine of Paris, will be in charge of this important department.

Library Activities of Past Year

The reports are as follows:

The Corby Public Library Board,
Belleville, Ontario,
Gentlemen:—

The year 1939 passes into library history as the most satisfying one in my experience.

In few cases now do we have to "sell" good books to our borrowers. In fact, if we happen to miss anything in our purchasing, someone is bound to bring it to our attention very quickly. Radio, magazines, newspapers, prominent speakers, have all sent people to the library with specific requests; moreover, many individuals without apparent stimulation seem to have broader reading interests. As a result, to name but a few such books as these were in constant demand during the year. "Mein Kampf", "Reaching for the Stars," "Listen the Wind," "The Young Melbourne," "Disgrace Abounding," "All This and Heaven Too," "Inside Asia," "Revolution of Nihilism," "Not Peace but a Sword," "Let the Record Speak," "The Champlain Road" and "Wind Sand and Stars."

Even moving picture producers have conspired to give new life to the residing public for such books as "Wuthering Heights", "Man in the Iron Mask," "Drums Along the Mohawk," "Pygmalion," "Mikado", "Goodbye, Mr. Chips"—and the requests at this moment for "Gone with the Wind" would appear to necessitate doubling our stock at once.

The results now becoming apparent of having trained assistance in the Boys' and Girls' Department for some years are perhaps most encouraging. The young people are now graduating to the Adult Library with interest in the most varied subjects; the boys do not always immediately succumb to a western story, nor the girls to insipid romances.

The variety and extent of our reference service is becoming more widely known and used. Study clubs, debating societies, Y.P.S. groups, drama and reading clubs, all manner of organizations as well as the individual seeker of information have found assistance and willing co-operation in the library. We have sought to furnish the answer to any reasonable question, to provide the book needed, and failing that, to guide the borrower to another source of information.

Regional Service

Our first venture in regional service has taken the form of organizing a circulating rural school library for 16 teachers in Thurlow Township and another for 6 teachers in Sidney Township. The machinery for the scheme which involves boxes of books purchased by contributions from participating schools to be exchanged at regular intervals was put into motion only in December. Hence, it is impossible to comment or predict at this time. It is an experiment which we trust will develop into something of permanent value to the rural teachers.

6.529 names are at present entered in the library register. The number of withdrawals is larger than usual; this is due to "housecleaning" in the files in an effort to remove expired memberships which have not been used for some time since expiration. This was accomplished by spare-time checking with both City and Telephone Directories. At present, 44.48 per cent of the population are members of the library.

These borrowers read or consulted over 120,400 books during the year. This shows a decrease of 4006 from 1938, practically all in adult fiction. There was a noticeable lull in adult reading at the outbreak of the war, but within a month to six weeks, even sock knitting had settled from hysteria to routine and people found that reading was still excellent relaxation. With the exception of that lull, there has been no let-up in the demand for books and I truly believe that the only reason circulation shows a decrease this year is simply that we have not had nearly enough books. This must seem like an old story to you but the staff and I, meeting the public eleven hours a day get the justifiable complaints and can truly sympathize with them. We have chosen books carefully, but there are just not enough.

Even the most conservative estimates claim that a library to be healthy requires at least two books per capita, which would mean that we should have over 29,000 instead of slightly over 16,000. This would indicate that we are bordering on anemia—and without being an alarmist, I might even add that if something is not done soon to restore our resources, we might even reach a state of suspended animation. The Libraries Act gives to every board of a free public library the right to expend on its services a minimum of fifty cents per capita. At present we are getting almost forty-one cents. That extra nine cents per capita about $1200. would help immeasurably in the purchase of books.

During the summer months Mr. Woodhouse with an assistant constructed tall shelves in one room of my living quarters which I had relinquished. To these shelves we removed from the basement some 2000 books and certain government documents (these limited by temporary lack of shelves). The books were weeded out and are now housed in a clean room, dry and light, away from furnace dust and basement dampness.

Improvements Made

During the summer months, too, the ceiling, walls and woodwork of the main floor were thoroughly cleaned for the first time in many years. This renovation with the refinishing of the front door have greatly improved the general appearance of the building. The improvements suggested by Miss Gallagher for her department, I call to your attention. I would also point out that the Reference Room sadly needs a new floor covering and that the living quarters on the third floor are even more sadly in need of freshening. I have hesitated formerly to ask for improvements there because I could see so many uses for the library funds. Now, however, with the paint badly faded and the wallpaper dirty, I feel it necessary to suggest decoration.

Roger Mifflin, disarming bookseller in Christopher Morley's book, "The Haunted Bookshop," claimed: "Book shelves are ranked with the most furious combustibles in the world—the brains of men. I can spend a rainy afternoon reading and my mind works itself up to such a passion and anxiety over mortal problems as almost unmans me....It is terribly nerve-racking."

"How is it, then," claims the young man, "that libraries are shrines of such serene calm?...."

"Ah, my boy, you forget the card index.... Librarians would all go mad those capable of concentrated thought, if they did not have the cooling and healing card index as medicament."

If then, we, the staff, are not always visible to the public or to you, the Board, search for us in some secluded spot. We are surely to be found making a card index — or patching, mending, stitching and washing books of which the public have not found it convenient to take reasonable care.

Express Thanks

Our thanks go forth to the Horticulture Society which generously donated all of our summer flowers; to the Ontario-Intelligencer for continued co-operation in the way of publicity; to those citizens who donated books, pictures and a Literary Map of Canada, framed; and to Mr. Woodhouse, the cartetaker, who as always, is to be complimented on the care of the building.

My personal thanks are due my staff and you, the Board for continued kindly co-operation. I shall miss particularly the advice of Mr. Clarke who leaves the Board at this time. However, I do feel that so long as he is in the city, the library will not be entirely divorced from his mind and that I will still be welcome to ask his advice at any time.

Respectfully submitted,
Ethel Adams,
Librarian.

Report of the Boys' and Girls' Library, 1939

A child's introduction to the joy of books might best be expressed in the words of Kenneth Grahame in his children's classic "The Wind in the Willows".... "a blithesome step forward, and you are out of the old life and into the new."

The year 1939 brings the Boys' and Girls' Library "a blithesome step forward" for it finds the department continuing to expand in all its phases. The circulation figures for the year reached 27,260, an increase of 941 over the record year of 1938. Membership increased by 352, making a total membership of 1866. This means that over 70 per cent of the elementary school registration of the city are library borrowers.

November was the record month for circulation statistics with 3,464 books read by the children of Belleville in that month. During this month also we had the year's record day, Monday, November 6th, when 205 books were issued in 120 minutes.

In the spring, an interesting circus exhibit was lent by Miss Louise Schryver, Librarian, Boys' and Girls' Library, Midland. This consisted of wooden figures of animals, ringmaster, clowns, bandsmen and the many characters found under the "big top". These had been carved and painted by school children in Midland and donated to that library.

Vacation Reading

To stimulate summer reading our annual vacation reading plan was continued in July and August. The plan this year took the form of a visit to "The World's Fair in Books." About 87 children took part with some 500 books read during the two months. The children visited the nine exhibits of the Fair by reading a book from each group. These were listed under such names as "Palace of Enchantment," "Animal's Den", "Gallery of Famous People," "Tower of Heaven" and "House of Earth." The last two named represented the Trylon and Perisphere. Those who completed the nine visits were given souvenir coins from the New York World's Fair.

With the Boys' and Girls' Library gradually taking its place as an important branch of library activity, the need for certain improvements becomes more apparent. First and foremost is a suitable desk arrangement. The present table-desk equipment, leaving as it does the incoming books open to the public, results in many mistakes of books taken before they are checked. A suitable and larger closed desk would eliminate this and also allow two people to check books in rush hours.

Two more wall lights in the inner stack room is also a crying need. On dark winter afternoons and rainy days the two outside stacks are in a dim half-light, causing the children to peer closely to read the book titles.

These two needs together with a new floor covering and a touch of paint here and there would make the Boys' and Girls' Library a brighter and cheerier place for its 1866 members.

I wish to extend my appreciation to my assistant, Mary Redfern, whose services continue to supply valuable aid in the after-school rush hours.

With 1939 brought to a successful close we look forward with enthusiasm to the fresh fields of 1940.

Respectfully submitted,
Kathryn Gallagher,
Librarian Boys' and Girls' Library.

Ladies of Wooler United Church Entertained by the Men at a Banquet

A novel event was held in the parlors of Wooler United Church on Wednesday evening, Jan. 31, when the Quarterly Board and other men of the church entertained the ladies at a banquet in appreciation of their financial support during the past year. Much credit for the success of the venture goes to Messrs. Edward Nelson and Hugh Gainsforth and Rev. W. Delve who laid the plans for the meal. The program was in charge of F. Wessels, A. G. Austin and A. Arthur.

The tables were set in a most unusual manner in an attempt to exaggerate man's ignorance of the culinary art and at 7 p.m. about 150 people sat down to partake of a menu which had been kept strictly secret by the committee. On her way to the dining room each of the 94 ladies present received a rosebud. The serving was done by the younger men.

The duties of toastmaster were capably handled by Mr. F. Wessels. The first toast was to the King and was proposed by Mr. P. Gooding and was followed by the singing of the National Anthem. A girls' quartette composed of Roma Austin, Doreen Steinberg, Dorothy and Kathleen Haggerty then gave a well received number. After a few words of welcome by Edward Nelson on behalf of his committee a toast to the ladies was proposed by Mr. C. Brown. This was responded to by W. M. S. President, Mrs. S. L. Terrill, and Ladies' Aid President Mrs. A. G. Austin. It being the latter's birthday, her group took advantage of the occasion to present her with a bouquet of flowers. Other ladies who gave voice to their appreciation were Mrs. Delve, Mrs. W. A. McColl, Mrs. H. Rowe and Mrs. V. Teal.

After a pleasing solo by Mrs. D. Fox, Mr. A. G. Austin gave the toast to the church. This was responded to briefly by Rev. W. Delve and more fully by the guest speaker of the evening, Public School Inspector A. A. Martin. Mr. Martin used as his topic "What the community owes to the church". In a thought-provoking manner he referred to the Church Door as an entrance to peace and contentment, the Church Window as a beacon showing us the way and the Church's Upward-pointing Lines as a challenge to all to conduct lives in a like manner.

The gathering was dismissed with prayer by Rev. Delve and the feted ladies were allowed to depart for home this once with no dish-washing responsibilities to mar their evening. That the evening was a huge success was evidenced by the fact that several of the ladies present proposed making it an annual affair.

The War This Week

By DON GILBERT

Canadian Press Cable Editor

War interest turned to Belgrade in the 22nd week of hostilities when the statesmen of the southeastern European nations gathered in the Yugoslavian Capital to discuss ways and means of promoting Balkan security. London and Berlin centred their attention on Rumania, whose oil resources may well determine the course of the war.

German spokesmen were free with annurances that the Balkan countries had nothing to fear from the Reich, that all Rumania had to do was to ship her oil, her wheat and timber to the Reich and otherwise subjugate her economy to that of Germany. Britain, seeking some return for the financial help she has given Rumania and for her pledge of aid should Rumania be invaded hinted economic pressure would be applied if the Bucharest government showed signs of drifting into the German camp.

The end of the fifth month of hostilities found Hitler again threatening total war on the Allies. As the Nazi leaders have so often said before, he declared Britain had asked for war and would get it. The next day Prime Minister Chamberlain delivered an effective answer. He said the Empire had 1,250,000 men under arms, that seven times as many men were building aircraft today as four years ago, and that in every field Britain's war effort was expanding.

Allies Ready To Meet Crisis.

Premier Daladier of France charging the Nazis sought to enslave Europe, conceded that total war "cannot be long in breaking out", but added the allies were ready to meet it. Yet another war leader, President Kyosti Kallio of Finland, entered the week's speech making. He declared Finland remained ready to conclude an honorable peace with Russia, but would continue her struggle against aggression.

In the fighting in Finland the Russians introduced a new piece of equipment—armored sledges pushed by large tanks. Heavily plated on all sides, the sledges carried machine gunners and protected the advance of infantry. What success the Russians had with the device was not known, but from Moscow during the week there came no denial of daily Finnish announcements of successful resistance to the invader. Finnish airmen raided an important unidentified Soviet base while the Red air force bombed Finnish coastal towns.

British Shipping Harassed.

British shipping in the North Sea was harassed by German bombers. Altogether the raiders, aided by U-boats and mines, succeeded in sinking about 40,000 tons of shipping, equally divided between Britain and neutrals. One U-boat, attacking an allied convoy, was sunk after it had torpedoed a British freighter.

The British Isles experienced the most serious transportation tie-up in history caused by severe Winter weather. Lifting of censorship on weather conditions revealed the entire month had been a difficult one for a country at war, with the thermometer down to 12 degrees for the first time in 59 years and deep snow covering much of the land.

Glancing back 25 years: Germany's submarine warfare became more marked in the week January 28-February 3, 1915. Five British merchant ships were sunk in the Irish Sea and the English Channel in one day. On the eastern front, German and Austrian troops stopped the drive of the Russians, who fell back in the Carpathian Mountains. Airmen were busy on the western front where the enemy lost ground at several points.

British Planes Establish Superiority Over Russians

Gloster Gladiators Pursuit Machines Well Adapted to Far Northern Climates.

NEED GOOD SUPPLY

London, Feb. 3 —(CP)— The Stockholm correspondent of the Daily Telegraph reported today that British planes were used by Finland in bombing the Soviet naval base at Kronstadt recently.

The correspondent said that both American and British aircraft, "all of useful types for northern weather conditions," have been in service in Finland for the past fortnight.

"Although their numbers do not equal those of the Russians who are credited with keeping 400 planes daily in action over Finland, it is believed, if the supply of pilots as well as planes can be kept up, that Finland's worst period in the war is over," the writer said.

"British planes have already established their superiority over Russian machines. British fighter planes in Finland are Gloster Gladiators and the bombers are Bristol Blenheims. The Glosters are particularly suited for work in northern climates because of their air-cooled engines. Water-cooled engines are not suited to flying in Arctic and semi-Arctic regions.

"Those who read between the lines of the Finnish air communiques will have noted during the past fortnight increasing reference to Finnish reconnaissances and bombings of Russian troop communications as well as less laconic reports of bombings of the Soviet navy base at Kronstadt, where the Russian fleet, immobilized by ice, represents a sitting target.

"Most of these raids have been carried out by British craft and have been highly successful."

ADDED ORDERS FOR SUB CHASERS GIVEN BY GOV'T

Orders Have Approximate Value of Ten Millions Official States

46 TO BE BUILT

Ottawa, Feb. 3—(CP)—Additional orders for units of the fleet of 46 steel anti-submarine craft being constructed in Canada for the Canadian and British navies have been given shipyards in Kingston, Ont., Collingwood, Ont. and Port Arthur, it was learned Friday.

These orders will have an approximate value of $10,000,000 which is in addition to orders given Quebec yards announced earlier this week, amounting to $13,200,000.

Total value of the 46 vessels to be constructed was placed at approximately $25,000,000 when the building plan was first announced but it is believed the final cost will go above that amount and that several of these boats will be built on the Pacific coast and possibly some on the Atlantic.

These boats are of steel construction, 193 feet in length. They will be armed with guns, torpedo tubes and depth charge throwers.

Designed after the "whale catcher" type of anti-submarine craft used in the Royal Navy, the new vessels will be divided between the Canadian and British navies.

Delivery of these craft is expected to start about next November according to an announcement last week by the War Supply Board which is handling the contracts. Completion of the orders is expected in 1941.

In addition to these craft contracts are expected to be granted shortly for a large fleet of small auxiliary craft for the Royal Canadian Air Force, including salvage boats, tenders and lighters, and for 28 mine-sweepers for which tenders will be opened next week.

Letter to the Editor

LETTER FROM SASK.

Handsworth, Sask.

The Ontario Intelligencer,
Belleville, Ont.

May I cultivate your generosity to the extent of enough space in the old town paper to again renew our acquaintance with some of our boyhood pals of some 35 years ago and perhaps a number of the older generation of Sidney Township as well.

In 1905 after an eight day trip via the box car route we found ourselves safely landed at Forget ready to tackle the homestead game and grow up with the West. As the years have gone with only one visit to our old home (1012) it would seem our undertaking has been fairly well accomplished.

It might be in order to say that we don't recall many western letters appearing in your paper so thought it might be a good idea to step out and inform one and all that after 10 years of poor crops, drought and dust storms that many a native of Hastings County may still be found in the surrounding district all set and ready but no particular place to go until crop conditions return.

Many schools bearing such names as Flinton, Melrose, Napanee and Marmora furnish proof of origin of the older settlers in these districts who have planted a bit of their original homes here in the West. This has been a very good crop district but the usual practice is to follow mixed farming and a great deal of cream is produced also, beef as grazing conditions are ideal when normal.

Last fall the two grain elevators at Handsworth being empty they were used to store some 40,000 bus. wheat shipped in from a better crop area north of Regina. There has been practically no rain all last season and until lately the winter has been very mild with poor sleighing but at present a cold snap has furnished a temperature of 36 below zero.

Our location is about 40 miles south of Grenfell and 90 miles south east of Regina and in the Moose Mountain area where the land is rolling with plenty of bluffs that furnish an ample wood supply.

We use both tractor and horse power in farming operations also do our own threshing, crushing and wood sawing.

One point that prompted writing this letter was that it might interest your readers to hear that we have a copy of "The Intelligencer of Belleville and Victoria Advertiser" dated January 23rd, 1840, a two page edition published by George Benjamin at 20 shillings per annum by mail and while near the century mark is still in excellent condition.

No doubt this copy at one time belonged to our grandfather James C. Morden on whose farm Bert Finkle at present resides.

In closing this broadcast might we say hello to J. Frederick, F. Finkle, F. Campbell, Col. R. Vanderwater and C. F. Bishop of Belleville.

JAPANESE BOMB FRENCH RAILWAY

French Received "With Surprise and Indignation" Story of Bombing

Paris, Feb. 3.—(AP)— Authorized quarters said today that France received "with surprise and indignation" reports that the Japanese air force Thursday bombed a train on the French-operated railway linking Yunnan province, China, and French Indo-China.

Five Europeans were reported among those killed in the bombing. Most of these were believed to be French although details were lacking.

France, the authorized quarters said, had been given to understand that such incidents, which have occurred near the Indo-Chinese borders before, would not be repeated.

The French ambassador to Japan, Charles Arsene Henry, was reported to have pointed out to the Japanese that the railway involved is of wide international interest since it is the railway leading into Central China.

Mgr. H. Belleau Consecrated As Titular Bishop

Ottawa, Feb. 3 (CP)—Mgr. Henri Belleau, 42-year-old Ottawa priest who has ministered in the James Bay district of northern Ontario for the past 15 years, today was consecrated here as first titular Bishop and apostolic Vicar of the New James Bay vicariate.

Bishop Belleau was consecrated in his new office by Cardinal Rodrigue Villeneuve of Quebec, in a ceremony conducted entirely by brethren of the Oblate Order. The Cardinal was assisted by Mgr. Louis Rheume, Bishop of Timmins, Ont., and Mgr. Joseph Guy, Bishop of Gravelbourg, Sask.

First official act of the new Bishop was to grant his episcopal blessing to his 86-year-old parents.

Mgr. Ildebrando Antoniutti, apostolic delegate to Canada and Newfoundland, who last year made a tour of northern missions by airplane, attended the ceremony in Sacred Heart Church, home parish of the new prelate.

French Negotiate For New-Type Plane

New York, Feb. 3. (AP)—Negotiations by the French Government for the purchase of one of the newest types of pursuit planes being manufactured for the United States Army Air Corps may lend impetus to the aid the Allies are giving Finland.

The French are dickering for a "considerable number" of the speedy Bell "Airacobra" planes, which carry a cannon in the nose and reach a top speed of more than 400 miles an hour.

Army officials said in Washington that they had no knowledge of the negotiations by the French and added that the "new Bell fighter has not been released to the French or any other Government." Before any sale of the planes to a foreign power could be made, approval of the Army-Navy Aeronautical Board would have to be obtained.

The French and British have made no secret of the material aid they are extending to Finland in its war with Russia, both in warplanes and other implements. Since the extent of that aid is conditional on the availability of replacement armament for their own defense, whatever Airacobras are brought here by the French would release to the Finns a corresponding number of French planes.

Finland itself, for that matter, is trying to make direct purchase of Airacobras.

The Bell Aircraft Corporation of Buffalo, N.Y., is ahead of its delivery schedule on an unspecified number of the cannon-equipped planes ordered by the United States Air Corps.

If the French are able to obtain the Bell planes, they will constitute some of the 3,000 pursuits for which the Allies are in the market for delivery at the pier for shipment abroad no later than the autumn of 1941.

They also are concluding contracts, piecemeal, for a total of about 6,000 bi-motored bombers. Conversations in the availability of additional American pursuits also have included mentinon of another plane, which, as yet, is not in quantity production for the air corps.

The Bell pursuit, which is similar to the German single-engine Messerschmitt in armament, is of novel design in that the motor, a liquid-cooled Allison, is mounted behind instead of in front of the pilot. That permits greater streamlining and more speed, in addition to a better field of fire for the pilot.

Duties of Bacon Board Outlined

The Bacon Board have accepted the responsibility of handling the Canadian bacon for export and have the following duties to perform: To ensure regular supplies of bacon as required; to arrange price differentials between grades so as to ensure maintenance of pre-war quality as specified by the agreements; to regulate marketings to the extent necessary to ensure that export requirements will be available; to store product in order to supplement supply in seasons when current marketings are inadequate; to see that hog prices bear a fair relation to the agreed price for bacon and to create a fund out of the returns on exports during the ensuing months from which to support hog and bacon prices later in the year, and to pay storage charges. It is the policy of the government that apart from administration costs, the project shall be self-supporting.

Some good lots of hogs marketed out of the Belleville district during the week of February 2 are as follows:

QUIET SPEECHES WHICH SAY MUCH

Britain may be proud in this day that she has public men of the stamp of Mr. Chamberlain who makes quiet speeches and says a great deal. Some may refuse him the honor of possessing the gifts of an orator but what he says means more than all the rantings of a Hitler who bursts into violent rage of speech to whip up a possibly lagging German public by his slashing and hitting at Britain and France. Mr. Chamberlain creates a mood of quiet confidence in the outcome. Hitler, according to English newspapers, seems like a man who is whistling to keep up his courage.

Chamberlain shows in his quiet way that he believes what he says and that he has confidence and assurance of victory. Hitler does not believe himself and all he is trying to do is to fool his own people. His influence outside of Germany is only negative. Neutrals who have lost most ships in the war through the German U-boats and mines would not trust Hitler's word. He has nothing to offer them.

COLLECTION PLATE VARIATIONS

The church is a place where people, setting aside the material things of life, concentrate on the spiritual—or, so we were taught, it should be. But apparently some people set aside the material things to the point where they fail to recognize the proper function of the collection plate.

At a recent congregational meeting of a church in Belleville a report on collections revealed that even house keys were received in the offerings. (Imagine the deviations from spiritual things when such people return home and can't get into the house!) Other items of collections included buttons, mutilated coins, bus tickets and theatre stubs. The narrator had the ingenious, but plausible solution for the latter item that some people, having spent their thirty-five cents going to a show, had no money for the church and put the stubs on the plate so the church officials would understand.

Perhaps some of these items went on the collection plate as a result of mental abberation; others, due to the reluctance of people to let the plate pass with no contribution—but whatever the reason, it reminds us that the great majority of church-going people take their financial obligations to the church seriously, so that these bulwarks of Christian morality in our community stand firm, with their unwavering promise of better things to come.

ALLIED EFFORT STEADY AND THOROUGH

What gives assurance and satisfaction to the Allied cause in these days is the fact that Britain and France gripped the war with an immediate realization of the vastness of the struggle. They lost no time in getting down to the sternest realities.

On the other hand the enemy probably did not expect intervention. Germany signed a large pact with Russia. To both these situations he has not even yet had time to adjust himself. He boasts today as he did before the war of the old claim that Germany is invincible, though now he claims she is a "has-not" and wants more than she has.

The war is already at a later stage than it was in the other war at a far later period. It was 1917 before German U-boats began indiscriminate raiding. German submarines have lost half their strength already, their destruction of British ships is much less than it was in the days of the heaviest British shipping losses in the other war.

The whole texture of British and French life under war conditions shows that the Allies have learned well from 1914-1918. There is not a weak spot in the war-effort.

The spirit of France and Britain is determined to end such threats to civilization as Nazism. It is the steady pull from the start to the finish that will win. It is not Hitler's rabid utterings that can win. It is Britain's and France's unified effort.

FINLAND OPTIMISTIC DESPITE WAR

Finland knows a great deal about the world. She knows world values, so she has decided to be represented at the New York World's Fair in 1940.

This may be surprising but the Finns have qualities which do surprise. They have the daring courage and the brilliant resourcefulness which they have shown in war.

These qualities which the war has brought prominently before the world were not lacking in the days of subjection to Russia before 1918, they were demonstrated very clearly in the peace days of the Republic when the Finns advanced along many lines to occupy one of the foremost places among the nations of the earth.

Even the handicap of the gigantic and absorbing task of war does not prevent their business foresight exercising itself.

500 REFUGEE FAMILIES

Five hundred refugee families from European persecutions are to find a home in Santo Domingo. The territory which will be used for settlement is favorable as to climate and it is said that 25,000 can be settled there. The plan is to let them have their own communities. They will not enter into competition with the industries which the Dominicans have built up.

New York Times notes that the Dominican leaders are far-sighted enough to know that European settlers can enrich a young country with the fruits of an older civilization. "Capital and organizing ability will come with them and in due course the Dominicans will have medical centres, new industries, roads and harbor improvements which cannot fail to benefit the whole republic. It reflects added credit upon General Trujillo that he has guaranteed the new settlers freedom from molestation, discrimination or persecution and has agreed that they shall have full citizenship under the republic's constitution."

These people who have suffered such heavy losses and sorrows under the Nazi persecutions have proven themselves heroic in resistance to Nazism.

THE MAN SHE WANTS

Letter in Chicago Daily News —Every woman knows the kind of man she would choose to share her life, and I am no exception.

To me, physical appearance is relatively unimportant. The Don Juans of this world leave me cold. My man may have red hair and a nose that is frankly pug; he may have big feet—even freckles. But he must be healthy and wholesome-looking and immaculately clean.

He must be at least my equal in education and my superior in intelligence. I want a man whose opinions I can respect and whose judgment I can trust. I prefer one who is well read and interested in something more than best sellers. I should like him to share my interest in music and enjoy a symphony orchestra and a good swing band. I would want him to be friendly and courteous and able to adapt himself to any group.

He need not be rich, but he must be able to support a home and children. I would be happy to do all my own housework, but I would prefer to go out my door without stepping over the wolf.

He may smoke, he may drink, but he must not get drunk. He may enjoy an occasional night with the boys, but he must also enjoy his home and recreations with his family.

I want a healthy, dependable, intelligent and faithful family man.

Machine War? Yes But Grim Courage Is Still Big Factor

(This is one of a series of war commentaries by Sir Charles Gwynn, British soldier of many wars, commandant of the Camberley Staff College for four years prior to retirement in 1931)

Written for The Canadian Press

By General Sir Charles Gwynn

London (CP)—"It is a mechanized war," they say. "Courage will not stop a tank, or halt a falling bomb, or resist a mine."

No. But courage is still a weapon. The one weapon without which the others are impotent.

Consider what courage — human quality added to the mechanical equipment—has achieved already. Its psychological effect on both combatants and neutrals is likely to endure throughout the war, and prove of greater importance than the strategical results.

The Navy, of course, claims the chief honors. Everyone must appreciate the immense courage shown by the three cruisers at Montevideo and by the two submarines in the North Sea, which inflicted such heavy damage on enemy warships in spite of the protection of mine fields and escorts of destroyers and aircraft.

Less sensational but no less remarkable is the courage of the minesweepers. Without the stimulus of excitement, they carry out their desperately dangerous duties without cease.

The R.A.F. has also shown by engaging fighting aircraft with their bombers that success can be gained by skilll and determination even when theoretically it could not be expected.

Dominions' Aid

Another event has been the arrival of the first Canadian Division Coupled with the news that Australian and New Zealand Divisions are ready to sail, this must make Hitler wonder whether the British Empire can really be in decay.

Apart from the sign of unity of purpose it gives, the military value of Dominion assistance is very great. Those who realize that best are German soldiers who had to fight, and British regular officers who were associated with, Dominion troops in the First Great War.

Quick to learn, thorough in all their methods, and full of initiative and offensive spirit these Dominion troops had no superiors and few equals.

While still raw, the Canadians of 1914-18 came through the first gas attack and Australians and New Zealanders through the Anzac landing in a manner that left no doubt as to their potentialities. Further experience made them the more formidable and at the end of the war they showed no signs of exhaustion.

West Front Today

Many ask what is the meaning of "patrol activity," "raids," and "artillery fire," often mentioned in communiques. Such activities are not intended to produce any decisive result. Perhaps their main object is psychological.

Troops allowed to hold their position passively undoubtedly tend to become inert, bored and either jumpy or careless. Activity and excitement is the best cure.

In addition the training value of patrolling and minor operations is very great. This may sound a hard and dangerous doctrine, but the lessons learned save life in the end.

There is another reason for patrol activity and raids. Information is required of enemy points. Much of that information can only be got by capture of prisoners. It is, for instance, important to know what divisions are holding the position and what extent of front they occupy. That is an indication of the strength of the troops holding the line and the numbers in reserve. The movement of divisions from one part of the front to another or their withdrawal to reserve gives valuable notice of enemy intentions. Information which throws light on the vigilance and state of morale of the enemy is also required.

Artillery activity may be to cover patrols or raids, or it may be merely harassing fire intended to inflict loss—as, for instance, when it is known reliefs are taking place involving movement without cover.

Much of the artillery activity is, however, merely for registration of the exact range of points, thus enabling accurate and intense fire to be opened at short notice when required.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

Taking Notice of the Heart's Danger Signals

"The mistaken notion that heart disease is an absolutely fatal disease must be dispelled, and persons with weak hearts must be taught to live with the hearts they have".

I am quoting Dr. Louis Faugeres Bishop, Jr., in Hygeia.

As stated before, even a damaged or diseased heart can support life at a certain rate of living, even if not at the rate of living of former years, just as a bridge that was able to carry a 10-ton load can be used to carry just 5-ton loads for years.

The bridge didn't lost half its strength in one day, but over a number of years its supports gradually became weaker due to heavy loads, floods, or other conditions or accidents.

"Many persons imagine that heart attacks come suddenly out of a clear sky; they do not realize that Nature sets her danger signals along the path of life. If these signals are heeded, the individual continues serenely along the path of life; if they are disregarded, there comes a crash and we see in the paper the hopeless words "suddenly at 53 of a heart attack". This "suddenly at 53" might have been "peacefully at 80"."

I have spoken before of a professor at the University of Illinois Medical School, who discovered his heart was diseased when he was 40 years of age, and lived within the limits of the strength of his heart for another 40 years.

What are the danger signals which, if heeded, will permit one with a diseased heart to live many years?

There is a slight pain in the chest under the breast bone under effort, excitement, a large meal, or even when resting. Later, this pain becomes more intense, vise-like, and may spread up into left shoulder and arm. Breathlessness, getting out of breath on slight exertion, is another danger signal of a failing heart.

The thought when these danger signals appear is to go first to the family physician and then, if he thinks it wise, to the heart specialist who with the aid of the fluoroscope (Xray) and electrocardiograph can outline the rate at which the individual can live safely for many years.

2,700 Phones On Gov't Exchange

Ottawa, Feb. 3—(CP)—The war has geared up government business to such an extent that the Public Works Department has had to add 500 telephones to the government exchange service on Parliament Hill.

The company National Defence Department suddenly mushroomed into the busiest department in the capital, its telephone requirements have tripled since the outbreak of war. National Defence telephones occupy 4 1-2 pages in the special government telephone directory just issued compared with a page and a half in the old issue.

Other departments and the new wartime boards and commissions accounted for other additional phones to bring the total up to some 2,700 telephones, which cost the government $100,000 a year The lines and instruments are leased from the Bell Telephone Company at a special rate. The government has its own private switchboard at the telephone company's main exchange office.

Canada My Home

by
ARTHUR L. BURKE

Of all the realms however free,
There is no place so dear to me,
No land I treasure more.
Than Canada, Dominion fair,
Where men are men who do and dare,
As in the days of yore.

Her fields of golden grain that gleams
As do her rivers, lakes and streams
In outlet to the sea.
Her forest wealth and minerals rare,
No land with this can I compare,
No people quite so free.

There is no flag that takes the breeze
Or floats upon the seven seas
That means so much to me
As does the old red, white and blue,
That speaks of justice, freedom too,
No matter where we be.

This is the land that gave me birth,
No brighter, better land on earth
Than Canada, my home.
No other land my love shall share,
It matters not, however, fair,
Or cause my feet to roam.

No land so perfect in its parts,
Where men acknowledge in their hearts
An Architect Divine.
O may this land that speaks of Thee
Receive in all equality
The blessings that are Thine.

January Night In French Hub With War Garb

By GLADYS M. ARNOLD

Paris.—It is an authentic winter setting—snow on the roofs, streets and hiding the green lawns of the parks under a mantle of soft brilliance. Paris is well into 1940—only too glad to shake off an old year which has little to merit remembrance.

A wartime January evening in "Gay Paree". Nightfall—four o'clock —the aperitif hour, and cafes, terraces and bars are invaded. The great majority are in uniform—soldiers on leave, officers, under-officers, sailors, aviators, desiring to spend a few hours gaily in the company of their families or friends.

The number and variety of uniforms is impressive. There are at least a dozen different French ones in addition to the colonial troops and dashing legionnaires, then several Polish officers, Czechs, not to mention the navy blue, khaki and steel grey of British officers and aviators.

"Oui," answers a waitress smiling, "Soo-tchan-zooda! Oui, Monsieur le Capitaine!" In the alcove at the window the Poles are celebrating with a dash of vodka.

At the same time crowds churn ceaselessly along the wide boulevards, and avenues, pausing before the obscurely lighted stalls at which one may buy inexpensive souvenirs, old books, fresh nugat, or take a chance on a wheel of fortune in the hope of winning a bottle of champagne or a ticket on the national lottery.

Paris of Wartime.

The evening advances and at the dinner hour the crowds dissolve into the soft wist which wraps the city in a Dickens atmosphere — silent, mysterious, deserted. The cars and buses, dimly veiled, pass with the soft swishing sound of a skate cutting through soft ice, turn deftly, noiselessly.

Shapeless masses gather and separate. A rare shadow materializes for a fleeting instant under the glimmer of a street lamp—a glimpse of dark eyes, a smile, then lost again in the fog which battles against the blurred moonbeams which try in vain to pierce it.

There—a group of soldiers who laugh out suddenly. Two or three yards away they are invisible, but their voices carry. A number of young blue-caped policemen join them to share the joke ("sidewalk swallows", the French call them slangily) and warn them against making too much of a row. A whiff of charcoal mixed with a rich nutty odor—the chestnut vendor's stove glows against the old stones of the Conciergeric—where Marie Antoinette spent her last days imprisoned.

The glacial wind flutters a skirt at the corner—a corner even more obscure than the others. A feminine silhouette pauses, loiters, a whisper —and disappears. It is cold—colder than Paris has known in years—a cold which deepens one's compassion and pity for those scantily-clad, high-heeled shivering figures whose poor life it is to pass the night in God knows what miserable room in such freezing weather.

Fragments of 1914-18.

A voice in the shadows—a soft insinuating voice. "Voila, Mademoiselle, please—just a minute, I mean no harm." We pause—a little old man in rusty black. Approaching the lamp post he follows, reluctant to come out into a less gloomy spot. Wizened—pinched, a bit bleary.

"Yes, madame—I fought in the sainted war—yes, four years of it, against the barbarians—could you give me a 'metro' ticket, or a bus ticket? Just the price of a bus ticket?" (Also the price of a glass of wine.)

"Which barbarians?" we ask curiously.

"All of them, the Germans and Russians—yes, the Japanese and Soviets", he added generously, his voice becoming animated. "Hah — the Finns will finish them—yes—four Finns for 84 Russians—it is easy." His voice trailed off. "Just a metro ticket to get home to my poor lad. I fought in the sainted war." He had evidently already swallowed several metro tickets.

The man's head began nodding again. "Yes," (confidentially) "it's nearly over. Hitler is crazy, he's fool crazy and he's afraid. Afraid of Goering and Stalin. It's Goering, you will see—in three months Hitler will be dead — or locked up — fool crazy."

It's All Assured.

"Who's going to win " He brightened up, sure now that he was making progress. "The French, always — since Joan and the Blessed Angels—and the British," he added. "A metro ticket—yes, madam, the war will soon be over."

We reached for a metro—that is, the price of a metro ticket—our prediction for 1940 being worth it. He mumbled his thanks, repeating "Yes, madame, I too fought in the sainted war."

The bells of Saint-Francois d'Assise Chapel ring. A public mass is being held at midnight. According to a report the radio is carrying the sound out across the ether to the ends of the earth.

They must be heard over there in Canada one's thoughts cling to those tolling notes which can be heard from Halifax to Victoria and suddenly the mist, the dim blue of the street corner — the faint spires of Notre Dame fade and one is among evergreens. One can imagine the odor of Canadian pine.

Depth Charge From Trawler Destroys Sub

Stavanger, Norway, Feb. 3 (AP).—A depth charge from a British trawler destroyed a German submarine after the submarine torpedoed the Swedish freighter Pajala, the freighter's crew reported today on arrival here.

The trawler was accompanying the 6,873-ton Pajala to a contraband station Jan. 18 when the fight occurred, they said.

The Danish steamship Hroar, which brought the crew here, also brought survivors of the Vidar, 1,353-ton Danish freighter which struck a mine two days ago and sank with the loss of 15 of the crew of 23.

THE GRAND JURY

The Grand Jury—empanelled at all Assize Courts—after hearing an outline of the Crown case against a person accused of a crime, determines whether there is sufficient evidence to warrant trial. The system is a relic of the days when Magistrates were not generally persons learned in law and might commit persons to trial on flimsy evidence.

Added to the original functions of the Grand Jury has been the duty of inspecting public institutions. The report of Fred Barlow, Ontario Supreme Court Master, on Ontario's judicial system, noted that this inspection function has been superseded by regular Provincial inspection services.

……. Save $50,000 Yearly …….

It was estimated by Mr. Conant that $50,000 a year would be saved in Ontario by the end of Grand Juries.

Another move towards economy in judicial procedure was a bill brought in by Mr. Conant to reduce the number of jurors required in county and district court civil actions. Twelve jurors are now statutory. Under the new measure, the 12 would be reduced to six.

The six-man jury will folow the practice of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, though there it has more general application, said Mr. Conant.

The House heard from Premier Mitchell Hepburn that there is little prospect of legislation this session to implement an agreement between the Province and the Dominion in regard to the St. Lawrence Seaway project.

Mr. Hepburn said he had anticipated a measure this session and that a tentative agreement had been reached with regard to power development on the River. However the main treaty would have to be ratified first by both the United States Senate and the Dominion parliament. Parliament could not reconvene in time to do this, should an international agreement be reached, before prorogation of the legislature.

Glad to Confer

The Premier said he would be glad to confer with Conservative Leader George Drew on the Seaway project.

Discouragement of youths who buy correspondence school courses on the promise of a job to follow is a serious problem, Education Minister Simpson said as the House gave second reading to a Bill to amend the Trade Schools Regulation Act.

The amending Bill increases the penalties for the sale by unlicensed persons or corporations of correspondence school courses. Maximum penalty now for unlicensed solicitation is $100. The Bill increases this to $2,000 for individuals and $25,000 for corporations.

The Minister said one United States correspondence school in 1938 had 14,000 pupils, in Canada whose annual fees contracted for would exceed $3,000,000.

Paint Department Stressing

Leopold Macaulay (Con. York South) wondered if the apparent popularity of these schools did not show a fault in the Provincial Education system vocational guidance. A lot of boys going through academic courses would be better off learning trades.

Dr. Simpson said Mr. Macaulay emphasized what the Department had sought to stress—the futility of putting all boys through the same mold. A great many boys with small-salaried jobs in the city or on the farm were high-pressured into signing for correspondence courses. "The salesman practically guarantees a job," he said.

The Minister said there were many reputable trade schools and they were satisfied with the act and the proposed amendments to it.

A measure fixing at $5,000 the annual taxes to be paid on the Blue Water Bridge to the village of Point Edward was given third reading today by unanimous consent. The bill also went through committee stage today and Premier Hepburn asked for the third reading in order that litigation over the bridge taxes might be ended immediately.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

When dispassionate historians start analysing events of the Second Great War a century or more hence they may speak about the "battle of oil."

That battle is raging without the exchange of shots or shells. The men who fight it wear civilian clothes but in their cunning and resourcefulness they yield nothing to the uniformed generals behind the lines in France and Germany.

Today the battle of oil rages most fiercely at Belgrade where statesmen of the Little Entente nations, Rumania, Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey meet in conference.

Struggling to hold her precarious neutrality in the face of German demands for oil from Rumania wells and British and French demands that the flow of oil to Germany be restricted, Rumania seeks the support of the other Little Entente states.

Outside the conference room the agents of the warring nations wait and plot. In their minds is the idea that they may not only help their own nations to victory but save many lives by hastening the victory.

Evidence of Germany's concern with the attitude of the Balkan states, particularly Rumania, came in one of the rare official declarations of policy by Joachim von Ribbentrop, German Foreign Minister. He said neither Germany nor Russia contemplated any military action in southern Europe.

The southeastern nations will no doubt weigh Von Ribbentrop's assurance along with the fact that Germany had a 10-year non-aggression pact with Poland prior to the start of the present war and that Russia had given no less solemn assurances to both Poland and Finland but found it convenient to send the Red army into those countries.

AT THE BELLE

"THAT'S RIGHT, YOU'RE WRONG"

Marking the first film appearance of Kay Kyser and his famous band, "That's Right, You're Wrong" co-stars Kay Kyser and Adolphe Menjou at the head of a brilliant cast in which is said to be the novelty screen hit of the season.

"That's Right. You're Wrong", now on the Belle screen joyously probes the troubles encountered by a film company in trying to produce a band leader picture. The first attempt has Kyser as a romantic Latin type—and by no stretch of the imagination can Kyser be considered a torrid Latin lover!

After several successive attempts to shape a likely story, the scenarists gave up. Meanwhile the members of the band go Hollywood in a big way; and the luckless producer, unable to see any other way out of the dilemna, tries to manoeuvre Kyser into breaking his contract.

The scheme almost succeeds when Kyser is informed of the producer's chicanery by the disgruntled scenarists. He turns the tables on the producer by agreeing with all his ridiculous suggestions, even making a complete screen test as the romantic Venetian gondolier of the original story.

The producer's further attempts to ease Kyser out of the contract, and the popular batonist's retaliation in side-splitting manner result in a unique climax to this hilarious melodic screen fest.

Refreshing in its presentation and its ingenious plot, "That's Right—You're Wrong", is said to come as one of the most entertaining offerings of the year. "The College of Musical Knowledge" radio program with which Kyser achieved radio fame is presented in the course of the story, featuring his entire company, including Ginny Simms, Harry Babbitt, Sully Mason and Ish Kabibble, who introduce a notable quintet of catchy new tunes in the hit parade groove.

As the double-crossing producer, Adolphe Menjou has one of his funniest roles to date. May Robson as Kyser's common-sense grandmother; Lucille Ball as a glamour girl; Dennis O'Keefe as manager; Edward Everett Horton as an eccentric scenarist; Roscoe Karns and Moroni Olsen form the principal support.

The popular Belle British newsreel, news of the hour especially compiled for the Belle Theatre, a funny comicolor cartoon, "Good-Egg," and a thrilling and entertaining Sportscoop "Sky Game", complete the program.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Espionage Agent"

Warner Bros. have added one more hit to their great collection of Service dramas. In the past their pictures have dealt with the American forces on land, sea, air and under water. They now show you the diplomatic corps in action. You saw the army at school in "Flirtation Walk," the air force in "Wings of the Navy" and the underwater service in "Submarine D-1." Now in their latest great hit, "Espionage Agent," coming next to the Capitol they show you Uncle Sam's Foreign Service at work. Joel McCrea and Brenda Marshall are co-starred in the film, which was directed by Lloyd Bacon. The added feature on the same program is "All Women Have Secrets" is the dramatic title of a new kind of college picture which Paramount will present with a half dozen of the studio's most popular younger players in the top roles. With Virginia Dale, Joseph Allen, Jr., Peter Hayes, Jean Cagney, Joyce Mathews and Wanda McKay very much in the limelight. "All Women Have Secrets" takes up the experiences of three young couples who dare to get married while undergraduates and combine the problems of marriage with the problems of getting through college. With depression, campus rivalries and the inevitable babies bringing one complication after another, the collegiate newlyweds experience many a stormy situation until an unexpected turn of events clears their path to happiness.

"Our Fighting Navy"

The timely sea thriller, "Our Fighting Navy," made with the full cooperation of the British admiralty with an added action western "The Days of Jesse James" starring Roy Rogers is now playing.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, February 4

SUNDAY'S horoscope promises much success and gratification for all clerical, church and intellectual interests, but in other directions there is urgent need for prudence and vigilance against deception, fraud, trickery and intrigues.

Those whose birthday it is may look for some solid achievement through diligence, hard work and from past effort of accumulations during the year. But there is much need for discretion in other affairs, with particular watchfulness as to treachery, intrigue, schemes and plots, especially when affixing the signature to documents.

A child born on this day may be shrewd, clever, deep thinking but quick acting. It may jump into dangerous and doubtful enterprises through schemes, sharp practice or subtlety, although it may be suspicious and over-critical.

For Monday, February 5

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a memorable and surprising development in the affairs that may be considered radical or reactionary. The mind will be quickened into strange, perhaps unique paths, demanding a complete about-face from old and effete views, philosophies and systems. This may lead to fresh fields of adventure.

Those whose birthday it is are on the brink of a year in which there may be a complete change in their lives—mentally, physically and in associations, plans and environs. Such radical change may beget fresh or startling ideas and innovations, and bring dramatic or sensational experiences or adventures.

A child born on this day may have extraordinary talents which may be born of new and even spectacular ideas which, when applied to business methods, scientific research, invention, travel or aeronautics, may be deemed revolutionary.

Rubbing is hard on fabrics, so when you wash let soap, rather than friction, do the work. You will thus spare yourself and the garments in the washtub. Also remember that the longer soiled clothes or household linens go unwashed, the harder they will be to get clean.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

How's Your Voice—Does He Love It?

American women's voices, so it is said, have rasped in high treble for generations. Suddenly they became conscious of the power of that excellent thing in woman, a voice gentle and low, to adapt Shakespeare.

It seems strange when all the poets from Shakespeare down to the latest rhymester in one of the smarty magazines have stressed the potency of the woman's voice to evoke love, that we American women have been so indifferent about the question of our speech, not to mention the much advertised "How to win Friends and Influence People". We've been indifferent under the indictment that the American voice is the most unmusical and rasping of them all.

But now we have begun to sit up and take notice. Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was recently the honor guest of the Woman's National Press Club luncheon in Washington, and with her came her instructor in voice culture, Elizabeth Von Hesse of New York. That started the voice marathon off full tilt. About 200 women with faces upturned like soup plates swallowed every syllable of what Madame Von Hesse had to say about vocal culture.

Before the luncheon was over, Mrs. Roosevelt's instructor had turned the entire party into a class stressing consonants, reciting poetry, giving resonant head tones, chest tones and so on.

Madame Von Hesse dashed the hopes of ladies laboriously courting the broad A, and sometimes slipping up on it in their speech, by declaring there was no place for the broad A in any language. She intimated there was a smack of the Cockney about what we fondly cherish as an "English accent", repeating the British charge that Americans are a nation of mumblers. She said one of the principle reasons is because we are careless listeners. "Sing when you talk", she suggested, "and use your higher tones judiciously".

Too rapid speech was another fault, and a frozen upper lip makes distinct articulation difficult. It is important to toss T's and D's and stress the consonant P.

As if we hadn't to catch our breath after all these do's and don'ts, Mrs. Roosevelt was up bright and early the next morning opening a meeting of Mrs. Hugh Butler's winter course in practical platform speaking. This particular audience at Pierce Hall numbered many official wives, who hoped to talk their husband into re-election, and wanted to know all about the best platform voice, manner and gesture, which would help reinstate father in his old job.

A wife no longer is to be seen, but not heard, one lady confided, and all wanted to be able to stand up in an emergency, ready to help out her husband, when he went back home to mend his fences.

Mrs. Roosevelt, however, was not unqualified in urging wives to go in for public speaking. "If you really don't want to speak", she said, "I don't see why you should". However, she said she thought that training would banish fear from every amateur, and that a speaker would do well to learn how to think on her feet and try not to antagonize her audience.

Not to be left out of this voice business little old New York recently listened to Josephine Dillon, Clark Gable's first wife, who had some interesting things to tell about feminine voices, before leaving for Christian College in Missouri.

If we American women have as dreadful voices as our European sisters insist we have, there's positively no excuse for it. We're in the same place as the canaries in the bird store, after a good dose of Song Restorer has been prescribed.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Don't Open Another's Letters Sans Permission

To open another person's mail without the permission of that person is dishonorable. Close relationship to the person does not alter this fundamental rule of courtesy, of decency.

We should respect, and we should insist that our children respect, letters, postcards, telegrams, or messages of any kind that are addressed to someone else. Members of families have no more right to open letters or telegrams addressed to people in their home than they have to open messages addressed to people outside their home. It's unmannerly; it shows a lack of respect for another person's property, and it is an affront to human relationships.

I have heard more regrets and bitter complaints from members of families about this discourtesy than about any other family indignity. If the rule hasn't been definitely established in a family, a son or a daughter finds it difficult to speak about this personal discourtesy for fear of offending. If he or she is brave enough to speak about it, it is met with lack of understanding or with unpleasant comments. This shouldn't be, and it shouldn't be necessary.

Curb your manners when you see a letter or other message addressed to anyone else. Curb your comments. And—probably most important of all—curb your curiosity.

Don't take for granted that you have the person's permission to open letters or telegrams addressed to that person. Be sure that you have his or her permission or—HANDS OFF.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

1—Will you please advice me if it is correct to have a large church wedding, the bride wearing a white wedding dress and bridal veil, if the groom has been maried before? The etiquette books, of course, say very definitely that if the bride has been married before, her wedding should be very quiet and simple, no bridal veil and so on. The bride-elect in this case is young and very beautiful, and we would like her to have a real wedding.

2—Is it correct to send invitations to the people who were invited to the groom-elect's first wedding?

C.

1—This lovely young bride-elect may correctly have the real wedding you want for her, even if the bridegroom elect is a widower. (If he is divorced, this is, of course, a question of your church denomination.) That is, since the bride is being married for the first time, the details of her wedding are the same, whether she marries a bachelor or a widower. So she may have a large, formal church wedding, wear a white wedding dress, bridal veil, orange blossoms.

2—Yes, by all means send wedding invitations to the friends of the bridegroom. There is no reason why they should be omitted from the list, just because they were guests at his first wedding. Friends are friends . . . and that's the important thing.

Courtesy Tip

At any social occasion where there are patronesses, every guest must be presented to them. If the circumstances arises when there doesn't seem to be anyone there to make the introduction, guests may properly introduce themselves.

Fashion Flashes

THERE'S DRAMA in some of the new glove designs. For instance, a pair of white lizard gloves have black palms and black stitching.

Take time off when you are out next, and note how many women are wearing chiffon evening gowns. A gown of filmy white chiffon has shoulder straps of mother-of-pearl sequins, similar sequins forming the belt and dotting the skirt.

Leisure hours are beautified by beautiful housecoats. A new model is in cherry red velvet with gold embroidered flowers forming the belt and edging the cowl collar.

The evening scene is painted with many new color and color schemes. A gown of delicate blue satin has the bodice made with a low point in front. It is embroidered in copper sequin which also form the shoulder straps. Heart shaped neckline in front.

No matter where you go you'll find those pretty daytime frocks of sheer wool in pastel colorings. Sky blue woollen in a novelty weave is used for a smart frock which has a henna brown suede belt. For afternoon it is dressed up with a gold kidskin belt.

The latest conceit is the evening glove trimmed with contrasting ostrich. A white kid glove has a band of flamingo pink ostrich, while a black suede glove has a band of white ostrich.

GIRL AT THE FRONT
by ROB EDEN

Claire breathed easier when he had given her change, and settled back in a seat. She had glanced casually about the bus when she entered but aside from two men, dressed in rough working clothes, and a woman carrying a large basket which she kept carefully on her knees, there were no other passengers.

At the village the bus paused for several minutes, and Claire was nervous when the driver disappeared into a building.

"Did he suspect her?" "Was he calling the police?" were questions which rushed through her mind. By a tremendous effort, she controlled her feelings outwardly and pretended to be interested in the dozen or more passengers who climbed aboard.

Finally, the driver reappeared—alone—and after he had collected tickets and fares from the new passengers, the bus lurched onward to Berlin. Claire could scarcely believe she actually was in the heart of Germany, each passing minute bringing her closer and closer to the man she loved—Bill Cameron. Where was he? Was he still safe? Would she be able to find him—give him the message that had been entrusted to her?

The bus was stopping more frequently now. Men in uniforms of various sorts were among the passengers, but they seemed intent on their newspapers or on pamphlets they drew from their pockets. They paid not the slightest attention to the girl who was quaking with fear as she shrunk down in her seat.

It was a little after eight o'clock when the bus finally rolled into the heart of Berlin and drew up to a stop at Unter den Linden and Friedrich strasse.

Claire had been in Berlin that summer with Bill Cameron and they had rooms at a hotel near where she alighted from the bus. The German diplomatic corps at that time had done everything possible to make their stay pleasant. Tours and trips about the city had been arranged for her while Cameron was attending conferences, and there had been constant entertaining for both of them after hours.

Claire hoped that she would be lucky enough to avoid running into the many persons she had met then or, if she did, they would not identify her as the American girl who purposedly spoke German very badly when she was with them. This was at Cameron's suggestion, on the theory that she might hear things not intended for her ears if it were thought she had merely a smattering of the language. She had picked up several bits of information at that, which helped him considerably in his negotiations.

Claire had learned the downtown district of Berlin fairly well during her previous stay, and unhesitantly turned where Jaeger strasse was, but she found it after a walk of only four blocks, and had little difficulty in finding Frau Weber's shop at the address that Yorke had given her. The door was securely locked, and repeated knocking brought no response. She would have to return later.

Nearby at a small restaurant, she ordered rolls and chocolate, and had a bad half minute when she almost asked for coffee—something that was then being rationed so carefully that it couldn't be bought in any restaurant.

She'd have to be very careful—watch every word she uttered—never make one false move.

CHAPTER 14

Friend or Foe?

It was nine o'clock when Claire finished her simple breakfast. She turned again down Jaeger strasse and walked slowly to Frau Weber's shop.

The door was unlocked this time, and as she opened it a small bell tinkled overhead. The girl looked curiously around, but so far as she could see it was nothing more than it pretended to be—a small shop where newspapers and magazines and stationery were sold. The store was neatly arranged, and the floor was spotlessy clean.

In a case toward the front of the shop were displayed dozens of photographs and colored lithographs of Hitler and when a short, rather heavy-set woman approached from the back and inquired if she could serve her, Claire bought a small photograph of Der Fuehrer.

"I'd also like like a copy of the Tageblatt," she told the woman in German.

As the paper was handed to her, Claire, her heart racing inquired in a low voice. "Am I speaking to Frau Weber?"

The woman, whose deep-set eyes had seemed a dull brown at first glance, eyed the girl closely for a minute and Claire saw a sudden lively interest reflected in her face.

"Yes. And who might you be?" she asked.

For answer, Claire dug into her purse and produced the key "Z.Y." had given her and repeated his message for Cameron. Frau Weber seemed to understand the meaning of "Z.Y.'s" instructions.

As she turned to make change for the girl's mark note, Claire heard the front door of the shop open and hastily turned her back, pretending to be interested in the headlines of the paper she had just bought.

Frau Weber went forward at once to greet the man, and Claire stole a glance in his direction and almost collapsed.

The man was George Roland who had been introduced to her three nights ago in Paris as an American importer! Later she had gone with him and his wife and the others to Maria Herczek's flat!

What was he doing here? Frightened, Claire shrank into a corner. Suppose he should turn and recognize her? What could she say?

Perhaps he would denounce her as a spy! Run to the door and shout for the police!

Roland was addressing Frau Weber in a low tone, and although Claire caught an occasional word she could not make out what he was saying. He was speaking German, very good German, and speaking very rapidly.

As Claire glanced out of the corner of her eyes, Frau Weber answered Roland, he nodded and then walked back through the store, opened a door and disappeared. Claire breathed a sigh of relief; he hadn't looked in her direction. Apparently he hadn't even noticed there was any one else in the shop.

When she was sure he wasn't coming right back, she came out of the corner and spoke to Frau Weber again. The woman seemed slightly nervous. With frequent glances toward the back of the shop, she told Claire in a low tone she had better go away.

"It will be all right to return at five this afternoon," she said. "I would advise you to keep off the streets—don't go into any place where there is any danger of being recognized."

Claire wanted to ask a hundred questions, questions about Roland, about Cameron, but Frau Weber had so obviously been upset by the sudden appearance of Roland that she decided she had better take her advice and clear out. The questions could wait until later.

"Is there a church nearby?" Claire asked. "That would be a good place for me to keep off the streets without being questioned."

Frau Weber nodded her black head quickly and gave the girl rapid directions.

Carefully walking eastward several blocks, and north a block without seeming to be in too great a hurry, Claire made her way towards Hedwig Church. She had chosen a church instead of a railway station as she reasoned that members of the Gestapo—Hitler's greatly feared secret police—undoubtedly kept a close watch on all public gathering places. She must not attract attention, must avoid any suspicious move, or she would certainly be closely questioned.

Thinking this as she walked, her strained nerves became jumpy. Her thoughts went back to George Roland. Why had he gone to Frau Weber's shop? Why was he in Berlin? Where did he go when he left Frau Weber's shop? Why was he in Berlin? Where did he go when he left Frau Weber's? Perhaps he had noticed her and would notify the police.

Her guess in regard to Hedwig Church was entirely correct. The door, when she pushed it, swung open, and she slowly entered the dimly lit interior and found a seat in a high-backed pew. If she were quiet, she might reasonably expect to stay there as long as she wished without interference. Gradually her active mind became calmer and she was glad she had sought a church as a hiding place. She had been raised in the church herself, and firmly believed in the basic doctrines of Christianity. Perhaps, unconsciously, that was why her thoughts first turned to a church as a place of refuge. When she reasoned it out, it seemed the sensible thing to do.

There were no lights on in the church, the only illumination coming from the rays of the sun streaming through the stained glass windows.

After she had been there some time and her eyes had become accustomed to the dimness, she made out several other worshippers seated in pews, their heads barely showing above the backs of the high seats. An hour or more after she had entered, she saw the bent figure of an old man moving slowly down the aisle, and watched curiously as he painfully climbed the steps of the organ loft.

In the silence of the church, she could hear the old man fumbling with the stops on the organ, and then it suddenly pealed forth in an air that seemed strangely foreign to the peace and quiet of the house of worship. It was the "Horst Wessel," the anthem of the Nazi party, and Claire shivered and shrunk down in her seat as the stirring melody filled the huge structure. It seemed to echo and reverberate as it struck the walls, intensifying the sound until it was almost unbearable.

It finally came to an end just when Claire thought she could stand no more of it and was about to risk everything by fleeing out into the street.

When he had finished, the aged organist turned and looked around for several minutes, seeming to search out every face of the half dozen or so persons within the edifice and at last, as though satisfied, he turned again to the organ and began to play.

These were sacred songs he played now, playing softly with a touch that made the instrument whisper the melodies. And well they might be whispered, for they had been written by Mendelssohn, Handel, and other famous composers whose genius had brought glory to Germany in the past but whose works were now strictly verboten.

The music soothed the girl's jangled nerves and for a time she forgot who she was and where she was. These actualities did not come swarming back again until the spell of the magic had been dispelled, when the organist suddenly opened all the stops and roared out with "Deutschland Ueber Alles," and then turned and hobbled out of the church. It was a concession he apparently made to any spies who might be listening for the treasonable note of any non-Aryan tune, ready to denounce even a crippled old man if they could prove anything against him.

After a time, when the organist had long since gone, Claire found herself again reviewing her situation. She wondered about Roland. Thinking of him and his apparently close friendship with Maria and Rene and even Noel Yorke, she asked herself whether she had fallen into a trap.

Should she trust Rene and Noel, or 'Z.Y." as he persisted in being known to her, as implicitly as she had? Her life was literally in their hands and if she had been misled, betrayal might be a matter of minutes. She might have been led on deliberately, with the chance of seeing Bill Cameron held out to her as bait.

Were "Z.Y." and Rene Martin German spies, too? She didn't believe it possible, and yet seeing Roland in Frau Weber's shop had given her reason to doubt every one.

But Rene Martin? Surely she could trust him. If ever she had met a Frenchman who seemed loyal to the core, Captain Martin certainly was. But again she recalled his friends — acquaintances at least. The Rolands? She had met them at Maria Herczek's flat. Rene Martin had been there too. But Maria Herczek? Who was she? A Russian of the old regime, she said, and evidently Martin was in love with her.

These thoughts swirled in her mind as she prepared to leave the church for the uncertainties of another visit to Frau Weber's shop.

The Infectious Disease Season

In the next few months all over this continent there will be outbreaks of various infectious diseases among children. There will be mumps and measles and whooping cough and scarlet fever. There may even be some cases of smallpox, although this disease is becoming rarer each year. The principal reason we will have these outbreaks is that the winter months are beginning to take their heavy toll of children's vitality. There is less sunshine and the sunshine vitamins, there are fewer fresh green vegetables in diets. And in the cases of many children a series of colds, or a prolonged one, has sapped vitality until it is at a point where it is an easy prey to infection.

Consequently, now is the time for parents to give their children extra protection against infectious diseases.

Fortunately, the modern child doesn't run the same high risk of disease that we of the prior generation did in our childhood. For example, smallpox used to be regarded as incidental to the life of each person as death and taxes. It used to be that almost every year brought an epidemic of the disease that killed many and left more with scars to be borne the rest of their lives.

Vaccination saved the new generation from all that. Vaccination was always one thing I insisted upon in my country district. I think the results justify all that I did to make it accepted, too, for it has been a good many years since there has been a single case of smallpox in this part of the country.

There must be no letup, however. And it is only a short time since the local Red Cross nurse and I finished a tour of the schools on which we vaccinated every child.

Inducing the people in my frontier section of Ontario, up in the North woods, to be vaccinated, was not easy a few years ago. They were mostly hardy pioneers, French Canadian stock, used to accepting hardships and disease as a natural part of human existence. They looked upon smallpox as something to be expected and suffered, when I began going around the country, visiting their homes, to tell them the periodic outbreaks of the disease weren't necessary. And it was difficult for some of them to understand how by scratching an arm and rubbing in a fluid, a doctor could prevent smallpox. The underlying fact of vaccination, that one attack of an infectious disease will protect the body against subsequent exposure, was not always easy for them to understand. Fortunately, many of them knew me and were willing to take my word for it. But some were not so tractible. They refused to accept any such ideas. In these cases I called in the parish priest to help me persuade them.

Many a time I've demonstrated on my own arm, how harmless vaccination is. I discovered how effective this demonstration could be when I had to deal with an old Frenchman with a large family, about half of which had had smallpox. I know that soon another epidemic would come along and get the younger children. So one day when I was at the home seeing a sick child, I proposed vaccination. I could see that the parents didn't like the idea. The one man thought about it awhile and then said, challengingly, "You wouldn't do it to a child of your own".

There is plenty of precedent in medical lore for what I did then. Catherine II of Russia calmed the wild fears of the peasants about vaccination by having herself publicly inoculated. Benjamin Waterhouse, the first American vaccinator, convinced doubters by inoculating seven of his children and then marching them to the pest-house to be exposed to smallpox.

My reply to the old Frenchman was to roll up my sleeve right there and then, scratching my arm and rubbing in vaccine. The father's face lit up and you could see his distrust going, as he thought a little more about it. Then he called a half dozen of his children to me. He was convinced. I vaccinated his family. There hasn't been a case of smallpox in it since.

Letters From the Troops

Eldorado, (Special)—The following letter was received from Sergt. Vernon Strebe, of Aldershot, England, by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Strebe of Eldorado.

"Dear Folks at home—

"More than a month has passed since I have arrived in England, and I have not as yet heard from you. I surely will be glad to get a letter. I am well but the weather is very damp and chilly here.

"Well, I finished my course and passed. They gave me leave from December 23rd to January 3rd. I applied for a travelling warrant to Scotland, but they didn't hand any out, so the result was that I came to England.

"December 22nd received our pass, but could not go far as we had to wait for our pay so just wandered around. Details omitted, as it was a large experimental airport. The next day we walked back to Aldershot, (two miles), and received our pay. Left for Station at 9 p.m., (B.M.T.), and when the train came in it was packed. The coaches are different, all partitioned off, straight backed cushions that seat six people. When I arrived in London went immediately to the Union Jack Club for H.M. Forces 1s (shilling) for bed. The next morning they turned all the Canadians out. We were then recommended to this place "Victoria Club" for overseas forces. Bed, bath and breakfast for 2s. 6d.

"It is a dormitory for the University of London. So one can imagine how lovely it is with its oak panelled lounge and reading rooms. An ordinary room rented from a boarding house costs at least 5s. So you can see how much we save by staying here. I paid in advance till January 1st., so if I do get broke I'll have some place to sleep.

"Sunday 24th., went to see Westminster Abbey. I had just entered when I met a Canadian colonel and major. We were standing around chatting when a figure in red approached us. He shook hands and seemed please to welcome us Canadians. Then from his pocket he took a key and said, "Come with me, gentlemen". He showed us the oldest part of the Abbey, the tomb of Edward, the Confessor. Then opening an old iron door we climbed a stone circular stairway, the stones being worn, from so many pilgrims' footsteps.

At last we entered the shrine that the Confessor had built immediately above his tomb, so that prayers could be offered for his soul. On a beam was formerly hung his saddle, helmet and sword; in a niche in a wall were formerly placed his bone as relics—now removed for duration.

"Another highlight of our trip around the Abbey was the Chamber of the Order of Bath. There, around the sides were little seats on the back of which were placed the Coats of Arms of all the Knights of the Bath, back through the ages. Above each seat was a rod that held their respective banners. We were allowed to sit in the chair, that each king sat in when he was inducted to that society.

"I could write pages on the beauty of the stone, carved ceilings and woodwork but I will only say that when we were leaving we shook hands with and said goodbye to the one who kindly took us around —The Dean of Westminster Abbey.

The colonel and major then took me to their exclusive hotel near Trafalgar Square. There I met many war refugees, who were throwing a concert. It was a beautiful place and the strange menu and numerous eating utensils would have swamped me, if it hadn't been for my former training aboard ship.

"For Christmas I was invited by Mr. and Mrs. Ruckert at Ealing. Ealing used to be the central residential district for the well-to-do people. Mr. Ruckert is general sales manager for Kraft Cheese Co. They had lived several years in Holland, South America, United States, Canada and now in England. They were very charming couple and I enjoyed my meal. I really made a pig of myself and became filled up for the first time since I left Canada. Loads of turkey, chicken, cranberry sauce, and real honest to goodness English plum pudding with lots of sauce, my I could hardly walk when I finished.

"The University of London, British and London museums, etc., are all closed for duration being used as bureaus of information, etc. It is a wonder they didn't take over the zoological gardens at Regent Park. When I was enquiring of directions, a policeman said, "I wouldn't go there, now, if I were you". "Why not", I said. He replied, "They're looking for specimens". (Ha ha.) But it really is a grand place with everything imaginable.

"Mme. Tussard's booklet accompanies this epistle and describes her show better than I, except I might say, that you can hardly tell the difference between the doorman and his wax model till he winks at you.

"Here in all the parks you see construction companies busy completing air raid shelters; everywhere you look you see wardens and placards with direction also pubs on every corner. I always travel by subway; a really marvellous system. You're not affected by fog or rain or auto accidents. Just wander around and when you find you're lost go to a subway and perhaps you can get where you want to for 1d.

"I went ice skating the other night to Westminster Arena. Just like a huge theatre to enter with a real orchestra, etc. Cost 1s. 9d., including a set of figure skates. I did a couple of nice stomach slides because I would forget about the claws in the ends of the skates. But funny as it was, the English never razz anyone. No one even laughs out loud. Very different from Canada. Here I met an engineer officer in the Marine Services from South Africa. He told me so vividly of conditions in his country that I'm quite anxious to visit there when this war is over.

"I went slumming one day into the poor districts. Narrow filthy streets and hurdy gurdy's playing. A couple of English women spotted me and came over to chat; very soon the whole neighborhood gathered around.

"They thought I was quite a curiosity and asked me all kinds of questions about Canada. I gave their children some coins and you should have seen their eyes pop.

"One good thing about the system here is that medical care is given free.

"I also met Lord High Commissioner and his wife of Canada, Vincent Massey. Had quite a chat with him. They seemed to be very pleased to see a Canadian.

"Took the train to Saddler's Wells' theatre to see the Opera "Othello". Very intereting when it is being seen for the first time.

"I went to church at "The Inner Temple". A church situated in the centre of the Law Courts, a very select church. The lawyers and their families of one school sitting on one side of the church and lawyers of another school sitting on the other. The congregation is high class. I couldn't get by the barriers being only a sergeant. They have the best boys' choir in London.

"After church a gentleman, Mr. Martin, stopped me and asked if I would care to dine with him. I went to his home (Finckley Road), a lovely place, really a mansion, with maids, etc. They served a full course menu and I surely enjoyed it. They had a lovely son about twelve years old with wonderful English language. He is going to Naval Academy in Portsmouth to be an officer (eventually). Mr. Martin had served thirty years in India. In the evening I was invited to a cocktail party out in rich St. James district given by a Sir—. Curious, I went and purposely arrived one hour late. It seemed the idea being that one becomes acquainted with high class people. The party was nearly over when I arrived all the drinks were consumed. Most every one feeling good. Sir — asked me what lady I would like to be introduced to as I was a perfect stranger. I looked around and they all looked like movie actresses. The one I was presented to was very wealthy and Irish. The party was over at 8 p.m. Then you were supposed to take your companion out to finish up the evening, properly. I was very lucky for my lady had a previous engagement for 8.30. So I went back to Victoria Club to write out this record.

"New Year's Eve I went out to Blackfriars to watch "The Times" go to press. "The Times" is the oldest paper in England. They had a special news correspondent covering the Napoleonic war with a fast clipper ship to carry the news quickly. During the Crimean war a reporter stayed with the British forces and it was through his articles that the pitiful conditions of the army were brought to light and medical aid and Florence Nightingale sent to relieve the suffering. Now it is a most speedy and modern paper. They described and demonstrated each process as it followed in sequence right through the procedure.

"Next morning I reluctantly returned to Aldershot to rejoin the Hastings and Prince Edward regiment which are expected to arrive tomorrow. I will be overjoyed to meet my platoon. What is ahead of me. I do not know and am not worrying about it. I'm going to enjoy myself irregardless. When you write tell me if the censors stroked out much information. The weather is terrible here now, foggy and icy cold.

"January 9—They gave me the works today. Am getting along fine with the tanks and can sure go places. I was congratulated on my handling, (a very rare thing in the army). I am anxious to hear from you again. The mail service is terrible here.

"I received Christmas cards from several and wish you to thank them for me. Will you please? My future address,

"Sgt. Strebe V. No. C.A.S.F., Base Post Office, Ottawa, Canada."

Flyers Rally in Third Frame To Defeat Belleville Redmen and Eliminate Team from Race

Redmen Hold Edge in Play for 50 Mins. by Goal in Second Period

GOALIES STAND OUT

Flyers Put on Pressure in Last Frame and Score Four Goals

Rallying in the third period to score all of their goals, the R. C. A. F. "Flyers" eased the Belleville Redmen out of the current Intermediate "A" series of the O.H.A. at the Hume Arena last night when the "birdmen" came from behind to win over the courageous Redmen by a 4 to 2 score. Fast, hard-checking hockey was seen throughout, with five of the six goals coming in the latter stages of the last frame. In the neighborhood of 500 witnessed the pastime.

Facing elimination in defeat the Redmen carried the play for the first fifty minutes and were leading 1-0 late in the third period, as the result of Bill Storms' second period solo effort, following a scoreless initial stanza. Sensing what might have been their first O.H.A. win of the season, as they looked slightly the better club for the greater part of the piece, the Redmen failed to cover Lemieux in the last stanza as McNab skated in to make the play that saw Lemieux knot the count. Legris and Gathercol combined to put the Air Force in the lead for the first time at the 14 minute mark, but the advantage was whittled down on a smart and effective combination play that saw Storms set-up a pass for McCreary, who beat Gibson handily and the game stood at 2-2. McNab's long shot beat Hinton and Higgins made it 4-2 by whipping home a loose puck and the season's hockey chances of the Redmen passed into oblivion.

Goalies Stood Out

In the first two frames the goalkeepers stood out quite dominate, with Gibson and Hinton making some remarkable saves. Both teams checked hard and strenuous with the result that an even dozen penalties were meeted out by Referee Bill Steen of Kingston, seven of which went to the Flyers. In the initial period Herb Windsor sustained a nasty forehead gash that required medical attention as the result of being accidentally struck by "Mush" Higgins' stick.

Harry McCreary stood out for the Redmen and played sterling hockey, going both ways. Bill Storms and the Jackson brothers were also effective. For the Air Force the veteran "Pop" Irvine was the balance of difference and proved the steadying power of the winners. Deryer also played a strong defence, with Coach Holway's second line of McNab, Lemieux and McLeod carrying the more effective sting and punch.

The shots on net by periods were:

Air Force	9	7	11—27
Belleville	12	8	8—28

The line-ups:

Belleville—Goal, Hinton; defence, St. Louis and McCreary; centre, C. Jackson; wings, Barriage and W. Jackson; subs, Yates, Pringle, Howie, Levesque, Windsor and Storms.

Air Force—Goal, Gibson; defence, Deryer and Irvine; centre, Legris; wings Baldwin and Gathercol, subs, McNab, Higgins Harrison, Lemieux and McLeod.

Referee—Wm. Steen, Kingston.

Summary:

1st Period

No score.

Penalties—St. Louis, Deryer 2, Baldwin, Storms and Irvine.

2nd Period

Penalties—Levesque, Irvine.

3rd Period

PATTY BERG WINS GOLF TITLE BY DEFEATING JAMESON

Coral Gables, Fla., Feb. 3—(CP)—Women's golf can have a lot of zing attached to it. Golf experts pointed to those two healthy husky youngsters, Patty Berg and Betty Jameson, who battled over 38 holes in a sensational golf match, as an example.

Patty defeated Betty on the 38th yesterday to win her fifth straight Miami-Biltmore women's golf title. It was nearly pitch dark and the girls were verging upon exhaustion when Betty, the San Antonio star, missed her tee shot on the short 38th and lost to the scrapping redhead from Minneapolis. They had been deadlocked at the end of 18 holes and at the end of 36.

They dug in and fought coolly and courageously and neither displayed a trace of nerves. When it was over Betty, the National Champion said: "The better golfer won—I'll tell you that."

Possibly Patty had a slight edge on the Texas girl. Patty hit a slightly longer ball and on holes up to 450 yards put an iron second shot alongside the pin. Jameson, however, chipped with such deadly accuracy that most of the time all she needed was one putt. For a stretch of nine holes she used up only 11 putts.

Pro Puck Personalities

LOUIS TRUDEL

Canadiens.

Louis Trudel

In the earlier, cheerier days of the present National League season, when Montreal fans were looking forward to big things, Canadiens had as their second line Louis Trudel on left wing, Rod Lorrain on right centred by Polly Drouin, Trudel is the only one who's been consistently around, as Drouin went down to New Haven, and Lorraine was out for a time with injuries. And the American-born French-Canadian has been giving full measure every time out, skating and checking after the manner of the team's No. 1 left wing Toe Blake. Trudel is in his second season with the team after five seasons with Chicago Black Hawks, from whom he was secured in a trade for Dis Desliets. Born at Salem, Mass., and thus one of the few American-born players in the league Louis grew up out west and played his amateur hockey around Edmonton, before turning pro. with Tulsa Oilers for the 1932-33 season. Moved up to the Hawks the following season. The next year was his best in a scoring way as he put together 11 goals and the same number of assists for a point total of 22. Until the beginning of this season his arithmetical array looked like this: 35 goals, 59 assists, 94 points, plus 96 minutes served in penalties. Served a short time with New Haven after joining Canadiens. Full name is Louis Napoleon, and his age; going on for 27.

QUEBEC CITY'S SENIOR TEAMS SCORE VICTORIES

Montreal, Feb. 3—(CP)—Quebec City's two senior hockey teams which have followed strikingly similar tracks—to the cellar—all season, showed signs of rejuvenation last night as they came through with victories in Quebec and provincial league games.

The wins probably won't help either team much in the chase for playoff position, for both are all but out of the running, but it did have some effect on their opponents' bids for higher ranking.

The Aces, Quebec's entry in the Q.S.H.L., defeated Cornwall Flyers 6-4 in Cornwall for their first victory in 14 starts. The loss kept Flyers four points away from fourth place, the last playoff berth in the circuit.

Meantime, at Quebec, the Beavers were beating Verdun Bulldogs 4-2 in a provincial league encounter. The loss was a blow to the Montreal district team, a present waging a merry battle with Shawinigan Falls and Valleyfield Braves for the last two playoff posts in that circuit.

In the only other senior game, Boston Olympics came through with a total in the last second of overtime play to beat Sherbrooke Red Raiders 4-3 before a record crowd of 15,408 Boston fans. The victory placed the Olympics within three points of Raiders of the P.S.H.L.

MELIO BETTINA POUNDS APOSTOLI INTO A PULP

WINNER MEETS CONN

Apostoli Taken Hospital Immediately After Bout is Finished

(By Judson Bailey Associated Press Sports Writer).

New York, Feb. 3—They all stay too long in the fight game.

Fred Apostoli, the San Francisco bellhop who once was considered the best boxer in the world, pound for pound, must know it today lying on a clean white cot at Polyclinic hospital across the street from Madison Square Garden.

He was rugged, confident gladiator, former middleweight champion of the realm, when he climbed into the ring last night for a 15-round duel with Melio Bettina of Beacon, N.Y.

When the gong clanged shut on the 12th round he was a shambles, staggering, unable to find his corner and looking deathly sick.

Couldn't go Any Further

The bout couldn't have gone any further—referee Arthur Donovan, manager Larry White and the crowd of 12,000 all made up their minds at the same time. White also decided Apostoli wouldn't go any further on any other date, either.

Weighing 173 pounds, 2 1-4 more than his foe, Bettina paced himself better than ever before and incomparably better than last month when this same Apostoli took a disputed decision from him in this same ring. He dominated nine of the 12 rounds and belted his foe into a helpless, pitiful pulp.

"I could have gone 25 rounds tonight," he gasped gleefully afterwards. "I found myself. I don't wanta boast, but I'll knock Conn bow-legged when I meet him again."

Opponent For Conn

That was the purpose of the bout, to find an opponent for Conn in another lightheavy title test and that was the winner speaking.

But not very many persons were around to hear him. Half the population of Beacon, N.Y., seemed to be milling around impatiently outside his dressing door, but the reporters were mostly standing silently around a table in that other room where Apostoli lay moaning, "I'm sick....sick as a dog.... I can't breathe."

A doctor came, found Apostoli suffering from shock and nervous strain, and took him to the hospital to rest.

In a preliminary to the Apostoli-Bettina bout, hard-hitting Billy Marquart of Winnipeg dropped a 10-round decision to Tony Marteliano, rugged Italian-American from New York's east side. Billy weighed 136 pounds, 4 1-2 less than Marteliano.

TORONTO VARSITY BEATS TRICOLOR

Fortify Position at Top of Intercollegiate Loop by 3-2 Win

In case they're not yet aware of it, someone should tip off McGill University hockeyists right now that if they aspire again this year to the championship of the International Intercollegiate Hockey League there is plenty of opposition in store for them.

Since the league was organized, the Redmen regularly have walked off with the title. It may be a different story when the present season ends because of the pace University of Toronto is setting.

Last night at home, Toronto fortified its position at the top of the league standing with a 3-2 victory over Queen's University. It was Toronto's fifth victorious game without a defeat and also left the team alone on top of the Canadian intercollegiate series.

McGill hasn't lost any matches yet but has played only two games. Queen's record is three victories and two losses, both to Toronto.

The game last night was decided in the last two minutes when Jack Quigley counted for Toronto breaking a 2-2 deadlock.

In the final minute of play Goalie Buck Burrows was taken from the Queen's nets and an extra forward was sent on but to no avail.

Toronto got the opening goal when Art Boddington beat Burrows after eleven minutes of play and Thor Stephenson made it 2-0 two minutes later.

Queen's first point was counted by Bob Neilson after five minutes of the second period and Norv Williamson tied the score after 15 minutes of the third.

TEN NEW, NINE EXTINCT

London, (CP) — Ten new peers make their bow in the 1940 Debrett register of British nobility, but nine peerages became extinct in 1939. The premier barony of England, created in 1264, fell into abeyance with the death of the Countess of Dartrey, Baroness de Ros in her own right.

CANADA'S SPORTS LITTLE AFFECTED BY WAR'S ALARMS

Future Uncertain but Meantime Nation's Games Go On With Most Athletes Training for 1940 as Usual

MANY IN ARMY

By JACK CALDER

Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Feb. 3—(CP)—Canada's sports program has gone ahead almost undisturbed by the war, though scores of athletes have enlisted with the fighting forces and others are awaiting the call to colors.

Canadian rugby football playdowns were staged before thousands, while the National Hockey League and the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association have swung into successful seasons. Most sports organization have expresed the desire to provide relaxation in time of mental strain.

Whether the same condition will apply in another year is a different matter. For the moment, only a part of the country's athletes have been needed in the war effort.

Sports leaders have been quick to enter training for the time when they will be called up and organizations like the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada and the Sports Service League have devoted time and money to aiding sports among the soldiers. The C.A.H.A. has set aside $5,000 to foster military sports and some military units have entered teams in the C.A.H.A.

C. Ross (Sandy) Somerville, six times Canadian amateur golf champion and once United States amateur champion, was among the first to join up, and is a lieutenant with the Canadian Active Service Force in England, Robert (Scotty) Rankine, the country's foremost distance runner, joined the Perth Regiment (Machine Gun) at Stratford, Ont.

(Hockey As Usual)

Toronto Maple Leafs managed to gain a lead in the first weeks of the National Hockey League schedule, despite the fact every member of the club was taking machine gun drill. The Leafs and Montreal Canadiens cross the border to play United States teams as easily as ever. Every member of the McGill University football team and most members of other college teams entered the Canadian Officers' Training Corps.

It is the Dominion government's expressed wish that civilian activity should follow normal lines as closely as possible, and soprts leader have fallen in with that idea. There is no need in Canada, either for such a ban as that placed on big sports gatherings in England, where air raids are feared.

To scores of athletes who had hoped for chances to compete in the 1940 Olympic Games the war has brought disappointment. The winter Olympics were to have been held in Germany and the summer games at Helsingfors.

Abandonment of the Olympics may mean a slackening of interest in track and field sports next summer, for the prospect of an Olympic team position has given many a goal to work for in the past four years.

Despite the war, preliminary plans have been laid to hold the British Empire Games at Montreal in 1942.

Tommy Farr May Fight Jack Doyle in London

London, Feb. 3—(CP)—London's first big heavyweight boxing show since the war may bring together Tommy Farr, recently discharged from the Royal Air Force through bad eyesight, and Jack Doyle, the unpredictable Irishman.

Earlscourt Empress Hall has been fixed as the venue and Feb. 26 as the date but as air raid precautions restrictions in the London area insist on a 5,000 house limit other plans may be considered. This might mean the fight would be staged in the suburbs, probably Wembley.

According to one sports writer, Farr has been guaranteed £2,500 plus 30 per cent of the gate while Doyle has been offered 20 per cent of the gate but is negotiating for more.

PEERLESS PAAVO IN NEW YORK TO SEE GAMES

Nurmi Along With Maki Will Appear at Millrose Games

CANADIANS ENTER

Billy Fritz of Queens in 600-Yard Race With O'Connor in Hurdles

By BILL BONI

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Feb. 3 (AP). — It is probably his famous and familiar sense of timing that brings Paavo Nurmi back to the United States today, just in time to find a new generation of runners taking pot shots at one of the many records he put on the books.

Fifteen years ago Peerless Paavo ran in the last Millrose games to be held in the old Madison Square Garden. He set a world record of three minutes 3.8 seconds for three-quarters of a mile. Tonight, in the 33rd annual Millrose games, in the new Garden, the three-quarter mile run will be on the program for the first time since then ,and Paavo and Taisto Maki, the 1940 "Phantom Finn", will be in the crowd of 15,000 or more.

Nurmi's 3:03.8 no longer is the world record. But it's only fourtenths of a second slower, it still stands as the meet record, and as such it will be one of the objectives for John Borican, Archie San Romani, Wayne Rideout and Tommy Deckard when Johnny McHugh cocks his starter's pistol.

The 600 yards is a distinctive race for at least one reason—there'll be a Millrose A.A.U. man in the field for the first time. He's Sanford Goldberg, the hard-working fireman and hard-running middle distance star, who'll go to the mark with Charlie Beetham, indoor 600-metre champ; Jim Herbert and Wes Wallace, 1938 and 1939 winners, and Bill Fritz of Kingston, Ont.

Last year Fritz, Queen's University star, led the field all the way only to lose in the last five yards to Wallace who came with a burst to win by a foot in one minute 12.3 seconds—the second fastest time in the history of the event.

The mile, marking Glenn Cunningham's last appearance in this meet will find "Ole Man Mile" shooting for his seventh victory in eight starts.

The second Canadian in the meet, Larry O'Connor of University of Toronto, is entered in the 60-yard hurdles.

HAWKS PLAY TWICE DURING WEEK-END

Meet Toronto Tonight and Take on Detroit at Chicago Sunday

By the Canadian Press

This is neither the birthday nor the anniversary or any other festive occasion so far as Jack Adams is concerned, but congratulations definitely are in order for the manager of Detroit Red Wings.

Adams had had more than his share of woes since the foundering of his great National League clubs of the 1935-36 and 1936-37 seasons. Gradually, Adams has rebuilt until the Wings once more are taking shape as a good, if not great, unit.

Slow to start this season, the Wings finally have hit a winning stride. They have gone unbeaten through their last five games scoring three victories and making up two draws. What makes this record impressive, however, is the fact that the victories came over the N.H.L.'s "Big Three"— Boston Bruins, New York Rangers and Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Wings will be seeking to run their undefeated string to six straight when they tangle with the Black Hawks tomorrow night at Chicago in one of three Sunday clashes. At the same time Canadiens take on Rangers at New York and New York Americans clash with the Bruins at Boston. The Hawks are the only club playing twice during the week-end, meeting the Maple Leafs at Toronto tonight.

The Belleville Redmen passed out of the Intermediate O.H.A. picture at the hands of the Air Force last night and those few privileged to see the elimination fully agreed the Redmen went down battling courageously and were a credit to themselves even in defeat. For over two periods last night the scarlet-clad Belleville pucksters dominated the play and perhaps deserved a better fate than they were forced to accept. However, the Holway-led Flyers seemed to bide their time and when the occasion arose the "birdmen" proved great opportunists to capitalize on the few chances they had to score. There was little quarter asked or given, as both teams commenced hostilities with that win or die attitude.

Referee Bill Steen of Kingston, was on hand to handle the whistle-tooting and following the outbreak of hostilities during the Peterboro-Air Force game on Monday, Steen actually leaned over backwards and tossed the players into the penalty box at the least provocation to assure himself that no repetition of Monday's fistic outbreaks would ensue. Incidentally one of hockey's oddities occurred last night when "Pop" Irvine sallied down the ice, shot at the Belleville net and Hinton made a marvellous save, but Irvine's rifle-like drive was so fast and hard that it broke Hinton's goal-stick cleanly into two pieces. Last night's Air Force victory elevates the Holway-led clan into a striking position whereby they can still tie Peterboro and our local loop is far from completed as yet. However, one fact stood out last night—we failed to see one good honest old-time and legitimate body-check handed out by the defence players of either team.

The New York Rangers were organized 13 years ago and the veterans of that first year are now making good as coaches.

Bill Cook is at Cleveland and his brother Bun, at Providence. Ching Johnson manages Minneapolis, Paul Thomson has the Chicago Black Hawks, Murray Murdoch is coach at Yale, Frank Boucher helps Lester Patrick with the Rangers and Butch Keeling has the Kansas Club.

Ice hockey now has its farm teams, and the hope of Patrick is that some day he will be able to put a team on the ice that is made up entirely of Americans. But to date little progress has been made.

Secretary Jack Yanover, of the Belleville Quintes, is still awaiting a reply from the Perth "Red Wings" relative to the bringing of the Perth juniors to Belleville for an exhibition next week. The "Easterners" proposed a Saturday game here in their first correspondence, which was not believed to be a sound financial undertaking on the part of the locals. The management of the Quintes are contemplating an exhibition game here with the Oshawa Generals, Dominion junior champions, if the price is right. In the meantime it's junior hockey at the Hume Arena on Monday night when the second-placed Trenton kids make their final appearance of the season here. The local kids have not lost a single game this season and will be out on Monday night battling to keep their unblemished record intact.

Do you remember when New York decided 13 years ago today that hockey was a great game and the city should have more of it? The Americans were drawing such crowds that a second team was planned, and Conny Smythe of Toronto gathered players for the Rangers. Lester Patrick replaced Smythe as manager after organization was complete.

Up along the shores of the Trent River they are endeavouring to organize a ladies' hockey league. Already two teams have signified willingness to participate in such a loop. The Bata Shoe Company and the Trenton High School are sponsoring girls' hockey teams and they are anxious to include a Belleville feminine sextette into the picture. The Bata people have secured a suitable trophy for the proposed district girls' hockey loop and interested persons should contact "Red" Brummel at the Bata Company as soon as possible. Some years ago a successful girls' hockey club was operated in Belleville, while we understand that inter-form hockey is now being practiced among the gals and lassies at the Belleville Collegiate. A berth in the loop is available to any interested person.

Fred Zimmerman, sports writer for the Salem Capital Journal, reported today that Paul Rowe, who played Canadian football with Calgary Bronks last year, may sign up with the professional New York Giants next fall.

Rowe, once a fine grid prospect at the University of Oregon, was with Calgary in the Western Interprovincial Rugby Union last year.

There'll be plenty of fun with a capacity house to witness the proceedings at Boston on Sunday night when the New York Americans make their first appearance against the Bruins when they'll find Eddie Shore, that dynamic hockey personage, in the uniform of the Amerks. The reaction of the patrons will be keenly awaited, as Shore has always been the apple of Boston's hockey eye. Incidentally the Americans have won their last two games since Shore joined heir ranks after being traded by the Bruins.

Sport Spice — When passing out the bouquets in connection with last night's demise of the Redmen, toss a goodly portion of the floral tributes int othe lap of the floral tributes into the lap of in his best performance of the season and was effective going both ways....Strangely enough another defenceman "Pops" Irvine of the Air Force, also shone on the game's horizon, but seemed quite displeased with the rulings of Referee Steen, who in turn had the finger on "Pops" all night.... Wally Elmer's good Kingston junior club assured themselves of first place in the Kingston junior O.H.A. group by trouncing Queen's kids last night....Gananoque 15; Napanee 0 and for why.

FOXBORO FOXES AND GLEN ROSS STILL ARE TIED

Foxboro Downs Ivanhoe 7-0 While Glen Ross Beats Zion Hill 5-1

SMART CONTESTS

Stirling, Feb. 3 (Special).—Jockeying for position is about all that remains in the regular schedule of the Central Hastings Rural Hockey League before an expected close play-off series is set in motion. Glen Ross "Riverside" and the Foxboro "Foxes" went into last night's double-header tied for the loop leadership and emerged exactly the same with each adding two points by virtue of victories. With only one more game of the regular schedule left to play they are side by side in first place four points up on their nearest rival. The task of breaking the tie and pairing off the semi-finalists will be completed with the next game. Ivanhoe is definitely out of the race and second and third teams will play home and home games with goals to count with the winner meeting the loop leaders for the championship. In the first set-to last night played at the Stirling arena before a good crowd of spectators Foxboro "Foxes" won easily over the short handed ill fated Ivanhoe squad 7-0 with Wright starring to the tune of four goals. The second game went on record as one of the best of the season in spite of a one-sided score as the husky Glen Ross "Riversides" defeated the Zion Hill "Irishers" 5-1. The games were both fast and clean with only one penalty being served in the entire 120 minutes of hockey.

Play-off Should Pack 'Em In.

With increasing crowds throughout a successful season the teams have given the customers some real hockey thrills and four points or less will separate the three leaders as they enter the play-offs within the next week. Record crowds are expected for these games.

First Game.

Meeting the short-handed Ivanhoe squad Jack Stewart's Foxboro "Foxes" added a couple of points downing the "easterners" 7-0 with Wright being the star of the game scoring a total of four goals. His first counter came at nine minutes and less than a minute later he repeated and there was no further scoring in the first period. At the beginning of the second period Elder made it three and midway through the game Wright scored his third counter on a nice pass from Gough. In the final period Wright clicked again. Gene Spencer was responsible for the other two counters. Thompson Elder, Jack Guay, Dafoe and Gough were the pick of the winners with Reid, H. Thompson and Murray going best for Ivanhoe.

Ivanhoe—Goal, Delve; defence, Thomilson, Reid; centre, Thompson; wings, Bray, Murray; subs, Woods, Murphy, Fleming, Downey.

Foxboro—Goal, Norm Guay; defence, J. Guay, N. Walt; centre, Elder; wings, Thompson, Spencer; subs, Gough, Dafoe, Wright.

Referee—Conley Ackers, Stirling.

Second Game Faster

In the second feature of the evening Zion Hill and Glen Ross gave the customers a treat to the fastest game of the year and the "Riversides" won by a score of 5 to 1. It was no indication of the play as the game was much closer than the score indicates with Hagerman getting credit for an excellent evening's work in Glen Ross nets. After a scoreless first period in which the "Irish" had the edge in the play, ten minutes of the middle frame had passed when Doug "Pepper" Martin notched the first one. Just before the period ended G. Fraser rifled one past Gifford to put the winners two up and after two minutes of the last period G. Pyear scored. Hagerman and Brown were responsible for their other two counters. Eddie Simms scored the lone tally for the Irish as Brooks served the only penalty of the game.

Next Tuesday night will wind up the schedule and the only change that can be made is in the standing of the first three teams. The first of the play-offs is slated for next Friday night when the second and third teams meet for the first of their two-game series. Officials are trying to arrange the games to give customers an hour's skating by starting the games at seven-thirty. The teams:

Glen Ross—Goal, Hagerman; defence, Brown and Fraser; centre, Martin; wings, R. Pyear and G. Pyear; subs, Armstrong, Brooks, Macdonald and Hagerman.

Zion Hill—Goal, Gifford; defence Brough and Dickey; centre, Simms; wings, Bedford and Faulkner; subs Tummon, Wm. Clarke.

Shortt announced today.

Butter Prices Somewhat Lower

Toronto, Feb. 3 — Butter prices struck a weaker note yesterday as demand continued to wane on the Toronto open produce market. Eggs were firm, however.

Unsettled in undertone throughout the day, butter eased fractionally in the afternoon. A few odd sales of first-grade Ontario creamery solids had been made at 27½c during the morning, but the price later dropped to 27¼c. with some sellers holding out for the original bid. Trading was quiet and draggy. Offerings were light, but buying interest was absent.

With receipts clearing easily, eggs closed the week on a firm note. The noticeable inactivity which developed on the market last week-end was in evidence only for the first few days of this week, during which period prices dropped ½c to 1c per dozen. About midweek a better feeling became evident, due to improved local demand and out-of-town enquiries.

New, large, current-make cheese was quietly steady at a nominal selling price of 19½c. Offerings were few, and local trading slowed to a virtual standstill as the week-end approached.

Montreal Produce.

Montreal, Feb 3 (CP).—Produce market prices here as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter — First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 28½c to 28¾c; first grade solids, jobbing price, 28c to 28¼c.

LITTLE CHANGE IN SATUR. PRICES

Grade A Eggs Sell for 25c— Good Quality Chickens at $1.15-$1.40

Despite the fact that more or less ideal weather conditions prevailed, the city market today was productive of nothing apart from the usual mid-Winter Saturday offering. The majority of vendors confined their activities to the comparative warmth of the inside market, although a few of the veterans remained in the cool tang of the outside.

There was little or no change in general price levels, and stocks were of average quantity. Egg prices remained unchanged with extra quality "A" selects selling at 25c the dozen. Slightly inferior quality was offered at 23c with mediums selling at 21c. Farmers' butter was steady at 30c the pound in one and two-pound rolls, although in some quarters the latter were offered at 55c.

The chicken offering was fair, with general quality being good. Choice weighty June and July birds sold well at prices ranging between $1.15 and $1.40. Yearlings were quoted from 90c upwards, with fowl ranging anywhere from 60c each. A few ducks were offered at from 90c to $1. the bird.

Home-cooking booths were well patronized with shoppers availing themselves of the delicacies offered. Sauer-kraut appeared plentiful and popular selling at 10c a quart.

On the outside market beef hinds and fronts were offered at 10c and 12c the pound, with pork quarters quoted at 14c and 16c the pound for fronts and hinds, respectively.

Cuts of pork were sold at one booth by white-coated vendors.

Northern Spys marked a slight increase in price today, with choice No. 1 stock offered at $1.40 the hamper, a few cents increase over quotations of a week ago. Starks sold at $1.26 for packed fruit, with Tolman Sweets and a few Russets offered at $1 the bushel.

Vegetables were steady with plenty being offered. Carrots, beets and turnips sold at 60c the bushel, with onions offered at $1.25 for the same quantity. Winter cabbage was quoted at 40c the dozen heads.

Whitefish headed a variable fish display, selling at 20c the pound. Some good quality mudcats sold at 15c for the same amount with pike offered at two fish for 25c. Lake herring was quoted at seven for 25c. A few young pigs were offered at prices ranging between $5.50 and $7.00.

FARMER NEIGHBOR

gation at the Provincial Police headquarters. It was further stated that Thain had purchased five shot gun cartridge shells from a store some miles from his home on the Eighth of Rawdon Township, the purchase said to have been made on Wednesday afternoon last. Thain was a life-long neighbor of the murdered couple and resided on the farm immediately west of that occupied by the Wellman family.

The funeral of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wellman will be held on what was to have been their 55th wedding anniversary. The services will be held in Stirling on Sunday with interment following in the family burial plot.

Fred Thain, middle-aged Rawdon farmer, and a member of the coroner's jury empanelled to probe the tragedy, was arrested last night by provincial police on a holding charge in connection with the Wellman slayings near Harold on Wednesday. The aged couple were slain on their farm, their heads blown off by shotgun blasts.

The arrest was made by Inspector A. H. Ward and Sergeant Harry Thompson as he sat at his table eating supper with his family. The Thain house looks down from a knoll on the frame dwelling of the slain couple on heavily wooded property.

The farmer showed no emotion as he told his startled wife, "I'd better go."

The arrest interrupted a minute investigation that began Thursday by provincial police following receipt of the news of the double murder.

Searching the Thain house, police discovered a number of grain sacks, and a shotgun. It was first believed that the gun kept in the Wellman house had been used in the attack, but this theory was discarded when the family gun was discovered behind a cupboard by Dr. A. L. Wellman, son of the murdered couple.

Police Comb District

Under Inspector Ward, who assumed charge of the case two days ago, police combed the surrounding district following leads arising from shreds of evidence unearthed in their investigation of the scene of the murder. All day yesterday, by car and sleigh, and on foot, across fields, and through snowfilled highways and byways they tracked down the leads at their disposal. Tirelessly the investigation which centred on the footprints of a man, hoofprints of horses, and a quantity of missing grain believed stolen from the Wellman barn, went on.

The police visited the home of Thain, whose property is contiguous to that of the slain Wellmans. His house and barn are situated on a rising knoll that overlooks the Wellman property, and part of the surrounding district.

Eating Supper

When police entered the house, the family consisting of Thain, his wife, and two small children were seated at the table eating supper. Startled, the wife looked questioningly at police officers as they strode into the kitchen. Inspector Ward removed Thain to another room for questioning, while a wondering wife endeavoured to get information from other police officers.

A few minutes later, Thain and Inspector Ward emerged from a nearby room, Thain was wearing a hat and overcoat. Mrs Thain asked officers, "Where are you taking him?"

In terse police language, characteristic of the trained police investigator, Inspector Ward replied, "he is under arrest" Thain turned to his wife. "I'd better go," he remarked simply.

The warrant for Thain's arrest had been issued yesterday by County Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan at the request of Inspector Ward, who stated that he was anxious to question the man further.

Dr. C. N. Mooney, Toronto, acting chief coroner for Ontario, said today that he believed a new jury would be sworn for the Wellman murder inquest, following the arrest of one of the jurors in connection with the case.

Neighbors Gather at Wellman Home

Yesterday, as newspapermen stood in the barnyard of the Wellman home two miles east of this village, they came from all parts of the district. Through the winding snow-filled road that leads from this village to the scene of the tragedy, singly, in pairs and in little groups; from the back concessions, faithful horses straining as they walked through drifted fields and sideroads, hauling sleigh loads of humanity, in sleek cars, in automobiles of ancient vintage, they converged on the little farmhouse bound by the common bond of sympathy, anxious to do what they could for a sorrowing, grief-stricken family.

In the garb of their calling they greeted one another in low, subdued tones. They stood in little groups about the scene that most of them knew well. Hardy sons of toil, they conversed about the chief topic in their minds. Overall-clad, heavy rubbers on their feet, woollen caps pulled about their ears and hands thrust deep in pockets of heavy overcoats, they reminisced of the days before stark tragedy reared an ugly head over the community.

Their eyes softened with sympathy as the names of the dead friends were mentioned. But a determined, hard look swept over weather-beaten countenances as other angles of the tragedy were discussed.

In a little ring some of them stood in the cow stable where the shot-blasted body of Arnold Wellman was discovered by a mail-courier. Cattle, inarticulate witnesses of the crime, mooed plaintively at the strange interruption.

Highly Esteemed

In the brilliant February sunshine, they wandered about the yard. They talked of the time "when Arnold moved here twenty years ago." Smiles of memory replaced the drawn look of sorrow as they spoke of the early days when "Lorne" and "Clare" and other members of the family, with whom some of them had been school mates, lived in the community. And in voices, rich with tribute, they spoke of the sterling qualities of the late Mr. and Mrs. Wellman.

There was not a dissenting voice. In simple words, in a language that could be understood by all, one by one they spoke of "the best neighbors we ever had." There was a strong undertone of incredibility apparent, as to the reason why such a tragedy should occur. "It is unbelievable" one said. "Why should such a grand couple meet death in this manner. To my knowledge they had not a single enemy in the world." He slowly shook his head in a gesture of wonderment.

Tomorrow afternoon at one-thirty o'clock they will gather again in the village of Stirling. There at the Duffin Funeral Home, they will pay a last tribute to beloved friends and neighbors. From the far-flung sections of the county, through snow-filled sideroads and byways in sleigh, cutter and car they will wend their way sadly, still a trifle numb perhaps at the awfulness of the tragedy that struck swiftly, terribly, like a bolt from the blue, to honor the dead struck down by the hands of a ruthless killer.

They will wonder, perhaps, as they stand with bared heads in the presence of their dead, at the strange twistings of fate.

For had not the hand of tragedy intervened they would have gathered under happier circumstances. On Sunday they would have offered felicitations to Mr. and Mrs. Wellman on the occasion of the 55th anniversary of their wedding.

The Rev. J. E. Beckel, of Stirling, will officiate at the services. Entombment will be made in Rylestone cemetery.

100 FINLANDERS

Red army planes, raking western coastal cities on the Gulf of Bothnia, were reported to have killed 10 persons and wounded dozens at Bjorneborg (Pori.) One person also was reported killed at Rauma, about 28 miles south.

Hospital Bombed

The Finns said one bomb fell on a Red Cross sign atop an eight-storey hospital in a suburb of Bjorneborg. Patients were said to have taken refuge in a basement bomb shelter as a squadron of 18 Russian planes pelted the site with bombs. A nurses' dormitory nearby was set on fire.

Removal of Red Cross signs had been ordered by Finnish officials, who said they served as targets, but hospital authorities were said to have awaited a decision of the International Red Cross at Geneva before complying.

Apparently aimed at Finnish railway lifelines, bombs were dropped also on Pieksamaki, south-central "crossroads" of two main lines, one of which leads westward to Bjorneborg. About 44 miles north of Kuopio, on a railway line, at least two homes were reported burned by the Russian air raiders. Kotka, on the Gulf of Finland and starting point of a rail line northward, also was the target of attack, the Finns said.

At Sortavala on the northern shore of Lake Ladoga, many houses were said to have been damaged, and raids on Helsingfors suburbs caused two alarms during the day.

Parachutists Killed.

Attempting to land troops by parachute from large planes, Soviet troops were picked off as they came to earth behind the Mannerheim Line near Viipuri, military advices said. The attempt to penetrate the Karelian Isthmus line came as dozens of Russian tanks, pushing armored sledges, moved on Finnish lines at Summa, but were repulsed by anti-tank guns.

Although acknowledging the Japanese advances, the Chinese declared the invaders were being subjected to "annihilating" attacks and said one Japanese warplane had been shot down by anti-aircraft fire.

Japanese Strengthened

Chinese estimated reinforced Japanese strength in Kwangsi totalled 100,000 men.

All evidence pointed to the battle as one of the most severe in 2 1-2 years of war. Foreign observers doubted whether the Japanese would be able to crush Chinese resistance in the south.

Reports from Kunming said the destruction Thursday by Japanese bombers of a train and a tunnel on the Hanoi-Kunming railway—one of China's links with the outside world—had disrupted service completely, and that all essential goods for China were being rerouted via the Burma road at four times the cost.

The Kunming dispatches said five occidentals and 20 Chinese were killed when the tunnel entrance collapsed on the train.

Other reports, unconfirmed, said there were about 100 casualties. At Chunking, the Chinese seat of government, it was said there were five foreign casualties. Identities of the occidentals were not reported.

Researches of Dr. J. B. Collip Lead to Important Discovery

Extract Found Which Has Produced Blood Sugar in Rabbits and in Few Cases of Diabetic Individuals— Mouth - Fed Substance in Initial Stages of Research

Montreal, Feb. 3—New hope for a large section of suffering humanity was seen in the announcement by Dr. J. B. Collip, head of the Department of Biochemistry at McGill University, of discovery of an extract which in laboratory investigation has reduced blood sugar in rabbits and monkeys, and in a few cases of diabetic individuals.

The substance, prepared from pituitary tissue, is given by the mouth. Research workers have long sought for a substance which could be given by mouth and which would prove effective in their treatment of diabetics in order to eliminate the mental discomfort and physical suffering caused by repeated injections of insulin.

Treatments Cannot Yet be Given

Dr. Collip declared emphatically, with the publication of a preliminary report of his investigations in the Journal of the Canadian Medical Association, that the research had not reached the stage where patients could be given treatment with the new substance.

He stated that he did not want the announcement of the discovery to raise false hopes among the millions of diabetic sufferers the world over, several thousands of whom are in Montreal. Research work is being intensified along the lines opened up by the initial discoveries, and clinical trials in Montreal hospitals are being got under way.

The hope which is now animating medical research workers, actively interested in the research undertaking, is disclosed in Dr. Collip's report in the official journal of Canadian doctors. The internationally renowned biochemist, who was one of the co-discoverers of insulin says: "The results that have been obtained in the early stages of this investigation have been so encouraging that this preliminary report of them is being made."

Dr. Collip summarizes his discovery in the following brief communique: "The results of a preliminary study of the effects of oral administration of a pituitary extract prepared from the primary alcoholic extract of prime whole gland tissue upon diabetic patients and upon normal rabbits, rats and monkeys and one depancreatized monkey are reported. Evidence that the extract has a profound effect upon carbohydrote metabolism has been obhydrate metabolism has been obis yet to be determined."

Experiments To Be Carried Out.

Dr. Collip further states in this connection:

"No experiment is in any sense a comprehensive one, but, as will be seen, the lead which it was hoped might emerge from these first 'spotting' experiments has materialized, and now it will be possible to plan and carry out experiments both on diabetic patients and on animals to determine fully the significance of the observations already made."

Editors of the journal were equally conservative. They did not minimize the significance of the discoveries to date but emphasized that this was but a preliminary report, which would be followed by the publication of clinical trials, if such proved effective in the treatment of diabetic individuals.

The hesult of laboratory experiments, as outlined in Dr. Collip's article in the journal, are dramatic from the layman's point of view, however much they are looked upon conservatively by physicians and medical research workers.

One of the experiments was with a technician employed in the biochemistry laboratories. This man, 35 years of age, was suffering from a severe case of diabetes. The disease was of sixteen years' duration. The man was on a fixed regimen of diet, and was, as well, receiving two doses of insulin daily, of 40 units each.

The insulin doses were reduced markedly and the extract was given orally. Blood sugar tests, recorded systematically, showed that the blood sugar content was kept low despite the lesser amounts of insulin given.

Another case involved a mildly diabetic man of 71 years of age, not on insulin. A morning test of blood sugar showed it at 250 mg. per cent. He was given 2 c.c. of the pituitary extract daily before breakfast for 14 days. At the end of this time his blood sugar was 180. Subsequent doses reduced his blood sugar still lower.

MONKEY EXPERIMENTS SHOW SUGAR DROP

The experiments with monkeys using the pituitary extract showed declines in blood sugar content. Rabbits used in experiments showed declines but in the case of a group of experimental rats no appreciable difference was noted in the condition of the blood.

Just how the extract works is not known. Dr. Collip raises the interesting question, from a research man's point of view, as to whether the substance works directly to reduce blood sugar or indirectly by the activation of a gland, the adrenal medulla.

The article in this month's issue of the Canadian Medical Association Journal follows on work reported by Dr. Collip in the previous month's issue. In the article he refers to the finding by several research workers that one extract of the pituitary is able seemingly to produce a blood-sugar condition. Dr. Collip's extract, with which he is now working, produces a counter effect, reducing blood sugar in diabetic patients.

WAR

"Let us ask Czechs . . . let us ask Poles . . . let us ask Austrians . . . let us go inside Germany and ask Germans. Ask Jews, ask the Catholic priest and the Protestant pastor . . . ask their communions and their congregations whose religion is so noxious and so obstinate that it had to be dashed out of them with clubs.

Not Confident in Hitler

"Let us go around Europe and ask small neutral countries, fearing an attack at any moment. Do they feel this confidence in Hitler? Do they feel safe from him if there are no real differences between their countries and if he has no real grievances which they refuse to redress, or do they only feel safe from him if they have nothing he wants or nothing he can get?"

With a trace of sarcasm, Mr. Stanley said:

"Are we just a little inconsiderate? No, General Hertzog — 2,000 miles nearer the facts.

"Millions of different race, of different language and of different creed bear witness to the fact that with this man (Hitler) leading and with his nation allowing him to lead, there will be no peace and there will be no security for Britain or Europe or for the world."

Peace Must be Honorable

To the people who "talk about peace by negotiation," Mr. Stanley said, "we should grasp with both hands at a peace which was both secure and honorable."

But, he asked, "what sort of peace should we get now by negotiation? A peace which would settle nothing," which would leave differences and dangers untouched, which would give no assurance for the present and no security for the future.

"We should get no lasting peace, but a troubled truce. Within a few months, at the most within a few years, we should find we had not won peace but had sacrificed victory."

Give Aid to Allies

Mr. Stanley stressed the importance in the war effort of export trade with which he dealt as President of the Board of Trade until his recent shift to the War Office.

In speaking of the army, Mr. Stanley said he was struck first by "what a great deal already has been done and second by what a great deal remains still to do."

The prime objective of the government, he said, is "to give military aid to our gallant allies at the earliest possible moment to the maximum extent and on a scale at least commensurate with the effort we made in the last war."

Mr. Stanley said the second objective was "to avoid the terrible mistakes of the last war, when thousands of men were hurled into battle with insufficient training and insufficient equipment to fight with magnificent courage but with terrible losses."

SAITO RESIGNS

after the veteran legislator had asked enlightenment yesterday on the government's plans for a "new order in East Asia."

Aroused army officers charged that Saito had made "open insults against the objectives of the sacred war in China."

Remarks Said Detrimental

The Social Mass party pronounced Saito's remarks "detrimental to the lofty idea's of the founding Empire."

The full text of his statement was stricken from the record, and newspapers merely referred to what were called objectionable parts but, apparently, he demanded to know what reward the people have had for their sacrifices of blood and money in China.

The political tradition of Japan permits free, unrestricted criticism of the government, but the fighting services presumably are exempt, particularly during the "emergency period" which began with the Machurian incident in 1932.

To a chorus of "no! no'" from angry Diet members, Saito questioned plans to set up a Japanese-sponsored government in China under Wang Ching-Wei, former Chinese Premier who differed with General Chiang Kai-Shek. He asked whether it would have powers "necessary for its existence."

He told the House the Japanese people were "acting in accordance with the dictates of the government because they believe they will bring the affair to a satisfactory conclusion."

"If the government betrays this confidence the results would be disastrous," he warned.

4 GERMAN AIRMEN

Press Association said this apparently was the plane described in the communique as down off the Yorkshire coast.

An eye-witness of this fight said: "I first saw a German plane flying very low over the land with three planes after it. As it passed over a town one fighter was firing at its tail from below, another shooting at it from above and a third circling in front.

"The German plane began to smoke and eventually it crashed about two miles from the town."

Air Ministry Account

The Air Ministry gave this account of the fight off the Tyne:

"A third successful interception of enemy aircraft off the east coast this morning is now reported. (Encounters with the two other German bombers had previously been reported.) A Royal Air Force fighter command patrol shot down an enemy aircraft off the Tyne shortly before 11 a.m. A ship went to the rescue of the crew.

Raiders were first reported off the Yorkshire coast, where two Heinkels machine-gunned a trawler which later was seen from the shore to be in flames. One of these met its fate inland; the other was at least "very seriously damaged" over the sea.

Dropped Six Bombs

The third raider was intercepted after it had dropped six bombs at a ship off the Tyne. All the bombs fell wide. The plane disappeared in the clouds but a little later an explosion was heard. This was believed to be the accompaniment of its crashing.

No air raid alarm was sounded in the Yorkshire town where residents stood in the streets watching the battle between the Heinkel and three British planes.

Later a witness said he went to the scene of the crash and "saw a huge German plane with black crosses and swastika markings lying in a field near a moorland cottage and riddled with bullets. A military guard was mounted over the wreckage."

Today's series of raids were the third of the week. Monday the Nazis launched air attacks on shipping off a 400-mile stretch of British coast under cover of low-lying clouds.

Hit Outbuilding

In a renewal of the raids Tuesday British authorities reported one German bomber shot down and another disabled.

H. Steele, occupant of the Yorkshire cottage near which the German plane crashed, said the craft hit an outbuilding and smashed into a tree.

"I saw two members of the crew trying to pull out an injured airman," he said. "All the time three British fighters were circling low overhead and watching what was taking place."

Steele said the Germans waved and he went to help them drag a dead flier and an injured one from the wreckage.

The two others were not badly hurt.

A resident describing the battle off the Tyne said:—

"Our fighters came roaring after the bomber. Shore batteries opened anti-aircraft fire. People went to the sea front to get a glimpse of the battle. The Nazi plane was shot down about two miles off shore."

Machine-gun bullets struck one seaside home.

Shot Down in Sea

The Air Ministry first reported that a bomber intercepted off the Yorkshire coast had been "shot down in the sea" but later authoritative advices said the plane in question actually had been driven inland.

An authorized statement said the Germans, although wounded, set fire to their own plane. An unofficial version said the plane was in flames when it came down.

The statement, describing part of the day's air activities, said:

"A few minutes before fighters shot down a Nazi raider near Whitby, another R.A.F. fighter patrol attacked two Heinkels which were dropping bombs on merchant ships near the Farne Islands off the Northumbrian coast. One of the raiders disappeared in the clouds with one engine out of action.

Raced for Home

"Immediately the fighters attacked the bombers, without returning fire raced for home, climbing steeply into the shelter of the clouds.

"But the Hurricanes (fighters) already had poured machine-guns bullets into one of the raiders.

"A fighter pilot describing the action said: 'As the enemy aircraft disappeared into a cloud I saw heavy black smoke and bits of metal coming from the starboard engine.' "

The Germans were intercepted when two Nazi planes machine gunned a trawler off the Yorkshire coast. Witnesses from a waterfront hotel said the trawler was ablaze three miles off shore.

Helsingfors, Feb. 5—(AP)—Finnish forces northeast of Lake Ladoga killed more than 500 Russian soldiers and captured much booty in repulsing three new Russian attacks, the Finnish army declared in today's communique.

Two of the Russian attacks were against island positions; the third was against shore positions on the lake, the communique said.

"Our troops captured another enemy stronghold, killing the majority of the defenders," the communique continued. "The enemy dead numbered over 500. Seven tanks, four guns, large quantities of other arms, more than 30 automobiles of various types and other war materials fell into our hands."

Repulsed at Summa

The Finns said that Russian attacks also were repulsed at Summa, on the Karelian Isthmus in the extreme southeast, and at Markajaervi, in the north near the Arctic Circle.

They said that nine Russian planes were known to have been shot down and that four more probably were downed in the air war.

Communique

The attack in the Summa sector occurred yesterday, the communique said.

Trans-Atlantic Air Service Will be Resumed

Montreal, Feb. 5—(CP)—Imperial Airways' Trans-Atlantic service between Great Britain, Canada and the United States definitely will be resumed late this spring, Neil Richardson, official of the Operations Department of Imperial Airways, said yesterday in an interview.

Mr. Richardson, who has been in New York making preliminary arrangements for the Trans-Atlantic service, said there has been no contraction of other services because of the war and Imperial Airways cover 120,000 miles of Empire routes weekly.

Plans have been made to resume service, carrying mail and later on passengers, from England to Canada and the United States via Eire and Newfoundland," he said. The aircraft which will be used are the new "G" flying boats, weighing 73,000 pounds. They are about half as large again as the Cabot and Caribou, aircraft used last summer in the experimental mail and freight services."

While he is in Canada, Mr. Richardson will study airport snow removal problems in connection with experiments at the Newfoundland Airport at Botwood, used as an Imperial Airways' base.

FALLS 10 STOREYS BUT STILL ALIVE

Hits Apartment House Entrance Canopy and Sustains Minor Skull Injury

New York, Feb. 5—(AP)— Richard Jaeckel, 54-year-old socially prominent fur company executive, fell 10 storeys onto an apartment house entrance canopy yesterday, suffering only a skull injury which physicians said was not serious.

Jaeckel was visiting a brother at his apartment in 73rd Street at the time. The fall tore the canvas of the canopy and bent the inch-and-a-half diameter iron supporting rods. The canopy supported Jaeckel.

A passerby saw the body hit and called for aid. Jaeckel was treated on the scene and taken to Bellevue Hospital.

Police said the brother, Walter Jaeckel, told them Richard had been suffering a nervous ailment for some time.

"He did not feel well," Walter said. "He went into a bedroom which adjoins the bath and tried to open the window because it was warm. The window sticks and he must have fallen in opening it."

Frost depths! To avoid all danger of freezing, water pipes should be laid a few inches deeper than the maximum depth of frost recorded for the locality. Ground freezes to different depths depending upon the length and intensities of the winter's cold spells. In the United States frost penetrates on the average from nearly nothing in the southern parts of Florida, Texas and California to 72 inches in parts of Minnesota and Maine. The greatest depths measured vary from one-third more to twice the average depths In northern Maine and Minnesota 108 inches is the greatest measured depth on record, but the penetration is greater in Canada. It is advised in laying water pipes that the nearest weather station or city engineer, architect or plumber of long experience be consulted.

Plies Trade of Picking Pockets At Swank Hotel in New York

New York, Feb. 5—(AP) — So many people stole Giovanni's trapeze act that he left the circus to do a little stealing himself. He took up picking pockets.

He learned the trade so well, in a fact, that he now makes a comfortable living at it, plying his trade in one of New York's swank hotels and defying all police efforts to detect the workings of his nimble fingers.

He has lifted scores of wrist watches from male victims; taken their wallets and small change; and then added insult to injury by removing their suspenders without their knowledge at the moment. They know it when the pants begin to slip.

Giovanni says he has stolen—and returned, of course, articles from everyone up to King George VI and the Aga Khan, the world's richest man. He took the latter's suspenders and the only money in his pocket, a shilling.

"I don't know which he yelled the loudest for," Giovanni said. "The braces or the shilling."

Giovanni, a Hungarian, who came up from childhood with a Russian circus, speaks 14 languages and was a general interpreter with the Italian army during the first Great War.

MENTAL ILLNESS CAUSES TRAGEDY STATES CORONER

Alvin Schlegel Shoots Wife, Two Children and Commits Suicide

PROMINENT IN SPORT

Preston Resident Immediate Past President of Ontario Hockey Association

Preston, Ont., Feb. 5 — (CP)—Coroner Dr. Ward Woolner of Ayr today blamed mental illness for the burst of violence that caused 52-year-old Alvin Schlegel, immediate past president of the Ontario Hockey Association, to shoot and kill his wife, son and daughter and then commit suicide in their home here.

The coroner announced no inquest would be held and no examinations would be made of the bodies of the four victims of last night's tragedy, which shocked friends of Schlegel across Canada and, more particularly, Preston residents who knew the family as socially prominent and bound closely by ties of affection.

Daughter Married 3 Months

There could be no other reason than mental illness, Dr. Woolner said, for Schlegel to fire two shots into his wife's body as she lay on the chesterfield, kill his 12-year-old son, Jack, in bed and then fired his revolver into the breast of his daughter, Mrs. G. Bruce McCullough, 25, of Kitchener, as she entered the house. Schlegel ended his own life by firing a bullet into his head.

C., "Whenever a charge of murder is preferred following a capital crime the Department of Justice has recently ruled that no inquest shall be necessary, but that a preliminary hearing shall be held in order to determine whether or not sufficient evidence has been procured to put the accused man on his trial," explained Mr. Donnan today.

R. A. F. BOMBERS SAID SUPERIOR TO THE GERMANS

Armament and Manoeuvrability and New Tactics Winning in Air Fights

AIM AT ENGINES

(By Pat Ussher, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

London, Feb. 5—(CP-Cable)—Air observers in Great Britain are becoming increasingly convinced that Royal Air Force bombers possess superior armament and manoeuvrability to Nazi bombers and that this is the reason why German fighting planes have been making such a poor showing against them.

British fighter planes have been successful in driving off Nazi bombers as a result, observers said, of new tactics being adopted by the Royal Air Force. But the man on the street has been wondering why German fighters are unable to make as good a showing against British bombers.

Builders of the German fighters are said to have concentrated chiefly on speed and the planes are unable to withstand the withering fire from Britain's bombers.

FRENCH RAILWAY AGAIN BOMBED BY JAPANESE

No Damage Done but in First Raid it is Reported 150 Were Killed

FRANCE PROTESTS

Shanghai, Feb. 5 (AP)—Belated reports today increased to 150 the number of killed and wounded in last Thursday's Japanese bombing of the French-owned Kunming-Hanoi railroad and told of renewed attacks on Saturday.

Saturday's onslaught was directed at almost the same place as Thursday's but there were no additional casualties.

Forty bodies were said to have been removed so far from the wreckage of a train hit in the first attack. Two French Nationals, the wife of a French railway inspector and her infant daughter, were listed among the dead.

(In Kunming, three other French persons also were reported killed.)

Local Train Bombed.

The train was a local, the new reports said, declaring that had it been an express, foreign casualties would have been higher.

The Japanese airmen returned while rescue work still was in progress, these advices added, and cut the railroad telegraph lines, hampering attempts to remove wounded and identify the victims.

(A Central, Chinese, News Agency dispatch to Hong Kong said a section of track and several bridges were demolished in the second raid. It said Chinese pursuit planes combatted the Japanese, but that one was shot down, and all the invading aircraft escaped.)

BALKAN POWERS EXTEND ENTENTE FOR SEVEN YEARS

Rumania, Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia End Parley in Perfect Accord

By ROBERT PARKER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Belgrade, Yugoslavia Feb. 5 —(AP)—Rumania, Greece, Turkey and Yugoslavia have extended their entente for seven years, pledging continuance of their present neutral status "so as to preserve this part of Europe from the trials of war."

Ending a three-day conference last night, Balkan Entente diplomats set out for their capitals, each determined to work out relations with larger powers and one another on an individual basis.

The conference was believed by most foreign observers to have failed to unite the four nations except for broadly-worded decisions on neutrality, independence and promotion of trade within the Entente. There were no absolute guarantees.

BRITISH ANGER MOUNTS OVER AIR ATTACKS ON SHIPS

Ten Vessels Attacked on Saturday — One Norwegian Steamer Sunk

3 RAIDERS SHOT DOWN

London, Feb. 5 (CP)—Trade Union leaders of the engineering industry gathered today at the call of Labor Minister Ernest Brown to help find ways of speeding up munitions and arms production.

One government objective was to increase the number of plants working around the clock. Another question was whether 1,000,000 women in the war industries would receive pay equal to that of men in similar jobs.

Fred Smith, general secretary of the Amalgamated Engineering Union, said the government's program for armaments expansion was the most ambitious ever seen and a great amount of new labor would be required.

Meanwhile, the ang of the British press rose against what newspapers termed "murderous" German attacks on North Sea shipping. Authorities said that nine vessels were attacked Saturday and one sunk, the 629-ton Norwegian steamship Tempo. At least three of the Nazi raiders were shot own by fast Royal Air Force fighters.

The attack on a tenth vessel Saturday was disclosed today bu Edward Mullender of the trawler Willa who said two German planes flew over his ship "so low that we could have hit them with a stone".

"We dived into the galley, where we heard bullets spattering on the ship like peas on tinplate," he said. "De found no damage and shortly

TOLD TO FORGET CERTAIN EVENTS SAYS WITNESS

Bart Hailey Makes Admission While Testifying at Windsor Trial

Defence Counsel Protests Strenuously Against Evidence Being Given

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 5—(CP)—A youthful Windsor service station attendant Bart Hailey, testifying at the trial of Sam Motruk of Windsor and two suspended Canadian customs officers on conspiracy charges said today he had been approached by another witness last week with the suggestion that when he took the stand that he testify he could not remember certain events.

Hailey was called by the Crown to corroborate evidence of the Chief Crown witness, Victor Bernat, who previously had testified he had driven alcohol-laden cars through the customs here for Motruk without payment of duty. The customs officers involved and charged with Motruk are Thomas Arthur Smythe and Harry Jarvis Smith.

Hailey testified that Motruk had given him the money to pay a fine for Bernat at one time when the latter had been convicted of having illicit alcohol in a jug.

Approached on Thursday

Crown Attorney Thomas Phelan then asked him if he had been approached by anyone since the trial started. Hailey declared that a witness by the name of Buckeski, who has not yet appeared, and a brother of Motruk, approached him last Thursday and asked if he had made any statement to police.

Witness said he had replied in the affirmative and that it then had been suggested that he could testify he could not remember the incident.

Defence Counsel Paul Martin, K.C., representing Motruk, said that he could not protest too strenuously against this evidence. He termed it the "worst sort of dirt-slinging."

Mr. Phelan replied that he also might have something to say along that line.

Bernat was on the stand as the trial resumed today. He said that on several occasions he had seen Smith and Motruk together in the front room of the latter's home.

HONEYMOON TRIP ENDS IN DEATH

Bridal Couple of a Day and Three Others Die in Plane Crash

Hammond, La., Feb. 5—(AP) — An airplane honeymoon trip ended in death last night for a newly married couple and three other persons flying from Denver to New Orleans for the Mardi Gras celebration.

The five-passenger cabin biplane crashed in wooded, swampy country in a thick fog six miles east of here after the pilot had tried desperately to find his way into the New Orleans airport, 50 miles away.

Don Craig, 30, of Denver, was the pilot. The passengers, prominent residents of Colorado, were Mr. and Mrs. Harry Zimmer-Hackel, bride and groom of a day; Mrs. Elizabeth Powell, owner of the plane and a cousin of Zimmerhackel; and Michael Hinderlider, Jr., 28, son of the Colorado State engineer.

Zimmerhackel, 56, Denver lawyer and business man, once was a candidate for the Republican nomination for United States Senator from Colorado. His bride, 43, was the divorced wife of Erl Ellis, Denver attorney.

Minesweeper, Damaged Saturday, Sinks as She is Towed Toward Port

London, Feb. 5 (CP)—The British minesweeper Sphinx, damaged by German air raiders Saturday, sank today as she was being towed toward port in heavy weather. Four officers and 45 men were missing and believed lost.

One officer and four men were known dead. Forty-four men and two officers were saved. The towline broke and the ship capsized as she entered port.

The 875-ton Sphinx was completed in December, 1938, at a cost of about 100,000 pounds ($445,000). Normally she carried a complement of 80 men, but more were aboard for war duty.

The Sphinx carried two four-inch guns and five smaller weapons.

She was the 24th British naval loss of the war and the third mine-

South Hastings Former Member Is Not Candidate

On Advice of His Physician, Popular Ex-Member of House of Commons Decides, He Tells Ed. Roach, President of Liberal Association, That He Will Not be Candidate for Convention

ELECTED IN 1935

Mr. Cameron's Retirement Comes as Surprise—Has Been Actively Interested in Development and Growth of Air Base Near Trenton — Has Served on Committees in House of Commons — His Interests Wide

Mr. Charles A. Cameron, ex-M.P., for South Hastings announced today his retirement from active public life in which he has served this riding since his election in the Federal general election in October, 1935. The announcement came when Mr. Cameron made public a communication written by him to Mr. E. Roach, of Deseronto, president of the Liberal Association for Hastings South.

In the letter it is stated that Mr. Cameron with a great deal of regret finds that it will be impossible for him to be a candidate for the Liberal party convention. "On the instructions of my physician I find it necessary to withdraw from active participation in politics," he states.

News of his decision to withdraw from political life came as a genuine surprise to Mr. Cameron's many friends, regardless of political leanings, in the city and district. His natural ability to make friends, plus a genial personality which immediately attracted people to him has earned for him a place high in the esteem of all walks of life regardless of creed or party. And it is with genuine regret at the loss to public life of a devoted servant that the announcement of his retirement will be greeted.

Unstinting Efforts

Naturally his profession has taken a great deal of his time. However with his election to the Federal Government as member of this riding he still maintained his personal contacts with his friends, party and otherwise, and proved himself not only an able representative of Hastings South, but the same genial "Charlie" that people knew before his entrance into the political arena.

His efforts, however, were given unstintingly, and at all times the welfare of his constituents was his first thought. In Ottawa, he left no stone unturned to bring to his constituency the benefits that were rightfully theirs, and at no time did he turn a deaf ear to suggestions for action that would result in the general good of his constituency.

Aided in Development of Airbase at Trenton

This perhaps has been especially exemplified in his efforts and interest in the Royal Canadian Air Force base near Trenton. He gave of his time unsparingly to its development. It now stands as a testimonial to what unselfish action and keen interest in things of this nature can do.

Some years ago he was instrumental in bringing to this city the splendid Dominion Government Entomological Parasitic Laboratory of which Belleville proudly boasts. He urged its development and by dint of tireless action he succeeded in proving to governmental officials the ideality of this city as the proper locale for such an enterprise.

Refused by Department Defence Application

London, Feb. 5—(CP)—Attorney-General Sir Donald Somervell today refused an application by the defence to take the case of two condemned members of the Irish Republican army to the House of Lords on appeal.

The two Irishmen, Peter Barnes and James Richards, are under sentence to be hanged Wednesday. They were convicted of murder for their part in the bomb explosion at Coventry last Aug. 25 in which five persons were killed.

BUDGET ADDRESS ON THURSDAY

Premier Hepburn Will Likely Announce a Deficit of Nearly $500,000

Toronto, Feb. 5 —(CP)— Liberal members of the Ontario Legislature are to have complete freedom in regard to their section in the federal election campaign. They will not be restricted in their support of Federal Liberal candidates by the action of Premier Mitchell Hepburn in leading the legislature in condemnation of Federal policies.

What the Premier will do is an open question. It is doubtful if he has made up his mind. It is known he will not support a Liberal party led by Prime Minister Mackenzie King. Two other courses are open to him. He may refrain from participation in the campaign. He may support Conservative Leader R. J. Manion in his National Government proposals.

Over the week-end the Premier's time was given to considering his budget address — scheduled to be delivered Thursday. The Premier will not have his estimated $15,000 surplus on the current fiscal year which will end March 31, but instead will report a deficit between $400,000 and $500,000 it is reported.

Talk at Queen's Park has it that no new taxes are to be proposed in the budget. An unusual action last week was the introduction of a bill to increase the tax on corporation net incomes. Such revenue raising measures are usually announced in the budget, and the bills come later. The Premier reversed this procedure.

It is stated that the idea of reimposing a provincial amusement tax has been abandoned.

End of the legislature session is in sight for the end of February. The members so desiring will then be free to take part in the Federal campaign.

A. R. SCHRYVER THIRTY YEARS IN BUSINESS

GRADUATES IN 1903

Within a stone's throw of Bellevill busiest corner a new business was established thirty years ago today. And, still within a stone's throw of the corner but in a different location, that business still flourishes. On February 5th., 1910, Mr. Allan R. Schryver was the moving spirit in founding the Belleville Pharmacy Limited at the location on Bridge Street east now numbered 21. Two years later Mr. Schryver took full ownership of the business and has continued since to operate as "Schryver's Pharmacy". For the past 17 years the store has been located in commodious quarters at 204 Front Street.

Mr. Schryver was born in Shannonville and attended school in Belleville. He graduated with first class honours from the School of Pharmacy in 1903. For some time he worked exclusively in dispensary work with the W. Lloyd Woods Dispensary in Toronto. Then followed three years with the wholesale drug firm of R. Templeton Co. After a period with the N. C. Poulson Co. (then of Kingston), Mr. Schryver went to the T. Eaton Drug Co., in Toronto as dispenser. He left there to enter into the business in Belleville, which has continued to expand steadily under his direction during the past thirty years.

Mr. Schryver was married on June 4th., 1913, to the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Dyer of Toronto, and a niece of the late Dr. W. P. Dyer, former principal of Albert College.

One son, James Allen Ross, is associated with his father in business. A daughter, Louise Schryver, B.A., B.L.S.C., is in Public Library work in Midland, Ont.

Mr. Schryver is a former chairman of the Belleville Board of Education and a prominent Mason. Today he is receiving the hearty congratulations of business friends and customers.

Parents Guests at Concert by Public School Boys' Band

The occasion being the nature of an anniversary, the band having been formed just two years ago, the Public School Band entertained their parents in the Oddfellows' Hall on Wednesday evening. Under the direction of Mr. Alf Cooper this group of young musicians selected from each of the Public Schools in the city has attained considerable fame for the fine work they are doing. In the program given on Wednesday they played many numbers which were worthy of the calibre of the Municipal Band.

In addition to the numbers the band played as a group, high lights of the evening were the cornet solo by Stan Wiggins, accompanied by Mr. Leo Riggs; Trombone Duet, Don Dafoe, Gordon Williamson, and the female impersonation act given by Mr. Lazenby. Lieut. F. Jobson, conductor of the Belleville Municipal Band gave an interesting talk on the value of music in a boy's life. Rev. C. T. Olmstead on behalf of the gathering expressed appreciation to Mr. Cooper and the boys for the excellent entertainment.

Lunch was provided by the mothers, with Coca Cola being supplied as a gift from the firm.

Belleville Couple Celebrate Fifty Years of Wedded Life

Mr. and Mrs. George P. Ruttan to be Honored at Dinner by Family

WELL-KNOWN IN CITY

He talked of sledges and anvils. Of flying sparks and champing horses. Of leather aprons covering muscles that swelled and rippled with every blow of the hammer. He spoke of the song of the anvil, of bellows, of the fashioning of things of iron welded in shape by strong arms of sweating men.

In the comfort of his modest home at 75 Great St. James Street, Mr. George P. Ruttan, his beloved pipe clenched in his teeth, chatted with a reporter about the good old days. He and Mrs. Ruttan are celebrating their golden wedding anniversary today surrounded by their admiring family and immediate friends.

On the table lay a piece of faded yellowish white paper. It was a page torn from an old-fashioned scribbler, vintage, 1890, but on its surface was inscribed the wedding nuptials of George P. Ruttan and Kate E. Dean. It bears the signature of the Rev. Thos. W. Bowen, minister of the then Congregational Church, now the Emmanuel Reformed Episcopal Church on Victoria Avenue. The wedding was solemnized, it states, on February 5th., 1890.

But the golden wedding anniversary was only incidental to Mr. Ruttan. One of the few remaining members of that famous trade, the blacksmith, he launched into the subject nearest and dearest to his heart. He spoke of the days when there were 500 horses in Belleville instead of 60 as at present. He spoke of the busy smithy at the St. Charles Carriage Company's property on Front, where he became apprenticed, when he was but fifteen years of age, and where coincidentally he is now employed.

"But it's all changed now", he reminisced. "There are only a few horses to be shod and the shoes are made by machinery. Imagine me, a blacksmith, making parts for pesky automobiles".

He eased his powerful frame in his chair. Blue smoke curled upwards from his pipe. His eyes assumed a faraway look, as memory took him back over a chasm of years, when three smiths and seven helpers were required to operate one smithy in Belleville.

Once Weighed 230 Pounds

His muscles still ripple beneath his shirt when he moves. His eyes are still keen, and his hard hands show the effects of fifty-five years standing over an anvil. "I weighed 230 pounds when I was in my prime" he will tell you, "and that was all muscle. I don't weigh as much now, for when a fellow reaches his seventieth year, he is bound to slip a little"

Proudly he pointed to a framed certificate, which stated that he was a member of the United Empire Loyalist Association.

"Five generations ago, my ancestor, Colonel Ruttan, settled in Adolphustown with the United Empire Loyalists. Branches of the family still reside there and in Prince Edward County".

Mr. Ruttan was born on Murney Street, here, the son of the late Elias Brown Ruttan and Martha Jane Dafoe, distant relative of the Dr. A. R. Dafoe of Callander, and quintuplet fame. He attended the Belleville High School under Dr. Wright, and at the age of fifteen became a blacksmith's apprentice to the St. Charles Carriage Company, after spending some time as errand boy for the A. L. Geen drugstore.

Treasures Kit of Tools

After seven years with the St. Charles Carriage Company he started business for himself in a smithy that stood on the present site of the Belle Theatre parking lot, on Pinnacle Street. Eight years ago he removed to the Doyle Stone building, and three years back he again returned to the St. Charles' shop, where he is now working.

Next to his wife and family, he says he treasures his famous kit of tools. All made by himself, with the exception of an odd one, he values the kit at $400.00. His tools are now famous in the district. Even today, farmers of the surrounding countryside journey miles to have cold chisels and other tools made by him.

But the glamor of the old blacksmithy is gone, he says. Only a few horses trickle in to be shod in this age of automobiles. "Huh", he snorted, "here I am, a blacksmith, making springs for motor-cars and auto-wreckers. I do some steel work, but the shoeing is what I miss the most".

He learned the art of forging in a hard school. "It can't be learned nowadays, the way we were taught" he smiles. "Besides all that sort of work is done now by machinery, and they cannot turn out the stuff the boys used to do by hand. It hasn't the strength and won't stand up with the old hand-forged work".

Wife Came From England

Across the table sat his helpmeet of the past fifty years. A faithful terrier lay at her feet, admiration in its eyes. Mrs. Ruttan, who was born in Newmarket, Cambridgeshire, England, the daughter of David and Sarah Dean, came to Canada when she was sixteen years of age. One year younger than her husband, she still enjoys life with the zest and enthusiasm of one twenty years younger. Keen eyes gleam beneath a wealth of silvering hair. She has a grand sense of humor and gaily chatted about life years ago, her family, and current topics. Many times, "Kate", as she is affectionately termed by her husband, was called upon to corroborate his statements, or aid his memory in recalling incidents of years ago. She is active and alert, does all her own work, and in her spare time indulges in her favorite fancy-work. Both are valued members of Tabernacle United Church.

High in Orange Circles

Mr. Ruttan is a staunch Orangeman and has risen high in the offices of the Orange Society. He is a member of L.O.L. 274 Belleville and is a past-master of that lodge. A member of the Royal Black Preceptory, No. 853 he is a Past Preceptor of that order, and is a Past-Commander of the Scarlet Chapter. He is also a Past Master of the now defunct Apprentice Boys' Association.

Seven children, two boys and five girls blessed the union. A son, Harry Dean Ruttan, was killed in an automobile accident in 1932. The other is Canniff Ruttan of this city. The five girls are, Mrs. Clarence Campbell, Dufferin Avenue; Mrs. Arthur Charlton Foster Avenue; Mrs. Stanley Pratt, Rochester, N.Y.; Mrs. William Kelly, Station Street and Mrs. Walter Couch of Trenton, Ont. Nine grandchildren and three great-grandchildren complete the family picture. Mrs. George Bawdon, Great St. James Street, is a niece of Mrs. Ruttan, while Mrs. A. Harrow, Cannifton, is a sister of Mr. Ruttan.

Having Family Dinner

Tonight, the family are giving their parents a "Golden Wedding" dinner. There will be a wedding cake with candles and "all the trimmin's", but smiled Mr. Ruttan, "Kate will have to blow out all the candles, for she has all the wind". His wife smiled gently in remonstrance. "That's a nice thing to see in the paper", she laughed. The family will all be their, it is expected, and the bride and groom of fifty years will be the recipients of congratulations and felicitations on the attainment of a half-century of marital happiness.

Large Number of Visitors Attends Opening of Mathieson Beauty Salon

Soft Lighting, Attractive Decorations and Spring Flowers Present Attractive Setting

MODERN EQUIPMENT

With baskets of lovely Springtime flowers enhancing the charm of the rooms, the Mathieson Beauty Salon, 342 Front Street, was opened to the public on Saturday afternoon and evening. Interested visitors who came in large numbers were conducted on a tour of inspection by Theda Mathieson who is in charge of the Salon and by the members of her staff.

With the modern motif predominating the shop presented a smart picture, inside and out. The exterior has been cleverly decorated in attractive style and the interestingly designed door itself arrests instant attention. Inside, the soft lighting effects accentuated the charm of peach toned background, blue draperies on booths and windows, and the smart chrome furniture with its cream leather upholstery. Dressing tables in the booths carry out the unusual design of the general furnishings.

Visitors were delighted to learn that Theda Mathieson was no stranger to the community, being a native of Picton and having many friends and relatives in this vicinity. For twenty-four years she has been in charge of the Mathieson Salon on St. Clair Avenue, Toronto, and this record in a rapidly changing business world, is one of which she is well proud. The Belleville shop is an extension of this business.

Associated with her in her Belleville shop will be a staff of highly skilled operators who will be competent to give excellent hair and beauty care. A feature of the shop will be personality hair styling.

Until ten o'clock Saturday evening visitors dropped in and chatted with the charming proprietress. Today the Salon was opened for business.

T. BATA RETURNS FROM WEST INDIES

Orders for 100,000 Pairs of Shoes Secured While on Trip

Wearing a healthy tan, that comes only as the result of long hours spent under the tropical sunshine, Mr. Thomas Bata, hustling young manager of the Bata Shoe Company of Frankford, arrived home again over the week end from a five weeks' trip to the West Indies. Combining business with pleasure on his trip to the tropics, the young Frankford industralist has brought back orders from the Indies amounting to well over 100,000 pairs of shoes, which, it is expected, will keep the plant running at full speed for some time.

Approximately five hundred workers are at present engaged at the Frankford factory but this number will be greatly augmented when the company's new factory unit, now under construction, gets into operation. Although well on its way towards completion, the modern five storey structure will not be ready for occupancy for some little time as the glaziers are just nicely started on their long and tedious task of placing some 26,000 panes of glass in the maze of steel window frames which make up the major part of the exterior wall. The boiler room, which will hold the large boiler intended for heating purposes, is to get under way this morning. Workmen are busily engaged in finishing the interior in readiness for the installation of machinery but the severe winter weather has slowed up operations considerably and the formal opening of the factory is thus being delayed somewhat.

To the west of the factory building the residential section of the new community is keeping well within the schedule set by officials of the building department and already some thirty-five or forty houses have been completed and are occupied by workers of the shoe factory, thus relieving somewhat the severe housing shortage experienced in Frankford during the late fall and early winter months. Fifteen other residences now nearing completion at the site are all duplex construction and will shortly be ready for occupancy.

Conservatives Endorse Policy of Dr. Manion At Executive Meeting

At a largely attended meeting of the executive of the South Hastings Conservative Association of which William House, Trenton, is the president met in the Conservative Club rooms in Belleville on Saturday afternoon and heartily endorsed the policy of the Conservative leader, Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion. The meeting of the executive was called to discuss the political situation as to the approaching Federal election and George H. Stokes, Conservative candidate for the local riding, pledged his endorsation of the National Party policy of the Conservative leader, Dr. Manion. After the discussion had been completed a resolution moved by W. E. Tummon ex-M.P., Tweed and seconded by G. M. Ketcheson, Sidney Township, was unanimously passed and which stated—

"That we are firmly convinced that the successful prosecution and the winning of the war is the all important matter at the present time and believing as we do that it is only as a united people that this desired end can be accomplished.

"Therefore this executive session assembled, do hereby heartily endorse the action of the Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion in declaring for a National government for Canada".

MANY ATTEND DOUBLE FUNERAL

Beckel, Secretary of the Bay of Quinte conference of the United Church of Canada, from the funeral home of R. B. Duffin. Long before the appointed time, the home was filled with people. Hundreds more gathered reverently outside, where cars lined the streets of the entire neighborhood. Roads had been cleared of snow by snowplows earlier in the day from Stirling to the tiny rural cemetery at Rylestone where interment was made. Police officers, traffic officers, were stationed at various points along Highway 14, clearing the road of all traffic as the cortege proceeded on its way, well over a mile in length. At the graveside hundreds more people waited solemnly as the two funeral carriages came slowly up the narrow road.

Could Feel Stillness

A stillness that could be felt prevailed in and about the house as the brief touching service proceeded. Heads were bared in the chill gray of a dull afternoon and women wiped tear-stained eyes as twelve stalwart neighbours of the well-known Rawdon couple bore the two caskets bearing sympathetic floral tributes to two waiting burial carriages. The appearance of the mourners, their children, who in the sharpest possible way were cast into the depths of sorrow, brought unrestrained tears to the eyes of many, as the two sons and their sister bravely shared the terrific strain added to the shock of the news, which reached them a few days ago.

Of Pioneer Stock

Both children of pioneer families of the district, Mr. and Mrs. Wellman were married fifty-five years ago from the day of their funeral and spent their entire life in the district. Preparations for marking the event of their wedding anniversary with special celebration at which relatives were to gather, were halted by the sudden ending of two lives spent happily together. Together they shared life's problems, planned the careers of their brilliant children; together they passed through a long happy earthly life and together they entered eternal rest. Mr. Arnold Wellman was born May 3rd, 1862 in the community whose identity bears the family name, Wellman's Corners, named after his father, the late David Wellman. Mrs. Wellman was born Nov. 18th, 1865, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Woodward.

Brief Impressive Service

Beginning the service with prayer Rev. James E. Beckel then read a short scripture lesson from the 14th chapter of St. John's Gospel, stressing particularly a portion of verse twenty-seven upon which he based his brief address "Let Not Your Heart be Troubled, Neither Let it be Afraid." The acceptance of Christianity in human life removed entirely all fear of death. Christ Himself never feared but His closest followers became afraid of the storm at sea, until He said "Peace be still" and their acceptance of Him as their Saviour removed all fear. If we look to Him also we shall have no cause to fear even death," declared Mr. Beckel.

The only music in the service were two favourite hymns "Abide With Me" and "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" sung by Wellman's United Church choir.

At the graveside in the little well kept cemetery at Rylestone Rev. James E. Beckel was assisted by Rev. Mr. Harding of Springbrook United Church.

Surviving are two sons, Dr. Lorne Wellman, Waterloo, Ontario; Dr. Marvin Wellman, Whitby, Ontario and one daughter, Dr. Iona Victoria Wellman of Chicago, Ill.

FOUR NEW BUSINESSES OPEN IN FEBRUARY

With the opening of the Mathieson Beauty Salon at No. 342, the Norge-Apex-Rogers Agency of Eaton and Ross at No. 325 on Saturday, the scheduled opening of the Martin-Senour Paint and Wallpaper store at No. 282 on the 8th, and the Williams Ladies' Wear Store at No. 267 on the 15th, Front Street establishes something of a record for new businesses in February.

In each instance a great deal of expense and effort is being put into making these shops ultra-modern and attractive, and are distinct additions to the retail centres of Belleville.

GIRL AT THE FRONT

by ROB EDEN

CHAPTER 15

A Cautious Hostess

When Claire left the church, it was nearly five o'clock and growing cold outside. She thanked the impulse that had led her to wear a warm suit. As she hurried along she dug into her purse, got her gloves and pulled them on her hands.

Fortunately, every one seemed intent on his own affairs and she attracted much less attention than she ordinarily did on a Paris street where any pretty girl is certain to draw stares.

Although the streets were well crowded, most of the pedestrians were women and Claire was reminded that it was wartime by the few able-bodied men to be seen. Even the police, wearing steel helmets and brown uniforms, stationed at the intersections to keep traffic moving were not the same trim, alert figures she remembered when she and Cameron had visited the capital several months before.

They, apparently, like most of the other younger men were at the front and their places had been taken by older, fatter men who had been drafted from the home guard. Their uniforms, more than the men themselves, made her nervous, representing as they did the spirit of wartime Nazism, and she felt a definite uplift in spirits when she saw Frau Weber's little store a few doors away.

The bell seemed to tinkle a merry welcome as she swung the door and stepped into the dimly lighted room. Her feeling of relief vanished as she noted several persons in the shop and she was glad, when she caught Frau Weber's eye, to see the woman gesture with her head toward the back room. She moved slowly back to the door through which George Roland had vanished that morning, and glanced curiously around as she entered. Apparently it was a storeroom for surplus stock, and one whole side of the wall was lined with shelves on which were boxes presumably holding stationary, envelopes and other supplies.

There were two rather nondescript chairs back against the wall from a pot-bellied stove which glowed dully with heat. One small electric light globe of small candle power provided the only illumination. A heavy door at the back apparently gave out onto an alley and there was one small window, high in the wall, which was covered with a metal grill.

Claire had been sitting most of the day, and it was a relief to stand near the stove and warm herself. She became a bit uncomfortable after several minutes and had just removed her gloves and loosened her suit jacket when the inner door opened and Frau Weber stepped in, leaving the door ajar.

"I have a minute or two, but this is my busiest time of the day," she explained. "If any one enters I shall hear the bell. Listen to me closely while I tell you what to do."

"Go ahead," Claire said. "I'm listening."

"Good. The key in your purse unlocks the back door here. Use it, relock it from the outside and then walk up the alleyway to the right. A dozen steps or so you will come to a stairway. It is the first one, as you can't miss it. Go up to the second floor, turn to the right and open the first door with your key and go in. Lock the door after you, turn on the light switch and make yourself at home. Wait there. I will come as quickly as I can. Understand?"

Claire nodded. Then they heard the bell tinkle on the front door.

"Go quickly," Frau Weber whispered, and Claire inserted her key in the lock, opened it and stepped out into the alley. As she closed it, she saw the woman reentering the store and closing the door to the little room after her.

It was almost dark in the alley, but Claire easily found the stairway and mounted it to the second floor. She had a moment of fear as she inserted her key in the lock of the first door she came to, wondering if she were getting herself deeper into a trap that would cost her liberty and maybe her life. She had an impulse to turn and run, but realized the utter folly of such a thing. She was in this far, now. She had to go through—through to the end, come what might.

The key turned easily, she stepped inside, locked the door and then fumbled for a light switch. She found it near the door and felt better when the room—a comfortably furnished living room—was brightly illuminated. She saw there were heavy draperies over the windows, and knew instinctively that not a stray beam could escape outside to betray the presence of any one in the apartment.

A small gas heater was glowing faintly in the mouth of a false fireplace, and the room was fairly warm. She looked carefully about the place, locating two small bedrooms opening off the living-room and a tiny kitchen and an equally small bath. The latter was so small that there was scarcely room to turn around between the old-fashioned high tin tub and the wall.

Both bedrooms, like most European sleeping chambers, lacked clothes closets. Instead, there were huge chests, one to each room, against the walls which served as wardrobes. Claire was familiar with them.

The flat was furnished decently but very plainly. There were several rather heavy chairs in the living-room, a table in the center of the room on which there were several magazines, and a small couch at one side of the fireplace. Beside the couch was a small table on which a reading lamp was placed. There were several books on the shelf under the table. Glancing at them, Claire saw that a heavy thick volume was a paper-backed edition of "Mein Kampf" by Adolph Hitler.

Above the fireplace was a large framed lithograph of Hitler with two swastika flags draped over the top of it. The room was warm and Claire had just removed her jacket and hat when she heard a key in the door. She was frightened, but didn't know what to do, and a moment later a girl walked in.

The girl looked at Claire without surprise, and smiled as she introduced herself.

"I'm Lili Weber," she said, holding out her hand. Claire took it and introduced herself to the girl who was about her own age. Lili was simply dressed, with a long black coat over what were obviously working clothes. She removed a colored scarf from her head and revealed shiny blonde hair, which had been braided and wound neatly about her head.

"Mother said you were here," the girl said and, tossing her coat on a chair, went into the kitchen. "Hungry?" she called.

Claire realized she hadn't eaten since morning, when she had but a light breakfast.

"Yes," she answered. "I'm starved."

"I'll make a cup of chocolate for you before I start dinner then."

Despite Claire's protests, Lili soon emerged from the kitchen bearing a cup of the steaming beverage on a small tray. It was slightly bitter because of the lack of sugar, but it tasted good to the American girl.

She offered to help Lili prepare the dinner, and went out into the kitchen to watch but the girl refused her help.

"I have to use so many substitutes that I'm afraid you wouldn't know how to cook them," she explained.

"It's pretty bad, isn't it?' Claire asked, sympathetically. Lili glanced quickly at her before she answered, then nodded her head.

"I'm luckier than many, though," she said. "I get one good meal a day at the factory."

"Oh, what sort of work do you do?"

"Load shells in a munitions plant. I was a teacher, but what schools are left are now handled by older women. We younger ones must do helpful work—the sort of thing I am doing."

Claire examined the girl closely as she went busily about the small kitchen.

"She would be quite pretty," she decided, "if she weren't so thin and could get rid of those circles under her eyes. It must be the poor food and the hard work."

"What hours do you work, Lili?" she asked.

"Only twelve, with a half hour off at noon. I get through at 5:30. The factory isn't far from here, and it doesn't take me long to get home."

Twelve hours of back-breaking work in a munitions plant every day! Nazism wasn't much easier for the women of Germany, Claire thought than for the men fighting at the front.

A key was fitted in the lock. Frau Weber came in.

CHAPTER 16

Suspicion Allayed

Claire was frightened by the entrance of Frau Weber, and wondered what she would have done if it had been some one else. Lili, on the other hand, had gone quietly about her work and without turning greeted her mother as she came in the door.

"How did you know it was your mother?' Claire asked.

"Didn't you hear the buzzer?" Lili demanded.

'I heard a very faint buzzing sound, it seemed to come twice, but I didn't pay any attention to it."

"You'll have to learn to listen for it," Frau Weber interrupted. "The buzzer is concealed in the moulding at the top of the living-room and operate from the next to the bottom step of the stairway outside. Whenever Lili or I come up, we step twice on that step, and it is a signal to any one who is here. Oftentimes, whoever is here must quickly get out of sight as quite a few people come here."

"But suppose you are asleep at night? How could you hear the buzzer then?"

"There is a secret hiding place," the older woman explained. "If any one spends the night here who would be dangerous to us or in danger of capture if he were found here, he sleeps in the secret room. I'll show it to you a little later."

"How about Mr. Cameron?" Claire asked. "How is he? Is he safe? Does he know I am here?" The questions fairly tumbled from Claire's lips as she faced Frau Weber.

"A message has reached him — your message that you were told to deliver to him. He has it, and understands. He will follow instructions."

"He is safe then?" Claire cried, happily.

"For the time being, at least."

"Where is he?"

"In one of the old places, under a close guard."

"Do you mean he is locked up?" the American girl asked anxiously.

"He pretty much has the run of the place, but there is a strong guard all around the palace and the grounds and it will be impossible for him to escape without help from the outside."

"Then I won't be able to see him?"

"I'm afraid not, my dear. It would be entirely too dangerous, and any slip now might very easily cost him his life. You know human life here isn't valued very highly here, especially in times like these."

"Did the other messengers get through? I was told that I was one of the three who were making the attempt to reach Mr. Cameron with the message you say has been given to him."

"Yours is the only message I know about," Frau Weber answered.

"Then you think...."

"The others didn't get through," she said, simply, but there was a dead quality in her voice that told Claire as plainly as though the woman had spoken the words that her fellow messengers had either been captured or killed in their effort to reach Berlin. Capture was equivalent to a death sentence, anyway, except that the supreme penalty might be delayed a bit. She shivered and marveled at the good fortune that had followed her. There had been so many chances for a slip, but she had come through. No, if Cameron and she could only get away as easily....

A vague feeling of suspicion crept into her thoughts. Perhaps she had been deceived, after all. Things seemed to have happened too easily for her. After all, she knew nothing about Frau Weber and her daughter. Perhaps Frau Weber had lied about Bill Cameron's getting her message. He might be dead already, or condemned to death for refusing to divulge the secrets she knew the Gestapo wanted to get from him.

There was one way to test Frau Weber—to prove to herself that Bill was still alive.

"Do you think it will be possible for me to get a personal message to Mr. Cameron?" she asked. "I'd like to have him know I am in Berlin—that efforts will be made to rescue him. And I'd like a note from him, if I could have it."

Frau Weber looked at the girl closely for a full minute, her face absolutely expressionless. Then a slow smile, seeming to start at her deep-set eyes, spread over her face. Claire saw that the woman had seen through her clumsy efforts to test her honesty, and flushed with embarrassment.

"Why, of course, my dear," Frau Weber said. "I think a message can be delivered and an answer obtained."

Claire was sorry that she had doubted her protector, but she felt a sudden feeling of confidence in the whole enterprise that had been entirely lacking before. She was certain, now, that she could trust Frau Weber to the limit. That she need have no fear of her or her daughter. It meant a reassurance all down the line—that Noel Yorke was all he had seemed to be, that Rene was strictly honest, too. That she hadn't been deliberately trapped to further embarrass Cameron or permit more pressure to be brought against him by her presence in Berlin.

Lili announced that dinner was ready and although the food might have lacked considerable in nourishment, she had contrived to make it tasty and there was sufficient to satisfy even Claire who was ravenous.

Frau Weber and her daughter kept up a running fire of conversation during the meal, repeating little bits of gossip they had picked up during the day. Reports of friends who had been heard from in distant parts—comment on the lack of news from Frederic.

From the way they mentioned him and the soft look that came into Lili's face, Claire shrewdly guessed that he was considerably more than a friend of the daughter.

"Your fiance?" she asked.

Lili half choked on a morsel of food, and nodded. There were tears in her eyes.

"They were to have been married early in September," Frau Weber explained. "Lili had her things all ready, and then suddenly Frederic was called up. His entire class was called and the next we heard of him he was fighting in Poland."

"He lived through that, thank God," Lili said, fervently.

"Now he is on the Western front," her mother continued. "We heard from one of his friends who was badly wounded and brought to a hospital in Berlin. He managed to smuggle a note to Lili. It is forbidden, you know, to tell any one about any of the soldiers—where they are—whether they are living or dead."

"Karl sent word that my Freddie was well when he left. He was stationed with an anti-aircraft battery near Frankfort."

"Well, that is at least something," Claire consoled the girl. "To know that he is alive. I know something of what you've been through her eyes confirmed what she had guessed—that Claire was in love with Herr Cameron.

Lili said nothing, but her hand suddenly reached out and patted Claire's which was lying on the table. Somehow this simple gesture brought Claire closer to the two women than she had been before. She felt a kinship with Lili, the kinship of women whose men had been caught up in the maelstrom of war. Women who had to subjugate their fears and build them into hopes or else life would be unbearable.

Whatever happened, whatever the future held in store for her, Claire knew she would never forget Lili and her mother, her only friends in the midst of millions of enemies.

"What am I to do tonight?" the American girl asked, turning to Frau Weber. "Will it be safe for me to go to a hotel?"

"No, no, absolutely not," the woman said, hastily. "You will have to stay with us. It would be unsafe for you to be too much on the streets—you might be recognized."

"I was afraid I was going to be this morning," Claire answered. "In your shop, when George Roland came in. That's why I hid my face behind my newspaper."

"You know him?" Lili asked.

"Yes. I met him in Paris."

Lili and her mother exchanged glances in which Claire thought she detected a tinge of fear.

"It is unwise to recognize anybody you may have known, anywhere, in this business," Frau Weber said, slowly.

THE CREATIVE FORESTS

Canada's forest resources are a priceless asset, and they, with their development and conservation may be real additions to the moral and spiritual assets of the Dominion because this work may be made a means for the training of Canada's youth, Lord Tweedsmuir told the Canadian Forestry Association. He declared that this wealth in forests need not be considered a "wasting asset" and that it would only decline if Canadians spend their capital foolishly.

The Governor - General showed that the forests must be scientifically cared for. There is the peril of fire which has to be fought and Lord Tweedsmuir believed that this work is being well done along the right lines. He praised young Canadians who assisted in their protection and said this training has a moral and spiritual value for Canadian youth. He pleaded that the Canadian people should be forest-conscious.

Wise and skilful cutting is the second problem. Cutting must always have behind it a purpose of conservation.

The third problem is new planting. He told of windswept barrens, now surrounded by pleasant woods with accompaniment of lawns and gardens. By plantings values can be increased and the amenities of life enormously expanded.

The Governor - General's words should bring a deeper interest in the forests, their conservation, development and wise use. Forests are a growing asset. They are creative for they grow and are not like some industries which are depleted with use.

The individual trees and the forest are vital factors in life. They are economic and vastly important in increasing, as Lord Tweedsmuir said, the amenities of life, they are health-giving as well as wealth-creating. Much of the beauty of life is to be found in association with the tree, the woodlands and forests.

COLUMBUS WAS RIGHT

Prof. Morison of Harvard, head of the Harvard Columbus Expedition, has returned with some of his party from a tour over the routes taken by the great Genoan, Christopher Columbus, more than four hundred years ago. He declares Columbus was a great seaman and navigator and defends him against those who would debunk this great figure of the late fifteenth century.

The professor with 20 seamen and other aides were in a barkentine on this memorable intriguing journey. For almost four months they sailed the routes from Cadiz to Madeira, the Canaries, Trinidad and along the shores of Central American lands with the purpose of identifying and following courses and waterfalls mentioned in the logs of the great discoverer and the notes left by him and his son.

Columbus, the expedition found, was a true seaman for he could find a place and then come back to it again when he desired. The Professor said Colombus was not much on celestial navigation, but good on dead reckoning. "Like the Yankee skippers of old he was good by guess and by God."

One of the peculiarities the modern sailors found was that Columbus was very enterprising about narrow places. Once he sailed so close that the rigging on either side was brushed by the trees. The Professor and his party found that place in the Split Hill Passage from Almirante Bay to Chiriqui Lagoon in Panama. The water is now seven feet, and the party had to use a launch but it used to be thirteen feet. The Capitana of Columbus drew about ten feet. The party declare that Columbus was no boaster.

The great navigator had an eye to see and a gift to record. Columbus mentioned the weed turning brown near the Azores and then one day he saw no weed. The investigators found the same conditions.

The party had experiences they will not forget. They visited Gomera in the Canaries, the last place to be visited by Columbus on his third voyage and the scene has changed little from the times when Columbus made his notes. They saw the stone castle there where Columbus stayed.

The party also followed the land routes of Columbus.

Evidently the navigator whose discovery opened up a new world in those stirring days when man's minds were broadening with science and the urge for discovery was a very close observer for everywhere the same story is told how his records make identification of places easy today.

It has been said that Columbus was wrong when he said he had seen the three hills of Tobago as he came out of Trinidad. Morison sent a seaman into the rigging at the point indicated by Columbus and the seaman sang out "there's them three hills."

Such a voyage was inspiring to those taking part and will prove of value to history. In spite of "debunkers" children and adults will still tell the story of the man who sailed into the unknown and discovered a new world.

MUSIC THAT STIRS A PEOPLE

How great art can be in the life of a people is shown in the place of honor which is shown Jan Sibelius of Finland, composer of works which stir the Finns as no other music of their race. Artists have been honored in the past and in other lands but no artist in recent days has been honored as Sibelius is. Here is a sane people with a true appreciation of a great artist. Sibelius is looked upon as the soul of his people. He is almost Finland itself. He is peculiarly national in his outlook. But he is a national in the best sense of the word, not in the sense in which the German Nazis have dishonored the use of the word national. He is national in the sense in which races can be national in outlook and still be just to other nations. Finnish nationalism is a strong lamp of liberty and democracy and wills to be let alone to express itself without harm to any other people. Finnish nationalism is like Sibelius' national music a justifiable nationalism.

In the honors the Finns pay this man the world can learn that there are great men in the field of all the arts whose contributions to the civilization of their country are of the spirit and grip the spirit. Nothing else can explain such popularity and almost the veneration of which Sibelius is the object.

In their land of lakes the Finns have built a fine civilization which grows out of the spirit of her people. That Sibelius has sung music which has crystalized and intensified the spirit of the Finns is his contribution to his country's development.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Strangely enough the suspicion and distrust prevailing between the Balkan states themselves and between the larger powers of Europe is one of the best guarantees of the uneasy peace which so far exists in that part of Europe.

Germany, Russia, France, Great Britain and Italy all have interests in the Balkans. Russia has territorial claims on Rumania. Aggression by any one would almost certainly call for counter-measures from the others.

No one can forsee the trend of events which might be unloosed by a German invasion of Rumania, a Russian march on the Rumaian province of Bessarabia or a Hungarian attempt to recover the province of Transylvania.

Assuming the week-end conference at Belgrade of representatives of the Little Entente states — Rumania, Yugoslavia, Turkey and Greece — made no change in the Balkan picture, the danger of war in southeastern Europe appears less than it did recently.

The large powers may well be disposed to leave the Balkans alone as long as the Balkans do not fight among themselves. Germany would run the risk of losing its supply of oil from Rumania should war break out. Italy would be put to the expense and risk of intervening in the war either on the side of or against Germany. Great Britain and France have unpleasant recollections of the indecisive but prolonged operations on the Balkan front in the First Great War.

Russia is the only power which might move with a reasonable hope of avoiding an unpleasant and unpredictable chain of consequences. Russia wants to regain Bessarabia, lost at the end of the First Great War and has few other interests which might be injuriously affected by an attack on Bessarabia.

But Russia is busy with the war against Finland. And in view of the opposition the Finns are putting up the Soviet is unlikely to take on a second war until that one is liqquidated.

A Canadian Port at War

The censor permits the following glance-by-glance report of a comprehensive study of a Canadian East Coast port by a Journal reporter who was shown the "inside" details of air, naval and military defences.

An Atlantic seaport, unlike Ottawa, seems really to be "at war" . . . soldiers, sailors and airmen are all over the place . . . a European camaraderie prevails despite occasional sniping between the forces.

No Neon signs, no bright shop windows, no brilliant theatre lights . . . street lights painted black on top and power reduced . . . no honest-to-goodness blackouts since early December when they had one for 20 minutes and half a dozen shorter ones . . . 20 new and noisy sirens being made for installation shortly and then blackout practice will come again.

Tremendous business . . . hotels turning people away daily, lodgings full . . . furnished apartment rentals increased 50 percent, and more . . . busy taximen chant 'Oh, oh, oh, it's a lovely war' . . . shops, industries and entertainment; cash-registers sing.

In three restaurants one evening, percentage of men in uniform was 55, 58 and 68, and at least another ten percent. in each directly enrolled in war service but wearing mufti . . . girls out in full force, some having "invaded" the town from Montreal . . . Liquor laws keep alcohol down but war spirits run high.

If Private Jones plays a violin, he takes it along in the evening . . . every one who can play takes a whack at it . . . a Cockney across the restaurant floor plays Leicester Square and a husky farmer from Alberta scrapes out a group of lively barn dances . . . the whole city is gay, toujours gaie.

Six French sailors grin over their oysters . . . if they spoke English they'd probably ask why they cannot order beer or wine . . . . C'est certainly not la guerre.

Meanwhile searchlights reach many miles into the sky, manned around the clock by coastal defence troops . . . a submarine net of thick steel cable lies across the harbor mouth . . . great guns are mounted at strategic points all around the city.

Airplanes, big husky bombers and small wasp-waisted Hurricane fighters, patrol sea and shore with the nonchalant thoroughness of a housewife . . . nothing moves in the harbor without authority . . . freighters from all over the world collect to gain a place in a convoy under escort . . . a Greek ship over there looks plenty the worse for old age, but a Norwegian vessel on this side moves along with supreme ease, her new-fashioned prow kicking up no wash.

355 M.P.H. Fighter 'Planes

The city is strongly defended, for the sixth or seventh time in her 200 year life . . . yet no military shot has ever been fired in all that time to disturb the waiting calm of this fortress . . . today destroyers patrol her waters, 'planes scout her skies and troops man her ramparts, a really mighty defence . . . Some call it ridiculous and argue that Fritz would not attempt to hurl 'planes here and much less to despatch raiders like the Deutschland "because they'd have little chance of success".

The answer is that if these defences were not here, Fritz would most certainly come . . . he knows and everyone else knows that the Atlantic seaboard offers several valuable targets, such as the Imperial Oil Refineries at Dartmouth which serve the British Fleet . . . such as ammunition stores and dockyards . . . as bays and harbors holding numerous freighters awaiting convoy to Europe.

Fritz knows and the Censor knows he knows (so it doesn't matter if we say it) that the Imperial Oil Refinery would make a great explosion . . . Fritz would attack that spot tomorrow if he did not also know that fighting 'planes that travel 355 miles an hour are housed but a few miles off.

Fritz knows and the Censor knows he knows that British naval craft of all size and type have been in and out of eastern harbors for five months . . . but Fritz also knows that Canada's destroyer flotilla is on constant guard in these waters, and that Canada's Air Force patrols hundreds of miles out to sea every day.

Minesweepers roam about the area and many vessels are equipped with submarine-detectors . . . the submarine net is three miles or so from the port . . . has a "gate" in it through which only authorized vessels pass . . . the "gate" is generally closed by the same steel cable net but when open it affords easy passage.

Shore batteries with immense guns frown over the water from all angles . . . certain guns could match weight and cunning with anything Germany has afloat . . . to watch these big fellows in action is like standing alongside the engine of a transcontinental train . . . you feel meagre and puny but you want almost to step up and stroke it.

The same feeling goes for the giant bombing 'planes which carry a crew of four and enough freight to wreck four dozen city blocks . . . speed of 226 miles an hour and range of 1,500 miles . . . with a switchboard behind the "stick" that looks like a crazy man's dream and a seat in the bow for the bomb-aimer whose feet rest on clear bakelite (like [illegible]) . . . "all the better to see you with, my dear".

Stealthy Convoys

The fighters, shaped like bullets and smooth as a kitten's ear, can land at 125 miles an hour . . . they carry eight guns, each of which can fire 1,200 rounds a minute and all of which are operated simultaneously by the sole pilot in the machine who fires as he flies . . . this makes a flood of 9,600 bullets a minute from a one-man 'plane . . . men flying them look just like the kind of young men you'd expect to be in charge of them: keen, hard, bright and quick-smiling.

A lot of people may soon want to apologise for wisecracks about the Canadian Navy . . . we haven't many ships, but they're in fighting trim . . . pre-war strength now trebled.

A "run" out to sea in a destroyer, through the long natural harbor, through the submarine "gate", past the inspection ship and pilot ship (under sail) . . . we roll a bit and the breeze is cold enough . . . 25 knots, but top is 35 . . . lookouts all around with glasses, never know but a German submarine might decide to scuttle the press! . . . a whale over there . . . we could "operate" in Bermuda in 14 hours, says the captain, indicating the rapid mobility of the Canadian flotilla which he says is the "essence" of a navy.

On the captain's desk in his suite below is a great map, and a volume of naval reminiscences of Admiral Sir Frederick Fisher . . . still further below in men's quarters are hammocks, and not so much space that they are likely to get lost . . . young fellows all, worried about small pay and particularly the marriage allowance . . . turning to sail back to the city we come about in our own length, or so it seems . . . an inconceivably quick turnabout.

There have been no German submarines in this area, "but in the Spring it might be different", said one man who ought to know . . . certainly there are rich spoils for German mines or subs hereabouts . . . neutral shipping seeks convoy protection from Allies' fleets, such is their suspicion of Nazi respect for neutrality.

Convoys are a great sight leaving port . . . their departure time is unknown to the people, but as they sail out in close procession, all who have eyes may see and admire . . . they go irregularly and vary in size and speed . . . thus far only one ship in convoy from Canada has been lost . . . one was caught after she left convoy on the other side.

Central control room of the R.C.A.F. for the eastern air command is a fascinating place . . . remember the control room in that picture "The Lion Has Wings"? . . . here everything begins and ends. . . weather reports, service reports, action orders, reconnaissance reports . . . if a German 'plane should try to come to the Maritimes from Labrador region she'll be reported from "spotters" all along the route . . . or from any other region . . . here, too, is the buzzer which sets off air raid sirens and blackens coastal towns . . . this office knows where every man and 'plane of the R.C.A.F. is at every moment.

Liaison between air, military and naval officers commanding is instant and constant . . . each knows what the others are up to, each informs the others . . . if Fritz ever comes he'll be amazed to find Canada's fighting forces are just one happy family, all working together . . . direct lines link observers to searchlights, to anti-aircraft guns (amazing affairs which work with precision instruments that make gunnery an advanced science), to airdromes, to port gun batteries, to navy nerve-centre and so on.

Pieces of miscellany: R.C.A.F. finds American firms make aircraft more rapidly than British but British make better 'planes; where Americans will solder, the British insist upon strong nut and bolt. Photographer was stopped by a colonel just as he was about to get a picture of anti-aircraft unit. The colonel kicked away an empty beer bottle lying on the ground. "Can't have that showing."

Been more weddings in the city in last three months than ever before in such a period . . . officers and men get stationed here and promptly marry . . . in the men's huts at several camps were numerous radios, all going at once and not all on the same stations . . . they own them themselves . . . . a steak and carrot dinner was shown to us in one camp; shown, not offered.

Anti-aircraft guns reach 26,000 feet, fire 15 shots a minute . . . shot is a 16-pound shell which explodes when at point in course at which gunners had plotted it would hit 'plane . . . but it can miss by 30 feet or so and the explosion will be enough to finish the 'plane . . . coastal defence guns can reach more than 10 miles and searchlights (arc light) will pick out a 'plane at 30,000 feet . . . sound detectors, giant ears, operate in conjunction with the lights and guns.

In the city one encounters occasional shocks. There's a Military Hospital, for instance, "left over from the last war". Men lie in bed in that hospital who have done nothing else since 1918. To pass it today is to receive an unanswerable challenge as to what we're doing with our lives and our world. There are many such symbols; yet the city seems not to dwell on the past. The oyster bars and the dance halls down on the main streets set up a greater din and all else is forgotten.

The attitude is symbolic of the Empire's view of war . . . they don't want war . . . they don't like war . . . but they don't want Goering on their parade grounds and they can manage pretty well without Goebbels in their school-rooms —so the question is not one of a Polish frontier or a Versailles pact . . . it is in spirit as it is in fact: a question of the defence of their city . . . and it is probably not too simple a theory to hold that every Canadian who goes to France goes to do just that same thing, to defend his own home town.

Because a long face is no more effective than a smile, these people face their duty with a light heart that belies the undeniable fact that if bombers are to loose their havoc in this hemisphere at all, their homes will reap the ruin. And people in the Maritimes know about ruin, the memory of that war-time explosion in 1917 that took 1,800 lives, injured 7,000 and wiped out the North end of Halifax, being still all too vivid in their minds.—(Ottawa Journal).

ON AIDING FINLAND

Our Government has already shown its willingness to do everything for Finland that is can do without wrecking its self-imposed neutrality in the present European war. Our people as individuals have gone even further and are contributing generously to Mr. Herbert Hoover's Finnish Relief Fund. These activities may not be sufficient to save Finland from the fate that seems to await her. But it is doubtful, to say the least, that any activity on the part of our Government can save Finland from that fate. We have deliberately adopted a specific and, on the whole, intelligent policy toward the belligerent nations of Europe, a policy which enables us, within proper limits, to express our sympathies as between the parties concerned. It would not be wise nor prudent to abandon that policy the first time it is tested by an emotional upheaval on the part of our people.—Baltimore Sun.

COAST-TO-COAST TOUR BY KING IS POSSIBILITY

Prime Minister Will Open Election Campaign With Radio Address Wednesday

MAY TRAVEL BY AIR

Ottawa, Feb. 5 (CP)—A swift coast-to-coast election tour by Prime Minister Mackenzie King was a possibility today as political parties planned to open their campaigns this week for the March 26 vote. Much pressure is being brought to bear on the Prime Minister to have him appear in as many places as possible throughout the Dominion during the campaign.

It is believed he will make a quick trip from coast to coast unless circumstances associated with the war effort are such as to demand his constant presence in Ottawa. In that event, the same circumstances would require the presence in the Capital of a quorum of ministers.

Mr. Mackenzie King will open the Liberal campaign with a speech over the National network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation Wednesday night and Conservative leader Manion launches his party's drive for ballots by addressing a public meeting in Brockville, Ont., Thursday.

Liberals here appear particularly anxious that Mr. Mackenzie King at least visit western Canada and his own constituency of Prince Albert, Sask. Suggestions are being made that he travel by air but this is considered unlikely.

Lapointe to Team Up

Justice Minister Lapointe is expected to team up with the Prime Minister during a large part of the campaign and Postmaster General Power and Works Minister Cardin will lead the Liberals in Quebec. In the Maritimes, it is likely that Finance Minister Ralston and Revenue Minister Ilsley will bear the large share of the government's campaign burden.

Other cabinet Ministers will concentrate on Ontario and the west and Mr. Mackenzie King likely will speak in Toronto and several other Ontario centres.

Hon. M. A. Macpherson, former Attorney General of Saskatchewan and second in the voting for leader at the National Conservative convention here in 1938, will speak on the Hustings as Dr. Manion's Chief Lieutenant, visiting many parts of Canada.

M. J. Coldwell (CCF Rosetown-Biggar), a Chairman of the C.C.F. National Committee, will provide the main campaign leadership for his party in association with J. S. Woodsworth, the party leader.

The C.C.F. campaign will start in Western Canada, according to tentative plans. It is understood local headquarters of the National Committee will be moved from Ottawa to Toronto until the election.

Newly-Appointed Personnel Chief Of R. C. A. F. Stickler for Discipline

By WALLACE WARD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Feb. 5 —(CP)— Discipline, ever the foundation stone of the fighting forces, took on even greater significance in the Royal Canadian Air Force today with the appointment of Group Captain Harold Edwards as personnel chief.

The Group Captain, "Gus" to his closer acquaintances, has known discipline over a considerable stretch of time. It always served him well.

And Saturday, after his appointment of the new air member for Personnel of the Air Council had been announced, the Group Captain told newspapermen discipline is as important to an air force as fuel is to an airplane.

Captured Behind Lines

Shot down and captured behind the enemy lines of the first Great War, Group Captain Edwards drew upon strict discipline in an escape adventure as a prisoner of war. Captured April 14, 1917, he was sent to prison camp at Kolmar. A cake of soap was traded to a guard for hacksaw blade. Maps and a tiny compass were smuggled in by friends.

As an armed Germen sentry paced around three sides of the wing of the university that served as a prison, the Group Captain sawed at the window bars. His own sentries, placed at other windows, relayed the position of the sentry to him. He stopped sawing when the sentry approached.

With the bars cut through, discipline came into play. Eager as the three British prisoners were to escape, only one at a time slipped through the window to freedom. As each left, the bars were put back in place until the sentry passed again on his rounds.

Each Did Part

Just as a military column would move through hostile country, so the fugitives filed silently through the night. The centre man or "main body" held maps, compass and food. One man scouted ahead and the third acted as a rear guard.

For 10 days the trio tried to reach a neutral country. They travelled swiftly by night along the side of the road, slept all day in the underbrush. Unfortunately, the escape attempt failed.

Three days of heavy rain left the fugitives cold, wet, hungry and dispirited. Their caution relaxed and they started moving too early one night and walked around a corner into the arms of a military Provost Marshal.

Could Not Convince P. M.

They were unsuccessful in trying to convince their captor that they were Russians heading for home.

"He bought up beers in the nearest pub," chuckled the 47-year-old Lancashireman who grew up near Halifax. "Then he turned us over to his colonel, who bought us dinner and had the local jail carefully swept out for us."

The prisoners, back at Kolmar, were punished by two weeks' solitary confinement, but tried a second escape by digging from their cell into the cellar. They were caught before leaving the building.

BALKAN POWERS EXTEND ENTENTE

Rumania, caught in the Allied-German trade pincers, was seen by neutral observers as failing in her aim to turn the Entente into a military alliance to assure assistance in case of German or Russian threats to her independence.

The partners, however, declared their "will to remain united within the Entente" and "to watch in common over the safeguarding of the rights of each of them to independence and to national territory."

A communique said the conference recognized:—

"1. The common interests of the four states in the maintenance of peace, order and security in south-eastern Europe.

"2. Their firm decision to maintain strictly their positions in regard to the present conflict so as to preserve this part of Europe from the trials of war.

"3. Their will to remain united within the Entente to watch in common over the safeguarding of the rights of each of them to independence and to national territory.

"4. Their sincere desire to keep and develop friendly relations with neighboring states.

"5. The necessity of tightening and perfecting economic and communication bonds among the Balkan states in organizing commercial exchange inside the Entente.

"6. Prolongation of the Balkan Pact for seven years, beginning Oct. 2, 1941."

The Ministers, the communique said, agreed to keep in "close contact" until the next ordinary session of the permanent council at Athens in February, 1941.

Yugoslav Foreign Minister Alksander Cincar-Markovich was expected to confer with Italy soon to initiate Rome's role as intermediary in a friendship pact between Hungary and Yugoslavia.

OWNERSHIP OF MONEY DENIED

Kirkland Lake, Ont., Feb. 5 —(CP)—Mrs. Nancy Hill of Rouyn faced a charge of possession of counterfeit money today as the result of discovery of vast quantities of currency in her possession, the bills having a face-value of $112,000.

She was arrested at Swastika last night after a train conductor on the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railroad discovered bank notes of large denominations scattered on the floor of the compartment in which she had ridden from Rouyn en route to Toronto. Conductor T. J. McCaughey soon ascertained that the bills were spurious and notified police.

The woman got off the Rouyn train at Swastika to await a Toronto train and had her heavy bag carried off the train. Instead of waiting for the Toronto train she boarded a motorbus for Kirkland Lake and was arrested when the bus arrived here, local police having been notified by the train conductor at Swastika.

Police claimed to have found a huge stack of false banknotes in the woman's suitcase and also a plate for manufacturing counterfeit bills hidden behind the seat that she had occupied in the bus.

Mrs. Hill was charged with being in possession of counterfeit money and of material for its manufacture. She told police that she lived in Rouyn and said that the money had been given to her there to take to Toronto. She denied any ownership of the currency.

400 Principals May Contribute Briefs to Calendar

Toronto, Feb. 5—Officials of the Ontario Teachers' Association reported today that the number of Ontario school principals who have submitted briefs for the Ontario Educational Calendar for 1940 has now increased to more than 230, and that the rate at which entries are being received may bring the total to 400 by the dead-line, February 10th.

Principals of the entire province were recently invited by the Association to become the joint authors of the book which will reflect the conditions and needs of educational organization in all sections of the province. Each participating principal is supplying a brief of from 200 to 300 words on an educational topic. The Association will distribute the book to teachers, inspectors and school trustees in the spring.

On Saturday, January 27th, the marriage took place of Hilda Victoria, daughter of Mr. Hiram Varty and the late Mrs. Varty of Bogart and Judson Douglas McGowan, son of Mr. and Mrs. James McGowan of New Liskeard. The ceremony was performed in High Park Avenue United Church by Rev. J. D. Parks. She was attended by her sister, Miss Marjorie Varty, teacher of Stouffville, who wore blue heaven crepe with corsage of sweetheart roses. Mr. Harry Benson of Ivanhoe was groomsman.

Following the ceremony, wedding breakfast was served at the home of Mr. George Varty, Toronto, the bride's brother, after which the young people left by motor on a honeymoon trip to Florida. Guests at the wedding included Miss Mabel Varty, Markham, Mr. Earl Varty, Tweed, Miss Margaret Atkins, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Bray, Belleville.

The Sawyer-Stoll Lumber Co., near Northbrook are operating with one hundred and twenty men on the payroll. They work twenty two hours a day. Tractors and trucks haul loads of logs weighing ten tons on sleds with eleven foot bunks. The route followed makes it necessary to cross Lakes Weslemkoon and Pringle.

An interesting debate "Resolved that the League of Nations should be abolished" was given at the Young People's Union at Sulphide. The affirmative side was debated by Miss Florence Hale and Mr. Bruce Price of Actinolite, while Miss Earla Credicott and Mr. O. B. Edgley of Sulphide upheld the negative. The affirmative failed to prove their argument according to the decision of the judges, Mr. Robert Sweatment B.A., Rev. H. L. Morrison and Mr. H. J. Cordy who awarded the decision to the negative. Refreshments were served at the conclusion of a most interesting program arranged by Mr. Jas. Corbett.

The Juvenile Hockey League played a second double-header on Wednesday evening with a good crowd. The teams will be known as Rangers, with Jack Rashotte as captain; Bruins, Grant Baker, captain; Leafs, "Bud" Sills, captain; Red Wings, Francis Baldwin captain.

The Rangers defeated the Leafs in the opener by a score of 5 to 3, with Meraw of the winners again monopolizing the scoring with 3 goals. G. Connor and Donohue scored one each. Alexander counted twice for the Leafs and Sills scored the other goal for his team.

The Bruins scored a win at the expense of the Redwings, by a score of 5 to 2 with Baker getting two of his team's goals. B. Gehan and Rivers scored the other goals for the winners. Baldwin and L. Gehan secured the goals for the losers.

"I was Just an Infant Then . . .

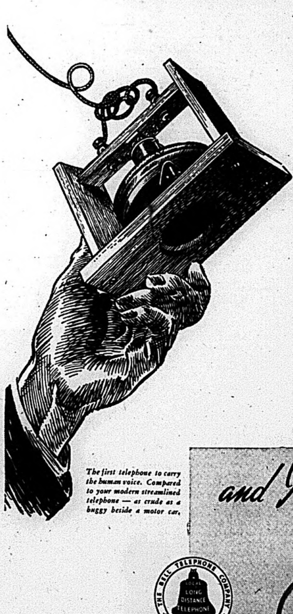
"—even Alexander Graham Bell could hardly have visioned my amazing future—certainly not on the evening of March 10th, 1876, when the human voice was first heard over a wire."

Four years later—April 1880—the Bell Telephone Company of Canada was formed.

It was a new domain of public service but the Company's founder, the late Charles Fleetford Sise, was confident that a painstaking, courteous service, always improving as new apparatus and new methods evolved, would in time develop into one of the major enterprises of Canada. He saw that telephone service was worth so much more than its cost to the user that the future of the business was assured.

The principle that Bell embodied in his first crude telephone has persisted to this day. The principles of Charles Fleetford Sise for the conduct of a great public service are reflected in the continuous progress of the Company he founded.

Within these sixty years the telephone has broken down the barriers of space and time and vastly promoted human understanding. In Canada the telephone is used more than in any other land.



The first telephone to carry the human voice. Compared to your modern streamlined telephone — as crude as a buggy beside a motor car.

Fashion Flashes

BRIGHTEN UP the winter wardrobe with a white hat. Smart for afternoon and informal evening is a pillbox of quilted white velvet with a cluster of tiny white plumaged birds.

THERE'S A SPARKLE to many of the new gowns. A lovely dance frock is navy blue set with bands of leaves fashioned of sequins in light blue, rose and green. The skirt has yards and yards of the fabric, and the tiny jacket has embroidery of rose colored sequins.

JUST SEE what a big thing taffeta will be come spring. An advance model is black taffeta, made with a full, street-length skirt and a bolero with squared shoulders. Appliqued bow-knots of self material trim the high, wide revers and the three-quarter length sleeves.

TEAMING UP to smarten a costume is an interesting glove and belt together with a boutonniere. Green suede makes the glove and bag and bow have a crushed bow of gilded, snakeskin. The ornament is of green suede grapes with gilt snakeskin leaves.

OLD WORLD CHARM marks many of the new evening ensembles. Pale blue slipper satin is used for a lovely frock with bands of sable-dyed kolinsky edging the round neckline. The matching muff has bands of the fur, and there is a little fur jacket lined with the blue satin.

IT LOOKS LIKE fur capes for spring. A useful model is of sable-dyed fitch, very full, hiplength, with rippling hem.

MRS. GEO. BLACK ON WAY TO YUKON

Served Four Years as Member of Parliament and Says She Will be Back

(By Muriel Adams)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Feb. 5.—(CP)— Mrs. George Black, four years as a member of parliament behind her, travelled today toward her first love—the Yukon.

There was just a trace of wistfulness in her voice as she talked with visitors who found her sitting amid packing cases in her office on parliament hill Saturday.

"It's been a beautiful experience here," she said as she tucked away mementoes and prepared to campaign in the Yukon for her husband who will contest the House of Commons seat Mrs. Black held as an Independent Conservative.

"These years of parliamentary life have been something I shall never forget. But it is rather sad leaving all the friends you have known on parliament hill. I'll miss hearing about their kids."

There's another item the smiling white-haired woman of the north is going to miss too, "the courtesy of my colleagues". Fondly she packed away a card that came with a bouquet of flowers from an admiring member of the Commons.

Before leaving for the West Saturday night Mrs. Black said she hoped to be back in the capital again. It depends, of course, on whether Captain George Black, former Speaker of the Commons, retains the Yukon for the Conservatives. "You never can tell about elections", said Mrs. Black wisely.

Frankford Ladies Form Red Cross Branch

Frankford—On Thursday, Feb. 1, forty-five ladies from Frankford and vicinity met in the Community Hall for the purpose of forming a Red Cross branch. The meeting was opened by Reeve George Spencer who asked for nominations of President. Mrs. Gladys Ketcheson was elected President and then took the chair. The following officers were elected: 1st Vice-President—Mrs. G. Dickson; 2nd Vice-President, Mrs. W. N. Simmons; Secretary—Mrs. Wade Thompson; Treasurer, Mrs. Will Bush; Convener of Work Committee, Mrs. G. E. Patrick; Hospital Supply, Mrs. H. J. Madill; Surgical Supply, Mrs. Ray Turley; Wool Supply, Mrs. H. Goodrich.

After the election of these officers, Mrs. Ketcheson stated that she wished to resign. With Mr. Lane acting as temporary chairman it was unanimously agreed by the meeting that Mrs. Will Bush be President and Mrs. Ketcheson Treasurer.

Mrs. Gladys Ketcheson told of the disbandment of the Girl Guides and donated on their behalf the very generous amount left in their treasury.

It was moved by Mrs. Southworth and seconded by Mrs. Ford that Mrs. S. Osterhout and Mrs. Hanna be a committee to interview the town council in order to procure a room in which to do Red Cross work.

It was decided that a canvass be made of the community to raise funds. The following canvassers were named: Mrs. Jas. Ford and Mrs. Geo. Arnott, Mrs. G. Ketcheson and Mrs. W. N. Simmons, Mrs. P. N. Mikel and Mrs. J. L. Hanna, Mrs. D. Acton and Mrs. Kellar, Mrs. G. Dickson and Mrs. Chas. Patrick, Mrs. Jim Smith and Mrs. Arthur Ferguson, Mrs. Ross Turley and Mrs. H. Slingerland, Mrs. P. Brown and Mrs. H. Hadley, Mrs. Geo. Burkitt and Mrs. E. Burkitt, Mrs. Bert Bush and Mrs. Ross Nicolson, Mrs. Geo. Nicolson and Miss F. Hearns.

It was decided that Tuesday and Wednesday be the days on which the canvassers would make their drive for funds and that each minister would announce the fact from his pulpit on Sunday.

Mrs. G. Dickson and Mrs. Emerson Hough very kindly offered their sewing machines to be used for Red Cross work.

Mrs. Redick of the Trenton Branch told the assembly that more sewing machines, irons, tables and cupboards would be required. She also warned that at times the Red Cross workers might have their feathers ruffled but that their watchword must ever be "Carry on." "The Red Cross," she said, "offered many opportunities with which to work with people we might otherwise never know."

Mrs. Wilkins, also of Trenton, gave a very instructive talk concerning the display of samples of nightgowns, pyjamas, pneumonia jackets and other articles which she had brought.

Mrs. Gladys Ketcheson moved a vote of thanks to Mrs. Redick and Mrs. Wilkins for coming and so ably assisting in the organization of the Red Cross. The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

In her grandmother's palace at the Hague, Princess Beatrix received many gifts, among which was a scale model of the Netherlands' first train of 1839, presented by the Netherlands Railway Company.

A wicker hamper lined with a removable fish net bag saves precious moments when it's time to relegate soiled clothes to the tub, the washer, or the laundry man. Spare bags are provided so that clean ones can always be ready to snap in place. The hamper itself is floorless and raised from the ground on tiny legs, thus insuring a constant circulation of air.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Read Something Besides the Baby Book

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"If I told you how things appear to me in our home, you'd probably sum it up and say I am jealous of our baby son, age seven months.

"In a way, I'll admit that perhaps there might be an element of jealousy regarding this young, pink-toed, home-wrecker, because since his arrival my wife does nothing but hang over him and devote waking moments to attentions, some of which are entirely superfluous.

"Don't get me wrong. She never neglects his airing, proper attention to his food, cod liver oil, orange juice, all that sort of thing. She never puts one of those rubber contraptions into his mouth or takes him out of the crib unless it's necessary, or for his airing. She even lets him cry. So you will see she's an entirely modern, conscientious, up-to-date young mother.

"But the thing that gets me is that before we were married and during the first year of our marriage she was a real companion. We had such happy times together reading books, magazines, newspapers, and discussing things that happened. Not that we always agreed — far from it — but that she was such a lively understanding comrade.

Since Junior arrived, she never reads anything but baby books and the death notices in the evening paper. If she sees the death of a child under two or three, she's upset for the rest of the evening. How did it happen? In what way did the mother fail? If death overtook that child, why not ours?

"I never knew there were so many baby books written. She brings a lot of them from the public library, returns them, and brings more. She has no conversation outside of the baby. It isn't that my nose is out of joint, but I hate to see such a charming girl become a victim of what I call malignant maternity.

"You must have had other letters like this. Have you any suggestions?

Junior's Father."

Give her time and she'll recover from what you so amusingly call her "malignant maternity." In the meantime, using the utmost tact at your command, you might gently insinuate to your wife that she'll be a better mother to Junior if she knows more of what's going on in the world about her.

Not that Junior will need to understand about the "isms" now rending Europe for some years to come but an intelligent woman makes a better mother than a foolish one. It won't be long before Junior realizes he's King Pin and begins to tyrannize over his idolatrous parent and becomes so unendurably spoiled that no one can stand him.

A positive cure for the dictatorship of the first infant would be a second one, who will help crowd the first little tyrant off the map. But in your present state of mind, that suggestion from me may sound like "undeclared warfare."

Your wife's case is not incurable. If she's the sensible girl you describe, she'll very soon begin to see the effect of all this appeasement policy to Junior. Continued appeasement is doubtful, as a certain English statesman has long since discovered. The same awakening is in store for young mothers with their first born. Don't despair.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Plans a Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. My fiance's sister is planning to be married in the Spring. Would it be all right for me to give her a shower? We don't go around with the same crowd very much, but we do know each other's friends to speak to. As most of the girls are employed, the party will have to be in the evening.

2. What type of invitations should I send?

3. Could you suggest a few different kinds of shower?

4. Please suggest a menu.

5. Will you please let me know if it would be all right for me to invite a few of my friends, as well as hers?

6. Should I have them play cards, bingo, or could you suggest something different?

You see I am only 18 and this will be the first party that I have ever handled myself.

Mary

1. Yes, it would be all right for you to give this shower for your fiancee's sister.

2. If you have visiting-cards you may correctly write this shower invitation on them, or you may write cordial notes of invitation, or you might write them on attractive special shower invitations that you can find at your stationer's.

3. On your invitations or in your notes be sure to tell the guests what kind of shower you are to give. Linen showers are very popular, and so are kitchen showers. Sometimes a glassware or china shower is given. Then there are bath-room accessories showers, handkerchief showers, lingerie showers, "beauty" showers (cosmetics, powders, and so forth), buffet table accessories showers.

If you want to give a low-budget shower, an engaging paper shower can be planned... with gifts of shelf-edgings and shelf papers, paper doilies, lamp shades, decorative wrapping-papers, and a "paper trousseau", consisting of letter papers and cards. A bridge shower (items for the bridge table) is also an inexpensive shower. You can give a five-and-ten-cent shower or a five-ten-and-twenty-five-cent-nothing-over shower. And, too, there's the good old stand-by, the "miscellaneous" shower.

4. Your menu for the evening party might be as simple a one as various kinds of small sandwiches, small cakes or layer cakes or slices of cake (fruit cake, for example), hot coffee and a cold drink, if you wish, as an alternative. If you wish to dress up this menu a bit, add something like chicken a la King, or sliced cold meats and a salad. Or you might like to have a "hot dog" menu, the frankfurters served between long toasted rolls. They always make a hit!

5. Yes, you might invite a few of your friends whom the bride-elect knows, but the majority of the guests should, of course, be her friends.

6. Usually you don't need to plan any special entertainment for a shower, for the time is consumed with the guest of honor's opening the gifts, the serving of refreshments, and the "much talk". However, if you wish, you might plan bridge, bingo, or whatever games you know are favorites with this group.

Since your shower is to be given in the evening, you may, if you wish, invite men to come in after the shower itself. That is, set an earlier hour for the shower, and have the opening of the presents over before the hour set for the men to arrive. Then you can have your party develop into a bridge party or a dance.

Keeping Complexions Clear

By HELEN FOLLETT

JUNE PREISSER .... movie dancer keeps her complexion clear.

MORE PRECIOUS than curly hair to the teen-age girl is a complexion that is free of blemishes. And that's saying something, since ringlets are beloved. A few red blotches and the little dear heart is ready to crawl into a coal hole, stay there the rest of her life.

When chronic acne develops, any skin specialist will tell the patient that he can't say how long a period it will be before the condition can be cleared up. Infection burrows into the tissues, proves stubborn.

Health measures are important. The daily bath with soap suds and a heavy brush normalizes the functions of the skin, eases up the activities of the delicate glands on the face. Starches, sweets and fats are reduced, more liquids, fruits and fruit juices taken. Some physicians recommend cod-liver oil to supply necessary vitamins.

Soap is helpful because it dries up the pustules and softens the waxlike plugs in the pores. A bland product should be used, the lather must be thick; plenty of friction employed. And every bit of lather must be rinsed away. Creamy cosmetics that keep the flesh moist are not of any help, although medicated ointments are often used.

The wise mother will see that little daughter is given treatment by a physician who specializes in diseases of the skin and scalp. She will caution the child not to press the pustules because of the chance of producing scars.

On fatted calves try the rolling pin treatment. Get a small one, sprinkle well with talcum powder. Sit in a straight-backed chair, place your heel on the seat of another chair, pass the rolling pin over the fleshy part of the leg with heavy pressure. This treatment dissolves fat cells that don't like any disturbances so go off and die.

Assist the good work by walking on your toes, doing high kicking, jumping a rope. With skirts as short as they are now, legs must be in form.

More About Vaccination

Yesterday I referred to how outbreaks of infectious diseases have fallen back before the increase in the use of and improvement of vaccines and serums that build up immunities against the germs that cause these infections. As I told you, I have seen vaccination reduce small pox from almost an annual scourge to almost a rarity in my country district.

Public antipathy and prejudice against vaccination is dying out, fortunately, and now we vaccinate the school children at as early an age as we can and repeat the inoculations at the necessary intervals.

But vaccination at primary school age really isn't early enough. I advice parents to have their children vaccinated before they are six.

One reason for this advice is that vaccination in a very young child has a comparatively light reaction. With each increasing year in age, reactions are more marked by fever and general illness of a few day's duration.

Also, if a child isn't vaccinated until he is six — school age — he is unprotected during the years when he is most susceptible to infection.

I told you yesterday how I converted one skeptical French Canadian father to vaccination by a demonstration upon myself. In extending this idea, in the course of seeing that all school children are inoculated, I'm afraid I've played some "dirty tricks" on school teachers.

Naturally, when you go into a school to vaccinate the children, a few of them will be very frightened at the prospect. When such a school visit produced several cases of such fright, the teacher helped me out.

"Vaccinate me in front of them, doctor, and that will reassure them", he whispered to me. I did and it worked beautifully. Ever since then, when I go into a school room and some of the children are frightened, I suggest that the teacher get vaccinated just to show his pupils that it's alright. Sometimes the teachers try to squirm out of it, but mostly they are glad to set their pupils a good example.

One priest who used to make the rounds of the district with me, to persuade his parishioners to have their children vaccinated, also served me as a demonstrator. He loved to play jokes on me. For example, he would tell others in front of me that people didn't have full confidence in me as a doctor, so he had to go around with me. Well, one day we ran into a particularly tough family that didn't want to be vaccinated because they couldn't understand it. Then I thought of a way of turning the tables on the priest.

"Father Murphy will be glad to let me vaccinate him just to show you how much he believes in it," I suggested. I saw my friend the padre give me a funny look, but the idea struck the fancy of the father and mother of the family. Both declared that if he would be vaccinated then and there, they would have their children done too. So vaccinate him I did, and the family too

Many the laugh that priest and I have had over it since. In fact, it worked so well that we did it many times after that, because, as you probably know, vaccination when it once takes effect, won't take again for a number of years. He was in no danger as a result of the multiple vaccinations.

NUN QUITS POSTMISTRESS

St. Joseph's N.Y., —Mother Polycarpa, the country's first nun postmistress, retired today and more than 500 of the nation's stamp collectors are after her last cancellation. "I have no regrets about leaving the postal service", said the Mother Superior of the Dominican Convent and director of St. Josephs' Sanatorium, as she glanced over the requests. "Uncle Sam has been kind to me and I should have liked to continue in the service until the Lord calls me home. Since the law requires retirement at 70, however I am glad to do so". In charge of the postoffice here since 1898, Mother Polycarpa will be succeeded by Sister Michelina.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Insulin to Prevent Itching—Pruritis

When Drs. Banting and Best, Toronto, discovered insulin which prevents death in diabetes, it was not known that insulin would be so helpful in many other conditions. But it should be remembered that the organ—pancreas— which manufactures insulin, manufactures a juice, the pancreatic juice, which does all the different jobs done by the digestive juices of the stomach, mouth and liver. And so almost every few months we read about some new use of insulin.

The reason that insulin is proving so useful is that the various glands of the body depend upon one another to some extent for their best work or use in the body. Therefore if gland is not working properly, not producing enough of the right kind of juice, some of the other organs and tissues are going to suffer. And so we find that a lack of insulin in the blood, by upsetting the work of other glands and their juices, allows certain ailments and symptoms to occur.

cause of its effect upon the liver

One of the mean or distressing symptoms common to man is pruritus—itching. It is known that in- [illegible] cause itching and also the eating of certain foods [illegible] drugs. There are, however, many cases of pruritis where the cause is difficult to find; it would appear from recent discoveries that insulin is going to prove of real benefit in such cases.

Dr. C. G. Vervloet, Amsterdam, in investigating the use of insulin in pruritis, observed that several patients with hepatic (liver) disease in whom insulin gave good results, were relieved also of the severe itching of the skin. He found that twice 10 units, or twice 15 units, to which sugar was added, was usually sufficient to relieve the itching.

How was the itching relieved by insulin? Dr. Vervloet believes that the insulin relieved the itching beand kidneys. As you know, the liver and kidneys are the great filterers of the body, removing from the blood materials which if left in the blood could cause chronic illness or death. When the liver and kidnews are not getting the normal amount of insulin from the pancreas to help them to filter out harmful substances, they allow enough of these harmful substances to remain in the blood to cause pruritis or itching. By receiving insulin daily, the cells of the liver and kidneys are enabled to do more thorough filtering of the blood.

Scientific Tactics In Battling the Moth

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

One of my readers has referred a question about the clothes moth to me. I do not see that this is properly a health question except inasmuch as it causes worry, hypochondriasis and hysteria, but since I happen to have some information, I will be glad to pass it on.

Here are some little known facts about the clothes moth:

When the housewife suddenly jumps to her feet and makes a frantic dash after a moth that is flying in the air, she is obeying an ancient instinct but is not at her scientific best. The only damage that is done by the clothes moth is from the larvae, fresh hatched from eggs. The flying moth is always male so cannot lay any eggs.

The female has extremely small wings and practically always uses her feet as a mode of locomotion. She is also heavily weighted with eggs, which prevents her aviation impulses from being carried out. It may be said that killing the flying moth is a method of moth birth control, but it is said to relate that the female is not monogamous and can find a husband nearly any place. Males are in excess in the moth population, being 65 per cent.

Its Life Cycle.

The life cycle of the moth is like all insects—first the egg, then the larva or maggot, then the pupa, and finally the mature adult. The female, as soon as she reaches maturity, lays eggs for from two to twenty-four days. She prefers to lay them in strings of wool or hair. A virile female lays between 40 and 70 eggs (this estimate from Major E. E. Austen and A. W. McKenny Hughes, British Museum of Natural History). The eggs hatch in from eight to ten days.

The larve begins to feed as soon as it is hatched. Its skin is translucent, so it takes on the color of whatever it feeds on. It does not show white against black. It spins a fine veil over itself, however, and it is this veil which the housewife sees when she opens a trunk or closet.

Contrary to a popular belief, the larva will eat wool or fur and not necessarily food remnants on clothes.

Since the larvae can survive for a year or more in a state of hibernation without food, it is not possible to starve them out as we can other varmints. There are, however, many ways of combatting this pest. The best is temperature. They cannot endure low temperatures and therefore, the best way to protect furs is to put them in cold storage. Even better than cold temperatures, are sudden changes of temperature.

A chemical for destroying the moth is flaked naphthalene. It kills by means of its fumes so that naphthalene scattered on the floor and shelves of a closet will do damage so long as it is understood that a closet is closed up.

A more expensive but efficient moth killer is paradichlorbenzene. Like napthalene, it is harmless to human beings, is a crystallized substance and is used the same as naphthalene.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. S.: "I would like to know whether a hernia, or, in my language, a rupture, is an accident or a disease. I had an argument with my brother-in-law. I said it was an accident and he tried to tell me it is a disease which you inherit."

Answer—In this case you are both right. A hernia may be a disease in the sense that it is a weakness in the abdominal wall. When a rupture occurs, a portion of the intestine comes down through this weak place. This may be precipitated by an accident, such as a blow on the abdomen (or heavy lifting).

M.T.: "Please tell me what is to be eaten for gout and what will cure it."

Answer — The classical diet for gout is to avoid purin-containing foods. This means, particularly, liver, kidneys, sweetbreads and red meats in general. A low fat diet also has been tried with some success. However, there is no absolute certainty that any diet will prevent gout. Attacks are liable to occur under any regime.

Pack Up Your Skin Ills

By HELEN FOLLETT

ONE WAY of clearing the pores of dust is to have a clay pack once a week. Better do it when you have the house to yourself because you'll look terrible and terrifying. It's like something that has been dug up.

Get some kaolin from your druggist. Kaolin is our friend, Fuller's earth, an excellent cleansing agent, which has been purified by chemical processes. If the skin is oily, mix the powder with witch hazel until you have a paste the consistency of whipped cream. Smooth it on a clean skin surface, include the neck and the ear lobes. Better smack back your hair, using your wave cap, since the pack won't do your hirsute thatch any good.

Pick up your mystery story and read for half an hour. As the pack dries, it will flake, and then it is time to remove it. Use tepid water for the purpose follow with an ice rub. Get out the fragrant massage cream, give the flesh a brisk tapping; it will soon be colorful, have freshness.

For dry skins olive oil can be substituted for the witch hazel, or you can use a liquid cleansing oil, one of those semi-liquid preparations.

In combatting blackheads it is well to remember that the various avenues of eliminations should be kept active—the intestinal tract by eating fruit and bulky vegetables; the skin by daily bathing; lungs by deep breathing; kidneys by drinking plenty of water.

Light-colored eyebrows can be darkened with mascara or touched with a crayon. Neither one should be allowed to touch the skin; not because it will do harm but because artifice is apparent.

Permanent dyeing is done in beauty shops. The eyes are carefully protected with gauze, the surrounding skin treated so that the dye will not penetrate. It's no task for the home girl who likes to experiment; only professionals should attempt it.

It is not always safe to use a dye on eyelashes; dreadful accidents have happened, although there are harmless coloring agents. One must be sure that the operator is using them.

Cosmetics to the Rescue

By HELEN FOLLETT

DOUR, CRITICAL ladies who regard cosmetics as so much nonsense will develop into lemony-looking femmes while the cold cream contingent will keep on being peachy. Beautifying agents are not to be scorned or sneezed at. Fragrant lubricants preserve the cutaneous coat and keep it smooth; the massage necessary for their application helps the skin to function normally and to retain its youthful coloring. Also it tones tissues, gives exercise to underlying fibres.

The only trouble is that shoppers for pulchritude don't take the trouble to find out just what they are getting, don't always follow directions on jars and bottles and so don't gain the results they are seeking.

Every woman needs a thin cream for removing make-up, a heavier preparation to apply at bedtime. Only those with sagging tissues, enlarged pores or excessive oiliness of the complexion require astringents. Dry skins call for powders with an oily base; oily skins improve in appearance when the powder is of light consistency.

It's a good plan to get chummy with the saleswoman who has workable ideas and can offer helpful suggestions. New products are being offered all the time. In the selection of rouge and lipstick one must have the seeing eye, be fastidious, make haste slowly when touching up the feminine portrait.

After the age of 60 the skin undergoes changes. Liver spots may appear, or the epidermis show rough, raised spots. Most annoying, and the dear old duckies don't like them.

Daily oiling of the skin will tend to keep these blemishes at arm's length. They come because sebaceous glands slow up, and the skin becomes dry. The victim slows up on exercise at that age, as a rule; circulation is not as brisk as it was in younger days.

Discolorations should be laved with a lotion made by combining equal parts of strained lemon juice and peroxide. Put it on with a pledget of cotton, let it dry.

Let's Bury the Past Misdeeds of Child

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Some time ago in this column I wrote an article pleading with my fellow parents, after they have dealt with any specific wrong-doing of the child as they saw fit, to close the issue forever, never bringing it to the child's attention again.

I reminded my readers that parents are inclined, at such times, to dwell endlessly on some past wrongdoing in the child, and are especially likely to do so when we are displeased with him about some other matter. How disastrous this practice proves to be to a child is illustrated in the following letter:

"Dear Dr. Myers: I am writing this letter to you because I have to tell my troubles to somebody. One day about two years ago, when I was twelve years old, another boy and myself made the mistake of stealing something and were caught. He was the one really to blame, for he influenced me to do that.

Reminded Of It.

"I am now fourteen years old and during all the time since that event I have been trying to forget. But I am afraid I never will. For, you see, my mother keeps remembering that mistake, and every time I get into a fight with one of my brothers she always reminds me of it.

"My dad died when I was not quite two years old. My mother married again about five years ago and my step-dad does not take any interest in me or my brothers. I have two brothers. The oldest hates me because of that trouble. He claims I have ruined his name, so we do not speak to each other. But any chance he gets to tell me of the trouble he does, especially when we have a fight. He is 17 years old.

"My other brother is always quiet, but it is he that I fight with mostly. It is in most of these fights that my mother reminds me of that trouble.

"I have often had the urge to run away. Two times I had it so bad I almost did, but I did not have any money and did not know where to go. I write songs and expect some day to do that for a living. . . . As soon as I sell a song I am going to move on my own. I want to know if I will be doing right."

How I answered him:

"While your life at home may be almost unbearable at times, I am sure you will gain most in character and personality if you can make the most of it while keeping inside of you your self-respect.

"Do go on and write music. If you don't find a publisher right away, or even after several years, keep at it anyway. You are young and may have a glowing creative future. Sometime you may be able to prove to your parents and brothers that you have creative ability, at which time they will treat you differently.

"Be assured that your letter will make me try harder to get other parents—and I wish I could change yours—to avoid treating any child or step-child as you have been treated."

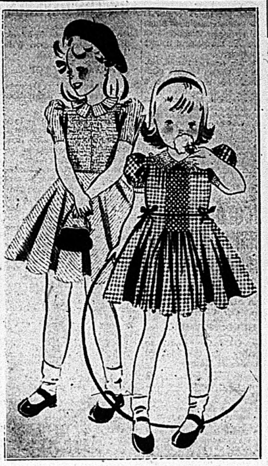
Knee-High Importance



By PRUNELLA WOOD

Somebody's birthday — maybe George Washington's — means a party and a new frock. Here are two new styles exciting from a little girl's viewpoint.

For sizes seven to fourteen, red and white striped seersucker, left, is fashioned into quite an ensemble. The shirred jacket with plain sleeves buttons over no less than a suspender skirt and a white dotted Swiss blouse. Both simple and chic at not too high a price.

The one-piece frock, right, is also made of seersucker, and comes in blue and white checks as well as cherry red and white. Black velvet ribbon crosses the smocked front and lace edges the dainty collar and cuffs. Snaps, not buttons, fasten the bodice in back. This is for sizes three to six and a half.

Food Favorites on a Singer's Menu

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

One subject of converration that continues with unflagging zest at all times is food and its preparation. More than once what we have thought to be a solemn conversation on world affairs between important persons has turned out to be an argument as to the relative excellence of a restaurant or a dish. We have found that career women and musicians are most enthusiastic and always have the best recipes.

At all of Mme. Rethberg's meals, a salad consisting of chopped vegetables—carrots, green peppers, lettuce, tomatoes and fresh peas—is served.

An Irish stew is Mme. Rethberg's favorite dish. To make it, divide about four pounds neck of mutton into eight or ten trimmed chops, paring away all excess of fat and rough bone. Season plentifully with pepper and moderately with salt. Place the chops in a deep saucepan, with sufficient water to cover. Add eight good-sized onions, put the lid on, and set on the fire to stew gently for thirty minutes. The stew must then be removed from the fire, the liquor poured into a bowl, and, after being freed from ALL fat (this is essential), is poured back on the chops. Add a dozen peeled potatoes and a pint of good stock or gravy, or a like quantity of water. Boil gentle for about 45 minutes. To serve, put the potatoes in the centre of the dish, arrange the cutlets neatly around them and pour the sauce and onions over all. Serve very hot.

Apple Sauce.

Apple sauce is made in a different way in the Rethberg household. It's used as a main dish embellishment and as a dessert, with cream. To every pound of apples, allow two tablespoons of butter, and not quite a tablespoon of water. Peel, core and slice the apples, put in a saucepan with the other ingredients and simmer till tender.

An American version of that old English dish, mince pie, is another favorite dish with the singer. Make a mixture of finely-chopped suet, currants, raisins, stoned and quartered, also peeled and cored chopped apples, powdered sugar, one-half pound sultana raisins, four ounces mixed candied peel, finely shredded, one lemon, a little cinnamon, mace and grated nutmeg. The lemon should be pared and the rind boiled until tender, then rubbed through a sieve and mixed in a bowl with all the other ingredients. Put in a jar with an air-tight lid and let stand several days before using, to assure best results.

Sparkle — From the Inside

By HELEN FOLLETT

NATURAL animation is the best of all eye sparklers. Dull brain, dull eyes. What goes on inside the mental works is reflected in the soul windows. Bright thoughts, jolly ones, shine 'em up, put on the polish.

Eyes have their own oiling and washing systems, get along pretty well if they are not abused or subjected to disease. Reading in a dim light or on moving trains is a strain. The movement of the train means that eyes must make readjustments of the distance of vision. But people will do it just the same.

Fatigue, loss of sleep, sometimes digestive disturbances will cause distress, and the surrounding tissues will be swollen. Glasses that are not properly fitted produce tension and tiredness. If you wear specs, toddle to your eye doctor now and then for an examination. See that your glasses are properly placed, not on a slant or down on your nose.

After being subjected to dust, the eyes are soothed by the use of a boric acid lotion. Apply it with a medicine dropper; more economical than an eye cup. Don't let anybody tell you to do eye exercises unless he is a professional, knows what he is talking about.

Stick to a beauty diet and you can cut down on the cosmetic bill. An excess of fried foods is not good for your innards or your outards either. is likely to make the complexion coarse of texture and oily of surface.

Sweet are concentrated foods, necessary for the creating of energy, but one needs only a small amount each day. All the citrus fruits are recommended because of their effect upon the liver and intestinal tract. Milk contains calcium good for the well-being of the teeth.

Chocolate Tops Our Favorite Dessert

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

Apple is the favorite pie filling, and chocolate is the favorite cake flavoring. At least, that is the conclusion of a recent survey conducted in hotels, restaurants, bakeries and homes. Consequently, we need not apologize for offering cakes and frostings all glorified by chocolate.

"Be My Sweetheart" Cake is given with an eye to the day that honors the good Saint Valentine, patron saint of all true lovers. Make it with two cups of sifted cake flour, teaspoon soda, one-half cup butter or other shortening, one and one-fourth firmly packed cups of brown sugar, two eggs or three egg yolks (unbeaten), three squares unsweetened chocolate (melted), one cup milk and teaspoon vanilla. Sift the flour once, measure, add soda and sift together three times. Cream the butter thoroughly, add sugar gradually and cream together until light and fluffy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each; then add melted chocolate and blend. Add flour, alternating with milk, a small amount at a time, beating after each addition until smooth. Add vanilla. Bake in two greased, deep nine-inch layer pans or in three greased eight-inch layer pans in 350 deg. F. oven 25 to 30 minutes.

Spread On Frosting.

Spread Seven-Minute Frosting between layers and on top and sides of cake. While frosting is still soft, sprinkle sides with rose-tinted coconut. Cut Valentine heart from waxed paper and place in centre of the frosted cake. Trace around heart with toothpick or orange stick. Remove pattern carefully and fill in heart with rose-tinted coconut. To tint the coconut, sprinkle on white paper. Dilute a tiny bit of vegetable coloring (paste, tablet or liquid) in a small amount of water, pour over coconut and rub through evenly.

Individual Chocolate Souffles make a sparkling addition to a formal luncheon or dinner party. To serve six use two squares unsweetened chocolate, two cups milk, one-half cup sugar, one-third cup flour, one-half teaspoon salt, two tablespoons butter, teaspoon vanilla, four egg yolks, beaten until thick and lemon colored, and four egg whites, stiffly beaten. Add chocolate to milk and heat in double boiler. When chocolate is melted, beat with a rotary egg beater until blended. Combine sugar, flour and salt; add a small amount of chocolate mixture, stirring until smooth; return to double boiler and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Continue cooking five minutes, stirring occasionally. Add butter and vanilla; cool slightly while beating eggs. Add egg yolks and mix well. Fold into egg whites. Turn into well-greased individual casseroles or into large custard cups, filling them two-thirds full. Place in pan of hot water and bake in 350 deg. F. oven 45 to 50 minutes or until souffles are firm. Serve immediately with slightly sweetened whipped cream or garnish with rosettes of frozen white cream, made by placing rosettes on waxed paper in tray of automatic refrigerator until frozen. Makes six souffles.

Gifts For The Easter Bride

By ELEANOR ROSS

You can have fun visiting the household departments of the stores and those wonderful specialty shops devoted entirely to housewares. We've been out looking, with an eye to wedding gifts for Easter brides, now that the tendency to give something for the house is on the increase.

Don't give a toaster and let it go at that. Choose instead one of those sleek sets which come complete with their own trays, bowls and dishes. A handsome thermos set has its own glasses and tray, just right for bed table or for the living room. Or how about a set of glass flameware, including a glass saucepan which comes to the table as an elegant serving dish? A set of this ware in one, two and three-quart sizes would gladden the heart of any woman, bride or veteran homemaker.

Another swell gift is an electric grill which has flat pans for toasting sandwiches and also a pair of pans to be slipped in when a dish of waffles is in order. Inexpensive, handsome and useful is a set of icebox dishes in boneware in dozens of lovely colors. These versatile dishes stack up and can be used as casseroles too. An electric grill, made especially for weiners, is a grand idea for those who like to entertain.

Novel Centrepiece.

An inexpensive and novel centrepiece consists of a tiny, flat plant stand in wood, with a round top handle—something like a lazy susan. Fitted with tiny white plant pots or crystal glasses to hold cut flowers, it sheds beauty wherever it is placed. Also beautiful is a tall table lamp in the shape of the graceful Calla lily, which gives soft, indirect light. A set consisting of lighter, cigarette box and ash trays, all in crystal with simple block letter monograms, is another idea.

To start the bride off on a systematic routine in the household, how about a little desk? Some other friend might give such accessories as a fountain pen, clock and perpetual calendar. Or a set of leather bound books which turn out to be receptacles for bills paid and unpaid, for notes and for stamps. A desk set of white, blue or red leather stamped in gilt with gilt initials is nice, too, as is a desk clock of pigskin done with saddle stitching, or a big desk calendar and appointment book of leather, with a clock set under the cover.

Dogs Can Have Headlines Anytime

Dogs make news. Probably no other mammal—certainly no biped—attracts more attention while being so completely innocent of seeking the spotlight. The most self-centred mutt on earth, we dare say, would bare his fangs at the overtures of a public relations counsellor, yet canine publicity is tremendous in volume. And 1940 already gives promise of being a banner bowwow headline year. Its first fortnight was productive to a high degree.

Let's start right here in New York. A grey poodle named Tiny, heavy of heart because her only pup was born dead, adopted two kittens and became an attentive and nourishing mother to her strange, mewing brood. Another lady dog lured two gentlemen of the species out on thin ice in the Hudson and then, when cracking floes betrayed in her companions a lack of fortitude ill becoming their sex, paddled scornfully ashore and summoned radio cars, police launch, ice breaker and aeroplane to the rescue.

The confusion of apartment dwelling caught up with Pudgy, a red chow, while his mistress was out buying him a steak; Pudgy sauntered in the corridors with a dog friend, lost his way, nipped a helpful attendant and subsequently shared his filets mignons with the delighted and grateful canine populace of the A. S. P. C. A. shelter, whither he had been dispatched for observation.

The same day Dixie, a poodle, won court protection against a neighbour (genus homo) given to nerve-racking pranks with fireworks, and 24 hours later a Brooklyn man paid $50 penance for burning two pups alive. Comments withheld.)

Elsewhere in the country volunteer spokesmen for an inarticulate German shepherd voiced indignation at the dog's being obliged to bear the name Hitler; Rusty, a sizable mutt, lost 17 pounds in three weeks' accidental imprisonment in the vacant house of a dead friend; an elderly woman gave her life trying in vain to rescue her dog from a blazing home; a barber's Boston terrier pup begged nickels and exchanged them for hamburgers at the butcher's, and a possum hound, trained to fetch possums to fit his master's pelt-stretching board (take this for what it's worth), chanced to let his glance fall upon an ironing board and forthwith vanished, never to return.

These American canine deeds and circumstances are so diverse and stimulative of such a variety of emotions that they preclude generalization. However, when the analyst of dog news turns to Europe he is quickly moved to one compelling observation. There Fido seems to be making headlines only out of the way. The French are recruiting pets for the army. The heavy-jowled English bull has no ration card, must rely on scraps from master's table. His German cousins are no better off; true, Berlin gives meat cards to all dogs over 16 inches in height, but the dachshund, traditional pet of the Teuton, is of low-slung chassis and therefore must turn vegetarian or whine for his supper. One can talk about leading a dog's life in America: In a hemisphere bedeviled by war there doesn't seem to be the wherewithal even for this.

San Antonio, City of Picturesque Contrasts

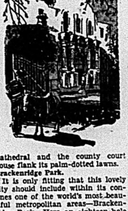
By TEMPLE MANNING

A city of picturesque contrasts, where skyscrapers cast pointed shadows over centuries-old buildings, heritage of a memorable past—that is San Antonio. It is impossible to visit this lovely metropolis in the southwest of Texas without becoming an ardent admirer, for San Antonio, a city as lovely as its name, has everything. Set in a fertile, fruitful valley approximately 700 feet above sea level, it is situated so importantly that Old World nations struggled for its possession some two hundred years ago. Once a Spanish stronghold, capital of the province of Tejas, in New Spain, San Antonio today is headquarters of the largest military establishment in the United States, and is the commercial and financial stronghold of the great empire of South and West Texas.

The Alamo.

Crowded by the towering buildings of the downtown section is the Alamo, shrine of Texan liberty, in the beautiful setting of a palm-shaded plaza. It was in this plaza that the Mission San Antonio de Valero was established in 1708, later to become the fort in which was to be welded an unyielding chain of liberty and independence. The Alamo is a shrine that will always draw pilgrims. But there are other old buildings, too. Flanking a beautiful plaza is old San Fernando Cathedral, and there is the magnificent Spanish Governor's Palace on Military Plaza, the keystone of which bears the arms of the House of Hapsburg together with the date, 1749. The building, together with the interior, has been splendidly restored.

To the west of Military Plaza is San Antonio's Mexican corner, typical of the nation which is but three miles from the city. The Main Plaza, an oasis in busy downtown San Antonio, was, in the 1850's, the stopping place of mile-long wagon trains from Mexico, and the gathering ground for cattlemen. The Cathedral and the county court house flank its palm-dotted lawns.



Brackenridge Park.

It is only fitting that this lovely city should include within its confines one of the world's most beautiful metropolitan areas—Brackenridge Park. Here an eighteen-hole golf course is laid but in the most beautiful section of the park, with the San Antonio River forming one of the water hazards.

Th park contains a fenced donkey trail for children, and a reptile garden with rare species of snakes in their natural surroundings. In Brackenridge Park is found one of the most beautiful zoos in the country as well as a Japanese garden created in an abandoned rock quarry with countless flowers of every hue. There are winding rock walks that lead over lily pools. Overlooking this sea of loveliness is an authentic Japanese tea house, set on a cliff. Then there is a little old Mexican village to contrast with the nearby Sunken Garden Theatre. The weather is so marvellous in this lovely Texas city that all fresco concert and operatic performances are held throughout the year.

Thompson, Coach of Hawks Doing Swell Job With Club Not Figured to Go Anywhere

Hawks Now Fourth and Crowding Leafs for Third Spot in N.H.L. Race

WIN AND DRAW

Rangers Swamp Canadiens 9-0 While Bruins Trounce Amerks 7-1

(By Robert Clarke)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

When the time comes to pick an all-star National hockey league team and an all-star coach to go with it, the men who cast the ballots might do well in considering Paul Thompson as the "seventh man" on their mythical club.

There has been nothing either mythical or mystical about the way Thompson has nursed along the Chicago Black Hawks in this N.H.L. campaign. With three months of the schedule gone by, and a month and a half left, the Hawks occupy a much loftier position than hockey followers were wont to predict for them at the start of the season.

Threat to Leafs

A major share of the credit for lifting the club by the bootstraps must go to Thompson, who took over the coaching reins last year after the ousting of Bill Stewart. Thompson has modelled and remodelled so that the Hawks, clicking in the best form of two seasons, are becoming a threat to the third-place Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Hawks topped the Leafs 3-2 in a Saturday contest at Toronto and then played to a 1-1 overtime draw last night at home against Detroit Red Wings. The Hawks are eight points away from Leafs in the standing and have a game in hand.

Leaders to Meet

Meanwhile, the League-leading New York Rangers and the second place Boston Bruins continued their smashing play, with the Rangers scoring a 9-0 victory over Montreal Canadiens and the Bruins trouncing New York Americans 7-1. Only three points apart, the Club meet tomorrow night at Boston with a sell-out crowd already assured.

A feature of Chicago's two games was the play of Rookie Phil Hergesheimer, who played last season with Cleveland Barons in International-America League. Hergesheimer figured in all the goals scored by Hawks during the week-end, getting a goal and three assists.

Hergesheimer's goal came against the Leafs as another freshman, Doug Bentley, and the Veteran Bill Thoms supplied the other scores. The Toronto goals went to Lex Chisholm and Nick Metz. Johnny Gottselig, with Hergesheimer again drawing the assist, supplied the Chicago goal against the wings, who stretched their unbeaten string to six straight games on the strength of goal by Ebbie Goodfellow.

Rangers Run up Score

Leading Rangers as the Blueshirts ran up the highest total for any team this season were Bryan Hextall, Dutch Hiller, Phil Watson and Kilby MacDonald, Hextall, Hiller and MacDonald each scored twice while Watson got one goal and helped in three others.

The game marked the return to the N.H.L. scene of goalie Wilfie Cude, who was replaced as netminder of Canadiens last season by Claude Bourque. Cude, called up from the New Haven Eagles of Intam, found little or no protection from the Habitant defence as Neil Colville and Lynn Patrick also found the range for goals.

The Bill Cowley-Roy Conacher-Mel Hill Line, so effective in the last part of the 1938-39 season as the Bruins marched to the Stanley Cup, demonstrated like prowess against the Americans as Hill picked up a goal and an assist, Cowley scored twice and Conacher helped in their three scores.

Frankie Brimsek had a shutout spoiled by Lorne Carr, who fired home the puck near the half-way mark of the last period. Other marksmen for the Bruins were Herbie Cain, Bobby Bauer, Bill (Flash) Hollett, and Woody Dumart.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Feb. 5—(AP)—Scoop-arade: The word is out the Illinois Athletic Commission is about ready to wash its hands of the Harry Thomas thing—(we wouldn't be surprised if the N.Y. commission is ditto) ...Pictures of the Newark, A.C. dinner show El Galento taking a snooze for himself right in the middle of the orations...Lou McKenna, general manager of the St. Paul Ball Club, is in the east sounding out baseball opinion on the Landis plan to ditch the chain systems.

Today's tall story: Zipp Newman of the Birmingham News swears he knows a school that captured a red hot prospect because it was able to find a pulpit for the player-preacher to occupy on Sundays.

Shortstop Pee Wee Reese is still a minor—in age, that is—so his mother had to sign his new Brooklyn contract...Hans Vopel and Gustav Kilian, the German bike riders, are in California training for the spring grind. Seems they never got nearer the war zone than Berlin.

New Yorkers were disappointed in the lightweight contenders they saw Friday night. Sammy Angott and Pete Lello were anything but spectacular and Tony Martellano who beat Billy Marquart of Winnipeg was voted too green for a title shot...They finally got Ted Williams into a tux for the Boston Baseball Writers' dinner, but they had to catch and hold him to do it...Yep, old Glen Cunningham is still a pretty fair country miler.

HUME ARENA IS SCENE OF MANY GAMES THIS WEEK

Juniors Hold Fort on Monday and Thursday, Peterborough Here Tuesday

REDMEN HELPED

An average of one hockey game every night in the week is scheduled to be played at the Hume Arena this week, commencing with a doubleheader of minor league hockey this evening when the Trenton juniors make their final appearance of the current O.H.A. season and versus the Belleville Quintes. Prior to the junior game the Maple Leafs and Black Hawks will battle it out for the leadership in City Juvenile League.

The Belleville juniors are undefeated in five starts this season and after a full week's lay-off will be at full strength versus the second-placed Trenton squad tonight in an effort to keep their string of victories intact.

Redmen Sign Three

Augmented by the services of three new players, the Belleville Redmen meet the Peterboro intermediates at the Hume Arena on Tuesday night in the final meeting of these two clubs for the current season. Two players from the Prince Edward County league and one from the Bata team of Frankford will join the Redmen to battle the Petes Tuesday night. Coach "Speedy" St. Louis is endeavouring to try out new material with the Belleville sextette in an effort to bolster the Redmen for another season. The rejuvenated Belleville team battled courageously against the strong Air Force Flyers last Friday and gained the admiration of the fans for their stand.

Wednesday will be given over to public skating at the Arena, but on Thursday night minor league hockey again holds sway, when the Picton juniors make their final appearance on a Belleville ice and versus the Quintes. This O.H.A. game will also be preceded by a City Juvenile League game. On Friday night the Air Force journey to Peterboro to round out a complete week of hockey. With group schedules rapidly reaching the stage of completion, hockey fans should avail themselves of every opportunity to witness these final league matches.

Draft-Tagged Players Passed up by Majors

San Francisco, Feb. 5—(AP) — Scouts of the 16 major league baseball clubs passed up a draft-tagged player who last season cracked a Pacific Coast League record of 26 years standing.

The player is Brooks Holder, San Francisco Seals outfielder. He hit 24 triples last season. The old record was 23, established jointly in 1913 by Ivan Howard and Harl Maggert of the Los Angeles club and tied in 1923 by Pete Schneider of Vernon.

In 173 games Holder hit for an average of .314. He knocked in 87 runs, had 89 bases on balls, stole 14 bases, hit 16 sacrifices, five home runs and 34 two-baggers.

Young, useful and fast, Holder could have been had for $7,500. Charley Graham, President of the Seals, was more surprised over the fact Holder wasn't drafted than he would have been if Dominic DiMaggio hadn't been sold.

Calumet Farm Trainer Crowding the Record

Miami, Fla., Feb. 5 (AP)—It's a trifle early to make an outright prediction, but there's a man at Hialeah Park who may break Hirsch Jacobs' seven-year stranglehold on the country's thoroughbred training championship.

He is Ben Jones of Parnell, Mo. trainer for Warren Wright's Calumet Farm, and he already has a nice jump on Jacobs this year. Jones has saddled 15 winners to Jacobs' seven since Jan. 1.

The 57-year-old Jones is no newcomer to training renown. Two years ago he conditioned Herbert M. Woolf's Kentucky Derby champion, Lawrin.

Eight years ago Jones signed up with Woolf and trained his horses until last fall, when he took over the Calumet Farm string. Now he cares for 47 horses in the Calumet barn.

Larry O'Connor Failed to Qualify in the 60-Yard Hurdles at Games

New York, Feb. 5 (CP)—It seems Bill Fritz, the foot-racing man from Queen's University in Kingston, Ont., will have to be satisfied with second place in the famed Milrose 600, no matter how fast he runs.

Last year, his first on the boards on the United States indoor track circuit, the Canadian Olympian was nipped at the wire by Wes Wallace of Fordham University in what then was the second-fastest time ever recorded for the race.

Saturday night before 16,000 at the 33rd Millrose Athletic Games, Fritz was second again, this time to long-striding Jim Herbert, New York University negro who holds the world indoor mark of one minute, 11 1-10 seconds for the 600.

Herbert broke in front of the field, and Fritz settled himself behind him from the gun. The slim negro, pacing himself perfectly, had the answer when Fritz let go with his final kick on the last lap and Herbert was pulling away at the finish.

But Fritz had forced him to run the distance in 1:11.4, just 3-10 off the world mark and only 1-10 second o.. Chuck Hornbostel's meet record.

Fritz Beat Wallace

There was a measure of satisfaction for Fritz in running ahead of Wallace, who beat him in Boston again last week. Wallace was caught by Sanford Goldberg of New York in the last strides and finished fourth.

Larry O'Connor of the University of Toronto, only other Canadian in the meet, qualified for the semi-final of the 60-yard high hurdles by running second to Ed Dugger of Tufts College in their heat. But in the semi-final, O'Connor broke slowly and couldn't make up the distance over the jumps, finishing third and out of the final to Jay Shields of Yale and Dugger.

Allan Tomlich of Detroit won the final in 7.3 seconds, equalling the meet record.

Chuck Fenske, University of Wisconsin Grad, ran a 4:07.4 mile to take that feature by three yards over the veteran Glenn Cunningham.

OTTAWA SQUAD HAVE NO RELIEF FOR THE DEFENCE

Lose Two Games in Week Because Defencemen Wilt Under Heavy Task

ROYALS ON TOP

St. Hyacinthe Defeats Goodyears in Exhibition Tilt by 4-2

Montreal, Feb. 5—(CP)— Lack of adequate defence replacements is keeping Ottawa Senators from improving their disposition in the Quebec Senior Hockey League.

With Johnny Wilkinson suspended by the club "for giving no satisfactory reason for missing practices," Senators have been forced to rely solely upon rookie Don Grant and veteran Stan Pratt for defence duties in their last two games, both of which they lost.

A week ago Senators had a three-goal lead wiped out by Montreal Concordia in a third period rush and Saturday night at Ottawa Montreal Royals banged in six third period goals in an 11-5 victory. After bearing up fairly well for two periods, Pratt and Grant wilted for want of relief in the third.

By their victory Royals moved four points ahead of the idle Montreal Concordias and appeared capable of holding on to first place until the end of the season. Russ McConnell and Buddy O'Connor paced the attack, the former with three goals and an assist and the latter with a goal and four assists.

At the other end of the standing, the tail-end Quebec Aces kept alive their faint hopes of reaching the playoffs by edging out Verdun Maple Leafs 2-1. Ray Malenfant scored a goal late in the third period for a victory that put Quebec four points behind the fifth place Cornwall Flyers and seven points out of a playoff berth.

Three in Other Loop

Three games were played in Quebec's other senior circuit, the Provincial League.

With a crowd of 16,191 watching, Sherbrooke Red Raiders gained a split on their weekend trip to Boston by beating the Olympics 4-2 as Guidoo Roy and Hank Harris came through with goals in the last two minutes of play. Boston had beaten Sherbrooke 4-3 in overtime Friday.

Lachine Rapides also took advantage of a goal late in the game for a victory, beating Valleyfield Braves 2-1 when Henry Hayes scored 18 seconds from the end of the third period. Rapides moved into third place, a point ahead of St. Hyacinthe Gaulois who beat Toronto Goodyears of the Ontario Hockey Association 4-2 in an exhibition game.

Shawinigan Falls kept in the playoff race by lacing the tailend Quebec Beavers 7-4. Cataracts tallied five goals in succession in the third period, after the teams had played on even terms in the first two, and moved into a sixth place tie with Verdun Bulldogs.

HEAVY GOING FOR CLAUDE BOURQUE IN INT.-AM. LOOP

Claude Bourque has had his first taste of International-American League Hockey and can't quite agree with Manager Jules Dugal of Montreal Canadiens that it is just the thing for a rest cure.

Sent to New Haven because he had been a bit off color in recent games with Canadiens, Bourque tended the nets against Springfield Saturday night and put in the busiest evening he has had in a long time as the Indians fired shots at him from all angles for a 9-3 victory.

The Eagles were beaten twice during the weekend, losing 3-2 to Hershey Bears last night. The double loss, coupled with a 3-2 Providence victory over Pittsburgh last night, dropped New Haven out of first place in the Eastern Division, two points behind the Rhode Islanders.

Altogether it was an unsuccessful weekend for league leaders, for in the Western Division the pace-setting Indianapolis Capitals were able to gain only one of a possible four points. They were beaten 2-1 by Hershey Saturday and held to a 2-2 tie by Cleveland last night.

In another Sunday game Philadelphia and Syracuse tied 3-3 while on Saturday Cleveland beat Syracuse 6-3 and Pittsburgh laced Philadelphia 5-1.

Roger Jenkins was the only Indian to get more than a single goal against New Haven, scoring two. Just about every player on the team however, picked up at least a point, including owner Eddie Shore who took his turn on defence and drew an assist.

Gordon Pettinger found the range twice to lead Hershey to their victory last night. The blond Boston-owned wingman started and finished the scoring. Pettinger also figured in the Bears' victory over Indianapolis, helping Bobby Kirk on the winning goal 25 seconds from the end of the second period.

WALLY STANOWSKI

Toronto Maple Leafs

By Central Press Canadian

Wally Stanowski

A free-skating, shifty - hipped young defenceman, playing his first season in the National League and destined, according to most observers, to many years of stardom there, is Walter Stanowski of Toronto Maple Leafs. Two winters ago Walter was playing with the junior St. Boniface Seals in Manitoba and his dashing play from the blue line was one of the reasons the team captured the Memorial Cup. He was a sensation in the finals against Oshawa Generals and was signed by the Leafs, who farmed him out to Syracuse of the International American League last year and brought him back as one of their six defencemen this year. However he was back in the minor league again this season, but not because of lack of ability. In the season's opening game he sustained a cut foot, and after his recovery played a few Int.-Am. games to get back in stride. Wally will only be 21 come April 23, and along with his teammate, Billy Taylor, claims youngest player honors in the circuit. Born at Winnipeg. Weighs around 175 pounds, not especially heavy for a defenceman, but he has a great physique to keep him in there in any rough going that crops up. Shoots left, and in the past has taken turns at left wing.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with Ken J. Colling

I don't think so much of skywriters
In fact, I detest them, by heck;
I can't say a kind word about them
They give me a pain in the neck.

Ross Burtt's second placed Trenton juniors make their final appearance of the O.H.A. season at the Hume Arena tonight to do battle with the Belleville kids. Incidentally Toots Holway's charges have been idle for a full week, while the Trenton kids lost to Picton last Wednesday and are most unhappy about the whole thing. Naturally the Quintes are anxious to keep their unblemished string of wins intact and will be out in full force tonight to try and register their sixth consecutive victory without a loss. To give the patrons a little for good measure the Black Hawks and Maple Leafs of our city juvenile league, will battle it out for first place in a curtain-raiser game tonight, making it two games of minor league hockey for one admission price. Both the juniors and the juveniles deserve better support than has been their lot at the hands of the local fans.

The English enthusiasm for the Canadian army's full-blooded hockey was shown last week in the formation of six more army teams with headquarters at London rinks. Altogether ten army teams and one Royal Air Force squad have been completed in less than a month. The six newly formed clubs are—the Royal Canadian Regiment, the Artillery, the Highlanders and Medical Corps and the 3rd Infantry Brigade and all make the Empress Hall rink their home ice. The Toronto Scottish Regiment lost a close decision game to Wembley Colts, last year's winners in the London and Provincial League, over the week end. All work and no play is not the motto of Johnny Canuck as the Canadian soldier boys are having ample fun with their work.

"We are not going to finish the season without winning at least one game," Coach "Speedy" St. Louis openly stated this morning after announcing that the Belleville Redmen had signed two players from the Prince Edward County League in hopes of beating the Petes here Tuesday night. It will mark the last meeting of the Petes and the Redmen and a game in which we would not be surprised to see plenty of red-blooded action and perhaps the resumption of the Tompkins-Jackson brothers' feud, on which we set the Liftlock City scribe right a few days ago. There was never any love lost between Belleville and Peterboro' puck teams and regardless as to the fact that the Redmen are in the cellar slot and out of the group race, the scarlet-clad Bellevillians are desirous of winning at least one game this season and a victory over the Petes would be a tasty morsel for the Redmen to lick their chops over.

The local league standings today are:

Do you remember when George Young's managerial difficulties making the front pages thirteen years ago today. He had just won the Catalina marathon swim and on Feb. 5, 1927, his mother had rushed from Toronto to San Francisco to confirm Harry O'Byrne as manager—with a 50 per cent cut.

SPORT SPICE —District skiers and skaters made merry over the week end, the former at Oak Lake and the skaters on the splendid Belleville Yacht Club open-air rink, where hundreds of skaters enjoyed recreation yesterday . . . Queen's Billie Fritz won second in the 600 yard run at the Millrose Games in New York Saturday night . . . Jim Herbert of N.Y. University ran in front of Fritz, who forced the New Yorker to the second fastest time in the 33-year-old history of the race . . . Contrary to Larry McPhail's recent statements the Quebec Provincial Baseball League was accepted into the National Association of Professional Baseball and is now recognized as being a member of the organized baseball fraternity . . . All of which reminds us that the Peterboro' scribe is entertaining hopes of the revival of senior baseball for his Petes next summer, but we feel his hopes are in vain.

Phil Hergesheimer, Chicago, had a hand in every Black Hawk goal of the week-end. Hergesheimer scored once and got two assists in a 3-2 victory Saturday over Toronto and helped in the goal that gave Hawks a 1-1 draw with Detroit last night.

MENTAL ILLNESS CAUSES TRAGEDY

Mrs. McCullough was married only three months ago at a pretty ceremony attended by the sportsman. Only yesterday Schlegel skated with his 12-year-old son.

W. A. Hewitt, Secretary of the O.H.A., who knew Schlegel in his 15 years as a member of the association executive and before that as a player, said at Toronto he was "the last person in the world you would expect to hear such a thing about." Hewitt described the sportsman and business man as "the type of man who always looked on the bright side of life."

Quiet at Dinner

Last night the McCulloughs motored to Preston to have dinner with the Schlegels. The meal, McCullough said afterward, was without untoward incident, though Schlegel was unusually quiet in his place at the head of the table.

Afterward the McCulloughs went to the evening service at St. Peter's Lutheran Church, Schlegel went to his office at the Canadian School and Office Furniture Company, Mrs. Schlegel lay down on a chesterfield and Jack went to bed.

Schlegel spent only a few minutes at the office, according to police reconstruction of the case, and drove home, parking his automobile in front of the house. He left his pet bul'dog in the car and went into the house smoking a cigar.

He killed his wife with two shots through the breast from an old-style .45 calibre revolver that dated back to the days when he was a bank clerk. He went upstairs and fired a shot into his son's chest and then another into the head, apparently as the boy tried to struggle from bed.

Pressed Gun into Side

Then, police surmised, he heard Mr. and Mrs. McCullough returning and went to the front door. As it opened he pressed the revolver into his daughter's breast.

"My wife said: 'Don't do that, father—it hurts,'" McCullough recounted. "Before I could do anything he pulled the trigger and blew the side right out of her."

McCullough leaped over the verandah railing and ran to the police station a block away. Police Chief Gordon Bogle returned with him and found Sch'egel dead beside his daughter, a bullet through his head. He evidently had reloaded the gun after shooting his wife and son, for at least five shots had been fired.

Schlegel, as an employee of the Imperial Bank, played hockey in his youth with teams at Welland, Kitchener, Winnipeg, Edmonton and Preston, After coming here he became Secretary-Treasurer of the Canadian Office and School Furniture Company and at the same time held simi'ar positions with two other furniture firms.

Chairman of Board

In 1932-34 Schlegel was second vice-president of the O.H.A. and he rose to become Pres'dent in 1936-37 and 1937-38. At the time of his death he was a member of the O.H.A. sub-committee and chairman of the adivsory board.

He was known as an organizer of midget and juvenile hockey. He was a member of the Preston Rotary Club and a Mason.

Schlegel's father, John Schlegel, and his brother, Oliver, live at Kitchener. Mrs. Schlegel's mother, Mrs. Lil'ian Revitzer, resided with the family but was not at home at the time of the shooting.

ABANDON INQUEST ON WELLMAN'S

After being arrested at his home on Friday evening, a life-long friend of the deceased persons, 46-year-old Frederick Thain, was officially charged with the shot gun murder of the aged Wellman couple and Thain is being held under close scrutiny at the Belleville jail. Some time today the jurors composing the coroner's jury impanelled are to be notified of the cancellation of the adjourned inquest, which was to have been held in Stirling on Wednesday. Thain, the accused man, was a member of the original coroner's jury, but was dismissed from service at the time of his arrest.

While searching the Wellman barn on Saturday afternoon, Richard Wellman, a relative of the deceased couple, is reported to have found an empty shot gun shell in the barn where Arnold Wellman was murdered on Wednesday. Sergeant H. E. Thompson and Provincial Constable W. E. Smith returned to the scene of the crimes later Saturday and took possession of the empty shot gun shell, which was later taken to Toronto for examination in an effort to disclose the type of gun from which the shell had been fired. No other shot gun shells were found, Inspector Frank Gardner assured the Ontario Intelligencer today.

Over the week-end Inspector A. H. Ward, C.I.D., removed trousers and rubber boots, allegedly taken from Thain and brought to Belleville and took the articles to Toronto for further investigation. Thain's shot gun was also confiscated by police and taken to Toronto for investigation by experts.

Thain yesterday approached Major Alderman, of the local Salvation Army and asked Mr. Alderman to "pray for me".

"It was following our usual Sunday morning church service at the Belleville jail, that Mr. Thain approached me and sought solace," Major Alderman told the Ontario Intelligencer today.

"He sat through the entire service deep in thought and at its conclusion quietly approached me and said 'please pray for me,' and immediately we knelt and prayed, "Major Alderman continued. Today Major Alderman again visited Thain in his cell and held prayer, and talked with the accused man for some considerable time.

Preliminary Hearing Opens

Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., announced this morning that Thain would appear in a special session of police court, held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., at the Court House in a preliminary hearing commencing Wednesday morning. "No doubt the preliminary investigation, which sees Thain charged with double murder, will continue for some time," said Mr. Donnan.

When asked whether or not Thain was being represented by counsel, Mr. Donnan informed the Ontario Intelligencer that a relative of the accused man had contacted a local barrister regarding the defence of Thain. "Regardless as to whether a defence lawyer is retained by the family or not, the accused man will have the benefit of counsel, as the court would immediately appoint a counsel in the event that no defence solicitor was retained prior to the proceedings," revealed Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C.

REST BROKEN UP BY NIGHT RISING

Now Mr. Dale Tells How Mosby's Tonic Relieved His Sluggish Kidneys — Had Backache and Was Worn Out Before He Found This New, Scientific Compound.

Mr. Albert Dale, of 385 Symington Ave., Toronto, Ont., is now adding his name to the long list of widely-known people who publicly praise and endorse MOSBY'S TONIC. This New, Scientific Medicine is now being introduced to the public daily in this city at Lattimer's Drug Store, your Tamblyn Dealer, 228 Front Street. Mr. Dale is a widely-known citizen, with many friends here, and it is with pride that we publish his Grateful Message about Mosby's Tonic, which follows:

MR. ALBERT DALE

Sluggish Kidneys Made His Back Sore and Achy

"For some time I had been a victim of sluggish kidney action and had sharp pains in my back regularly," said Mr. Dale. "My back was so sore and achy that I couldn't bend my body one way or another. My sleep was disturbed constantly by night rising and as a result of this I got so that I felt worn out from lack of rest. I was also suffering badly with a stomach gas condition.

"I was born and raised in Toronto and have a wide acquaintance so, of course many of my friends know how I suffered during the past year. But now I want my friends to know how much Mosby's Tonic has done for me. I got this medicine less than 4 weeks ago, and now I have taken only two bottles and feel like a different person. I am relieved of those pains in my back and I can sleep so well at nights that when I get up in the mornings I am ready for a good day's work. Another thing, this medicine cleared out the gas bloating from my stomach and I don't suffer after meals like I did before. I am glad to give you my signed endorsement and recommend Mosby's Tonic to others who suffer like I did."

How 15 Herbs In Mosby's Tonic Can Help You

It is the Roots and Herbs in Mosby's Tonic which enable it to produce the Splendid Action described above by Mr. Dale. Herbs really help Human Beings. They cleanse the bowels and clear old gas and bloat from stomach. They enliven the liver, clear away old bile and relieve biliousness, sick headache and yellowish "muddy" complexion. They invigorate the kidney activity and stop your night rising and backache. They act to relieve pain of rheumatic and neuritic trouble. MOSBY'S TONIC contains 15 herbs. But it does not even stop there. It contains Five Other Splendid Medicinal Agents. Local Drug Men say it is helping people all over the city.

BRITISH ANGER MOUNTS OVER AIR

after the planes left heard explosions as they apparently attacked a large steamer in the distance."

Germany's claim that the bombers had "attacked British men-of-war and armed or convoyed merchant ships," sinking a minesweeper, four outpost boats and nine merchantmen," was described here as "absurd." It would have been impossible for the attacking planes —12 "at most"—to have done so much damage, British officials said.

List of Ships

Attacks were made on the following ships with bombs, or machine-guns, or both:

British:

Steamship Harley, 400 tons. The crew of eight was reportd brought to port by a fishing boat guided to the scene of the attack by a Royal Air Force plane.

Steamship Kildale, 3,887 tons, bombed with reported loss of six lives. (Earlier reports said the Kildale sank.)

Steamship Corland, 3,431 tons.

Collier Yewdale, 823 tons.

Neutral:

Norwegian steamship Tempo, 629 tons, sank after machine-gun attack killed at least four of 14 crewmen.

Swedish steamship Mertainen, 4,531 tons, struck by one bomb, no casualties among crew.

Belgian steamship Charlotte, six of whose ten crewmen were missing on a liferaft. Four reached land. (Lloyd's register does not list a Belgian Cha[illegible]e.)

Bodies of three German airmen, one of them wearing an Iron Cross, were washed ashore at Drubridge Bay in Northumberland, apparently the crew of a bomber shot down Saturday off Tynemouth.

The British steamship Harlech Castle rescued four of the crew of another bomber, shot down in the North Sea. One German died aboard ship. The fifth of the bomber's crew drowned.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Sisters" Cast

Frank Medlin—Errol Flynn.
Louise Elliott—Bette Davis.
Helen Elliott—Anita Louise.
William Benson—Ian Hunter.
Tim Hazelton—Donald Crisp.
Rose Elliott—Beulah Bondi.
Grace Elliott—Jane Byran.
Sam Johnson—Alan Hale.
Norman French—Patric Knowles.
Mrs. Gibbon—Laura Hope Crews.

With lovely Bette Davis and Errol Flynn, the daring hero of "Robin Hood," co-starred supported by an excellent cast, "The Sisters," one of the finest motion picture productions of all time, from Myron Brinig's best-selling novel of the same name, is now playing a second engagement in Belleville at the McCarthy Theatre.

Excellently produced by Warner Bros. "The Sisters" lacks nothing from any angle of entertainment, great stars, great romance, comedy and drama. Truly a picture as great as the famous book; it is a "must see" for all. Leon Errol in "Crime Rave," a laugh-packed comedy and a Walt Disney Mickey Mouse technicolor cartoon treat, are also now showing at the McCarthy Theatre preceding "The Sisters."

AT THE BELLE

British Intelligence"

Current events make an extremely timely film of "British Intelligence", the Warner Bros. picture featuring Boris Karloff and Margaret Lindsay, which comes next to the Belle theatre for it tells of a vivid, exciting and engrossing tale of war-time espionage during the 1914-1918 World War.

Much of its interest aside from its melodramatically exciting incidents, arises from the thorough exposition it gives of the methods of operation which spies use in wartime. And it makes one great point which is probably as true today as it was then—that spies spend as much time spying on each other as they do in trying directly to obtain military information.

In fact, as the plot of "British Intelligence" unfolds, the audience is, for a time, just as mystified as the high officials of England and Germany as to just which nations some of the spies are really working for.

Sent to England by the German government to act as a spy, Helene Von Lorbeer, played by Margaret Lindsay, manages to become a guest at the home of Arthur Bennett, British Cabinet Minister. At the house, the supposed Belgian butler, portrayed by Boris Karloff, reveals himself to her as Schiller and she later learns that he is really Strendler, most dangerous of all German spies.

The head of the British Intelligence suspects that the butler is a German spy, but doesn't know he is the much-hunted Strendler. So a trap for the suspected spy set by the announcement that an important cabinet meeting will be held at the Bennett house.

Strendler sets a time-bomb to kill the cabinet members, but just before the bomb is exploded, heroic action on the part of the British Intelligence foils the plot and ends Strendler's career.

In addition to Karloff and Miss Lindsay, the cast includes Maris Wrixon, Bruce Lester, Leonard Mudie, Holmes Herbert, Lester Matthews, Austin Fairman, Clarence Derwent and Stuart Holmes.

"Kid Nightingale" Funny

"Kid Nightingale" new Warner Bros. comedy featuring John Payne and Jane Wyman, which is announced as the second feature attraction is about a prize fighter! But what a fighter! He likes to sing much more than he likes to fight, and to tell the truth he sings much better than he fights.

While the handsome Mr. Payne and the delectable Miss Wyman take care of a lot of the comedy and some romance besides, they have the more than able assistance of such expert comedians as Walter Catlett, Ed Brophy, Charles D. Brown, Harry Burns and William Haade.

Kay Kyser and Adolphe Menjou in a breezy, tuneful comedy romance, "That's Right — You're Wrong" now closing at the Belle introduces for the first time on the screen Kyser's popular band heard weekly over the NBC network on "The College of Musical Knowledge" radio program.

The noted orchestra leader plays himself in this sparkling RKO Radio film, while such popular members of his band as Harry Babbitt, Ginny Simms, Sully Mason and Ish Kabibbie have important roles. The story, laid in Hollywood, chronicles the exciting adventures of a band leader when he is induced to make a picture against his will. May Robson, Lucille Ball, Dennis O'Keefe and Edward Everett Horton are among the popular support.

The popular Paramount British newsreel especially compiled for the Belle theatre, a funny comicolor cartoon, and an entertaining and timely sportscope "Sky Game," completes the program.

The Stars Say

For Tuesday, February 6
By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

THE auguries for this day point to very definite and persistent obstacles, with deep-rooted opposition and hostility. Indulgence in fury and unrestricted impetuosity may fan the fiery flame and precipitate a devastating holocast. But a firm grip on inclinations to violence and passion, with tact, diplomacy and stratagem, may combine to avert disaster. The danger is from strife, contention and litigation. Make any change prudently.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a year in which any sort of gain and satisfaction must be wrested from a state of hostility, fiery opposition, deep-seated impediments and a generally turbulent and malignant state of affairs. To meet violence with violence, and passion with strife, would be calamitous and probably end in fruitless litigation. Reserve, restraint and finesse, even intrigue, may win the day.

A child born on this day may be bold and enterprising, but tempestuous, reckless and ungoverned in temper and speech, thereby inciting violent opposition, hate and litigation.

Marked Down

By HELEN D. OLDS

Peggy (Mrs. Paul Parker to her grocer) dashed down the hill to the station. Outwardly, she might look as usual, but inside she was entirely different from the happy-go- Why the weather oX(tiah;a life. Why had it had to happen to her, anyway? But there, she wasn't going to think about . . .Paul and that girl. Not today!

The 8:40 was the earliest train she could make and even that hurried her, with two youngsters to get off to school and instructions to the day worker. Rita (Mrs. Ed Scanlon to the same grocer) who lived next door, had waited for her a while and then gone on to the lucky Peggy she had been all her when they both felt they simply had to get away from the house and the children and everything. So they were going to town for a day's shopping.

"Well, I made it!" Peggy settled herself on the half of the train seat that Rita Scanlon had been saving for her.

Rita had a newspaper. She had had time to buy one at the River Dale station. Rita always would get to trains early. Peggy ofte nmissed them.

The news of the day held no interest for them. Rita flipped the paper open to the ads.

Peggy was wondering: Do I look the same, or is it written all over my face? Can folks read there that I cried into my pillow all night because Paul's been stepping out? Oh, if I could only be happy and secure —like Rita!

"Look, Peggy!" Rita pointed to a page ad. SALE OF MEN'S SHIRTS MARKED BELOW COST.

They always enjoyed picking out shirts for their men: big blond Ed and slim dark Paul. But today Peggy's heart wasn't in it. She tried to pretend interest. "Umm, collar attached."

(I wonder if I said that just as usual?)

"Neckties marked down." Rita read on.

"Paul needs ties."

(I mustn't let her guess I'm not the same happy wife she thinks me. She mustn't guess I know . . . that I heard what that gossipy Mrs. Traymore was saying when I came up to the bridge table yesterday. I'll never forget it, 'She has no idea that darling hubbys stepping out. Shh!').

It was hard for Peggy to keep a secret.

Everyone in River Dale marveled at their friendship. Tall, demure dark Rita, and small vivacious blond Peggy. No one dared criticize one before the other.

They lived in almost identical houses, both were paying off mortgages, both kept part-time help They shared each other's patterns, recipes, fifty-trip tickets to town and—secrets. Now Peggy had a secret she couldn't share.

"There's Mrs. Traymore a couple of seats ahead," Ri . said.

Peggy saw the hat with the giddy feather.

(They say every time Mrs. Traymore gets another evening gown, everyone nows Mr. T's been on a tear. But I don't want to be like that. I want all of Paul's love. Glad rags wouldn't make me happy.)

"Her hat's cute. Perhaps I'll get myself a hat today," Rita said.

Peggy glanced at Rita's serene face.

(She can sit there and smile and talk about marked-down shirts. She doesn't have to worry about Ed. Good old Ed, faithful as a dog. Her heart hasn't been yanked out and stepped on.)

"Paul does need some shirts," Peggy said, because she had to say something.

(He doesn't deserve a wife who takes advantage of the sales. I ought to splurge and charge up a lot of duds to him. Like Mrs. T.)

"Beach sandals are marked down, too, Peggy."

"Let's get some. Yellow for you. blue for me."

(Marked down! Everything seems marked down. Even Paul's love has a marked-down tag on it now. Oh. Rita! Rita! How I envy you.)

Maybe it was just Peggy's imagination, but it seemed as if Rita was in a hurry to get the shirt purchase over with, too. Did her cool voice tremble as she gave her address—"Mrs. Ed Scanlon, 60 Rose Terrace . . .?"

Peggy strolled away. Her nerves certainly were shaky. Already she was imagining things. She must get away for a minute, get a grip on herself.

Two women over beyond the glass case looked familiar. One had a voice like Mrs. Traymore. Her words floated over to Peggy.

'Over there by the shirts . . . poor thing! I'm sure she knows. All the club members say so, too. He doesn't need to think. . ."

They were talking about her again! Peggy was too startled to move.

" . . . that people believe he goes to see that divorcee about selling her insurance!" That high, shrill laugh.

Peggy stood frozen. They had been talking about Ed Scanlon, and not her Paul at all! It was Ed, not Paul who sold insurance. And to think she had been envying Rita all morning!

It was Rita whose heart had been yanked out, was being ground under foot.

Peggy darted back to the shirt counter and locked arms with Rita. "Come on, let's do the town right today. Lunch at Schrafft's, darling! Never mind the expense. We have plenty."

Rita gave her a slow tremulous smile. "We're surely entitled to some fun," she said. "And I'm sick of marked-down things!"

WALL STREET

New York, Feb. 5.—(AP)— A handful of specialties commanded a little buying attention in today's stock market but leaders generally drifted to slightly lower levels. Near the four hour, dealings were barely sufficient to keep the ticker tape moving.

Brooklyn-Manhattan transit and Brooklyn and Queens transit stocks edged to new 1939-40 peaks. Supported were International Paper, Anaconda, Caterpillar Tractor and Tidewater Oil.

Among sluggish performers were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Santa Fe, Kennecott, Glenn Martin and American Telephone. Loft dropped about a point and Canada Dry eased.

Among Canadian issues Hiram Walker and Canadian Pacific gained one quarter of a point and Distillers Seagram inched back while Canada 4s, in the Bond market, held steady. Dome and Lake Shore Mines were stationary.

TORONTO STOCKS.

Toronto, Feb. 5 (CP)—The market today showed no change of consequence. Volume was down to 146,000 shares.

The junior oil index was up narrowly, mainly on the strength of Home Oil. Anglo-Canadian posted a minor loss.

Base metal issues were in dull trade with only Steep Rock and Sherritt boarding slightly higher prices and in the gold group Macassa, Sylvanite, Coniaurum, Malartic Gold Fields and MacLeod-Cockshutt firmed a few cents. Wright-Hargreaves, Little Long Lac, Siscoe and Cochenour Willans were heavy.

Scattered recessions were chalked up in the food, steel and utility groups of the industrial section while the senior oil, papers and liquors were firm to strong.

The Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada

Seventieth Annual Meeting

Another Year of Progress Reported by President and General Manager

Mr. R. O. McCulloch, President of The Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada, in addressing the seventieth annual meeting of policyholders held at the Head Office of the Company in Waterloo on Thursday, February 1st, recalled that the Company was founded during the years when on a previous occasion the peace of Europe was disrupted in 1870-1871 by the effort of the German war machine under the leadership of Bismarck to dominate by force of arms.

Steady Growth.

Mr. McCulloch remarked "In our own Dominion of Canada we were in 1870 a country of three and one-half million people. It was not until some sixteen years later that our eastern and western frontiers were bound together by a transcontinental railway. Today our population has grown to over eleven million and we are fortunate in the possession of a diversified economy in which agriculture, mining and manufacturing constitute important parts developed and rendered prosperous by the most important element of all the industrious and sterling character of our people. The Growth of the Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada has kept pace with that of the Dominion. From the nucleus of 500 policyholders whose signatures were a necessary condition of the granting of a charter by the Legislature, there has evolved an association of over 165,000 Canadian citizens in all walks of life. The assets of our company for the year which has recently closed total $187,636,589 compared with $6,216 in 1871 and $24,642,314 twenty-five years ago. Insurance in force now stands at $572,110,000 contrasted with $94,477,360 in 1914."

Sacrifice Needed.

The need for sacrifices and economy in government was pointed out when it was stated "Sacrifices for the efficient prosecution of the war must be made by all and I am sure will cheerfully be made, but this should not be a pretext or occasion for diverting the proceeds of such sacrifices to other undertakings of less than national scope, and the willingness to make such sacrifices will inevitably be chilled if the government does not exhibit a determination to avoid waste and improvidence and, in its turn, to sacrifice all party and personal considerations to the energetic conduct of the war."

Policyholders Serve Their Country.

Attention was called by Mr. McCulloch to the important part played in our national economy by holders of life insurance policies. "In Canada where so many of our citizens have been able to earn comfortable incomes long before they can save estates sufficient to support and preserve the independence of their families, life insurance policies providing for this in case of the unfortunate but inevitable event when the support of the earner of the income on which they rely is lost, a life insurance policy should be the most cherished possession of every head or prospective head of a family, and it should not be forgotten that this has an additional value in time of war owing to the many additional and unusual risks apart from those incurred in actual military operations. The morality losses of all the insurance companies increased materially during the Great War.

"Every effort should therefore be made to maintain in force, especially those policies which ante-date the commencement of hostilities. The coverage which they afford cannot be replaced today except at a higher premium to the insured: Therefore, I say to you hold on to them at all costs.

"During these days a policyholder has the satisfaction of knowing that he is not only protecting his dependents but also rendering service to the Empire: He provides for the care of his dependents ,and thereby lessens the demands on the public treasury in cases where this burden would fall wholly or in part on the country. Then each premium he pays has a two-fold effect in alleviating the problem facing the nation. His other expenses are proportionately curtailed enabling more of our productive powers to be devoted to the prosecution of the conflict, and in addition the premiums that are paid will, in part, be invested in loans to assist the government in financing its expenditures. It has been said, and rightly so, that Insurance Companies are regarded as the great and primary source of long term money."

Optimism For the Future.

In closing his remarks Mr. McCulloch sounded an optimistic note by saying "Though government debt has in the past increased from time to time to amounts which have staggered many thoughtful citizens, particularly in times of stress and depression, I think too little emphasis has been laid on the concomitant increase in the development of the national resources and the increased financial resources of the people. This has been repeatedly illustrated in Great Britain throughout the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries as well as earlier. Debts which seemed enormous during the Napoleonic Wars look small today. Notwithstanding the difficulty, Canada was able through a terrific depression to carry the large debt which was incurred during and since the Great War, and I am sure that the development of our resources is by no means at an end.

"It is moreover most unlikely that Canadian Life Insurance policyholders have to fear that the government will pursue under any circumstances a policy of uncontrolled inflation or debt repudiation. Our representatives may therefore continue to make known the virtues of life insurance with the sure knowledge that they are rendering a service not only to their fellow-citizens but also to their country."

General Manager Reviews Advance Made in 1939.

Mr. W. H. Somerville, general manager traced in detail the changes that occurred during 1939 in the more important items of the Profit and Loss Account and Balance Sheet of the Company.

Among the salient features commented upon by Mr. Somerville were: Satisfactory surplus earnings of $4,765,187, an increase of $109,000 over 1938, which enabled the general investment reserve and free surplus for contingencies to be increased by $1,044,589 to $8,817,498 after returning and allotting to policyholders dividends amounting to $3,360,634.

Mortality experience was again favorable, and a decrease in expenses of operation was reported. All assurance and annuity reserves were placed on a 3 per cent basis, and thus in the future interest earnings of 3 per cent will suffice to maintain these liabilities at their required levels.

Mr. Somerville explained the manner in which the $187,636,589 of assets of the company were invested. Mortgage loans at $35,961,875 increased for the first time since 1932. New advances were made of $2,538,791, of which $1,552,560 were under the National Housing Act.

Of the increase in assets of $8,659,366 during the year, additions to the bond portfolio accounted for $7,585,003. Dominion and provincial obligations constituted 42 per cent of new purchases, and first mortgage bonds of public utility companies 30 per cent.

The rate of interest earned on invested assets in 1939, 4.67 per cent, was practically at the same level as in the preceding year.

The volume of new insurance issued was $45,527,051, excluding annuities, resulting in a gain in total assurances in force of $13,000,000 to a total of $572,110,531. In addition, annuity contracts in force provide for future annual payments of $2,599,555.

Egg and Butter Prices Unchanged

Toronto, Feb. 5.—Eggs and butter were firmer in undertone but unchanged in price Saturday on the Toronto open produce market.

A good out-of-town demand gave the egg market a firmer tone, but caused no change in quotations. Receipts cleared fairly well. In the graded section A-large eggs sold at 22c, A-medium at 20c and A-pullets at 19c, with A-large bringing ½c more than the price listed when sold alone.

Trading in butter showed improvement. The storage stock figures report for Canada's nine principal cities was slightly more favorable than the trade had expected, and its release, while causing no unusual increase in activity, gave the market a better tone. All available offerings of first-grade Ontario butter were cleaned up at 27¼c by closing time.

The butter market on the Canadian Commodity Exchange lacked feature and continued extremely dull, with prices throughout the week at 27⅝c per pound, and at the close on Friday was 26⅝c bid, off half a cent.

Buyers continued to operate on a day to day basis, and with some pressure from discouraged holders the market offered little resistance. In part, some of the quietness was due to buyers awaiting the February 1st stock and production reports.

Montreal Produce.

Montreal, Feb. 5.—Produce market prices here, as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture follow:

FRENCH RAILWAY AGAIN BOMBED

Tokyo, Feb. 5 (AP).—France was reported reliably today to be planning to protest Japanese bombing of the French-operated Kunming-Hanoi railway in southwestern China.

The French ambassador, Charles Arsene Henry, was expected to deliver a protest today or tomorrow in connection with the latest bombing, Jan. 27, in which dispatches have reported five Europeans were killed.

The foreign office spokesman, Yakichiro Suma, confirmed in a press conference that Eugene Dooman, charge d'affaires of the United States Embassy, delivered a note last Thursday charging that aerial attacks on the railway endangered American shipments and "inconvenienced" Americans residing at Chungking.

French Deny Allegation.

The railway had been bombed several times in the past on the grounds that it serves the Central Chinese Government at Chungking by carrying munitions. The French have denied this.

Suma denied reports that undisciplined military authorities were responsible for the raids. He added that the Japanese government "fully endorses" the operations and said they will continue so long as there is "military necessity".

Still undisposed of was a French protest of Jan. 5 against earlier raids on the railway. As Suma said, there had been no "satisfactory results" on this complaint.

On another pending diplomatic question—Japan's protest to Great Britain over the Jan. 20 seizure of 21 German seamen from a Japanese liner—it was learned the exchange of notes was scheduled for publication here and in London tomorrow.

TWEED STUDENT AWARDED

the use of the scholarships during the present conflict. In other words regulations provide that students will not take up studies at Oxford without special application and unless he wishes to take up special scientific research, medical studies, or other urgent work.

The value of Rhodes Scholarship is 400 pounds (about $2,000.00), is tenable at Oxford University and may be held for three years.

Entered McMaster in 1936

"Buck," as he is familiarly known, to his intimate friends, especially in athletic circles, entered McMaster University in 1936 as winner of the Ontario Hockey Association Scholarship, awarded on the basis of athletic record and Ontario matriculation standing. In 1939 he won the McGregor-Smith-Burr prize for the highest standing in honor history or honor English, the Governor-General's Medal on the basis of studies, character and leadership. He capped this brilliant record with the award of the A. G. Alexander scholarship of $750.00 for study abroad in the summer of 1939.

Holds High Offices

He is Chairman of the Student Assembly Committee and President of the Men's International Relations Club of his Alma Mater. He has played on both rugby and hockey teams of the university and this year was elected captain of the hockey squad. He interspersed a brilliant athletic record with the intermediate intercollegiate heavyweight boxing championship, and at present is one of the student officers in the McMaster Officers' Training Corps.

Born in Tweed twenty-one years ago, the new Rhodes Scholar received his early education in the public schools of the village. Early he showed promise of a brilliant scholastic career, besides an aptitude for athletics. At an early age he entered the Tweed High School and swept through the curricula of that institution in a wave of particular brilliancy.

"Thrilled at Honor"

Mr. T. E. Moffat, teacher of Tweed High School, who was 'Buck's' instructor during his high school career, stated this morning that "he was thrilled at the honor bestowed upon a former pupil. We are all very happy to hear of it, and particularly so when it is probably the first time that a scholarship has been awarded to a place as small as Tweed."

"Herbert" he continued, "got honors in every subject during his studies here. His standing was so high at McMaster University last year, that the college sent us a copy of his marks. It occupies a place of honor in the school."

Not only in the classroom did "Buck" show exceptional ability. The gridiron and hockey cushion of his native village saw him rise to athletic heights. He starred in rugby and hockey for his high school and village teams which proved to be the groundwork of an athletic career that has run hand-in-hand with brilliant scholastic work.

R. A. F. BOMBERS SAID SUPERIOR

Strategy of British fighting planes in the early weeks of the war was to aim at the enemy's gasoline tank on the theory that once a bullet lands in the tank the plane is done for. The Germans have rendered that form of attack useless, however by installing a self-sealing tank. Now R.A.F. fighters aim at the engines.

The effectiveness of attacking the plane's engines is shown in a fighter pilot's story in one of Saturday's coastal encounters. He said: "As the enemy aircraft disappeared into a cloud, I saw a heavy black smoke and bits of metal coming from the starboard engine."

The defence planes have been increasingly successful in dealing with Nazi raids. When the Germans launched their large-scale attacks off the east coast on Jan. 29 the Royal Air Force drove off the raiders, but none was shot down. One bomber was downed and another disabled on Jan. 30. Three Heinkels were downed and a fourth landed in damaged condition during the week-end.

In addition to manoeuvrability and superior armament, the British bombers fly in such formation as to eliminate the blind spot which exists for every aircraft, and so minimize the possibility of a successful enemy attack. Bombers fly in packed formation designed to enable them to cover one another with crossfire.

The distribution is being made to employees who started participation in the plan in 1934.

500 RUSSIAN DEAD STREWN OVER FIELD

"The attack was stopped before it had time to develop, whereupon the enemy attempted to dig in before our stations but were driven back to his starting positions," it said.

The Finns said their air force "carried out successful reconnoitring and bombing flights during which enemy troops, air bases, et cetera were bombed."

The communique reported that fire "appeared to have broken out" in a monastry at Valamo after a Russian air raid.

A new Russian practice, night air raids on Finland's blacked-out cities, was described defiantly today by Finns as a doomed effort to break their morale.

The air attacks continued today and an official announcement said Swedish ambulances were struck but damage was negligible and there were no casualties among the ambulance workers.

The night forays, a phase of intensifying Soviet air warfare, have developed during an unrelenting Red army land offensive which, so far, has found the Mannerheim line impregnable.

In another futile attempt to break through Karelian Isthmus defences at Summa, 20 miles south of Viborg (Viipuri), Finns said yesterday, the Russians lost more than 1,000 men. "Heavy" Soviet losses also were reported at Muolaajaervi, on the same front.

Two of Finland's main cities, meanwhile, were hard hit by Russian air raiders. Bomb-ignited fires burned through the night in the seaport of Abo (Turku) and in Viborg, a city of about 73,000 population at the head of the Gulf of Finland.

For the past few nights Red army planes have been flying far behind the Finnish lines. Finns, charging the Russians bombed at random on the flights, reported one of the heaviest raids last night on villages and farms near Lake Saimaa.

Missiles Fall in Night

Missiles fell throughout the dark hours, they said. Commenting that there was nothing in the area except agriculture, they called the raids a deliberate effort to terrorize the population.

"Little do our neighbors understand of us, if they think what is happening will scare us into submission," said one Finnish editor. "It is possible it will only make us fight harder."

Among the buildings reduced to ruins at Viborg was the city's 17th Century Cathedral, famed for its stained glass windows.

Although Finland's Air Force attempted to combat the invading fliers, and was reported to have shot down 11 planes, wave after wave of Russian bombers bombers droned across the Finnish interior over the week-end. The Finns reported 40 civilians killed and 50 wounded Friday, but the total casualties were not known.

CATCHES OF FISH THROUGH ICE HAVE BEEN ONLY FAIR

Only a few fishing shacks dot the frozen surface of the bay where winter fishermen usually congregate in larger numbers. Catches to date have been slim, veteran fishermen state, although some fairly good sized fish have been taken through the holes in the ice. Thickness of the ice ranges between eighteen and twenty-two inches, he said.

1,100 U. S. Warplanes Delivered to Allies

Washington, Feb. 5—(AP)—United States aircraft plants have delivered more than 1,100 warplanes to the British and French fighting forces, an authoritative compilation showed today.

The two governments together have placed orders for approximately 4,000 planes since they first entered the United States market 18 months ago. Negotiations for upwards of 8,000 additional bombers, pursuit craft and other types are underway.

These and existing infilled orders, coupled with the pressure for speed from purchasing missions, promise to step up materially the recent delivery rate of more than 100 craft a month.

More than 300 planes have been loaded on merchants ships or taken across the Canadian border since the war started. Most of the other planes were delivered last spring and summer.

In addition to the British and French contracts, about 1,000 American planes have been ordered by other governments. The compilation covered two years ending Jan. 31, but many details were confidential.

Rumania Asked to Demobilize 800,000 Troops

Bucharest, Feb. 5.—(CP-Havas)—The Havas News Agency correspondent here was told on good authority today that Germany has asked Rumania to demobilize 800,000 border troops on the ground that Rumanian industry and agriculture, flagging for want of manpower, cannot at present supply the Reich with urgently needed supplies.

The German trade commission here was reliably reported to have protested at the number of men kept from Rumanian fields and factories by military requirements. The mobilized forces also monopolize Rumanian transport to the detriment of exports earmarked for the Reich, the Germans were said to have argued.

Assuring the government that Germany is not a threat, the German commission also is said to have promised the Reich would guarantee Rumania against Russian hostili y. In view of these assurances, the Havas Correspondent was told, the Rumanians were asked to integrate their economy more closely with that of Germany.

The Rumanian government was said to have replied that trade with the Reich, carried on by barter, is none too profitable and that any extension of its present volume would cut Rumania off from world markets and sound foreign exchange based on gold.

HOCKEY PLAYERS ATTEND SERVICE

Special Sports Service Conducted at Ivanhoe by Rev. S. Delve

Stirling, Feb. 5 (Special)—On Sunday evening at Ivanhoe United Church, which was filled to the doors with representatives from four hockey clubs of the Ceneral Hastings Rural Hockey League, Rev. S. Delve delivered an inspiring address in one of the most interesting services of the church's history. An ardent sportsman Rev. Delve was instrumental in organizing the championship of centre Hastings.

Thoroughly appreciating the efforts of the Ivanhoe Club in the promotion of good clean sport the other competing teams including Glen Ross, Zion Hill and Foxboro expressed the desire to visit the village in a group and suggested the event should take the form of a church service. A choir composed of hockey players and league officials led in the congregational singing and Arthur Dunan rendered two vocal solos during the service. Midway through the service Mr. H. L. Fair, President of the Central organization expressed the gratitude of the boys for the privilege of being present after the minister had formally welcomed the group.

Fine Message Presented

Taking his text from 2. 52, "And Jesus increased in wisdom and stature and in favour with God and man," Rev. Delve said, "sport had it's place in Christian living in all games we must play to win but must always abide by the rules, for infractions in playing rules were are penalized. Life is much the same we must abide by the rules or pay the penalty."

"On the rink, the gridiron or ball field or often in the dressing room youth is given the false impression, that he loses a portion of manliness by attending church." The saying of Billie Sunday famous evangelist denies this in manly language when he said, "Christianity is not based on the efforts of a long line of sissies, but rather upon the efforts of many strong men, who have proven themselves able to 'take it'."

"A team that give up when they are beaten are worse than a poor team staying in the game to the last bell and giving the best you have is what makes it worthwhile." The same applies in life when things are hardest it's weakness to retreat. "Real he-men redouble their efforts to carry on and succeed." Life is game, we can play with all our might to win the trophy of eternal reward. "We can disobey the rules and suffer the consequence," but at the end of the game, when the score is checked by humanity's Great referee—when the trophies are given out—it isn't the winnings He'll look upon or the losses, but the brand of game we played.

This was most inspiring service of special interest to young people, who were large in number throughout the congregation and Rev. Delve along with the members of the league officials, who were instrumental in organizing the unusual event are to be congratulated. Jack Armstrong, Glen Ross; Jack Stewart, Foxboro; Roblin Dulmage, Zion Hill and ten or fifteen players from each team. Referee Conley Ackers who officiates at the games was also present.

veteran of the Great War on the special committee to revise the Pensions' Act.

Mr. Cameron was born in Morrisburg and was graduated at Queen's University in 1913. A year later was broke out and he went overseas with the Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry in the ranks. He was commissioned in the Northamptonshire Regiment and later in the Royal Air Force. After the war he returned to Canada, and completed his course in law at Osgoode Hall whence he was graduated in the year 1920. It was in the autumn of that year that he came to this city and he has since made his home in Belleville.

His Many Activities

He took over the law practice of the late F. S. Wallbridge and has been very active at the bar. He with his brother, Mr. A. R. Cameron has built up a very large practice and in addition he has taken part in many civic enterprises. Becoming active in the Chamber of Commerce, he was in the course of time electea president of that organization. He has been energetic in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and has been an official for many years. At the present time he is superintendent of the Sunday School. He served on the Belleville Board of Education for some years. As a graduate of Queen's University he has been honored by the graduates of that institution and is at present a member of the council of that university. He is also a member of the Board of Administration of Knox College, in the University of Toronto and also of General Board of Administration and Executive of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. "Belleville, Ont., "January 30th., 1940.

"Ed. Roach, Esq.,
"President,
"Riding of Hastings South,
"Deseronto, Ontario,
"Dear Mr. Roach,—

"As you are aware Parliament was dissolved on January 25th., and a General Election has been called for March 26th. The Executive of the riding will now be required to hold a convention to name a candidate to contest the riding of Hastings South.

"With a great deal of regret, I now find that it will be impossible for me to again be a candidate at the convention. On the instructions of my physician I find it necessary to withdraw from active participation in politics.

"I am therefore notifying you at once so that the executive may be informed of the matter and take the necessary steps to have a candidate in the field at an early date.

"With the knowledge I have as to the able manner in which the present Government has carried on its war effort (and which the British authorities have described as magnificent), it is a matter of very keen regret that I cannot take part in the campaign which will be fought out solely on the war issue. I am satisfied, however, that the people of Canada will readily record their approval of the outstanding accomplishments of the present Government in that regard.

"May I express to you, and to all the members of your Executive, my cordial thanks for the confidence placed in me when I was named your candidate in 1935 and my deep appreciation of their continued efforts and co-operation during the last five years. In turn may I express the hope that my services have been satisfactory to them.

"With kind personal regards to yourself and all the members of the organization, I am

"Yours very sincerely,
Charles A. Cameron."

O.H.A. SECRETARY TERRIBLY SHOCKED OVER SHOOTINGS

Toronto, Feb. 5 (CP)—Terribly shocked by last night's Preston tragedy, in which Alvin Schlegel, O.H.A. Past President, murdered his wife, son and daughter and then killed himself, O.H.A. Secretary W. A. Hewitt, of Toronto, said today that he very nearly telephoned the Schlegel house early last evening to consult his sports colleague on a hockey matter.

"Then I decided to let it wait until we met at a meeting this week," said Mr. Hewitt. "I wish to goodness I had phoned—it might have diverted his mind from what he was contemplating."

From a 20-year friendship with Alvin Schlegel, the O.H.A. Secretary knows that the murderer-suicide was devoted to his wife and children.

"The boy in particular was the idol of his eye," said Mr. Hewitt. "He had had infantile paralysis or something of that sort, and because of that Alvin cherished him all the more. He would bring him down to amateur and pro hockey games here, and only yesterday afternoon I heard from a friend in Kitchener he took him and another boy skating. Alvin was devoted to his wife, too, and to his daughter. The whole thing is incredible".

GOV'T. PLANS TO RENEW DIRECT RELIEF IN CANADA

Labor Minister, Norman McLarty, Makes Statement to Federation of Mayors

THREE-WAY SPLIT

Montreal, Feb. 5—(CP)—The Dominion Government plans to renew existing direct relief legislation, according to a statement today by the Canadian Federation of mayors and municipalities.

This was disclosed in a letter from Labor Minister Norman McLarty to the federation in which he acknowledged receipt of a resolution urging the Dominion Government to assume the complete burden of relief costs. The resolution was adopted at a recent meeting of the federation executive at Toronto.

Mr. McLarty wrote that "It is the policy of this government to ask parliament to renew the present legislation subject to any amendment which may be necessary or desirable, and to continue to contribute on the existing basis insofar as direct relief, that is, food, fuel, clothing and shelter is concerned."

The minister added that "on account of the tremendous outlay necessitated by the war, it is desirable that expenditures under the Act be reduced to a minimum, and on this account the government may require to fix some maximum to this expenditure."

The federation executive had suggested to the Labor Minister that the existing Federal-Provincial unemployment relief agreements which expire March 31 should be maintained without curtailment until the Dominion government assumed the full relief costs.

The present agreements provide a three-way participation among the Federal, Provincial and municipal governments on the basis of a 40-40-20 participation, covering food, fuel, clothing and shelter. Administration costs and other supplementary services are borne by the municipalities.

Ruling is Given on School Teachers as to Where to Vote

Ottawa, Feb. 5 (CP)—School teachers who regularly spend their holidays at their parents' homes either may vote in the electoral district where their parents live or in the district where they teach school provided their names are on the voters' lists but they cannot vote at Advanced Polls, Jules Castonguay, Chief Electoral Officer stated in a memorandum to Returning Officers made public today.

With election fixed for the day following Easter Monday, Mr. Castonguay has received a great number of inquiries as to whether school teachers must return to the electoral district in which they teach school to vote thereby cutting short their holidays. The election act makes special provisions for teachers to vote in the electoral district where they teach.

"It appears," the memorandum stated, "that a teacher has what may be termed a dual residence and she can elect whether she will vote in the electoral district in which her place of residence while teaching school is situated, or in the electoral district in which the home of her parents is situated. It goes without saying, however, that teachers in the above circumstances can vote only in one electoral district at a general election."

The same provision applies to male teachers, Mr. Castonguay said.

Biggest Job is to Win 10,000,000 Independent Voters to Cause

Washington, Feb. 5 (AP)—Chairman James A. Farley told the Democratic National Committee today that the party's biggest job was to win over some 10,000,000 independent voters "who will cast their ballots for the best candidates and the best program that is offered."

The committee was gathered to pick a convention city.

"I confess that I have no great apprehension as to the result of the forthcoming election," said the man who steered Franklin D. Roosevelt to easy victories in 1932 and 1936.

"Until or unless the Republicans are able to formulate a better program to take the place of our program, I do not think there is any danger of the voters of the United States consenting to an interruption of the course that has brought us so far on the road to recovery."

ANTI-GOSSIP DRIVE

'Careless Words May Cost Lives,' Says Slogan Used in Campaign—It is Pointed Out That in First Great War There Were Many Lives Lost and Ships Sunk as a Result of Careless Words in Conversation

London, Feb. 6 (CP).—Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today that legislation providing for the death penalty for the disclosure or leakage of information to the enemy was under consideration.

He declared there has been no failure thus far to take vigilant precautions against leakage of information.

The prime minister's statement came as the government started a campaign against gossip with the slogan "careless words may cost lives".

Poters In Public Places.

The government will distribute 2,500,000 posters throughout the country, particularly in pubs, restaurants, barber shops, clubs, and mercantile marine offices.

In the first great war many lives were lost and many British ships sunk as the direct result of a few careless words dropped in conversation. The government seeks to minimize the danger as much as possible by impressing the people of the value of keeping information to themselves.

Distinctive posters will be printed for Scotland and Wales, the latter in the Welsh language.

More Co-operation And Fewer Notes To Settle Disputes

Washington, Feb. 6—(AP)— A decision to refrain as far as possible from sending any more "waspish notes" to Great Britain over neutrality questions has been reached by United States officials in charge of foreign policy.

In the future, questions arising between the two Governments are expected to be threshed out almost entirely through personal conferences between Government officials and the Marquess of Lothian, the British Ambassador, or between the United States Ambassador, Joseph P. Kennedy, and British authorities.

The series of notes sent from Washington to London in the last two months stirred up American public opinion to an extent alarming to some officials. They could see no advantage accruing to the world from an acrimonious debate between the United States and Great Britain. They envisaged it as a direct encouragement for whom they have no desire to please.

Lord Lothian has advanced ways and means whereby the British would avoid taking American ships into the forbidden combat area. In a long conference with State Secretary Cordell Hull many questions were gone into thoroughly with a spirit of at least partial understanding on both sides.

Since then British representatives have spent many hours at the State Department discussing the question of navicerts (navigation certificates) which state that British officials here are satisfied that certain items of cargo leaving the United States are not destined to Germany. The British, it is understood, are willing to guarantee that any American ship covered by a navicert will not be hauled into an examination port.

Why The Weather?

Atmospheric limits to airplane speeds! It is not the pilot or the engine that seems to place a limit on airplane speed but the atmosphere itself. Great speed involves problems of airplane and engine design, and when these are met, the atmosphere interposes an obstacle. This is the inability of the air to get out of the way of the advancing airplane. Air moves away at the speed of sound; and when airplanes are forced to higher speeds, the air is very much harder to push away. The speed of sound is about 750 miles an hour, and as the speed of the air on the top side of the wings is higher than the air speed of the plane itself, the theoretical limit of airplane speed is about 600 miles per hour.

Two bombs burst in mail bags in London's crowded Euston railway station, injuring four men.

The Birmingham blast was in the general post office, where a mail sorter was injured slightly.

The two condemned I.R.A. men, Peter Barnes and James Richards, are in jail in Birmingham, awaiting execution for a bombing in Coventry last Aug. 25 in which five persons were killed and close to 100 injured.

One bomb shook the Manchester post office. No one was hurt.

Police On Alert.

At Liverpool an attendant found an incendiary bomb in the main hall of the General Postoffice and prevent an an explosion, by submerging it in water.

Special operatives of Scotland Yard and police throughout Britain were placed on the alert against new bombings.

Last night the government announced its decision not to grant

His widow received the award in the first investitute at Buckingham Palace since the war started.

Aid for Finland Must be Speeded up To be Effective Says French Press

Paris, Feb. 6 (AP).—Premier Daladier's Radical Socialist party today adopted a resolution calling upon the government "to take all necessary measures to permit Finland to continue to fight and win" her war against Russia.

The Radical-Socialist parliamentary group, meeting in the Chamber of Deputies, linked the outcome of the war in Finland with that in western Europe.

The resolution said the party considers "the definite defeat of the Soviet aggression against Finland will hurt our enemies in their military power as well as in prestige."

The French press stressed a desire to aid Finland quickly on the heels of the fifth British-French Supreme War Council session, at which the Finnish-Russian war, was reported to have been discussed.

Some newspapers carried a statement by Risto Ryti, Finnish premier, that "the quickest aid is the most effective."

They gave no light, however, on any possible allied decisions concerning further shipments of airplanes and munitions to the embattled Finns.

Must Act With Speed.

The paper l'Ordre said, "If aid is going to be given to Finland in the spirit of saving her, it will be necessary to act with very great speed."

The war council was reported by the war ministry to have reached "complete accord" on measures "assuring the greatest efficacy of the French-British collaboration."

Premier Daladier and Prime Minister Chamberlain, who arrived, characteristically, with his umbrella in hand, presided jointly yesterday over the all-day session of high ranking war leaders.

A brief war ministry communique said the council "examined in all their aspects the various elements of the present situation which interest the general conduct of the war."

It added that "the question of food stocks was notably studied," but did not mention specifically the other matters which received attention.

Rumors of Peace Bid By Germany Shaping

Oslo, Norway, Feb. 6 (AP).—The Stockholm correspondent of the Oslo newspaper Tidens Tegn said today that rumors of a German peace bid were taking shape.

The paper said reports from The Hague, Brussels and Berlin indicated some neutral state would offer the peace plan reported drawn by a committee established by Field Marshal Hermann Goering and approved by Adolf Hitler in January.

The plan was reported to have six points:

1. No country would claim war damage.
2. Economic problems would be solved immediately.
3. The Sudeten regions of the former Czecho-Slovak Republic would remain German.
4. Poland would cede to Germany all territory which was German before the Versailles Treaty.
5. A plebiscite would be held in Austria under Austrian-German-British-French control.
6. A British-French-German commission would decide upon Czech, Polish and Slovak states of the future in order to guarantee a peaceful attitude toward Germany.

No mention was made of that part of Poland occupied by the Russians.

MANION PROTESTS CENSORSHIP OF RADIO ADDRESSES

Freedom of Speech is Hallmark of Democratic Freedom He States

PARTIES ORGANIZE

Ottawa, Feb. 6 (CP)—Censorship of political speeches over the radio became a campaign issue today as the Liberals and Conservatives made final arrangements for launching their election drives.

Conservative Leader Manion, in a press statement last night, said he wished publicly and emphatically "to protest against the regulation which will force me and other candidates for the parliament of Canada to submit our radio broadcasts to the censorship of the (Canadian) Broadcasting Corporation."

Freedom of speech in parliament, the press, on the radio and in public assembly is the chief hallmark of democratic freedom, Dr. Manion said.

"The whole radio proposal is ridiculous, even vicious, and, in addition, endangers all the liberties of press and speech and religion and assembly which we hold dear. It is indeed time that press and people demanded and insisted upon their rights."

The Conservative leader said that the defence of Canada regulations were sufficient guarantee against

LORD TWEEDSMUIR INJURED IN FALL

Suffers Concussion in Accident Inside Government House

Ottawa, Feb. 6 (CP).—The Governor General, Lord Tweedsmuir, fell today and as a result suffered a concussion, it was announced from Government House.

Lord Tweedsmuir was said to be resting comfortably.

The fall occurred inside Government House.

The Governor-General's private physician immediately examined his Ecexllency and it was expected a statement on the extent of his injury would be issued later.

It was emphasized, however, that Lord Tweedmuir was quite comfortable.

A spokesman at Government House who gave out the information the Governor-General had fallen, said that until a statement was issued by the physician, nothing could be added to the first report that his Excellency suffered "a concussion".

BRITAIN AGREES TO RETURN NINE GERMAN SEAMEN

In Future Japanese Steamers Will Refuse to Accept German Passengers of Military Age

STILL WANT ALL

Tokyo, Feb. 6 (AP)—Great Britain has agreed to return nine of 21 German seamen seized from the Japanese liner Asama Maru, Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita announced today.

In connection with this compromise on an incident which Japanese had taken as an affront, Arita said Japanese steamship lines had been instructed to refuse to accept as passengers belligerent nationals who are "enlisted in military services and those who may possibly be enlisted."

The Foreign Minister expressed belief this would prevent another such incident but told the diet (parliament), "I cannot say that the case is entirely settled."

(The Shanghai office of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, one of the principal steamship companies of Japan and operators of the Asama Maru, announced today it would not accept as passengers Germans subject to military service.

(The announcement said any Germans who had booked passage on NYK ships would be subject to

50 Carloads Of Italian Planes On Way to Finland

Paris, Feb. 6 (AP).—The shipment through France of some 50 car load of Italian-made airplanes for the Finnish army was disclosed today by sources close to the government.

The planes previously had been halted in Germany by Nazi authorities. They then were returned to Italy after being released by Germany, and finally were re-routed through France.

G. M. C. Vice-President Sets up $5,000,000 Trust Fund for Family

Washington, Feb. 6 (AP)—Charles Stewart Mott, vice-president and largest single stockholder of General Motors Corporation, has given shares valued at more than $5,000,000 to a trust established for his wife and two children.

A securities commission report today disclosed the gift, regarded as one of the largest in recent years. The motor executive was shown by the report to be still the owner of stock valued at more than $23,000,000.

The gift consisted of 100,000 shares of General Motors Common, which closed on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday at $52.50. The stock was placed in an irrevocable trust for Mrs. Ruth Rawlings Mott and their children, Susan E. and Stewart Mott. Mott will be trustee under an agreement dated Dec. 5.

Mott, who is 64, began accumulating his General Motors holdings in 1913 when the corporation took over his Weston-Mott Company, manufacturers of automobile wheels and axles.

More than a decade ago he started the Mott Foundation, ministering to underprivileged children and adults of Flint and has contributed liberally to its maintenance.

Treasury officials estimated that the minimum federal gift tax on the transfer would be more than $1,500,000 and possibly much larger. The amount will depend on what other gifts Moss may have made since 1932.

GANDHI HOPEFUL CONFERENCE WILL END IN SUCCESS

Congress Party Demands Immediate Dominion Status for India

MEETS VICEROY

Party Asking Free Hand to Draft a New Constitution

New Delhi, Feb. 6 (CP).—Mohandas K. Gandhi expressed confidence today that negotiations with the Viceroy over the Congress party's demands for immediate dominion status for India eventually will end in success.

"The vital difference between the Congress (party's) demand and the viceroy's offer," said Gandhi in a statement, "consists in the fact that the viceroy's offer contemplates the final determination of India's destiny by the British government, whereas the Congress (party) contemplates just the contrary."

Gandhi explained that the conversation he had yesterday with the viceroy, the Marquess of Linlithgow, failed on this fundamental question —whether Britain shall draft a post war constitution conferring dominion status in consultation with Indians, or whether the Indians shall be granted the widest latitude to frame a constitution themselves with only such advice from Britain as they request.

Use As Stepping Stone.

As to his future course, Gandhi said he is going "to use failure of

FOURTEEN SHIPS SUNK IN WEEK

Over 43,000 Tons of Shipping Lost Through Enemy Action

London, Feb. 6 (CP) — The Admiralty announced today that eight British ships totalling 25,069 tons and six neutral vesseis of 17,546 tons, were sunk by enemy action during the week ended at midnight Sunday.

The announcement termed this "neither a particularly good nor a particularly bad week."

The Admiralty said Britain had made an average weekly gain of 30,000 tons of merchant shipping by new construction, capture of German ships and purchase of foreign craft, since the start of the war.

A naval source said official reluctance to deny every German claim of success at sea and lack of detailed information about actual losses was due to unwillingness to "give Germany every bit of information on a plate."

"The general policy is not to answer German claims of sinkings because we want to leave them guessing," the naval source said. He added that most Nazi claims of successes were "grossly exaggerated."

Nationalist Feeling in Eire Rises Over Refusal to Reprieve Two Men

Dublin, Feb. 6—(AP)— Nationalist feeling rose in Eire today following reprisal of British authorities to reprieve two members of the outlawed Irish Republican Army sentenced to die at Birmingham tomorrow for their part in a bombing which killed five persons.

The British Home Office announced last night it saw no reason to grant reprieves for Peter Barnes, 32, and James Richards, 29, convicted of responsibility for the blast which killed five persons and injured close to 100 others in Coventry, England, last Aug. 25.

Shortly before the announcement saying the Home Secretary "would not be justified in recommending any interference with the due course of the law," the Dublin City Council urged the British Government to exercise what it described as "wise statesmanship" by granting clemency.

Many mass meetings have adopted resolutions calling for intervention on behalf of the condemned men—such as a Sunday night meeting in Dublin which asked for reprieve "to avert the risk of extinguishing all hope of enduring peace between Great Britain and Eire."

An 11th-hour discussion of the case was expected at a meeting of the Irish Cabinet today. Prime Minister Eamon De Valera conferred with officials after midnight.

De Valera has labored to check the I.R.A.'s program of terrorism.

The Premier's newspaper, the Irish press, said today, "it is unnecessary for us to dwell on the emotion with which the sentences of death on these men have been received in this country during the last few days.

"It has been shown that the appeal the government has made for their reprieve has the support of a great majority of people."

The Irish Times said: "We believe that from the point of view of Great Britain there can be no higher ideal than promotion of Anglo-Irish friendship, and for that reason and that reason alone we venture to plead for an act of mercy."

Mercy pleas in the Irish press found no echo in London newspapers.

The Daily Mail recalled that the Coventry explosion was "not the first crime of its kind" in the I.R.A.'s campaign of violences shortly before the outbreak of the war and concluded:

"Two men have been found guilty of murder. They must pay the penalty."

Beaverburn First Canadian-Owned Freighter to Sink

Cargo Ship Torpedoed Off South Coast of Ireland Some Time on Monday Admiralty Announces

ON WAY TO CANADA

Only One Native-Born Canadian Was Member of Crew but He is Not Missing According to Statement

By FRED BACKHOUSE

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Feb. 6—(CP Cable) — Seventy-six of the crew of 77 aboard the torpedoed Canadian Pacific freighter Beaverburn were reported today to have been rescued.

Canadian Pacific Steamships officials said that according to information now available it is indicated that only one of the crew is missing and that he merely may not have been accounted for in first reports.

Only one native-born Canadian was among the crew of the fast cargo vessel when it was sunk off the south coast of Ireland and it is understood that he is not the missing man.

Name Not Announced

The name of the vessel which picked up the survivors was not announced. Neither was it known whether the men would be returned to England or proceed on their journey to Saint John, N. B.

The master of the Beaverburn is a Welshman, Captain Thomas Jones .

Rescue of the Beaverburn's crew was understood to have been effected promptly.

First Canadian-Owned

Loss of the 9,874-ton vessel, first Canadian-owned vessel to go down since the start of the war, was announced by the Admiralty last night. Canadian Pacific Steamships representatives said they received first word of the sinking yesterday.

The vessel, built at Dumbarton in 1927 and strengthened for navigation in ice, had been plying between Liverpool and Saint John, N. B., since the start of the war. Previously, since 1928, she had been operating on an express cargo service between London and Montreal.

U-Boat Driven Off From Attacking Ship By R. A. F. Bombers

Halifax, Feb. 6—(CP)—Passengers aboard a British liner which docked at Halifax told yesterday of how a Nazi submarine which was preparing to attack their ship was driven off, possibly damaged, by Royal Air Force bombers.

One of the passengers was Rosita Forbes, lecturer and writer, who will tour Canada under the auspices of the National Council of Education.

The liner, originally scheduled to sail Jan. 12, was delayed a day because of reports mines had been sown outside the harbor. When she did get away, she crashed into a reef in shallow water and examination revealed damage that made it necessary to return to port.

Escorted by four armed trawlers, she was on her way back when the submarine appeared. Passengers summoned on deck by a siren could see the German underseas boat manoeuvring to get into position to fire her torpedoes.

Suddenly two R.A.F. bombers appeared from nowhere and dived at the sub. Their bombs churned the water. Then, the onlookers reported, the sub seemed to lurch and disappeared.

PREMIER HEPBURN MAY STAND ALOOF DURING CAMPAIGN

To Campaign He Would Have to Join Conservatives or Start Third Party

ACT IS READY

Toronto, Feb. 6.—(CP)—Premier Mitchell Hepburn's budget and some inkling of his position in the Federal election campaign will be the most anxiously awaited announcements in the Ontario Legislature when the Succession Duty Act has been dealt with.

After exhaustive discussion on second reading, and rejection by the government of an opposition-sponsored amendments, the new Succession Duty Act was due for brief treatment on third reading today.

The measure, believed by the Attorney-General's department to have been made foolproof this time is designed to facilitate collection of Succession Duty arrears from estates to which clearances have been given. Most contentious clause is, that closing the Courts to Appeals on the valuation of certain assets in estates.

Premier Hepburn told the House yesterday that he hoped to have the Budget ready for Thursday but was not certain it would be. The Provincial Treasury, of which the Premier is Minister, has speeded up preparations for the Budget after waiting first, without result, for the Dominion Government to bring down its Budget.

May Stand Aloof

Reports around the Legislature had it that the Premier may stand aloof from the Federal campaign altogether. To campaign along the lines of the criticism he levelled at the Dominion government's war effort in the legislature last month, he would have to join forces with the Conservatives or make an Independent or third party move.

4 EMPTY SHELLS FOUND BY POLICE

Provincial Police today revealed they had discovered a second empty shotgun shell, found in a bin in the barn formerly owned by the late Arnold Wellman. The finding of a second empty shotgun shell yesterday gives the authorities four empty shells in all, two having previously been recovered on the premises of Frederick Thain, neighbor-farmer of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Wellman, who were found shot to death on their farm one week ago tomorrow, Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., told the Ontario Intelligencer today.

A life-long neighbor, Thain is being held on two charges of murder in connection with the deaths of the aged Wellman couple. The preliminary trial will open at the County Court House and before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., on Wednesday, exactly one week from the time the dead bodies of the Wellman's were found with their heads literally blasted off, the result of being shot with a shotgun, Provincial Police allege.

One Found Saturday

On Saturday an empty shotgun shell was found in the Wellman barn by a relative of the deceased couple and yesterday police discovered another empty shell at the bottom of the bin where the first shell was found only a few feet away from where the body of the late Arnold Wellman was discovered by Edmund Faulkner, the district mailman.

"With the finding of two empty shotgun shells in the bin of the Wellman barn it would appear as though the party responsible for Mr. Wellman's death fired both barrels of a shotgun into the back of the aged man's head as he was attending the evening milking. We are also of the opinion now that both barrels of a shotgun were reloaded and fired point-blank at Mrs. Wellman, as she lay ill in bed," Inspector Frank Gardner of the Provincial Police revealed at noon. The four empty shotgun shells were dispatched to Toronto to be examined by government experts in ballistics.

ROTARY REGATTA TO BE REPEATED

Decision to Carry on Arrived at After Lengthy Discussion at Luncheon

The Rotary Regatta will take place again this summer. The decision to carry on was reached at yesterday's luncheon meeting of the Belleville Rotary Club after lengthy discussion.

Several members pointed out that while the Regatta last year was a distinct success from the viewpoint of public interest and fine entertainment, financially there had been a very small amount accrue to the Crippled Children's Fund. Those supporting the regatta proposal said that much of the expense last year would not be necessary this year, that with the experience gained there would be a better chance for financial success.

Other ways and means of financing the beneficient work of Rotary were discussed, including a general free-will offering from the members. Many members felt that it was not enough alone to put their hands in their pockets, but that every Rotarian should be given some definite task in raising funds. The executive will consider ways and means of meeting this desire.

There will be considerable radio activity during Rotary Observance Week, which will be held on February 18th to 24th. A special program over NBC network at 1.30 E.S.T. will start the week's events. On Thursday, the 22nd, Rotary Club No. 1 of Chicago will be host in the "Town Meeting of the Air." The topic of discussion will be employer-employee relationship. This will occupy an hour, from 9.30 p.m. E.S.T. The 35th anniversary of the founding of Rotary will be commemorated on its birthday, Friday February 23.

While the Belleville Rotary Club's plans for Rotary Observance Week have not been definitely formulated, it is expected arrangements will be completed at next Monday's meeting for participation.

BELIEVES PHEASANTS IN NO DANGER FOR LACK OF FOOD

Lack of the usual appearance of pheasants at this time of the year in a search for food, would suggest that the birds are experiencing little difficulty in securing supplies in their natural habitants, according to Connie Harris, local hunter. In his periodical forays in the woods in search of rabbits, he has only discovered pheasants on one or two occasions, he said, although the "cotton-tails" are fairly numerous. Scarcity of reports from various parts of the district to the effect that pheasants have yet to make an appearance in proximity to human habitation would seem to substantiate Mr. Harris' statement.

Semark Family Meets Relative by Accident

The Semark family of Belleville can thank the war for an accidental meeting with a relative of whose existence in Canada they were not aware.

Thirty years ago Charles Semark came from England to Canada. In the course of time the family came along grew up and became young men.

A few weeks ago a son George, former lifeguard at Victoria Park joined the ranks of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Picton. He drilled with his comrades under the instruction of officers brought in for the purpose.

Then one day the company was paraded for special administrative purposes. When his turn came Semark marched into the office where an officer sat at a desk.

"Your name, please?" the officer asked pleasantly.

"Semark, sir," came the reply.

The officer looked up, a look of questioning surprise on his face. "What name did you say," he queried. "Semark sir" repeated the Belleville soldier.

The officer rose to his feet. "That is my name" he smiled.

A conference between officer and private ensued which revealed them to be first cousins. The officer Lieut. Semark, of Brockville was a son of a brother of Pte. Semark's father Charles Semark 291 Pinnacle street, Belleville. He had come to Canada some 20 years ago, and located in Brockville and was totally unaware of the proximity of relatives.

A general reunion was arranged. Mr. Semark and his family went to Picton and visited their relative, and news of the folks in the old land, of whom the Semark family had not heard in three decades, provided a pleasant evening.

800 UNEMPLOYED REGISTERED HERE

Upwards of eight hundred employable unemployed, approximately two-thirds of them males, are now registered at the local branch of the Employment Service of Canada, according to officials. This number constitutes a record for this time of the year, although Superintendent W. D. Ross pointed out today that the figures include a large number of country unemployed who have registered for possible war work.

The department has been free of accidents with the exception of the case of Fireman Greatrix, who fell and broke his leg on December 29th, repairing cable at the Police Station.

The Water Works Department has given the best attention to keeping the fire hydrants in good condition during the year. The Police Department has also given full co-operation wherever their assistance was required.

You will note from this report that the number of fire calls has increased by 50 per cent over 1938 and, as we have been one truck short for the last nine months, there have been times when the chief's car has had to answer calls and carry pumps to a fire. I would strongly recommend that this council take steps to improve these conditions and that the Fire Committee purchase one half ton of foam powder, at least. This powder is for the purpose of meeting such emergencies as we had in 1939 in the gasoline leakage.

I would recommend that the uniforms for the men be purchased at as early a date as possible. With regard to the condition of the Reo hose truck and the hook and ladder truck, I would strongly recommend the purchase of a Quad truck at once.

For several years I have been trying to get all the low hydrants in the city raised, without success.

I would recommend the purchase of two ratchet hydrant wrenches at once; also 300 ft. of 2 1-2 doublet jacket No. 1 hose.

Yours respectfully,
WILLIAM J. LYNCH,
Fire Chief.

TO MAKE DECISION AT THURSDAY MEETING

Decision as to whether the organization will take an active part in the forthcoming campaign for funds being raised for the education and well-being of Canadian troops overseas by the newly formed Canadian Legion War Services will be made at the regular meeting of the Army and Navy Veterans in Canada, Belleville Branch 201 on Thursday night.

Request that the branch take over the campaign was made a few weeks ago when the Rev. A. Maxwell Allan, Legion representative, addressed a representative gathering of citizens including officials of the veterans' club here. It was pointed out that the veterans organization would consider the matter providing proper recognition would be given them by Legion officials.

21 APPLICATIONS GIVEN CONSIDERATION

Fourteen old age pensions and seven mothers' allowance applications were given consideration at the inaugural meeting of the 1940 Old Age Pension and Mothers' Allowance Commission for Hastings County held in Shire Hall this week.

CAREFUL DRIVING ADVISED WHERE ROADS ARE SLIPPERY

Main arteries of the county road system are now entirely free from driving hazards, although careful driving is advised in some parts, county officials stated today.

Township roads, and concessions connecting links, however, are nonpassable in some cases, and travellers are warned to keep to the travelled highways as much as possible.

FINDS BRIDGE A HAZARD

Winchester, Ky., Feb. 6—(AP)—William Snapp, 28, has had two accidents in nine years of truck driving. Three years ago, his truck smashed against one end of a bridge over Muddy Creek. Yesterday, the truck struck the opposite end.

Ald. Butler's Welfare Report

Your Corporation's Chairman of Welfare respectfully begs leave to report to Council a brief summary of that Department's activities for the year 1939, together with some recommendations and remarks of the Chairman which it is believed would, if adopted in whole or in part, tend to alleviate the relief situation as it presently exists in the Corporation of the City of Belleville.

It is to be borne in mind by Council and by the Public that relief at its very best is attended by two evils that in the belief of this chairman can never be completely subjugated; Namely: the giving of relief to persons not properly entitled to it and the failure to give relief to persons who are properly entitled to it. Both of these situations, of course, arise not through the intention of the Relief Administrator but in this Chairman's opinion as a direct result of the manner in which relief recipients are classified. These, I think, are our two biggest difficulties, and have unfortunately arisen due to relief administrators endeavouring to judge in their own minds whom they think is or is not entitled to relief. I do not question their honesty or their zealousness to use the taxpayers' money as sparingly as possible, but unfortunately, it is this honest or moral discrimination if you like, that is giving rise to actual hardship among some persons in Belleville and in other municipalities who should have no difficulty in obtaining relief, providing they are entitled to it by reason of their being residents of the particular municipality in which they apply for relief, and providing in all other respects according to the department's regulations they are entitled to it.

A further difficulty presents itself in cases of these kinds in that there exists the individual who may have been most extravagant in spending his money while employed and suddenly finding himself without work and his family in immediate need of food and other necessities of life; It is absolutely ridiculous to say that because this individual earned a definite amount of money while employed and that even though he now has nothing with which to support himself and his family he must starve. I most wholeheartedly condemn this attitude, if it be such, on the part of the Ontario Department of Welfare, even though I realize that it does directly affect the taxpayer, but I would urge upon this Council that Governments and Councils have on occasion in other matters not always been so zealous of the taxpayers' money and that it really narrows down to the fact that each and every one of us is fairly well responsible for our less fortunate citizens when it comes to matters of this nature.

A further matter that I have particularly noticed in the administration of relief in Belleville is that in cases where an applicant is entitled to rent that the Department sees fit to withold payment of rent until the relief recipient is finally evicted and then after a lot of delay agrees to pay rent for this applicant in another house. This, to my mind, is perfectly ridiculous and I feel that if an applicant is entitled to his rent being paid, there should be no unreasonable delays which assert no sensible purpose and moreover cause expense on the part of the landlords as well as, in some cases, in the part of the City itself.

I feel that the local relief office has functioned efficiently during the year and that Miss Lynch and her staff have endeavoured to deal with a very complicated matter to the best of their ability, however, I feel that the Department is handicapped not only by certain regulations of the Ontario Department of Welfare, but also by lack of proper understanding of Council's attitude in the granting of relief.

I therefore, respectfully suggest to Council that the following rules be considered seriously by Council as applying where practicable to the administration of relief in the City of Belleville. I realize that some of these suggestions will entail serious consideration and in fact some of them may not coincide entirely with departmental regulations dealing with relief, but insofar as possible, I feel that if the following are adopted and given the approval of the Council and in turn strictly adhered to by the local Department of Relief that much can be done to relieve a situation that is all but unbearable at the present time.

1. No person applying for relief is to be refused an application blank for that purpose.

2. All applications for relief to be investigated, where necessary within at least twenty-four hours from the receipt of the application by the local Relief Office and within the period of twenty-four hours to be recommended or rejected by the local Relief Adminstrator who shall state in simple language the reason for such rejection in a case where an application has been rejected. Provided however that after the report of the local inspector has been received and the local Administrator has approved of the application then in no such case where an applicant appears to be entitled to relief is the granting of relief to be delayed notwithstanding that the approval of the Ontario Department of Welfare has not as yet been obtained.

3. The right to receive relief on the part of any citizen who applies for it is to be decided, providing they are eligible by reason of departmental rules upon the basis merely of their present state of finances and the number of their dependents etc. and their present immediate needs, by the local Department of Welfare, and not on any other grounds.

4. Previous earnings of an applicant who is otherwise eligible for relief to be taken into consideration only for the purpose of his properly accounting to the Relief Department for his earnings and to show the good faith of the applicant in applying for relief, provided, however, that if an investigation of any applicant shows him to have sworn falsely as to his earnings previous to going on relief, a charge of fraud is to be laid and the applicant immediately cut off relief; but in no case is an application which appears on the fact of it to be in order to be held up pending any long drawn out investigation.

5. Persons on relief if found to be purchasing liquor or other intoxicating beverages to be cut off relief immediately upon proof of such purchases being submitted to the satisfaction of the Administrator.

6. It is respectfully suggested that the system of grocery vouchers be changed with a view to—Firstly: giving relief recipients the opportunity to obtain the benefit of any bargain or reduction in the costs of groceries etc. that might be available to other citizens; and to the end that if possible a saving be effected in the actual costs of the necessities of relief to people on relief insofar as the municipality and the Provincial and Federal Governments are concerned.

7. I find that in certain cases people who are apparently eligible to have their rent paid by way of relief have been held up for periods of days at a time, with the result that they are put out of the house they were in, and in most of these cases a new house is found and the City starts to pay rent. I would particularly urge in cases of this kind that immediate investigation be made by the Relief Department and if the applicant is entitled to rent being paid that immediate arrangements be made with the landlord for payment of the rent, as in my opinion there is no need for greater delay than twenty-four hours in any investigations that may be necessary.

I would suggest that all the above recommended rules if adopted or if modified be made subject to any Statute or Statutes dealing with the rights of aliens or alien enemies.

Council will observe that some of these suggestions are rather far reaching and they are submitted to Council with a view to having them seriously considered and also with a view to having Council realize that the Administration of Relief is something that Council as a whole should have a great deal to do with.

DATED at Belleville this 31st day of December A.D., 1939.

E. O. BUTLER,
Chairman of Welfare.

CHANGES MADE IN PERSONNEL AT RELIEF OFFICE

Services of D. W. Soule and W. G. Gibson to be Dispensed With at End of Month, Council Decides

SHORT SESSION

A committee appointed to study the report given by the council by Alderman Ormonde Butler, Chairman of Welfare in the City Council last year brought in several recommendations at the regular meeting of the City Council on Monday evening one of which was "your committee further finds that with regard to the costs of administration of relief in the city, that a redistribution of duties within the City Relief office is necessary and that as a result of such redistribution of duties that the positions in the local office presently held by S. W. Soule and W. G. Gibson be eliminated as of February 29th, 1940 and that the employees affected thereby be notified to this effect and your committee further recommends that the duties of the secretary of the local Board for Old Age Pensions, blind pensions and Mother's Allowance be taken over by the auditor and that the other duties formerly assumed by W. G. Gibson be absorbed by the remainder of the staff in the local Relief office."

Committee to Continue

The committee appointed to investigate the proposed new lighting system for Front Street reported to the council and asked leave to further consider the matter. Ald. Allin stated that some progress had been made, prices obtained and it would be necessary to hold more meetings with the merchants and the Public Utilities Commission before any concrete proposal could be put before the council for their consideration. The request was granted the committee to further consider the matter. The council recommended that a by-law be prepared to licence all bicycles in the city at a cost of 25 cents each. This is the procedure in nearly every city in Ontario and it would give the police a better check on this mode of conveyance. A stop sign will be erected at the corner of Bleecker Avenue and Queen Street making Bleecker Avenue the "through street" at this point.

To Meet Board

A committee composed of Ald. Haig, Chairman of the Executive, Mayor Glencoe Thompson and the City Solicitor will go to Toronto on February 13th to interview the Municipal Board with respect to the surplus in the Sinking Fund.

Three by-laws were introduced and passed through the various stages without discussion. A deed was granted to Effa Baker and Charles Collap for property purchased recently from the city, while another by-law set up the Department of Industries. The clauses in the by-law were the same as in the recommendation, which was given fully at another meeting of the council. Ald. Eddie Logan is chairman of the Industrial Commission. A letter was received from the Canadian Underwriters' Association agreeing to the closing of number one fire hall stating it would have no adverse effect on fire insurance rates generally. The letter further states that rates on some unsprinkled manufacturing plants might be affected, as in making these charges up a charge is made, where the distance to the nearest Fire Hall exceeds one mile. The Association also requested that the organization be notified when the change was made. The letter was ordered filed.

There being no further business the council adjourned after a short session, lasting not more than an hour.

A DAY of surprising developments, with unlooked-for activity in the business, intellectual and social relations, is presaged from the ruling lunar and mutual aspects. These events may have a rather intriguing or mystical complexion, making them memorable and of far-reaching effect on the life and its loftiest aspirations. There might be trivial elements of conflict in the social or domestic associations, but there is promise of fulfillment and gratification. Refrain from impulsive change.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of high attainments with rich fulfillments, possibly of an intellectual, cultural, social or mystical character. There may be deep-rooted or curious undercurrents prodding to notable achievements, subtly affecting the destiny. Business ambitions are lively and promising, but in any relations make no needless changes, and refrain from snap judgments.

A child born on this day may have abilities of a high order, either in an intellectual, artistic, scientific or some unusual creative field.

PRECEDED GOTHAM

Havana, (CP)—The Cuban capital, which recently celebrated its 425th anniversary, stood as a city 100 years before the first houses were built in what was to become New York.

Well-Known Tweed Landmark, Turcotte's Livery Barn, Demolished

Tweed—Turcotte's livery barn, a prominent landmark, with its windmill, for several decades is no more. During the past week wreckers have been busy and the building which served well the needs of the travelling public in the horse and buggy days has disappeared from the ken of man. The building while not old in years, having been erected only a few years before the outbreak of the first World War in 1914, was built by Mr. Alex Turcotte, who prior to that time had conducted an expanding livery business on the east side of Moira River.

As a result of the expansion of his business, Mr. Turcotte selected a more central and convenient location and for a number of years hired out his horses to commercial travellers and others. At the height of the business there were as many as twenty horses in the stalls ready for service.

As the years passed the automobile became more common and soon travel behind a horse was too slow. To accommodate those desiring a more rapid method of locomotion Mr. Turcotte added two or three motor cars. With this dual horse and auto livery, he enjoyed one very successful year. The following years, however, his former clients drove up to the door of his office in cars supplied for them by their employers. In the course of time they drove up in their own cars. With this rapidly decreasing demand for horses, "old Dobbin's" popularity waned and the era of the motor car was definitely in.

During the early years of the Great War, Mr. Turcotte was engaged in the purchase of mounts for the British cavalry and used his livery barn to house them until they could be shipped to Toronto where they were sold to the British buyers.

And so the last local link with the "horse and buggy" days of our forefathers is gone, and the day of the automobile is here. Who can say that one day an aeroplane hangar may not make its appearance on the site of the old livery barn.

Messrs Sim McCrea and Ed Rath motored to Kemptville on Sunday to attend the funeral of William Donoghue, a cousin of the former. The late William Donaghue died following injuries suffered when the plane in which he was a passenger struck the stump of a tree in a forced landing on the way out from Fort Radium where he was mine captain in the Eldorado Mine, to visit his wife and family who reside in Kemptville.

A dance was held in the Roslin Hall on Friday evening.

PREMIER HEPBURN MAY STAND ALOOF

Both those possibilities were only possibilities, political observers felt. An added obstacle to any desire by Mr. Hepburn to leap into the Federal political field is the fact that taxation and other treasury problems have been increased many times by the war and demand most of his time.

Second reading of the Bill increasing the taxes on corporations will be called after the Budget is presented, the Premier told the House yesterday.

Won't Grant Petition

After adjournment, Mr. Hepburn said he was not disposed to grant the petitions of those who have asked elimination from the stepped-up Corporations Tax Bill the clause that makes the increases retroactive to January 1, 1939.

A measure for the closer control of Trade and Correspondence Schools through making it a more serious offence for an unregistered school to solicit pupils, went through committee stage without debate.

The measure increases the maximum for unlicensed solicitation of pupils to $2,000 in the case of an individual and $25,000 in the case of a corporation.

SWITZERLAND TESTS EFFICIENCY OF ITS ARMY

Constantly on the alert against possible invasion, Switzerland's army of 500,000 men is a finely trained unit of fighting troops. Should Switzerland be invaded, it will not be caught napping. Its small, but highly efficient army constantly goes through army manoeuvres to keep its efficiency at the highest point. A detachment of machine-gunners is shown, TOP, during recent manoeuvres, while gas-mask-clad troops test their equipment, BOTTOM, by walking through a field set with gas bombs.

Discussion of Farm Problems Features Rural Meetings

Soil Fertility, Fertilizers and Hog Culture Subjects of Addresses

Discussion on soil fertility, fertilizers, varieties of grain suitable to the county and bacon production, featured a series of six meetings in various centres of the county, which have just been concluded. The discussion on hog culture was lead by L. M. Kerr Chatham, and O.A.C. graduate and successful farmer of that district.

Considerable interest was shown in the question of commercial fertilizers. It was pointed out that before a farmer purchases fertilizers he should first know the analysis of the fertilizer that will do him the most good. He can find out the ferilizer best suited his needs by sending samples of the soil to an agricultural school. The newer rust-resistant varieties of cereal grains were discussed at some length.

Careful selection of breeding stock in that it conforms with the desired type to make the best wiltshire sides, was stressed by Mr. Kerr in his addresses on hog production. By selection of hogs of strong constitution and vigor, the cost of production is cut down because the hog will make a more economical gain for each pound of feed consumed. He stressed sanitation and emphasized the fact that if sows were properly wormed out systematically four times a year, the farrowing pens kept clean and the litter kept away from contaminated grounds and pens, that those litters would be comparatively free from parasites and make more economical gains.

Anemia is common at this time of year. This can be prevented to a great degree by treating each litter before they are a week old with reduced iron and continuing the treatment at three-day intervals until the litter starts feeding well.

The meetings were held under the chairmanship of H. L. Fair, agricultural representative for Hasting County. They were well attended in all instances and farmers in each case expressed their appreciation for information imparted to them.

Moira

Moira—Little Miss Evelyn Emerson is able to be around again after her recent illness.

Miss Mildred Ketcheson is visiting at the home of her sister Mrs. Nelson Welsh.

A play entitled "Home Ties" given by Bethel Young People was given in Moira Church on Thursday evening. Each portrayed their parts particularly well and everyone enjoyed the play very much. Several selections of music were given between acts, Betty and Gordon Foster singing "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." Mrs. J. Vanderwater and Mrs. J. Hart contributed a piano duet and Mrs. Nelson Welsh a solo, "Way down in County Down."

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Vandewater took dinner on Sunday at the home of Mr. Wesley Crawford.

Mrs. Fred Ketcheson spent Thursday with her daughter Mrs. J. Vandewater.

Officials of C.O.C.M.A. Again Chose Belleville For Annual Exhibition

Proven through experience and the success of former exhibitions, to be the best locality in the district for the holding of cheese exhibitions and dairy shows, Belleville will be the locale of the 1940 British Empire Dairy Show and Cheese Exhibition, executive officials of the Central Ontario Cheese Makers' Association decided at a special meeting held recently.

Dates set for the exhibition are the second, third and fourth of December. Permission of City Council to hold the show in city buildings is expected within a few days.

Commenting on the exhibition today, Chief Dairy Grader James L. Irwin stated that the executive of the association are looking forward to one of the best exhibitions in history. Progress made within the past two years, with increasing interest in all parts of Canada, plus the fact that marked increase in production and quality will ensue due to war conditions, point to one of the largest entries since the inception of the exhibition.

Plans are already under way to raise the money necessary to the successful functioning of the show. There will be no decrease in the cash value of premiums offered, Mr. Irwin said.

One of the contributing factors to the success of the show for the past two years has been the steadily increasing interest in cheese production of the Province of Quebec makers, he pointed out. Indications thus far, point to an even higher list of entries than that of last year when the cheese shown by the eastern province loomed as dangerous contenders for championship honors.

BRIDGE STREET UNITED CHURCH W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of Bridge Street United Church was held in the Ladies' parlours, Friday, February second, at three o'clock, Miss Lazelle Brown presiding.

Mrs. Osborne read from the Blue Book an account of work done last year by Supply Secretaries and suggestions to be followed this coming year.

Mrs. Moore and Mrs. Farley gave a 'Question and Answer' talk on the "Danger of Alcohol in the Blood Stream".

Mrs. Wallace sang very beautifully the solo, "Thanks Be To God".

Mrs. Pearsall and Mrs. Farnsworth had charge of the Study Period. The theme was "Unto all the World". Miss Clara Yeomans gave the Scripture reading. Prayer w s offered by Miss Brown and by Mrs. Pearsall.

A drama based on Chapter Four of the Study Book was portrayed by the following ladies, Mrs. Foster, Mrs. Wyman, Mrs. Curry, Mrs. Farnsworth.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH, STIRLING, HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

Stirling—The annual congregational meeting of St. Paul's United Church was held in the church parlours on Thursday evening Feb. 1st. Rev. W. J. Scott opened the meeting with the use of a hymn and prayer. Mr. J. B. Thompson was appointed secretary for the meeting and presented a detailed report of the last annual meeting. Reports on the activities of various church bodies were then presented with Mr. Cecil Macklin reporting for the Board of Session. Mrs. J. L. Good reported on the activity of the Sabbath School and the report of the Young People's Union was presented by Mr. Don Williams, President. The Missionary and Maintenance report was given by Mr. S. A. Hatton, and the Young Worshippers rolls revealed several junior worshippers had attended service fifty-two Sundays. A brief period of community singing was enjoyed at this time under the capable leadership of R. A. Patterson. An interesting addition to the program was the reading of a group of papers by Mrs. Clifford Lansing entitled "Clippings of the year."

Memorial Service

A brief memorial service in remembrance of those who had passed away during the year included the reading of the names and moment of silent prayer. The names included were late Mr. Chas. Thompson, Mrs. S. Dix, Mr. Wm. Hannah, Mr. Murney Hagerman, Mr. Thos. Montgomery Sr., Mrs. C. F. Walt, Mrs. A. Carr.

Continuing with the department reports Mr. Wm. Fitchett reported for the Adult Bible Class, Mrs. J. B. Thompson for the Women's Missionary Society, Mrs. W. J. Scott, Mission Circle; Mrs. C. Macklin, the choir; A complete financial report was presented by R. B. Duffin, Treasurer of the Church.

Mr. C. F. Linn reporting for the official auditors reported the books of the treasurer to be in excellent order. A vocal solo by Wm. Reynolds accompanied at the piano by G. L. Clute was an appreciated contribution to the program at this time. Mrs. R. B. Duffin presented the final report of the evening on the activities of the Women's Association.

Officers Appointed

To replace the vacancy created on the Board of Elders by the death of the late Thos. Montgomery Sr., Mr. Wm. Fox was elected to the senior governing church board. Messrs C. F. Linn and Wilbur Thompson were appointed representative Elder for a period of five years and re-appointments for a period of five years to the board of stewards were Messrs H. C. Martin, J. B. Thompson, R. B. Duffin. Messrs Gilbert Thompson and C. F. Linn were appointed auditors.

Appreciated Service

Mr. J. B. Thompson rose at this time and moved a hearty vote of appreciation to Rev. W. J. Scott and his family for the efforts they had put forth during the past year. This motion was seconded by Cecil Macklin who also addressed the minister briefly, expressing gratitude for his past services in the interest of the congregation. The motion was extended by C. F. Linn. The meeting climaxed with the use of another hymn and the closing Benediction.

The ladies then served luncheon and a period of social enjoyment followed.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Espionage Agent"

All its notable past achievements in being first on the screen with timely stories have been topped by the Warner Bros. Studio with "Espionage Agent" the sensational film starring Joel McCrae and Brenda Marshall which is now playing at the Capitol Theatre.

Since it takes a certain amount of time to get a picture to the screen after the last shot has been filmed, it is certain that "Espionage Agent" was written and photographed before the outbreak of the Eurpoean war, and yet it applies with vivid authenticity to the situation in which the United States finds itself today—the powerful neutral in a world of warring nations.

There is an unusual love story involving Joel McCrae as a young "career man" in the diplomatic service and Miss Marshall as a homeless, orphaned girl who has become the tool of a foreign spy ring. The young diplomat marries the girl, and then he is forced to resign from the service when the truth about her past comes out.

If it weren't for the timeliness of this picture, the most interesting fact about it would undoubtedly be the fact that it marks the screen debut of Miss Marshall, whom the Warner studio snatched from a fledgling stage career and thrust right into the leading feminine role of a big production.

McCrea makes, as is to be expected, a very engaging and forceful hero, and he proves that he is just as effective in the formal attire of a young diplomat as in the habiliments of the more rough and ready roles in which he has been seen mainly of late.

As McCrea's pal, Jeffrey Lynn is seen to fine advantage, lending the picture a charm and an occasional note of lightness that is altogether welcome. A forceful portrayal is that of George Bancroft as a noted newspaper correspondent stationed in Geneva, while Martin Kosleck, as the chief of the spy ring, adds lustre to he reputation as a character actor which he won as the "Goebbels" of "Confession of a Nazi Spy." Other effective characterizations are contributed by Stanley Ridges, James Stephenson and Nana Bryant.

The added attraction "All Women Have Secrets", a comedy drama, featuring Virginia Dale, Joseph Allen, Jr., and Jean Cagney, sister of James Cagney. The latest war news pictures completes the bill.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Sisters"

AT THE BELLE

In keeping with its long-established policy of bringing its patrons the timeliest films possible, the Belle Theatre is now playing "British Intelligence." Produced by Warner Bros., the picture tells the true inside story behind England's famous spy-catchers, the British Intelligence Service.

A film of this type is especially interesting in these days because of the wide spread publicity attached to the intelligence departments of various belligerent nations. The story concerns itself with the efforts of the British Intelligence to ascertain the whereabouts of German spies operating right in the heart of London itself.

Boris Karloff plays the role of a master spy and acts it to perfection. His performance is such a deceptive one that when his true affiliation is revealed at the climax of the production, not a member of the preview audience had even guessed at his nationality.

Margaret Lindsay appears as a beautiful member of one of the country's intelligence departments but we'll not tell which one for fear of spoiling the suspense of the Belle feature.

The high spot of the picture occurs when the city of London is bombed from the air. None of the air raid details are omitted and the screen shows raid - alarms, bomb-proof shelters, terror stricken citizens and all the other thrilling details attached to an exciting scene of this sort.

Directed by Terry Morse, "British Intelligence" hits a new high in achieving the maximum in timely interest.

"Kid Nightingale," Funny

"Kid Nightingale," new Warner Bros. comedy featuring John Payne and Jane Wyman, which is announced as the second feature attraction, is about a prize fighter. But, what a fighter! He likes to sing much more than he likes to fight, and to tell the truth he sings much better than he fights.

While the handsome Mr. Payne and the delectable Miss Wyman take care of a lot of the comedy and some romance besides, they have the more than able assistance of such expert comedians as Walter Catlett, Ed Brophy, Charles D. Brown, Harry Burns and William Haade.

The Belle News of the Hour includes among its highlights scenes in Dixie where the deep south is buried beneath the heaviest snow in decades. A wide variety of war headlines make this issue of unusual interest. "Miami Miracle," a refreshing and really different tropical film will be exhibited on the same program.

LET'S DO OUR JOB

The Chairman now called upon Mr. Picobac to say a few words.

"All I can say", began Mr. Picobac bashfully . . .

"How about a mild . . . cool . . . sweet smoke?" demanded a voice at the back.

"Everything in good time", replied the speaker holding up his seal-tight Picobac pouch.

"All I can say", he repeated, "we have a just and noble cause. The heart of Canada is in it. Let's do our job with a cheer." (Applause.)

"Now, my friend — answering your question — I will be glad to join you in that mild, cool, sweet smoke."

PANCAKES AND SHROVE TUESDAY

Today in a large number of Belleville homes, especially those occupied by people of English descent, golden brown pancakes will sizzle in piping hot skillets. There will be small ones, large ones, plain ones and that full pan-sized delicacy sweetened with fruits, dear to the British palate.

For today is Shrove Tuesday, or as it is commonly known the world over "Pancake Day."

It is an old English custom, so the old fellows say, this business of gorging oneself with pancakes on this particular day.

Long long ago when the lads and lassies played on the village greensward, gay young blades wore jerkin and buskin; old timers quaffed their mulled ale in the village taverns, and talked of the wars on the continent of Europe, the populace gave vent to holiday feelings on Shrove Tuesday.

It was a great day of merrymaking, for that was the day when they were shriven from their sins. Confession was part of the pre-Lenten observances, and the entire countryside turned out in a joyous celebration that preceded the quiet days of Lent to come.

They danced around the maypole set up in the village square. They played at games, improved upon their archery, and danced the old folk dances to the music of wandering minstrels. It was a day of days and one set apart for merrymaking.

But gradually, down the ages the merriment has disappeared. No longer is Shrove Tuesday regarded as a public holiday. In fact the only reminder that it was once a holiday that has survived the centuries is the custom of pancake-eating. For in those good old days huge platters of the toothsome delicacies were disposed of by the merrymakers.

In England the custom is still popular, and in Canada, too, to some extent. So if friend wife places a dish of steaming pancakes on the table today, you will know what it is all about.

THE GRAND JURY MAY BE ABOLISHED

It may be soon that a familiar group is to disappear from the administration of justice in Ontario. The grand jury system may be abolished for the Attorney-General of Ontario has submitted a bill to the Legislature which will mean the passing of the grand jury system.

The two arguments against the retention of the grand jury are the argument of economy with a possible saving of $50,000 a year, and the argument that there is no longer the need to call such a jury to decide whether there is sufficient evidence in a case to present it to trial before the petit jury. It is held that the courts of the magistrates virtually decide the same question when a person is given the preliminary hearing. The grand jury does not hear the full case, it hears evidence for the prosecution and no evidence for the defence.

The opposition to the abolition of the grand jury in Ontario will be based mainly on the ground that it is a time-honored institution assuring the people that their rights will be preserved.

This would be seen in the present duty of the grand jury to visit institutions on which government or public monies are expended. The grand jury, however, herein performs duties which the advocates of the abolition of the grand jury claim are already performed and it is said more efficiently by the inspectors especially chosen for that purpose.

Then there is the other duty of the grand jury of thirteen men to hear the crown's case in a prosecution and decide if an accused should be brought into court and tried by the petit jury, though the magistrate's court has already so decided. The grand jury, if it finds that the accused should be put on trial, brings in a "true bill," but if it decides that there is not enough evidence to put him on trial, the jury finds "no bill." The jury actually does what the magistrate at the hearing has done, though in the magistrate's court there is always the opportunity provided an accused to make a statement if he desires, while before the grand jury no such opportunity is given an accused. On this point those favoring the retention of the grand jury will argue for the grand jury as a historic institution and a guarantee of the preservation of the rights of the accused. Opponents of the grand jury claim in this regard it is not essential as the individual's rights are amply guarded in the court where the petit jury tries the case before a judge.

THE FINNS' DEFENCE AGAINST RUSSIA

Finland has created a story of heroism for the like of which the world will have to go to the records of the greatest deeds in all ages. For sheer bravery the story recalls the fight of the three hundred Spartans at Thermopylae against the Persian hordes over 2400 years ago. The Finns have fought for over two months against giant odds in a winter of unequalled severity, soldiers and civilians answering the call with a unanimity which calls for the world's admiration and wonder.

The Russian army is cumbersome and is not working efficiently in a war of invasion, it is not well equipped and the troops are reported to have been kept in the dark as to the true purpose of the campaign in Finland. The winter has played a great part in the struggle and has been an additional aid to the natural defences of Finland as well as to Finnish strategy.

Her armies discredited, Russia has put in many divisions to try and subdue the Finns. Now Russia has taken to the air with a vengeance and there she is not so handicapped as on land. Russia seems determined to impress the Finns for there are numerous raids on hospitals according to the press reports.

Finland fortunately has a long period of cold ahead. The winter will last for three months yet. When the winter ends there is the question of what is likely to happen. It has been stated by visitors to Finland that the Finns will need plenty of help and there is confidence among these observers that the necessary aid will reach them in time. With spring well under way, it may be less difficult for the Russians on land unless Finnish forces are strengthened.

The world feels that Finland needs the help that will save her from the Soviet.

NAZIS 'DOCTOR UP' PICTURES, RECORDS

Germans, who are not allowed to "listen in" to the broadcasts from outside Germany, are provided with a cleverly "doctored" report of speeches of British statesmen. For instance the Nazi authorities took a copy of the speech of Mr. Churchill at Manchester and in broadcasting it to the German people the Nazis injected boos, catcalls and whistling, with the comment that this is the record of how Mr. Churchill's recent speech was received by his audience. Records have been taken by the Allied authorities of the German broadcast version and these have been compared with the record made of the speech as actually delivered. The facts show that the interruptions which have been shrewedly put into the speech are part of the plan to discredit the standing of the speakers and the attitude of the Allied peoples.

It is said that it may have taken as many as one hundred men to create the disturbances injected into the German version of the speech.

This patching up of a speech to suit the German Nazis is clever and shows to what resorts the Nazis will go to keep the truth from their people and to distort facts.

The Nazis are doing the same with pictures, composite photographs being made to prove to the Germans how Nazis are succeeding.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Bile Flow is Slow When Body is Inactive

One of the things that formerly was difficult to understand was how some men ate enormous meals and had no trouble with liver or gall bladder while others who ate meals of ordinary size were troubled with indigestion, belching, desire to vomit, constipation and other signs of a slow or sluggish liver and gall bladder. The explanation is that the heavy eater is one who is also active, takes plenty of exercise—riding, golfing, brisk walks, and the other sits at his desk all day and gets little or no exercise.

Nature meant that man should move about, bend his body, reach up and down, all of which not only squeezes the liver and gall bladder but also makes him breathe deeply. Deep breathing, by pressing the diaphragm (floor of chest and roof of abdomen) against the liver, squeezes it and increases the flow of bile.

Will bile not flow unless exercise is taken? Bile is manufactured and will flow down into small intestine into gall bladder, and from gall bladder also to small intestine, even if no exercise be taken. Bile, aside from its other uses, is Nature's purgative, and unless interfered with by tight corsets or by being surrounded with fat, will always be manufactured and flow, to some extent. But the amount made and rapidity with which it flows can greatly be influenced by exercise. In cases where exercise cannot be taken, extra bile in the form of bile salts, taken by mouth, stimulates bile flow.

Just how much bile is manufactured in twenty-four hours and how fast it flows is recorded by Dr. I. C. Zuckerman and associates, in American Journal of Digestive Diseases. A patient with a fistula—opening in duct carrying the bile—was observed when starved and no bile taken by mouth. Over a quart of bile was manufactured in the twenty-four hours.

In regard to the rate of flow, it was found that the hourly rate of flow during day and night was fairly regular. There was, however, a six hour interval during night and early morning (when patient was sleeping) when there was a noticeable decrease in the bile flow.

What does this teach us? It teaches us that when the body is completely at rest, bile flow is slower than when body is active. About two or three times a day if we would bend the body with knees straight or take a few long breaths we could increase the bile flow and prevent constipation.

WHERE IT COMES FROM

How frequently we have heard that old complaint about the manner in which public men are abused. Abused so much that the wonder is we have any left who wish to offer themselves for public service. Yes—it's awful.

It was not difficult to think of all that in recent days when Mr. Hepburn and Col. Drew were taking the hides off people in the Ontario Legislature and in the Dominion government. Never at any time in a newspaper have we seen anything in the same class.

We concluded a long time ago that the abuse of public men came from other public men and not from the newspapers. And having lived through recent weeks we are more certain of it than ever.—Peterborough Examiner.

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

FEB. 6TH, 1920

Representatives of American capitalists who have been in Belleville during the past week sizing up possible sites for a large industry, have returned to the United States very much pleased with the treatment accorded them by the members of the Industrial Commission, which is composed of representative of the City Council and the Chamber of Commerce. Every effort has been made to secure the industry for this city and there is every indication that the efforts made will be successful.

At a meeting of the Men's Club in connection with St. Adnrew's Presbyterian Church the following officers were elected for this year: Hon. President, Col. S. S. Lazier; President, J. G. Moffatt; Vice President, G. A. Bennett; Secretary-Treasurer, James Buchanan; Convener of Invitation Committee, Geo. A. Reid; Convener of Program Committee, John McIntosh.

A meeting was held in the Chamber of Commerce to consider the holding of an Old Boys' Re-union here this coming summer on July 16th, 17th, 18th, and 19th., provided the City Council will make a substantial grant. The following officers were elected: Hon. President, Sir Mackenzie Bowell; Hon. Vice Presidents, Messrs William Johnson, Arthur McGinnis and Mayor Lorne Marsh. It is now up to the City Council.

Some thermometers registered between 15 degrees and 25 degrees below zero last night—the latter seems nearest to the proper temperature.

Are the Japanese Gaining This Foothold in Canada?

"Yes, British Columbia is the best in the Dominion," boasted the man from Vancouver, who had just flown in from the Sunset province. "When we left last night it was just like summer, while here you have . . ." He waved his cigar toward the frosted windows of the hotel rotunda. "But," he continued, "we are losing the best province."

"Losing it?" we questioned, with visions of German battleships racing through Puget Sound. "How are we losing it?"

"Japan," he answered tersely. "Japan is after British Columbia, and will get it unless you people here in the east waken up before it is too late. You are leaving us to our fate. It is a federal problem, not a provincial one. If we could deal with the matter ourselves we would soon take care of it, but we cannot. Japan is slowly taking over B.C. Make no mistake about that."

The visitor did not look like a man who could be stampeded into an hysterical conclusion, and this made his warning all the more perturbing.

Japan take over British Columbia! Impossible, would be the answer of the man on the street. Yet, let us not be any too sure about that.

Fifteen years ago one heard the same warning at the coast. But, like the people in the days of Jeremiah, the average citizen (even at the coast) simply laughed at what he thought was a will-o'-the-wisp. Such a thing could never come to pass. Yet the fact is quite obvious that during the past decade and a half Japan has made remarkable strides toward an objective which seems quite clear to an increasing number of people.

The manner of Japan's conquest is subtle and is being brought about through a rapid increase of Japanese population, the acquisition of valuable tracts of forest, the assimilation of market gardens and coal mines and the control of the fishing industry. These are the forces which will eventually "scuttle" the province, so far as the Canadian people are concerned.

True, there is an agreement which will limit the number of Japanese immigrants, yet there is little doubt but that this agreement is being flagrantly violated.

The long coast line, from 49 degrees to north of Prince Rupert, where every second cove harbours a Japanese settler or fisherman, makes it ideal for smuggling. Japan has heavy investments in Queen Charlotte Islands in timber, where her boats may call without question. She owns mines and holds the salmon fishing industry in her hand.

Nor is this all. She has acquired some of the best garden-farms. Not many years ago these farms were owned by Canadians, but first one farm was purchased by a Japanese, then another farther down the line. Finally the white farmers found themselves in the minority, glad to sell out even at a reduced valuation.

Statistics indicate that there are very few Japanese women over sixteen years of age who are not married. A study of the Japanese birth rate reveals the disconcerting fact that the Japanese are increasing approximately three times as fast as the rest of the population. Should such conditions continue (and apparently they will continue) it is only a matter of time until Japan will own British Columbia.

Those who are intimately acquainted with the facts of the case were simply dumbfounded at the attitude of the federal government not so very long ago when the Japanese problem was brought up before the house. We believe it was the Prime Minister himself who observed that Canada could not very well afford to introduce legislation restricting such encroachment by the Japanese for fear of rupturing the friendly relationship now enjoyed with the Nipponese government.

Such a policy of peaceful appeasement is just what the Japanese are seeking at the present time. Time is their ally. It is becoming increasingly difficult to erect a "Keep Out" sign, and we shall waken up some raw morning with an east wind blowing, to make the dismal discovery that we have a foreign power right on our doorstep, and a Japanese warship will patrol Burrard Inlet.—W. H. Colclough in the Stratford Beacon Herald.

Holland Speeds Battle Against the Zuider Zee

Amsterdam—(CP)—Twenty years ago Holland started a war, it was admittedly an imperialistic war—against the waters of the Zuider Zee.

Dutch engineers believed they could sever this body of water from the North Sea by a huge dike. With that accomplished they would embank four large undersea areas, pump out the water, bring to light more than 800 square miles of fertile land, and thus increase the agricultural area of the Netherlands by 10 per cent, the total area by seven per cent.

Plans were carefully outlined in 1919. A year later materials and financial resources had been mobilized. The war began. The most optimistic prediction was that it would last 40 years.

One of the things that had convinced the Dutch of their need for more cultivatable land was the occurrence of serious food shortages during the First Great War.

Today Europe is aflame again, but Holland has not abated operations against its formidable enemy. Up to last September the following victories had been chalked up against the Zuider Zee:

The 19-mile long Afsluitdijk (partitioning dike) had been completed after a 12-year fight. The Zuider Zee existed no more. In its place was an inland lake named after its tributary, the Ijssel River.

The first polder (dike-surrounded area) had been pumped dry. Named after the adjoining island of Wieringen, it contained 48,000 acres of fertile soil. Villages had arisen on its flat expanses, red-roofed farmhouses had been built. Farmers had sown the first crops in 1933. Three hundred farmers had applied for the 29 available holdings in 1939.

The $15,000,000 estimated as necessary for creating the Northeast Polder had been obtained. An offensive had been launched.

Dike Completed

A month and a day after Germany invaded Poland, the clay dike between the island of Urk and the town of Lemmer was completed.

In less than a year the 20-mile dike stretching eastward from Urk is to be completed. Only three gaps remain. Pumping stations have been completed. As soon as the impoldering has been effected, pumps will churn, millions of gallons will be ejected into Ijssel Lake and the Northeast Polder—132,000 acres of the newest land in the world—will come into existence.

Before this unpopulated area has been completely subjugated by agrarian members of Holland's constantly increasing populace, work will start on the 140,000-acre Southwest Polder. Then the 230,000-acre Southeast Polder will be brought to light.

When Holland's war is over—in about 1960—it will have made homes for some 300,000 Dutch people. It will have created 6,000 economic holdings. It will have noticeably increased the output of wheat, rye and barley that are so necessary for a nation that eats two meals of bread daily.

Yet not one foreign border will have been crossed, not one gun will have been fired, not one soldier will have been slaughtered on the field of battle to accomplish it.

Huge Waves Batter Calif. Coast

Redondo eBach, Ca'if., Feb. 6—(AP)—Hundreds of workmen labored desperately today, throwing up bulwarks along the ocean front against an expected assault of towering waves threatening to smash shops and homes with the next high tide.

Searching for Raiders at Sea

A letter from a New York yachtsman to the editor of the New York Herald Tribune.

SIR:—It is becoming quite common to hear criticism of the operation of the British Navy, especially when a German vessel succeeds in slipping back into a German port, or when a naval vessel is torpedoed by a submarine. Most of this criticism comes from landsmen, who are almost entirely ignorant of sea conditions, and results in a great deal of misunderstanding. It is in an effort to clear up some of this misunderstanding that I write this letter.

On the basis of published figures it would appear to be a fact that the British Navy is doing a better job in protecting shipping from submarine attacks, mine sinking and other dangers than the combined Allied fleets, including the American fleet, were able to do in the last World War. It would, therefore, seem to be at least sportsmanlike to give them credit for it, especially when we consider that they also happen to be, whether they like it or not, America's first line of defence against involvement in the war.

It seems to me that the principal cause of the landsman's misunderstanding of the navy's task is his almost complete misconception of visibility at sea. To stop or to attack another vessel you must first sight her. You might even hear her and be close to her, but unless you can sight her you cannot train your guns accurately on her. Let us, therefore, examine the probabilities of a naval vessel being able to sight another craft accurately enough for gunnery.

We all know that the earth is round. On land this is hardly ever considered, for seldom is one called upon to look at any distance on a perfectly level plane. At sea it is an ever-present factor to be dealt with. The term "drop below the horizon" is not merely a figure of speech, it is something which you notice whenever another object appears on the surface of the sea.

Navigation tables show, for instance, that under perfect conditions, if your eye happens to be ten feet above the level of the water (and if you have perfect eyesight) the very limit at which you could see an object floating on the surface of the water would be three and six-tenth miles. Under the same conditions, if your eye were twenty feet above the water you could see as far as five miles. If your eye were fifteen feet above the level of the water and the object at which you were looking was twenty feet above the level of the water, then you might be able to see it as far as nine and one-half miles. Beyond those distances the object cannot be seen at all, on account of the curvature of the earth. It simply drops out of sight entirely.

If there is any sea running the object which you are trying to see disappears into the trough of the waves about one-third of the time. A broken sea very often camouflages it completely. Fog and darkness may reduce visibility to zero. Squalls rain, snow, clouds, mist, spume, scud and all other atmospheric phenomena at sea are constantly affecting visibility from minute to minute.

Under conditions which usually prevail in the North Sea in Winter the wonder is not that you can miss seeing another vessel, but rather that you see her at all.

These are facts familiar to all seamen and to many amateur yachtsmen who "go to sea in little ships." I have myself, many times, sailed in a fleet of 35 or 40 sailing yachts in the Bermuda race under perfect conditions of visibility, all sailing approximately the same course and at approximately the same speed, with almost perfect Summer sea conditions, yet 24 hours after the start have been unable to see another sail anywhere on the horizon. Yet there is nothing easier to pick up at sea than a white sail against the horizon. It is hard to believe until you have experienced it.

Consider then, the task of the British Navy patrolling the oceans of the world, where the distances are so great as to be almost inconceivable. Especially consider what they are up against in the North Sea, with something like two hundred thousand square miles of sea to patrol in that area alone, with complete darkness for about 20 hours each day at this time of year, with almost constant storms, fogs, rain, poor visibility and the roughest sea conditions in the world. The fact that they have, in spite of these conditions, been able to bottle up the German naval vessels and maintain a blockade is one of the marvels of naval warfare.

It is also well to remember that great publicity is always given to a vessel which is able to slip back into a German port, but no publicity at all is given to the hundreds of cases of ships prevented from doing so by the alertness and seamanship of the British patrols. It is unfortunate that the unthinking public likes to dramatize the gangster working in the dark rather than the policeman who guards us against him.

One Waterhole $10.

If we read in the newspapers that a water hole sold for $10 at a farm sale in the Dust Bowl of the West or in some desert region we would think nothing of it, but to have it occur right here in Western Ontario is surely startling enough to awaken thought and perhaps action. The buyer who through parting with ten dollars became the proud possessor of this water hole is reputed to have a 50-foot well and all the circumstances go to show how little we know about the sources of water and how to preserve it.

The departments of agriculture have done an excellent job instructing farmers how to cultivate the soil, how to maintain soil fertility and how to harvest crops so they will contain the maximum quantities of food constituents. Yes, but how little has been done to advise rural people in the matter of soil moisture, without which no satisfactory crop can be grown, and in regard to water supplies for use of man and beast. We are overlooking one of life's essentials, more vital even than food or clothes!

Carloads of good cattle or feed in Elgin county have been sold because the owners, already paying from $3 to $6 per day for water, dare not take a chance on the weather and the possibility of blocked roads when the water trucks could not get through. It all sounds unreal and fantastic but it is the grim truth. Nature is hitting back with a vengeance! This is too big a job for any department of agriculture, as at present organized. The problem, in its advanced stage as we find it now in Southwestern Ontario, involves the engineering profession, foresters and experts who know something about underground water supplies. We should be advised by men who know, what can be done to preserve the precipitation that falls on the land and surely there is someone who knows about underground supplies of water, at what depths in the different districts subterranean lakes or water sources can be tapped. If there is no scientific information dealing with this matter so vital to human welfare then we might as well consult some Indian and go back to the witch-hazel wand.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Readers of a free press, even when it is under the restrictions of wartime censorship can not escape noticing a strain of unreality in the editorials and news reports of the controlled newspapers of Germany, Italy and Russia. The few Russian newspaper versions of the Finnish war, however, far outdo anything which has yet appeared in the controlled press of the other totalitarian states.

After making all possible allowances a Canadian newspaper reader can only conclude the Russian army and people are being fed the most improbable kind of falsehoods, not only as to the causes of the war but as to its course.

Yesterday, for instance, the "Red Army" newspaper said great results had been obtained in "liberating" the Finnish people. Even if reliable and unbiased United States newspaper correspondents had not visited the Finnish front and described the fighting the fact that the powerful Russian army is still stranded on the border of a country only 200 miles wide indicates results of the Russian operations are meagre.

The ignorance of the Russians about the circumstances of the Finnish war is confirmed from time to time by reports of interviews with Russian prisoners in Finland. Many of them thought they were fighting the British and the French.

The fact that the Soviet government sent ill-trained and ill-equipped troops against Finland at first is one of the many evidences the government itself was badly informed about Finnish preparedness and Finnish political leanings. It expected the Finnish people to welcome the Russian army after a brief clash with the capitalist ruling classes.

Now the same uninformed government in order to avoid loss of face, keeps the truth from the masses while sending new divisions to smash against the Finnish lines.

GIRL AT THE FRONT

CHAPTER 17

The Secret Room

Claire helped Lili with the dishes, while Frau Weber returned to the shop downstairs. While they were waiting for her to come back, Lili got out a photograph album and with considerable pride showed her pictures of her childhood.

"Those were happy days, then," she said, "although mother and father were always talking about the hard times that followed the war. At least we were together and had good times together. Picnics in the park, excursions into the country."

"Your father—is he……" Claire stopped in sudden embarrassment.

"He is dead," Lili said, dully.

"Oh, I'm sorry. I shouldn't have mentioned it—it was stupid of me."

"That's quite all right. Mother and I, somehow, have become used to it now. It seems so long ago." She turned over several pages of the album. "See, here he is in his uniform. That was taken after the World War. He went all through that and suffered only one wound. Shrapnel in his left arm, and it had to be amputated. That's why we happened to open up the little shop downstairs and buy this flat. Father was unfit for anything but light work after his injury. It handicapped him more than most men because he had been so active."

She chattered on, turning the pages sometimes rapidly, sometimes slowly as she stopped to recall some happy experience a snapshot suggested. Lili seemed glad of a chance to talk to some one, and Claire had a feeling that she had been bottled up for years, with few friends and daring to confide in virtually no one.

Claire glanced at her watch when she heard two short signals on the buzzer, and was surprised to find that it was nearly 10:30. Frau Weber seemed worn and tired when she came in, and immediately ordered the girls to bed.

"Lili, you will be a wreck tomorrow," she scolded and added apologetically to Claire. "You see, she has to get up so early and the work at the factory is so hard.

"It's been so good, Mother, to have some one to talk to—some outsider to whom I'm not afraid to talk for fear that my words will be twisted and carried to the police."

"Go to bed now, dear," her mother directed. "I'll be in soon. Oh, yes, you'd better get out a nightdress for Fraulein Clara. She came without baggage, you know."

Claire portested, but Frau Weber insisted on giving up her room to her for the night.

"I'll show you why," she explained. "It's the only safe place in the flat. Come with me."

She led the way into the room, went over to the large clothes chest and swung open the door. Inside she reached up and pushed up on the third hook from the left. The back panel of the big chest slid quietly aside, presumably running on a track back to the other side of the massive piece of furniture.

Through the gap, Claire could see the wall of the room, papered exactly as all the rest, with a design of large cabbage roses. Frau Weber reached up and touched one that was exactly back of where the hook had been in the high chest, and the wall suddenly disappeared as though by magic.

"Follow me," the woman said, and Claire stepped into the wardrobe and into a small room opened up by the disappearance of the wall. Frau Weber flashed on a light and Claire glanced about her in amazement. There was a narrow cot in the room with sheets, a pillow and several blankets. There was a chair, a small stand with several books and magazines, and at the far end a miniature washbowl with a water tap.

"Why it's a regular little room!" Claire exclaimed. "A person could live here for some time and no one would ever know he was in the place—that is if there's some way to get air."

"There is," Frau Weber answered. "There are air vents cut in the wall back of the moulding in my bedroom, which let in plenty of air. People have lived here —for weeks at a time."

Claire nodded as she saw a small supply of canned goods on a shelf over the wash basin.

"No hotel service," Frau Weber commented, drily, "but it's better than nothing." She snapped out the light and led the way back through the open wall, and carefully closed it. Then she pulled gently on the edge of the sliding panel of the wardrobe back and it slid into place without a sound.

"This is why I want you in this room—where you can quickly disappear if it should become necessary," he said. "If, you're in the flat alone and hear the buzzer sound, you'd better get in the closet as fast as possible. You can slide the panel of the chest back into place once you're through the wall, and then the wall slides easily back into place. It fits so snugly that I defy any one to discover it from this side."

"How will I know if the coast is clear?" Claire asked.

"You can hear anything that goes on in the flat through the air vents. If Lili or I are around, we'll give you the all clear signal. Otherwise, you'll have to listen very carefully and be absolutely certain there's no one here when you come out. There are half a dozen keys, like the one that was given to you in Paris. This flat is used for various purposes. We've had some pretty close escapes several times."

"Does George Roland have a key?"

"Yes, and he's your enemy."

"Yours, too, Frau Weber?"

"Maybe, but to us he is useful in many ways. Besides, I can't refuse anything he should demand of me. I may tell you why, sometime."

Before she left her, Frau Weber made Claire open and shut the panel and the wall a dozen times until she was almost as expert as the woman herself, and when she finally bade her good night, she left the way open in the small room.

"If some one should come during the night, I'll hear the buzzer," she said. "I sleep very lightly. I'll awaken you and you can disappear into the little room. You'd better put all your clothing on a chair by the bed where you can grab it in a hurry. Then, I'll climb into this bed and if any one comes in, they'll find everything in order—I in my own room and Lili asleep in hers."

After her long day and the little sleep of the night before, Claire lost little time preparing for bed and slipping into the nightgown Lili had lent her. It was of rough goods, not much like the silken garments to which she was accustomed. She was asleep almost as soon as her head found the pillow, and she was still tired when Frau Weber awakened her the following morning.

Her watch said eight o'clock and she could hardly believe she had slept so long, but she felt refreshed when she had had a bath and was sitting down to the simple breakfast Frau Weber prepared for her.

"Lili has been gone for hours," the woman said. "She starts pretty early, you know, and she always gives herself plenty of time. There is much trouble made if you are late by so much as one minute."

Claire was glad she had thought to stuff an extra pair of stockings in her pocket before she left Paris, and when Frau Weber had left, after doing the dishes and cleaning up the flat, she washed out the hose she had worn the previous day. She decided it was the point of wisdom to hang them in the little room so that if any one should come in, the finding of a pair of American silk stockings would not arouse suspicion. Neither Frau Weber nor her daughter owned a pair, they had to be content with stockings made out of an artificial material, the base of which was wood fiber.

At noon, Claire made a sudden dive for her place of refuge, taking care to slide the panel back into place and the wall, too, when she was inside, after she had heard the buzzer sound. The visitor turned out to be Frau Weber, and she called to the girl when she entered the flat.

When Claire came out of the secret room, the woman handed her a small roll of thin paper. Claire hastily spread it out. It was from Bill Cameron! She recognized his writing, although it was just a scrawl, and her heart leaped.

"Claire," it read. "I'm safe so don't worry. Why did you come here and put yourself in such danger? Hope to see you soon, Bill."

She had no more digested the note, when the buzzer sounded faintly in the apartment.

"Go! Go, quickly!" Frau Weber whispered, and Claire dashed into the open wardrobe, into the room, slid back the two panels and stood by the wall, breathing heavily with excitement and fear.

She heard voice a short time later. Frau Weber's she recognized, and then a man's voice. His suddenly boomed out almost as though it were coming from the loud speaker of a radio. There was a note of elation in it as she heard:

"I bring good news, Frau Weber. The American, Cameron, is to be purged tonight!"

Claire recognized the voice as that of George Roland!

CHAPTER 18

A Dangerous Role

Frantic with fear and worry, Claire cowered in the little secret room for half an hour before she heard Roland and Frau Weber leave the flat. She remained in her hiding place for another half hour to be sure the coast was clear, and then spent the rest of the afternoon pacing the floor.

What could she do? She didn't know where Bill Cameron was being held or she might have desperately started out alone to attempt to reach him. Try as she would she could think of no way she could help, and finally she gave up, worn out by the strain.

She suddenly remembered Bill's note, and read and reread it several times. It wasn't much, but it was something—it was proof that he was still alive and well, and while he was alive there must be hope. She prudently decided to destroy the note to avoid any danger of its being found in her possession, and after burning it in an ash tray washed the ashes down the kitchen sink drain.

Lili Weber finally came home and in spite of her protests, Claire insisted upon helping her prepare the evening meal. It helped to keep busy. Lili, of course, had heard nothing. She hadn't even come through her mother's shop. She had come around through the alleyway. The best she could do was to console Claire.

"We've helped many people out of just as desperate situations," she said. "I'll admit it may look pretty hopeless to you, but mother and her friends really can accomplish miracles at times. We must hope that they're successful again."

"It will take a miracle," Claire commented, despondently.

The American girl's spirits were tremendously lifted after Frau Weber finally came up the stairs, and she had run to her to hear if there was any further news of Cameron.

"Don't be tearing yourself to pieces with worry," the woman chided. "The wheels are turning—we have things under way. If they work, you shall see your sweetheart before you expect it."

Claire was too excited to blush at the German woman's assumption that she and Bill Cameron were sweethearts, and demanded to know exactly what was being done.

"I can't tell you, child," Frau Weber said, "because I don't know all the details myself. It's always best never to know too much about anything when you're doing the sort of work I do. So I didn't ask."

"But there is a chance?" Claire demanded, her eyes shining with renewed hope.

"A chance, yes. A good chance, I believe. I know the plan is to get Herr Cameron out of the old palace tonight. If things go right he should be here about seven o'clock and we must be ready to hide him in the little room. I got hold of some more supplies—a few tins of sardines and other things."

She picked up the small basket she had carried in with her and took it through her bedroom and into the secret room behind the wall panel. Claire followed and helped her place the things on the shelf.

"Both of you may have to stay here for several days," Frau Weber went on. Claire was fairly dancing with excitement. She took it as an accomplished fact, already, that Bill somehow would be rescued and brought to the flat in a little more than an hour.

"Don't get your hopes too high, child," the woman warned. "It's risky business, you know, and many things may happen. All we can do is hope that everything goes all right. Both of you will have to stay here until a plane arrives from France to take you back."

"You've done this before, Frau Weber—many times?" Claire asked, watching the woman as she methodically prepared the room for an extra guest.

"Yes, my dear, I have. I know you distrusted me when you first came her—I could see it in your eyes. I can't blame you. After all, why should I, a German woman, be working against my own pepole this way?"

Her tone of self-accusation was so sharp that Claire had a sudden feeling of fear, which dissolved as Frau Weber continued.

"I'll tell you why. I know you must have wondered about it. They murdered my man." Her voice, ordinarily soft, was harsh now with an undertone of hate that revealed the depth of her feelings.

"Murdered him?"

"Just that. They called it a purge, but it was plain murder. Franz was a Nazi, a loyal one almost from the very start. He saw that something desperate was needed to arouse Germany after the ruin of the World War, and when this man Hitler came along, while not agreeing with him in all particulars, he ambraced his philosophy and worked hard to help build up a new Germany. Not a brutal, swaggering, bullying Germany, but a nation of which we all could be proud, which once again could hold up its head in the world and become a place where people could live once more in happiness and peace. That was my man's goal, and he thought it was the goal of the Nazi leaders."

She paused for a moment, took a handkerchief from her pocket, and wiped the tears from her eyes before she went on.

"After Hitler came to power, when he had the country firmly in his grip, Franz for the first time saw what sort of man he really is. Franz hated to believe it at first, but evidence piled up so overwhelmingly that he couldn't believe anything but that the man was crazed by a distorted ambition for power and a determination to take a terrible revenge on the world for Germany's defeat in the World War. Franz went along with the party for a time—he was high in its councils then—hoping to bring reform from within. He had to work carefully, for even then one ill-advised word was likely to bring the wrath of the Nazi leaders down on you and your family."

Frau Weber sat down on the cot and Claire seated herself beside her.

"Maybe all this doesn't interest you?" she said.

"It does, tremendously. Please go on," the girl urged.

"Well, Franz, working quietly, found others high in the party of the same mind as himself. They were horrified at the brutalities against non-Aryans, especially the brilliant scientists and scholars who had contributed so much to Germany's culture. Franz and a few of his friends decided to save as many as they could, so they built this little room here. It formerly was an alcove in our bedroom. They had to work very secretly, of course, but by establishing an underground railway, similiar to the one anti-slavery people operated in your country before the Civil War, they managed to get many persons, marked for death or brutal persecution, out of Germany.

Suspicion eventually fell on several of them, but they worked so carefully that nothing could be proved. Our flat here was searched dozens of times in our absence—we knew, because it was clumsily done. This room was never found, and no incriminating evidence.

"But suspicion is enough in Germany now, and Franz and many of his friends were marked for the so-called blood purge. The Nazis told the world they were put out of the way for immoral practices, blackening the reputations of some of the finest men who ever lived. It was merely that Hitler and his lieutenants sensed that they were silently opposing Nazi rule, so they destroyed them."

"How did you and Lili escape?" Claire asked.

"George Roland — a powerful friend of Hitler's—personally interceded for us," Frau Weber answered. "Roland had been in the army with Franz—had known him since boyhood. He was living mostly in Paris, a secret agent of Hitler. He had gone to America after the war and lived there for a time, so when he came back he assumed the disguise of an American and was sent into France in the espionage service."

"It was fortunate to have such a powerful friend," Claire commented.

"Yes. He happened to be in Berlin at the time of the purge and he was horrified when Franz was shot down in cold blood, Lili and I, too were marked for a concentration camp or worse, but he pleaded for our lives and so they let us alone, although we've both been closely watched ever since.

"When I recovered from the shock of Franz's death, I sought out a few of his former associates who had escaped the purge and carried on where he left off. To avoid suspicion, at George Roland's suggestion I became a secret agent of the Gestapo. I serve them, as well as serving the true friends of Germany—France and England."

"Then that explains why Roland comes here!" Claire exclaimed.

"Yes—I owe him our lives," Frau Weber said, simply.

Lili appeared outside the opening to call them to dinner, but just at that moment the warning buzzer sounded.

Moving with amazing speed, Frau Weber leaped to her feet, closed the panel, and Claire was alone in the secret room.

A minute later she heard voices in the apartment—Frau Weber's and Lili's and the voice of George Roland. She had a spasm of fear as she glanced at her watch and saw that it was just a few minutes to seven.

Bill Cameron was supposed to arrive there by 7 o'clock!

HERE'S something lovely for dinner at home. It doesn't matter whether you're sharing an apartment with several girls or are a young wife anticipating your husband's approval, it's refreshing to get out of business clothes, take a shower and slip into something decorative before lighting the candles on the table. Believe it or not, this is a pajama, the trousers being cut full and flaring to fall like a skirt, and the waistline folds secured by a wide kid belt. The material is a delicate ivory crepe with an underblush of faint pink. Let's keep that New Year's resolution to make a point of grooming and prettiness for all hours, particularly the quiet, memorable one that we like to spend by our own firesides.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Why Raise Cain with the Stork When a Daughter is Left?

Nowadays, when women are supposed to hold eighty per cent of life insurance benefits and satisfactorily manage nearly five million jobs, it's as quaint as pantalettes to find a husband who regards a daughter as a liability. Why does he raise Cain with his wife when the stork deposits an infant femme instead of a boy? But listen to an extract from this letter:

"Dear Miss Fairfax,

"For a year our marriage was ideal, and no one was more delighted than my husband when we knew I was going to have a baby. From the very beginning he was sure the stork was going to favor us with a boy, when, knowing the vagaries of that uncertain bird, I was less sure and made up my mind to be thankful for anything that was left.

"Well, the stork left a girl and my husband went on a bat for three days. He acted exactly as if someone in the family were under sentence for murder. Why? It seems to me that girls stick more closely to their parents than boys. Statistics show that when girls are properly educated for it, they hold down good jobs. And whatever her earning capacity may be, my little daughter has made her place secure in my heart.

"I shall not mention my husband's nationality, but the country from which he came originally defies the made as potential cannon-fodder. I agree with General Grant that war has never been a solution of any question. Better results could be achieved by a peaceful discussion with all the cards being laid on the table.

"But our little daughter has brought unhappiness and dissention into the household, and I am wondering if she would not have a better environment if we faced the situation and got a divorce now, when I could go back to the good secretary job I forsook when, with hope high in my heart, I married my husband.

Disillusioned."

It would be downright humorous, if not so tragic, in its probable results, if this husband of yours did not take a medieval Chinese point of view in regard to the birth of a daughter instead of a son. The ancient Chinese regarded girl babies as superfluous, until a few of these "superfluities" had the advantage of American colleges and showed the worthies what feminine brains were capable of accomplishing. Among them Madame Chiang Kai-Shek and hundreds more.

Let me beg, before you "can" your husband and go back to your profession, to see what the little girl can do toward winning him over. A baby can work miracles. Its very helplessness, its dawning personality, even its miniature rages and determination to have its own way at all costs these things are just so much undue influence for older folk.

See what the little girl can do toward converting her quaintly medieval father. If he'd only take the trouble and look into some revealing statistics, he'd discover that more daughters than sons shoulder the burdens of households and work early and late to maintain aged parents.

Your bright boy, on whom the family hopes are set, has a way of falling for the first, second or third charmer who crosses his path. But daughters stick, and keep the home fires burning after the promising brother has left home and set up a family of his own.

I'm glad you've got a safe and sane point of view in regard to your little daughter, and I'm more than glad that if you do decide to break up you have been trained to stand on your own feet and earn your own livelihood. That's the thing. Whether you like or don't like daughters, have them taught to be self-supporting.

WEDDINGS

McCUTCHEON—CARLETON

Officiating at the first wedding ceremony since his consecration, the Bishop of Ottawa, pronounced the blessing on Saturday at the marriage, at two o'clock in Christ Church Cathedral, Ottawa, of Miss Kathlyn Docter Carleton, younger daughter of Mrs. Carleton and the late John Carleton, Ottawa, to Dr. William Crouter McCutcheon, (Lieut., C.D.C.) elder son of Mr. and Mrs. L. W. McCutcheon, of Ottawa. Rev. H. H. Clark, the rector, performed the ceremony.

Mr. Godfrey Hewitt presided at the organ and played the wedding music. During the signing of the register, eight choir boys sang softly.

Palms and ferns were used to adorn the church with tall vases of pink gladioli and pink snapdragon on the altar.

The bride was given in marriage by Captain George Patrick and was attended by her sister, Miss Grace D. Carleton, as maid-of-honor. Little Ann Alice Briens, of Belleville, Ont., cousin of the bride, was a flower girl. Dr. Donald McCutcheon, of Toronto, was best man for his brother and the ushers were Dr. W. E. Meldrum, (Lieut. C.D.C.) and Lieut. Bruce Munro.

The bride wore a model of poudre blue chiffon, made with a jacket. Her mittens of net were in soft pink tone. A short veil of pink net was held in place with a daintily pleated head dress of poudre blue chiffon. She carried Sweetheart roses, pink bouvardia and spray orchids in cascade effect.

The maid of honour was in dusty rose crepe, designed with a jacket with shirring at the waist and wristbands. She wore a short veil of pink net with a halo of chiffon in the same shirred effect as that on the dress. Pink net mittens completed the ensemble. She carried blue iris and blue hyacinths in a cascade.

The flower girl wore a daintily designed frock of rose taffeta with deep ruching at the hemline. Her short veil of pink net was held in place with a pleated halo of tulle and her bouquet was a miniature replica of the one carried by the maid of honour.

The reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, Ossington avenue, where the rooms were bright with early Spring flowers. The toast to the bride was given by Bishop Jefferson and the bride cut the wedding cake with a sword belonging to a family friend. Dr. and Mrs. McCutcheon left for a short trip.

The bride travelled in a costume of dusty pink crepe with a brown felt hat, brown accessories and coat. They will take up residence in Ottawa upon their return.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Briens, of Belleville, and Miss M. Morrison, of Montreal, were out-of-town guests.

Y. P. S. Delegates Report on Sessions Of Winter School

The Quaternion Y.P.S. held their regular weekly meeting Monday night, in Holloway Street Untied Church with an attendance of fifty-two, Miss Helen Thompson the president, presiding. The meeting opened with a sing-song led by the song-leader, Harry Atkinson. Rev. Roy Newman led in prayer. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. A business period followed.

A very fine worship service on the topic "The Alternative to War", was conducted by Vernon Bennett. Assisting him were Mary Kerr and Harry Atkinson. Reports of the Winter School were given by five of the delegates, Mary Kerr, Betty Redfern, Jean Mathews, Eva Smith, Marjorie Sykes. Ralph Greatrix was unable to be present. All spoke of the fine fellowship and splendid leadership that was enjoyed throughout the week and expressed the hope of attending next year. Games were played and the meeting closed with the friendship circle, concluding the Mizpah Benediction.

CANNIFTON Y.P.U.

Twenty-eight people gathered at the United Church parsonage on Friday evening for the meeting of the Young People's Union.

After a sing song and discussion of business, the president, Margaret Smallhorn, took charge of the worship service. As an opening, she read a devotional poem and later closed the service with prayer. Clarence Bird read the Scripture lesson and Mrs. Gerald Brenton sang an appropriate solo.

Mrs. Clarence Bird, convener of the Christian Fellowship department enlarged on the topic for the week—"Christ to Men in Brush and Pen." This was followed by readings on the topic by Stanley Pound and Lyle Armstrong.

Following this, the union enjoyed a debate on the subject "Resolved that the Radio Spreads News Better than the Press."

Lyle Armstrong and Francis Woods presented the affirmative while Ruth Whitfield and Vera Pound very ably upheld the negative.

The judges, Mr. Douglas Brenton, Mrs. Gerald Brenton and Miss Doris Gould gave their decision in favour of the affirmative.

Rev. A. Armstrong closed the meeting with prayer which was followed by the Mizpah benediction.

At the close those who were members of the "Alert" S.S. class with their teacher, Miss Cowain, visited the home of Jack Thomas, one of the class, and presented him with a testament as he is leaving to join the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment.

Fashion Flashes

Everyone likes the dinner suit. Under a mink cape, one smart woman wore a dinner suit of raisin colored crepe, the coat lavishly embroidered with copper sequins.

Ease and beauty mark the new house pajamas, so chic for lounging or for informal dinner wear at home. A new model has a snug blue velvet jacket trimmed with scrolls of iridescent blue sequins. The very wide, full trousers are of dark blue silk crepe.

A mild day brings out the fur-trimmed suit. An attractive model is plum colored wool, the long slim jacket trimmed with a double collar of sable-dyed baum martem, with a matching fur muff.

There's much attention for the models arriving from Paris. Lanvin makes a handsome dinner gown of black crepe, cut on slim, narrow lines with a loose apron panel trimmed with a sunray of tiny rhinestones. There is a wide girdle of scarlet.

Point up a simple black evening frock or dinner ensemble with a touch of red. A pill box of geranium red ostrich has a long trailing plume in back, and the matching ostrich muff bag has a box top.

VICTORIA LADIES' AID

On Wednesday evening, Jan. 24, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cunningham were "At Home" to the members and friends of Victoria Ladies' Aid. At the supper hour covers were laid for 68 and a wonderful banquet enjoyed by all. After dishwashing a business meeting was called by the President, Mrs. Cunningham. It was opened by singing "Just as I am without one plea" and repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison. A psalm was read from the hymnary. The minutes were read and adopted. Thirty-three members were present for the roll call. Dues were paid by 10 members. A pancake supper to be held at the church was planned. Mrs. Roy Brickman and Mrs. Eldon Adams were added to the Flower Committee to assist Miss Kathleen Montgomery who is convener of that work. The theme song "Let the beauty of Jesus be seen in me" was sung in closing.

The remainder of the evening was spent in progressive games which were very interesting. A hearty vote of thanks was extended to Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham for the very pleasant evening which all had enjoyed.

Proceeds of the meeting $13.10.

DR. DAFOE'S COLUMN on the Quintuplets and the Care of Your Children

Tetanus

It isn't many years since the disease tetanus, or lockjaw, was very common and every doctor, particularly those in country practise, had several cases of it a year. Today the disease is comparatively rare, largely because of the development of the anti-tentanus serum. Most doctors give this serum as a matter of course when any person has been wounded or injured under circumstances where there might be danger of tetanus developing. Even if tetanus has begun to attack the serum, if given at once, will halt its progress.

The disease is produced by an organism which enters the body through an open wound. Wounds producing lockjaw in children often occur through explosions of blank cartridges, caps or fireworks in their hands. Wounds made by dirty nails or splinters, or any wound that is contaminated by earth, particularly garden earth or where stable manure is present, are also liable to infection with the germs of tetanus.

Once the germ is inside the body, it proceeds slowly but surely to the brain, if it isn't arrested by treatment, and there works a type of destruction on the nerves that only it can cause.

The tetanus organism is a particular type of bacteria which has the power to cover itself with a capsule and remain alive for long periods of time in the ground. When wounds occur and are contaminated by the ground in which these bacteria lie, they are given entrance to the body. Once there, they drop their capsule covering and start to work. They travel along the courses of the nerves, eating away at the nerve cells. Since the wounds they enter are sometimes in the foot, sometimes in the shoulder, there is a varying length of time before they reach the brain.

The length of time before the acute stage of the malady is reached also depends on the virulence of the bacteria, for some are more deadly than others and do their work more quickly.

Tetanus has always been of particular menace to children because they are always getting themselves cut or wounded somehow and they are always playing in the dirt. A few years ago, when boys in the country went barefoot a lot, we had many more cases of tetanus. The tetanus germ is found most frequently around places where the manure from horse stables is thrown, so the farmer lad in his barefeet, walking through the barnyard with a cut or scratch on his foot was a natural host for the disease.

It was doubtless a well shod poet who made the lot of the barefoot boy appear so enviable.

Anyway, when the child suffers a wound in the foot or finger, it often passes unnoticed. The measures necessary to discourage tetanus are not taken by the parents. The first warning that the organism has entered the body and has reached the brain, is a tightening of the jaw muscles. That is, the child has difficulty opening his mouth. His difficulty gradually increases until he can't open his mouth at all. Hence the common name of tetanus poisoning lockjaw.

Meantime, other symptoms have appeared. His neck and back have begun to stiffen, and this stiffness increases until, like his jaws, they are rigid; he can't bend them. The symptoms about neck and back make the disease resemble meningitis in some ways.

If nothing is done to check the progress of the disease, the patient will pass into convulsions before long. One convulsion will follow another until he dies a rather horrible death within a few days of the onset of the stiffness of the jaw.

The immediate cleansing and other attention given to wounds that cause blood to flow usually serves to avert much of the danger of tetanus. But scratches that may also admit tetanus germs are too often neglected.

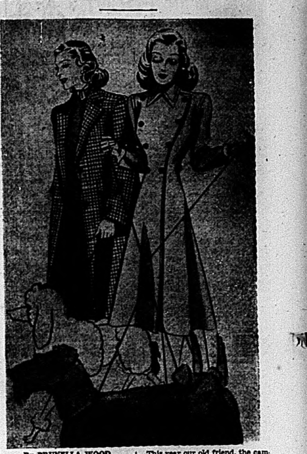
INDISPENSABLES



By PRUNELLA WOOD

Once you get a new sports coat it hangs around indefinitely, like the neighbor's dog. But, like the dog, you really are sick of it long before you take steps in the matter. Which is silly. New styles in sports coats are just as important as in evening gowns, and this department is all for always looking stylish.

This year our old friend, the camel's hair coat, has got its mind off polo and gone faintly military. Here we see it sketched in a reefer with a curved fit, its front double-breasted and finished with a collar which can be turned up to snuggle the ears; its back free with a deep centre pleat, trimmed with a half-belt. The slit pockets are set in at the hips.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Cultivate Grace in the Use of Names

I find very charming the way some people use names, always seeming to be aware of the personal quality that should be given to so personal a possession as a name.

Haven't you, for instance, found very attractive the engaging way some people use your name quite often during a conversation with you? Or the distinct way they pronounce your name in an introduction? Or the subtle compliment they give you when, on appropriate occasions, they pronounce your full name in an introduction, as, —"This is Miss Dorothy Forbes"? Or the way they add your name to the "How do you do" when they reply to an introduction?

These are pleasant habits to cultivate.

Announcing Second Marriage

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

1—Is it proper for a divorcee, twenty-seven years of age (no children) to send announcements of her engagement?

2—Would it be permissible for her to have a wedding at home with a reception later for relatives and friends?

P.

1—If you mean is it proper for you to write notes to your relatives and friends telling them of your engagement, the answer is "yes". That is, when you and your fiance have decided on the date of the announcement of your engagement, you and he would verbally tell your relatives and friends who live near enough to you to be told in this way. Then you would both write to those relatives and close friends who live at a distance. In this way, you and he will, with good form and good taste, tell the news to those most concerned with this news of your engagement.

If, on the other hand, you mean is it proper for you to send engraved or printed announcements of your engagement, the answer is "no."

Since you are a divorcee it is especially important that you announce your engagement in a simple and informal way.

2—Yes, it would be an excellent and thoroughly correct plan for you to have wedding informally at home, with an informal reception for your relatives and friends.

Widower With Good Record As Husband, Also Home and Car, Has Best Bait For Second Catch.

Dear Miss Chatfield: I lost my wife a year ago and have been a very lonely man since. A cook and a cat can't make a home for a man who has had the companionship of a congenial wife for twenty-five years. I wouldn't show any disrespect for my wife's memory and I am asking if you think a year's time is long enough for a man to wait before he re-marries. I have an acquaintance, she is only that, a business-women about forty years old who has never married, as I understand it due to a disappointment in early youth. She's a fine Christian character, healthy and good looking and I know she would make me a good wife. My position is lucrative. I own my home and car and I wish to make the approach to her in a suitable way at a suitable time. I shall appreciate hearing from you on these two points.—Widower.

Answer: No disrespect, dear sir, to the dead wife's memory in your planning to re-marry after a year's mourning. And no disrespect to the business-woman in my saying that she will show you the suitable way to make the approach, once you make it known to her that you are aware of her existence.

You boast the best bait for a middle-aged gal who makes her own living and fears she may have to make her living until the end; a record as a good husband and fireside companion; the fireside and funds to buy fuel for it, a car to ride in while the servant cleans house and prepares the meals. Stating frankly, as you do, that romance is a second consideration with you, you must respect the business-woman's willingness to swap the typewriter for the steering wheel of your car, without the formality of a long courtship.

A date or two, a dinner or two, a few comments on your loneliness, a few allusions to the house, the car, the cook, the cat and the lady extends to you her hearty sympathy and her dear desire to solace you. Some philosophizing about love, life and letters and the discovery that you think alike on many topics. Confidences exchanged, disappointments recounted, baby pictures exhibited and it's all over but the shouting.—Caroline Chatfield.

Dear Miss Chatfield: Your column on the importance of education impressed me because it reminded me of our family.

We have two daughters, one 16 and one 17. Both are popular and never lack for dates. I work in the store and live up over it, so I am not upstairs when the dates call for them. But they never leave on a date before first coming in the store and saying, "Mother, we're leaving." And if it is a new boy friend he is introduced to both parents before they leave.

They know they are to be home at 11 o'clock and when they come they will find hot coffee, sandwiches and cake waiting. We all join in a late snack before the boy friends go home.

We have impressed on them the importance of education so that they seldom have a second date with a boy after they find out he has quit school and takes education lightly. They realize that unless a boy at least finishes high school he is unable to make a decent living.—Mrs. H. A.

Corduroy Goes to Town

CORDUROY is on the up-and-up. One of our smartest winter resorters wears corduroy ski-pants. A corduroy coat designed in Paris for cruise and spring wear inspired the model shown today, one of those wraps which looks as well over light as dark clothes, comfortable for travel and useful all summer long. It's a wide-waled weave in ivory, distinguished for its double-lapels, slim sleeves and large buttons. Note the crisp sailor with its indented crown, a hat to go with mid-season ensembles as well as lightweight suits. Incidentally, the lining of the coat is antiseptically-treated.

WHAT'S RESPONSIBLE FOR FACE PARALYSIS

Is paralysis of one side of the face, which comes on in recurrent attacks, due to heredity? Has cold anything to do with it?

The actual cause of recurrent paralysis of the facial nerve (not due to ear disease) is unknown. Certain people are subject to it, but heredity plays no part. Cold very probably does play a part. It is often called rheumatic but this means little or nothing. The use of anti-rheumatic remedies and iodide of potash, along with electrical treatment of the nerve, are the best treatment but, and this is comforting for victims to know, time cures all of these attacks.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

I.L.C.—"Do you believe that if first cousins marry they take a chance of having mentally unsound or physically deformed children? As I look at it from my study of biology, first cousins take no more chance than any other young couple who wish to get married. I find this especially holds true when there never has been in the history of our ancestors any intermarriage, as in our case."

Answer—I assume you are asking me a very personal question, a question that concerns you. And you have analyzed the elements so far as science can interpret them very well. As you say, first cousins who marry take no more chance of having deformed or mentally unsound children than "any other young couple", provided they know their own ancestry. It is true that hereditary diseases are likely to be increased geometrically by the marriage of first cousins. On the other hand, wholesome qualities of people are liable to be increased by such a union. Only the contracting parties can decide how important the evidence is.

J. J. R.—"Is colitis curable and is an operation necessary? What is the cause of colitis?"

Answer—Most cases of colitis are amenable to treatment either by the use of a soft, bland diet or mineral oi lat night. Colitis dependent upon nervousness is liable to run a rather long course, but most cases of colitis are due to eating rough and irritating food and can be eliminated by returning to a normal diet.

A Three Minute Journey...

Visiting the Marvels of Brazil

By TEMPLE MANNING

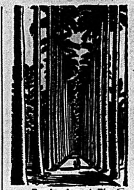
WE ENVY those who are getting their first glimpse of Brazil this winter. We feel sure that if they stop off at Rio en route to Buenos Aires, or on a cruise, they will register a vow to return some day and spend a holiday in that interesting country, so filled with marvels and beauty.

Rio cosmopolitan, courteous and cultured, is a dream city if there ever was one. The mighty Sugar Loaf mountain stands sentinel over the lovely bay with fort-crowned islands and weirdly-shaped rocks. Avenida Beira Mar, lined with royal palms overshadowing gleaming buildings, circles the bay and links up the various beach resorts. Rising from the heart of the city is the hunchback form of Corcovado, crowned by a heroic statue of Christ, which stands like a strong but kindly sentinel over the whole region. The Organ Mountains lift their silvery pipes to the sky, and the "Five Fingers of God" are raised as if in eternal benediction over Rio de Janeiro. At night the view is awe-inspiring and breathtaking in its beauty.

Mosaic Pavements

Stroll along tree and garden-lined Praca Floriano or Avenida Rio Branco and marvel at the mosaic-striped pavements, dating back to the spacious days of the Brazilian emperors. Everywhere are sidewalk cafes, hotels, imposing buildings, coffee bars, crowds and a continuous air of heady excitement that is exclusive to this city.

In every direction are vistas of forests, mountains, sea and coast. Up the winding road to Tijuca is a luxuriant, almost magical forest, a couple of thousand feet above sea level, where there are incredible flowers, and foliage, with waterfalls trickling through jungles.



Royal palms at Rio

A few hours overland from Rio, the second port of call on the way down the coast, is Santos, the coffee metropolis. Quaint narrow streets, just oozing charm; historic churches, beautiful hotels, brilliantly colored mansions of stucco, a casina where coffee millionaires risk fortunes—these are some of the sights of Santos.

A picturesque mountain trail, with groves of palms and plantations, lead to Sao Paulo, named by some smart traveler the "Chicago of Brazil". Modern skyscrapers line such marvelous thoroughfares as Avenidas Angelica and Paulista. A drive to Capminas passes the enormous coffee fazendas which, together with oil and minerals, form the wealth of this amazing country. Its resources are so tied up with its sights that one just has to become conscious of the wealth of this southern republic.

Helping the Child Train His Parents

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

MANY youths write me about problems they have with their parents. These youths generally think their parents wholly misunderstand them or are unduly strict. Judging from the letters, I often think so myself. But, as a rule, I hesitate to say so, especially in respect to standards, lest I do more harm than good.

In writing these youths I try to get them to put themselves, in their imagination, in their parents' places, reminding them that their parents keenly feel responsibility for their children, and that they have lived much longer and had more experience.

Let me say further to any youth who may be reading this: Try to look at these problems objectively. Imagine yourself standing off as an impartial observer, seeing both yourself and your parents.

No Good to Brood

If you think your parents misunderstand you, it will do no good to brood over the matter, let yourself cry or be abusive. Learn to manage your emotions. Wait for the time when you will be poised and your parents relaxed and calm. Then, in quiet and affectionate tones, courteously and respectfully tell one or both of them in what ways you believe they don't understand you. The better you can control yourself at this time, the better chances you will have to win them to your point of view.

Suppose, for instance, you believe that your parents are too strict in regard to your going out. Many boys and girls in their early teens have this belief, and some of them are wrong. Many a girl thinks she should go out unchaperoned much earlier than her parents allow her to do so.

Have Own Standards

If your parents are more strict in this respect than are parents of your friends, you should realize that your parents believe their own standards for you are correct. You certainly cannot afford to ignore their wishes and have dates on the sly, deceiving your parents—not if you are thinking of great happiness later.

If you will look far ahead—which is hard to do—you will conclude that your best course is to make the most of a hard situation and contrive ways to prevail upon your parents to relax some of their demands. And here is where you need to employ self-control, tact and pyschology at their best. In some cases in which you are very sure your parents misunderstand you, and are unreasonable in their restraint of you, you might be able to change them by working on them indirectly through some other person who has your point of view but whose judgment they respect.

Prove You're Right!

And when you do win concessions from your parents, spare no efforts to prove to them later that their confidence in you has not been misplaced. Be strict with yourself.

There's one precious fact I wish we might get over to all girls in their early teens. It is this: That boys whose friendship they cherish prefer, as a rule, the girl who comes from a home whose parents have been more strict with her than the average parent is.

And a tip to parents: Youths in their early teens often brag among their friends about how strict their parents are with them. And don't these same youths often brag about the strictness of a cerain teacher they admire?

Caroline Chatfield Says Today

Egotists Don't Go Over Big With Gals

Dear Miss Chatfield:

My principal fault is a sort of altruism which, with my gradual mental development, has become an obsession with me. I don't think it has made me abnormal. It has rather given me a purpose in life—that of service in the more elevated sense. A life that does not result in some tangible good to humanity had sooner not be lived.

With this bit of guiding philosophy off my chest, I can tell you my problem. I am fondly in love with the only girl I ever cared for. We did right well until I went to college; then we drifted apart. There were other infatuations for her but I took no part in social life, devoting myself to the development of my mental powers, egged on by my persistent philosophy. I won honors and came home with two purposes in mind: to win the girl I loved and settle down to the career I had planned.

In two years I have made several significant strides toward the perfection of my life's ambition. Now I need her. Deep down she has a fondness for me, I think, but she doesn't understand me. She avoids me when we are with friends. When we are alone she is usually cordial.

I'm at a loss to know what to do. She knows how dearly I love her but she doesn't give me the opportunity to tell her. She seems afraid she will fall for me. Please tell me how to make her understand —how to break the wall she has built between us.

Perplexed.

ANSWER:

When a needle full of serum is thrust into the thigh to ward off lockjaw, the patient says to himself "I'd rather have taken the risk of that rusty nail I stuck in my foot". When you've read this reply to your letter you will say "I wish I hadn't expressed my deep thoughts to another dame who doesn't understand me". Nevertheless here goes the needle, thrust in with sympathy and honestly meant for your good.

You are too much in love with yourself to make a gal love you. You are too obsessed with your altruism, your lofty philosophy of life to get down to earth with an honest-to-goodness courtship. Only a gal who is hard up for a beau will bother with a boy who's forever giving himself a big hand and expecting her to follow suit.

Furthermore, this particular gal isn't shutting you out because she's afraid of falling for you. She shuts you out because she's bored with big I's; egotism spelled with capital letters.

Brother, ambition is admirable, love of one's fellows laudable and the wish to lead a useful, productive life is grand and glorious. But you can't go far, nor win a gal's love, nor leave the world a better place until you have forgot yourself.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

New Mate For Spaghetti

By ALICE LYNN BARRY

A SPICY DISH of spaghetti and chicken livers almost makes a meal. It is made with a clove of garlic, two and one-half cups canned tomatoes, two teaspoons celery salt, teaspoon each sugar, cinnamon and ginger, one-eighth teaspoon thyme, teaspoon cloves, dash of cayenne, one large onion, chopped; one cup beef consomme, one cup cut-up chicken livers, one and one-half tablespoons flour, one cup mushrooms, spaghetti and Parmesan cheese. Mash the garlic clove in a good-sized saucepan and add tomatoes, celery salt, sugar, cinnamon, cloves, ginger, thyme, cayenne pepper and the onion. Allow to simmer for 30 minutes. Then add beef consomme. While this is cooking, melt the butter in a skillet and saute the chicken livers in this. Then add the flour and mushrooms. Pour the contents of the skillet in with the tomato sauce and simmer 15 minutes longer. Mix thoroughly with the spaghetti, which has been cooked until tender, in four quarts of water containing a tablespoon of salt. Serve with Parmesan cheese. A green salad balances this hearty dish.

For Escalloped Onions and Cheese take two cups small boiled onions, four tablespoons each butter and flour, two cups milk, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon celery salt, teaspoon prepared mustard and one-half cut cheese, cut fine. Melt butter in top of double boiler. Add flour and blend. Add milk slowly, stirring constantly. Add seasonings and cheese and cook until creamy, stirring constantly. Place cooked onions in buttered baking dish, pour over sauce and bake 20 minutes in moderate oven.

They Add Zest to Meal

Spanish Potatoes will add zest to any meal. To make this dish use two tablespoons each butter and flour, one and one-half teaspoons salt, one-fourth teaspoon pepper, one-half teaspoon dry mustard, two cups milk, four cups cold boiled potatoes, diced; teaspoon paprika, four tablespoons chopped green pepper, three tablespoons chopped pimiento, three tablespoons canned tomatoes (drained), two tablespoons chopped onion. Make cream sauce of butter, flour, salt, pepper and mustard, gradually adding milk. To well-blended sauce add potatoes and paprika. Heat through and add chopped vegetables and tomatoes. Heat again.

There have been several requests for a Welsh Rarebit recipe, so here goes with our favorite. Use two tablespoons butter, tablespoon flour, cup of milk, one-half teaspoon salt, dash of black pepper, dash of cayenne pepper, one-half teaspoon paprika, one-half cup grated cheese, teaspoon prepared mustard and one egg. Melt butter and add flour. Mix thoroughly and add milk, salt, pepper, cayenne and paprika. Cook over hot water until thick and add the cheese. When cheese is melted, add the egg, which has been well beaten with the prepared mustard. Cook a minute longer and serve on hot buttered crackers or on toast points.

New Friends in Furnishings

By ELEANOR ROSS

STEP BY STEP house furnishings are undergoing changes. One trend is toward more flexibility in modern furniture that can be rightly assembled for one room and later its various components placed in various rooms without interfering with arrangements. This is particularly so with bedroom furniture.

Talking with manufacturers of beds and bed equipment, and to store officials, we find that today many a bedroom is furnished with individual pieces. In many cases the choice for the bed is a box spring mounted on legs, topped by a mattress. This, with a chest and a mirror dressing table decorated to tone in with draperies, helps make a handsome room.

Another trend favors the bed with a headboard covered in fabric, or to quilts made with a matching piece to slip over the headboard. The bed may then harmonize with summer or winter draperies.

There's a big demand, too, for the metal bed, now so beautifully made in all sorts of lovely colors and designs. These come alone or as an integral part of a suite, and are ideal for warmer climes and country houses, especially those that are shut up for part of the year. These provide no opportunity for deterioration or invasion by insects. We saw one such suite done in a delicate lemon-yellow with a black trim. It looked slick enough to be at home in the most formal room, yet simple enough for a country house guest room.

Making it Sitting Room

And speaking of guest rooms brings us to another trend. We are getting away from the regular guest room and are more apt to furnish it as a sitting room. The idea is now to build the furnishings around a handsome soft bed, preferably the new hideaway type of thing. These sofas come in many coverings, disguising comfortable, full-sized beds. The back serves as a headboard. We saw sofas of this type upholstered in exquisite striped satin fabrics, and others in modern weaves. As for the studio couch proper, it's getting handsomer all the time. It offers single, double or twin bed sleeping accommodations. Some have the three cushions that are all ready to be zipped into a covering that makes a good mattress. These also come in all sorts of interesting fabrics and colorings that make them right for every type of room. These are grand in one-room apartments.

Here's To Chic!

By ALICE ALDEN

ONCE IN a while holidays come and go, and of all outrages, a girl doesn't get a compact. It's then her privilege to indulge in the kind she would adore having as a separate for evening. Choice is unlimited but, considering this little article as jewelry, it should be beautiful. We're showing one of the latest, large enough to hold lots of powder but not a burden in the brocade or beaded bag: gold, rhinestone and amber in a seal-crested motif on a gold square. The slippers of kidskin have the new transparent plastic heels, pretty on the dance floor yet not too dressy for dinner gowns. They have the heel support many of us demand and conservative cut-outs at the toes.

Baked Breaded Veal
Baked Lima Beans
Mixed Vegetable Salad
Oberlin Cake Served Hot
Tea or Coffee

ISN'T IT a relief once in a while to serve a meal without potatoes? We cooks find it so. Most men (correct me if I'm wrong) think a meal isn't a meal unless there are potatoes in some form, and most wives get very tired of that particular vegetable. Make the cake a little while before starting the rest of the dinner, and serve it hot, or at least warm, frosting and all, for a change.

Baked Breaded Veal — Wipe steak and spread with a dressing made of one cup bread crumbs, one tablespoon butter, one-half teaspoon salt, a little pepper and one small chopped onion, if liked. Bake for 30 minutes or until brown, in a 300 degree F. oven.

Baked Lima Beans —Ingredients: Two cups cooked limas with liquid, one small can mushrooms, one medium onion, diced; one-fourth cup cream, one-fourth teaspoon salt, dash of pepper, one-fourth cup bread or cracker crumbs. Brown mushrooms and onion slightly in butter. Mix all except crumbs. Cover with crumbs. Bake half to three-quarters of an hour in moderate oven.

Oberlin Cake— Ingredients: One cup dark molasses, one full teaspoon baking soda, three tablespoons melted lard or butter, three tablespoons sugar, one egg, one-fourth teaspon salt, two cups flour, about one-third teaspoon each cinnamon, ginger, nutmeg, allspice and cloves; one cup hot water. Cream butter and sugar together, then add beaten egg, molasses and flour sifted with spices, salt and soda. Mix well and lastly add hot water. The batter will be thin. Bake in two layers and frost either with boiling or carmel icing.

Caramel Icing — Ingredients: Three cups light brown sugar, three-fourths cup butter, three-fourths cup sweet cream or milk (you can use canned milk), two teaspoons vanilla. Boil all but vanilla until thick enough to spin a long thread or to make soft ball when dropped into cold water. Take from fire and add vanilla. Beat and spread on cake between layers.

New Tips For The Fingers

MAUREEN O'HARA . . .gives her hands and nails constant attention.

By HELEN FOLLETT

YOU'D THINK that every shade of red had been used to glorify finger-nails. T'ain't so. There are new ones on cosmetic counters that knock you dizzy, they are so dainty and exquisite. You girls who have been sticking to the same old fire engine paint had better put on your seven-league boots and go beauty shopping.

There's a soft yellow-pink that makes the pretty talons look like the petals of a tea rose; nothing could be lovelier. It imparts a rich, velvety surface, too, an improvement on the high satiny shine that we have been sporting.

Cyclamen polishes are advancing in popularity and some of the mauve-pinks are coming into their own. Very nice with dahlia shades and those deep wine tones that the older girls love so much.

Don't forget that interest in lacquer is not enough. Nails must be beautifully shaped at the eaves. If you like, you can cover the eaves with the polish, but we do not advise this practice if the nails are long and narrow. For short, blunt nails it is effective treatment.

Faces, like character, are ever in the making, or the unmaking. The nagger gets nagger lines, the bossy woman has tense fibres that cause her face to look hard; the selfish girl has soft lips and carries an expression of self-pity.

What are you, you look, and all the world can read. If you desire a face that appeals to the heart, be brave; don't grumble but take what comes, be tolerant of your fellow creatures.

Preaching? Sure thing. We can't be perfect, but we can make an effort not to be tiresome, complaining or interfering. Mean emotions play the dickens with appearance; they can scratch in wrinkles faster than old Popper Time.

Belleville Quintes Defeat Trenton Juniors 6-4 to Win Six Straight in Loop Race

Game Not Productive of Good Hockey for 400 Fans Present

TOO MUCH BUNCHING

Game Tied Twice but Gerow and Storms Break Deadlock

After having the game tied at even count on four different occasions, the Belleville "Quintes" rallied in the last minute of play to score two goals and eke out a 6 to 4 win over the Trenton kids in a junior O.H.A. fixture played before some 400 fans at the Hume arena last night. The pastime was not produstive of much orthodox or sensational hockey as the competing squads were seen to chase the elusive rubber at every opportunity.

After the Trenton kids had carried the play for the better part of the initial frame, Belleville finally scored the only goal of the frame as Gerow took Goyer's pass inside of the Trenton defence and whipped the rubber high into the Trenton net. The battling Trenton squad rallied in the middle session, when they out-scored the Holway-led kids three goals to two to knot the count at three-all at the end of the second session.

Each Scored in Third

Each team scored early in the third canto and the game seemed ultimately headed for the season's first overtime puck tussle, when Goyer and Gerow combined to break the deadlock and Storms and Ethier passed well to cinch the piece and give the "Quintes" their sixth consecutive junior O.H.A. victory of the season, in as many games played.

Gerow, Goyer, Ethier and Storms were the main scoring threats for the locals last night, while Reid, Orser, Inglis and Burtt scored for the visitors. However, Reid, Trenton wing player, Burtt, Inglis and Orser carried much of the play for the rejuvenated Trenton team, which deserved much credit for the strong defence they set up, as the locals turned in their worst effort of the current season, even in victory.

The shots on net by periods were:

Belleville 6 8 8—22.
Trenton 7 7 6—20.

The lineups:

Belleville: goal, Cook; defence, Goyer, Hook; centre, Storms; wings, Ethier, Clare; subs, Bundy, Kiniski, Gerow, Everett, Ginn and Wagar.

JOHNNY SORRELL
N.Y. Americans

By Central Press Canadian

Johnny Sorrell

One of the numerous 10-year men in the line-up of New York Americans, and at the same time one of the National league's slightly more than a dozen 100 - goal players is Johnny Sorrell, playing his second full season at a left wing post with the Amerks—usually with ever - changing linemates —after joining the team from Detroit Red Wings late in the 1937 - 38 season. Not as spry as he once was Johnny still bangs home the odd goal, usually at an important moment. Before joining the Dutton ancients Johnny had spent seven seasons with Detroit, with a trip now and then to the minors, a hard place to keep a player capable of scoring 20 goals in a season. Sorrell had two such big years, 1933-34 and 1934-35, when he scored 21 and 20 goals respectively for his best seasons. His totals until the beginning of the present season stood at 117 goals, 97 assists for 214 points, plus only 93 minutes served in penalties. Twenty-two minutes was the most he ever served in a season for rule infractions. Born at Chesterville, Ont., 36 years ago. Of French-Canadian descent he was sent to the miner league Quebec team. From there he drifted to London and Windsor, before moving up to the N.H.L. with Detroit.

LEAFS CINCH FIRST PLACE IN JUVENILE LOOP

Defeat Black Hawks 5-3 to Win Four of Their Five Starts

ONE GAME TIED

Winners Pile Up Three Goal Lead Before a Reply From Losers

Frank Cunningham's Maple Leafs cinched first place in the Belleville Juvenile Hockey League with a 5 to 3 win over the Black Hawks. The victory marked the fourth consecutive win in five starts, their initial league venture being a tie match, giving the Leafs nine out of a possible ten points.

Only the proverbial handful of fans were on hand at the Hume arena last night to see the Maple Leafs move into a commanding lead in the initial frame as the result of two fine goals, both the result of combination play. Each team scored a brace of counters in the middle session and each scored one each in the final session, all the result of some nice passing hockey.

A stiff defence and a better system of combination attack proved the advantage and gave the Maple Leafs a well-earned win. The two first period goals proved too great an obstacle for the battling Hawks to haul down, as play was rather even in the last two periods. The scoring was evenly divided among the players of both clubs, only one goal of the eight scored was the result of individual effort. This was productive of the best hockey yet seen in the city juvenile loop.

DAVE CASTILLOUX EASILY DEFEATS CHARLEY GOMER

Montreal Featherweight Had Baltimore Boxer Hanging on in 10 Rounds

STAGES RALLY

Castilloux Allowed Gomer to Set the Pace for First Five Heats

(By William H. Dumsday, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Feb. 6—(CP)—On the say-so of the man he conquered, Dave Castilloux, king of Canada's featherweights, can rule the world in that division if he so choses. But the Montreal boy's latest victim—Charley Gomer of Baltimore—stressed the "if" as he explained how he thought Castilloux could become a world boxing champion.

Castilloux, weighing 133 3-4 pounds last night, punched out a clean-cut decision over Gomer, 133 1-2. He pounded the Baltimore battler into helplessness in the last minute of their 10-round bout and broke Gomer's record of 19 consecutive fights without defeat.

"I have to rate Dave better than any man I have yet faced," said Gomer as he sat in his dressing room after the fight, his mouth swollen and eyes badly bruised. "If he fights the way he did against me this time and gets a crack at Joey Archibald (world featherweight champion,) he'll knock him out."

"Dave fought just as we had planned and it worked out fine," said Raoul Godbout, the Montreal manager. "In New York we found out that Gomer was a tough fellow and we decided to let the first half of the fight go by before opening up."

The fight went much the way Godbout said he planned it and for the first five rounds, the fans didn't like the way Dave let Gomer set the pace. Castilloux led but seldom in the early exchanges and his blows didn't seem to bother Gomer.

From the sixth round on, the French-Canadian came out of his crouch to fire both fists steadily at Gomer's head. Gomer tired badly in the ninth and was reeling helplessly as the bell sounded.

McGILL NO PUSHOVER

(By the Canadian Press)

McGill Redmen won't be any pushovers in the race for the title in the International Intercollegiate Hockey League this year.

University of Toronto's team in the I.I.H.L. is going great guns with five straight victories in their five games so far but the Redmen, champions of the league since it was formed, are keeping right up with the pace.

McGill turned back Princeton Tigers 5-1 at Montreal last night for its third victory in a row and moved into second place with Queen's University, twice defeated by University of Toronto. Queen's has won three games.

DIAMOND METEORS

WALSH ROSE TO FAME BEHIND DIZZY SPEED OF HIS "SPITTER"

Ed Walsh, Sr. . . . in 1915

(By Central Press Canadian)

The spitball king of the diamond was the son of a poor coal miner. "Big Ed" Walsh came out of the Pennsylvania coal country to rise to riches and baseball fame behind the dizzy speed of his "spitter."

"Big Ed" was born in the little mining town of Plains, Pa., in 1881. Soon as he was big enough, he went into the coal mines. Sundays and holidays he played baseball. Walsh was already pitching regularly. He had developed extraordinary speed and control. "Big Ed" simply told people how good he was, and offered to show them. He convinced more than a few of them.

First Contrast

Baseball has a way of seeking out potential stars, wherever they may be. There is always a chance of rewards in the big leagues and "Big Ed" Walsh had his eyes on the stars. He kept smoking the ball across the plate, talking up his own game, refining and improving his form.

One day a mining company at Miner's Mills, Pa., took Walsh out of the coal pits and hired him to pitch for its commercial team.

Walsh scrawled his signature on a contract with Wilkesbarre's team in 1901. He spent that winter at Wyoming seminary, paying his way with free lance jobs on Saturdays and Sundays. When the coal strike developed in 1902, Walsh served notice.

With Sox

He would not report to the club. The owners threatened to have him expelled from the seminary. Walsh gave in. Luck was with him, however. The Pennsylvania State league ceased operating a month later and Walsh was swiftly kicked upstairs to the Meriden, Conn., club, then to Newark and on to the Chicago White Sox.

Walsh drew $1,800 a year in 1904, '05 and '06. His salary was boosted to $3,500 in 1908 and he collected $3,500 more at the end of the season.

The famous "spitter" and his unfailing confidence lifted "Big Ed" Walsh from obscurity in the coal fields to the realms of baseball fame.

Over seven years Walsh had a great record. He pitched in 66 games in 1908 and 62 in 1912. He won an average of 24 games a year. He won 40 in 1908.

Today Walsh is 58 and out of baseball.

FRED APOSTOLI PRONOUNCED O.K. BY PHYSICIANS

Former Middleweight King Does Not Seem to Click in His Fights

ONCE GREAT BOXER

Manager Insists Boxer Must Quit but He Wants Another Chance

(By Sid Feder)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP) —Fred Apostoli packed his bags today and made ready to pull out of town, leaving behind the wreckage of his fistic career and the biggest question mark in the fight game since Dave Barry counted over Gene Tunney in double talk one September evening in Chicago.

Whenever the boys in the fight mob parked their hats, there were a million-and-one guesses as to just what happened to make Freddy nose-dive almost overnight from one of the really fine fighters in ring history to what seems now a "washed up" warrior.

Larry White, the former world middleweight champion's manager, disclosed that while Freddy was in a hospital during the week-end (he was taken there immediately after he was knocked out Friday by Melio Bettina) he had been given a thorough going over and the physician had found him "o.k.".

Apostoli is quiet and shy. His only dissipation is an occasional glass of beer. Yet, after skyrocketing to a word's championship with such "class" that many labelled him the best boxer, pound for pound, in the game, he suddenly, doesn't click any more.

It all started with two of the greatest fights ever seen in Madison Square Garden, between Fred and Conn early in 1939. Both bouts were bristling and loaded with action. The second was as close as the type to this paper, and Conn drew the nod of the officials. After that Fred met several opponents whom he could have put in his hip pocket at his peak, yet he had trouble winning over them.

White insisted he was going to have Fred quit the ring for good this time. But Apostoli, on leaving the hospital yesterday demanded another chance.

Redmen Bolster Squad To Meet Peterboro

Making their final appearance of the current intermediate O.H.A. season against the Belleville Redmen, the Peterborough 'Petes' invade the Hume arena tonight. In their last meeting in Belleville the scarlet-clad Belleville pucksters rapped home seven goals against the fast-skating Petes, but the locals' defence was weakened and the Liftlock City pucksters whipped nine goals into the Belleville net in one of the fastest and most wide open games of the current hockey season.

Coach "Speedy" St. Louis has added several new faces to the Redmen's roster for tonight's game, at least two new forwards and a defenceman from Frankford are being sought this afternoon to supplement the Redmen in their final effort to hand the hated Petes at least one reverse this year. Reg McAlpine, well known Oshawa referee, will handle the fixture, while the Peterboro team will lineup as follows: Goal, Harding; defence, Jopling, Crowe; centre, Starr; wings, Coughlin, Heal; subs, Ellis, Kingdon, Burton, Blewett, Gardner and Tompkins.

Bruins Have Not Beaten Rangers This Season

By The Canadian Press

The simple, main reason why Boston Bruins are trailing the first-place New York Rangers in the National Hockey League standings is that they haven't beaten them all season.

The Rangers invade Boston tonight with a record of four victories in five meetings with the second-place Bruins. In their first collision of the season, the two clubs played a tie.

If the Bruins had turned just one of those losses into a victory, adding two points to their own total of 46 and taking two away from the Rangers' total of 49, they would be in first place. Each team has played 33 games, or one more than three-quarters of its schedule.

So at this crucial point, making a stand on home ice where they have been notably successful against other clubs, the Bruins will seek again to solve the intricate passing style and quick-closing defensive system of the Blueshirts.

Giants Not Picked To Win Pennant

New York, Feb. 6—(AP)—New York Giants are shot full of problems and "can't honestly be picked for the pennant" in the National Baseball League, said Manager Bill Terry today, but if they fit together this season they'll be right in the middle of the scramble.

Terry isn't kidding himself this year like he did last spring when he said his Giants looked like the best he'd ever handled.

Belleville puck fans may get a peek at a European hockey player at the Hume Arena tonight. Skipper "Speedy" St. Louis journeyed to Frankford this afternoon seeking to sign Jan Stojan, who is employed at the Bata Shoe Company. According to St. Louis Stojan, who is a native of Czecho-Slovakia, came to Canada last year with the Bata concern. We understand Stojan played hockey for the Czechs during the 1936 Olympics. He has been a tower of strength with the Bata team this present season, while playing his first hockey in Canada. If St. Louis is successful in procuring Stojan, he will supplement the Redmen's defence versus the Petes tonight, while two others are being sought to bolster the "Red shirts" front line in an effort to at least give the hated Petes one good sound trouncing before the curtain is rung down on the present puck season. Tonight's game marks the final game this year between the Petes and the Redmen.

Whether it is official or not, only time alone will tell, but the latest softball news out tells of a new manager for the city softball champions, the Shell "Oilers." Last year Frank Sedore was at the helm, but Frankie is now in the Canadian army and we hear that Harold (George) Bawden, former player and umpire, will take over the management of the "Oilers" for the 1940 season and one of his first moves was to sign brother Johnnie Bawden, that is obtained his verbal signature only. In the meantime, however, the local softball association will again attempt their annual meeting on Wednesday night; all interested should be on hand early and remain late. Efforts to enlarge or at least supplement the local softball league in some manner will be made this spring, but why the softball heads do not further stress a lower classification for its teams and thereby increase the interest in the lower brackets may also be discussed tomorrow.

Do you remember when Baltimore Orioles announced release of Bill Urbanski, veteran major and minor infielder two years ago tonight? Officials said Urbanski had been offered the managership of the St. Louis Browns' Johnstown, Pa. farm club. Urbanski had previously played with Boston in the National League and Toronto in the International.

In an effort to pick out and pay tribute to the greatest fight managers in the game the name of Joe Gould should not be overlooked. Joe Gould did one of the really outstanding jobs a few years back.

Jim Braddock, in his younger days, was quite successful under the management of Joe Gould. He seemed to have run his course, however, and slipped out of sight. But he wasn't out of Joe's range of vision. Joe was down on his luck, too, but he stuck with his old charge and helped him through some of the troublous days, though there was a time when Jim was on the relief lists.

Joe convinced Jim that his fighting days weren't over. He got Jim some jobs where Jim would really have to "put out." The result was that Jim toughened up, and because he was poor and hungry he was willing, yes eager, to fight again.

Joe Gould, thereupon, got Jim a bout, Jim made good, and kept on in his comeback until he was champion of the world. Without Joe Gould you wouldn't have heard of Jim Braddock later than his light heavyweight days.

Icing as courageous a team of junior pucksters as has been seen locally in many moons, the Trenton juniors battled the lowere as luckyte.m,-oe.....-l.etal cal "Quintes" bitterly last night and "Toots" Holway's charges were as lucky a squad of puckchasers to win as one will see coming around any mountain. The Trenton kids have a new coach, one Bill Burt, who played professional hockey in the west, and who has rejuvenated the Trenton kids until they are just about the most improved team we've seen this year. Since Bill Burt took them over last week the Trenton kids lost to Picton, turned around and beat the St. Michael's College "Bees" 7-5 in an exhibition game and last night forced the local juniors to the wire before the Quintes eked out a last minute victory. Toots Holway's kids truly chalked up their sixth consecutive O.H.A. win of the season, but in doing so played just about the most ragged hockey they've presented to the public since inaugurated as a juvenile squad nearly three years ago, (and we do not like to criticise kids).

Maybe the local juniors had an off night, and who doesn't after a lay-off of some ten days? However when things looked the most drab the "Quintes" rallied and whipped home two goals in the last minute of play to snatch victory from the fire. However, both teams were guilty of chasing that elusive rubber much too frequently, which resulted in a conglomeration of players wherever the puck happened to be, which is poor hockey and the night's power plays were absolutely non - productive. Frankly, we hope the locals got a very bad game out of their system and when they launch upon the provincial playdowns they'll rise to the occasion as they did last year and the season before.

Canada may yet see her first professional rugby football player elevated to the professional ranks, the latest story out suggesting that Buster (Red) Storey, fleet-footed Toronto Argonaut backfielder, had been approached by the New York Giants of the American Professional Football League. Storey possesses a great pair of football hands and with the smaller Yankee pigskin to handle, Storey should be a cinch to catch those long American passes.

SPORT SPICE: — The unfortunate death of Alvin Schlegel, past president of the O.H.A., was a shock to all those who knew him, as the late Mr. Schlegel was noted for his fair dealings during the many years he served on the executive of the Association. . . . George Laughlin's Belleville Collegiate cagers beat the Picton C. I. lads 38 to 15 in an exhibition basketball game here last night. . . . Arturo Godoy, the Chilean heavyweight, may wish he was back in his native land before Joe Louis finishes with him at Madison Square Gardens on Friday night. . . . Local hockey fans will get a peek at a new referee tonight, when Reg McAlpine, of Oshawa, will toot the whistle for the season's final Redmen-Peterborough game at the Arena. . . . Queens intermediate upset the Air Force "Bees" to the tune of 9 to 4 in Kingston last night, but regardless Gananoque is IN.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

CONN CONVINCED HE CAN WHIP BROWN BOMBER

Thinks He is Destined to Bring Title Back to White Race

FIGHTS LESNEVICH

Conn Claims Joe Looks Like Cry-Baby When He Gets Hit

Miami Beach, Feb. 6.—(AP) — Trying to talk Billy Conn out of the idea that he is destined to whip Joe Louis and return the heavyweight boxing title to the white race is a waste of time. The kid has made up his Irish mind.

"He'll still be around when I'm ready for him", he insisted. "Sure, he's big. But he doesn't like to be hit, and just wait until I lay this right on his jaw".

The 175-pound champ is working out in a gymnasium, starting to get ready for his title fight with Gus Lesnevich here on February 28. Having whipped Lesnecvich once in New York, Bill doesn't seem much interested in that phase of his future. The man he wanted to talk about was Joe Louis.

"You've seen how he looks when he gets hit," he persisted. "He looks like a big cry-baby, doesn't he? Well he doesn't know anything after he gets one on the jaw".

But how does Billy think he will bear up under a consignment of Louis rights and lefts?

"He would have a lot of trouble hitting me", said Conn, soberly. "That's part of this game—not to get hit. But I can take a punch. I won't be scared of that guy when I get in the ring with him, like these other Palookas have been."

Billy is the one man all the critics agree they would love to see in the ring with Louis, providing he could weigh in at 185. Some think Conn could spot Louis 25 pounds and whip him.

King Sends Message To People of Ontario

Toronto, Feb. 6 (CP)—A letter expressing the King's appreciation for the birthday wishes sent him by the people of Ontario on Dec. 14 was received by Lieutenant-Governor Albert Matthews yesterday.

"I am commanded by the King to ask you to express to the people of Ontario his Majesty's sincere thanks for their good wishes on the occasion of his birthday," Sir Alexander Hardinge, private secretary to the King wrote. "The King greatly appreciated the terms of this message."

It is believed the usual reply by cable was prevented due to war conditions.

WHO INVENTED THE MOUSETRAP?

You've often heard the old adage: "Let a man make a better mousetrap, and the world will make a beaten path to his door."

But have you ever happened upon that path, or even looked for it?

Why SHOULD you, when the people who today have things to sell beat a path to YOUR door to tell you about them?

Every newspaper that comes into your home brings you a new list of WHAT you can get, and WHERE. You can do your shopping in the advertising pages — instead of beating a path from store to store to find what you want.

Make it a habit to look over the advertisements, and you'll find many fine values you might have missed . . . many exciting and useful things you otherwise might never have known about!

By DAVID E. ADAMS

"My dear, did you see the paper this morning?" Kate Hyde scanned the luncheon menu, and tried to signal a waiter.

"Not thoroughly, what do you mean?" Across the table Dot Crawford slipped back her fur coat and drew out her compact.

"Sylvia Towles is making her debut at the Metropolitan next month," Kate said.

"Sylvia Towles—that dumb-bell in our high school class?"

"Must be the one. Says she's from Everett. Dot, do you remember the way she sang that night at graduation? Wasn't it terrible? And do you remember—"

"Yes, I do. And I've never felt right about it."

"Oh well, she never knew. Ill bet none of our crowd ever saw her again. Her people lived away down on the other side, and her father was a store clerk or something."

"Well, it seems she's come out on top after all. Do you suppose she really is good?"

"My dear, people don't do what she's doing if they aren't, or else somebody's sinking a fortune in her. Look, I have an idea! Do you suppose she'd give a recital for our club for the hospital fund? It would be good advertising for her—home town girl makes good, and so on."

"She might. After all, she grew up here and it might just appeal to her. Charlotte would be just the one to introduce her, too. She has the clothes and the gift of gab. Well, she can't do more than say no."

Sylvia Towles did not say no. She wrote that she would be glad to come to Everett and to sing for the benefit of the hospital fund under the auspices of the Woman's club. She stipulated only that she have a comfortable suite reserved at a good hotel and that she receive no visitors before the concert.

Dot and Kate were jubilant, if a trifle shamefaced in private.

"How about Charlotte? Do you think she'll do it?"

"Of course she'll do it—we'll go and see her right now."

Charlotte was not so sure. "Don't you suppose she ever knew how we felt about her?"

"Well, here's her acceptance. She wouldn't come if she didn't want to."

"I'll do the best I can . . ." .

The evening of the concert came and Sylvia Towles was duly registered in the late afternoon at the Plaza. The city hall, chartered for the occasion, was sold out. Kate and Dot gave the stage a last critical survey. It was only a little dingier than an graduation night eight years before. But the roses for which they had scraped together a small private fund from Sylvia's classmates, were lovely.

At eight o'clock every seat was taken. The curtain rose. Charlotte, gracious in a mulberry velvet gown, moved toward the footlights and waited for the rustling of programs to cease.

"Citizens of Everett, it is a pleasure to welcome to her home community a daughter of this city Sylvia Towles, known to many of you, receiving her education in our public schools, has attained the highest place in her profession. She returns to share with us the gift of her great talent, and we are honored by her presence."

The applause died away, then was renewed as Sylvia, bowing to Charlotte entered from the wings followed by her accompanist. Her full sweet soprano filled the room and the plaintive tenderness with which she succeeded in rendering the old familiar songs left them somehow with a feeling that she herself had plumbed the depths of the human heart. The single encore with which she closed the program, "Love's Old Sweet Song" left them breathless for a long moment. Then the applause was overwhelming.

At the stage door Charlotte, Dot and Kate waited in trepidation. What would Sylvia say? It would probably be a bad moment, but the only decent thing to do was to face it squarely. Sylvia swept up to them and paused. She was no longer the store clerk's daughter from the other side of town. There was a glint of steel in her eyes and her mouth was hard.

Dot stepped forward and pressed a great bunch of roses into Sylvia's arms. "Sylvia, it was wonderful. I—we—want you to know how much we appreciate your willingness to come. We're so glad about your great success." There was sincerity in every word.

Sylvia buried her face in the roses, then raised her head. The cold gleam was gone from her eyes, melted, of all things by tears.

"Girls", she said gently. "I don't know what to say. I didn't come here to be kind. I came to take revenge. And believe me, I had planned to the last word just what I'd say to you three." The corners of her mouth quirked in the old humorous way they all remembered. "And now I c-can't seem to say it. You know I was in the coat room the night of graduation years ago. And when you imitated my singing, Charlotte, and the rest laughed—well, I cried all night. The next day I went to work, determined that some day I'd make you take back every word you said. But now—well, now I can see that that was the best thing that ever happened to me. For the first time I knew how bad I was. So," she smiled into three stricken faces then buried her face in the roses again, "let's just be friends again. Good night."

N. F. THOMPSON PRES. OF Y.M.C.A.

Much Attention Will be Given to War Service Work During the Year

At the regular meeting of the Board of Directors of Belleville Young Men's Christian Association, held last evening, the Nominating Committee report was approved and Mr. Norman Edwards, presiding, extended congratulations to Mr. Thompson who was selected as president for 1940 as he invited him to assume his office. Mr. Thompson spoke briefly of his enthusiasm for the work and his appreciation of the honor conferred upon him.

Mr. Edwards earned the thanks of the Board and the members for his splendid efforts during 1939 and the satisfactory position of the "Y" at the present as a servant of the Community—the building is in good shape and the program an active and comprehensive one.

War Service work is receiving major attention and appeals are being made to the local Association to serve the district as far as Picton, where the Hastings and Prince Edward regiment is quartered, and Cobourg, where the 14th Field Battery is located.

The Board accepted this challenge to a broader service and will plan to counsel with, and provide program and equipment for enlisted men in these centres.

Mr. Shortt reported on the activities of the local War Service Committee and the progress made locally and Nationally. The 1940 officers and Chairmen are as follows:

Past President, Russel Wotten; President, Newton Thompson; Vice President, Norman Edwards; Secretary, J. B. Findlay; Assistant Secretary, H. Bateman; Treasurer, B. F. Meat Rationing Begins March 11 In Britain

London, Feb. 6 (CP).—Food Minister W. S. Morrison announced today that meat rationing will begin Mar. 11.

Each person over six years of age will be allowed meat valued at one hilling, 10 pence a week. Children under six will be allowed half that amount.

Mr. Morrison explained that liver, kidneys, tongue and other such meats and manufactured meat such as sausage and meat pies will not be rationed.

Ration restructions will be modified when desirable in the light of current supplies, he said, and restaurants for the present will be allowed to sell meat without ration coupons.

Gitz Rice Helps To Keep up Morale

Ottawa, Feb. 6 (CP)—Gitz Rice, the man who composed the musical hit of the First Great War, "Mademoiselle From Armentieres," is back in Canada helping keep up the morale of Canadian troops. But he hopes to get back to France and look up the mademoiselle who inspired his song of more than 20 years ago.

Too old for active service, at present he is assisting the Canadian Legion war services and giving all his time to entertainment work among the 2,000 officers and men of the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals at Barriefield Camp, near Kingston, Ont.

Rice will organize concert parties throughout Military District No 3, which includes most of Eastern Ontario, and eventually may join the legion's overseas organization. In the First Great War, this Canadian soldier-song writer served overseas with the 5th Battery, 2nd Brigade, Canadian Field Artillery.

After his work in Canada is completed, he's going to England to locate Red Rowland, who as a sergeant in the Imperials was billeted with him in an estaminet near Armentieres and who collaborated with him and wrote the words of the song.

"I'm going back to England," Rice said in an interview here, "to find my pal Red Rowland. Together we'll help the Legion give the lads the bucking up they'll need.

"And if we can make it, we'll beat it back for Armentieres and find our mademoiselle no matter what the shock may be. They tell me she's fat, and she's fair and she's 40 now, and dandles her ninth on her knee."

18 Boys Being Given Special Training by The Y's Men's Club

Adhering to the stress of Y's Men's International regulations, the Belleville Y's Men's Club featured Boys' Work in the community, President Harold Vaughan revealed at the club's weekly meeting last night.

"This year we have eighteen boys in our charge, all of whom are given special training as under-privileged lads. The boys range in age from 13 to 15 years and are given memberships in the Belleville Y.M.C.A. with full privileges and a two-hour program of manual and educational training each week, besides their physical training in the "Y" gymnasium and pool. In addition Junior Y's Men's hockey and basketball teams are sponsored, while in the summer time these boys are assured of healthful recreation at our Moira Lake Boys' Camp with no charge attached," added President Vaughan as he made an appeal to the club for senior leaders to assist in the education and uplifting of these eighteen Belleville boys.

The entertainment at last night's Y's Men's Club meeting was given by Alec Gordon, of the Ontario School for the Deaf faculty. Mr. Gordon gave a lecture on Central and South America, showing his own moving pictures which were taken when he shipped on a freighter to visit those countries last summer. Mr. Gordon's description of the tropical countries was unique and interesting, as well as educational. The pictures were exceptionally clear and showed various phases of tropical life.

PICTURES OF ROYAL TOUR SHOWN TO SCHOOLCHILDREN

Memories of the colorful scenes of the visit of Their Majesties King George and Queen Elizabeth to Canada last May were vividly recalled at Queen Alexandra School yesterday afternoon and evening when motion pictures of that memorable occasion were shown to a large crowd of pupils in the afternoon, and adults at night.

From Halifax to Vancouver to the United States, the children were taken on the colorful tour and many expressions of love and loyalty were noted in the applause offered as the various stages of the tour unfolded.

In contrast to the peaceful theme of the visit was the showing of the historic sinking or "suicide" of the German pocket battleship "Admiral Graf Spee" off Montevideo, Uruguay. This memorable event was shown in practically all its stages, and was viewed with interest by both audiences.

The pictures were shown under the auspices of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Club.

reprieves for the two condemned men.

In blaming today's blasts on the I.R.A., police said familiar "balloon-type" bombs had been used in the mail bags consigned to Birmingham.

The station was crowded. In it were many soldiers on leave. One of those injured was detained at an eye hospital for injuries about the eyes, while the others were treated for abrasions and shock.

Flames Follow Explosion.

Flames followed the Birmingham Post Office explosion, but were extinguished quickly. The blast was heard in the street and drew a large crowd.

John Dulanty, High Commissioner for Eire in London, was instructed to see Prime Minister Chamberlain today to press an appeal for clemency for the pair.

A postal investigation disclosed the bomb which exploded in Birmingham was posted just after last night's announcement that Home Secretary Sir John Anderson would not interfere with the executions.

De Valera Contacted.

Tom Barry, a Cork Irish Republican leader, telegraphed Prime Minister Eamon de Valera of Eire today asking him to request four-day reprieves to enable him to place before the Home Secretary in London "proof" that the men are innocent.

The guard around the Birmingham jail was redoubled against any effort to save Richards or Barnes or to stage a bombing of the jail.

Special units of Scotland Yard versed in I.R.A. tactics supervised a watch in key post offices for further bombings. Special precautions were taken in railway luggage rooms, where numerous bombs were planted last summer.

Feeling reached a pitch recalling the atmosphere surrounding the hanging of three Irish Republicans for the killing of a police sergeant in Manchester in 1867. The trio became known as the "Manchester martyrs".

Freed of Conspiracy.

Joseph Hewitt, 29, acquitted of murder in the Coventry blast, was freed today on charges of conspiracy to cause explosions, possessing explosives and causing an explosion. The prosecution offered no evidence against him.

Barnes and Richards were sentenced Dec. 14, receiving the first death penalties in the I.R.A. campaign of terror, begun in January, 1939.

Among the more serious bombings was one at London's King's Cross Railway Station last July 26, when one man was killed and fifteen injured. There was another at Victoria Station on the same day. In June several minor explosions occurred in railway stations at Birmingham and other points.

insignia of the Distinguished Flying Cross for outstanding feats in air warfare. They were Wing-Commander John Griffiths, 34, of Niagara Falls, and Pilot-Officer Selby Anderson, 21, of Winnipeg. The awards were originally announced Jan. 2.

Conspicuous among the naval heroes receiving the Distinguished Service Cross were seven chief skippers and six skippers of the naval reserve who distinguished themselves in various ways.

Some of them displayed exceptional gallantry in rescuing other seamen. Invested with the King's Police Medal were a detective and two constables who risked their lives in snuffing out Irish Republican army bombs.

Subject of Address 'What's in a Name' By Mrs. Alderman

The Senior B.Y.P.U. of Victoria Avenue Church held an interesting meeting on Monday evening, with Mrs. Major Alderman of the Salvation Army as guest speaker. "What's In a Name?" asked Mrs. Alderman in a challenging address. Outlining the history of certain Bible characters, the speaker stated that people were given names that suited their characters. A name stood for something and when a person's character changed he was given a new name to suit his new character. Abraham, Jacob, Peter and Paul were cited in illustration. "When we are converted and enjoy the saving grace of Jesus," said Mrs. Alderman, "we take on His name and we are known by His name; we are Christians."

Mrs. Alderman was introduced by Mr. Ted Russell, whose group was in charge of the meeting. Several beautiful violin selections were contributed by Mr. Leslie Lennox with Mr. Ray Lennox supplying piano accompaniment. Mr. Ed Burn performed the duties of chairman for the occasion.

London, Feb. 6 (CP)—It was stated authoritatively today that meat rationing will be introduced in Britain March 11.

Rationing of butter, sugar, hams and bacon already is in force, since the major portion of these supplies are imported. Most British meat is brought overseas from Australia New Zealand and South America.

Plaintiff Asks Indemnity For Total Disability by Reason of Having Migraine

Hamilton, Ont., Feb. 6—(CP)—Whether or not migraine—a type of headache — constitutes total disability under the terms of an insurance policy, is the question in an interesting Supreme Court action which opened before Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier at the court house yesterday.

Harry J. Harding, of this city, 45-year-old butcher and meat salesman, is asking His Lordship to declare that he is entitled to payments under a policy issued by the Prudential Insurance Company of America. In November, 1924, the company issued to the plaintiff a policy which contained a rider providing payment of $50 a month "if rendered wholly, continually and permanently unable to engage in any occupation or perform any work for any kind of compensation of finance value during the remainder of his lifetime."

In September of 1935, or before, Mr. Harding developed the migraine condition, and on filing proof with the insurance company, he was paid $50 from September, 1935 to Feb. 1, 1939. In March, 1939, he was served with notice that the payments would be discontinued. He paid an additional premium of $32.25 under protest.

In addition to asking for a declaration stating he is entitled to the continued benefit of the disability clause, Mr. Harding asks for $300 alleged to be due from the time the payment was stopped until action was begun.

The company contends that the migraine was not sufficiently severe to justify total disability payments, and that if Mr. Harding was disabled by it, his ailment was not so severe as to prevent him from carrying on a gainful occupation.

GANDHI HOPEFUL CONFERENCE WILL

the negotiations as a stepping stone towards success, as I am sure the viceroy is going to use it." He added he would see the viceroy again when called.

What the Congress party is asking is a free hand to draft a new constitution. This would be done by a constituent assembly, elected for the purpose of universal suffrage. This proposal brings the predominantly Hindu Congress party into a clash with the second largest political party of British India, the All-India Moslem League, which fears the Hindus would have such an overwhelming majority in a constituent assembly, and also in any legislature set up by it, that Moslem interests would be endangered.

Parties Must Agree

The British government has taken the view that the political parties themselves must first come to an agreement. The British government also has had to take into consideration the interests of the native states, which are governed by Princes. Many of these Princes are bitterly opposed to the Congress party.

The Viceroy today saw M. A. Jinnah, the leader of the Moslem League. The meeting lasted 90 minutes.

In yesterday's "prolonged and very friendly discussion," with Gandhi, the Viceroy emphasized the "earnest desire" of the British government that "India should attain Dominion status at the earliest possible moment and to facilitate the achievement of that status by all means in their power."

Apart from the "vital difference" outlined by Gandhi today, it was indicated that another stumbling block was the question of defence, the British government taking the position that responsibility for the defence of India could not be transferred from Britain without "joint consultation and mutually agreed procedure." This clashes with the Congress party's idea that the Indians themselves alone can decide the country's future.

Speaking of the war, Gandhi in his statement today said it "must not be decided by the clash of arms, but by the degree of moral strength that each side can show."

"If Britain cannot recognize India's legitimate claims, what will it be but Britain's moral bankruptcy?" the statement went on:

"The Congress (party) esteems that the real meaning of the word freedom consists in leaving to the Indian people the care of determining their own destination without intervention from outside.

"I see no prospect whatever of a peaceful and honorable settlement with Great Britain in India except if differences of opinion disappear and if Great Britain has decided to act, conveniently accenting the fact that the time is ripe when India must be authorized to choose her own constitution and status.

"When that will be accomplished, the questions of defence, minorities, Princes, and European interests will be automatically resolved."

Terrific Blow to Hitler

London, Feb. 6 — (CP) — The Daily Herald said today that settlement of the Indian question would be one of the worst blows that could be administered to Adolf Hitler.

Commenting on yesterday's meeting between the viceroy, Lord Linlithgow, and the Indian Nationalist Leader, Mohandas K. Gandi, the newspaper said:

"Throughout the British Commonwealth and indeed the whole democratic world, there is an unanimous desire to see a fair settlement reached. Few things would distress Hitler more. Few would do more good to the Allied cause.

"It is up to the British government to offer India at the very earliest practicable time an advance towards a full democratic partnership in the commonwealth. It is up to the Indian statesmen to compose their own differences so as to make that advance plan a possibility."

MANION PROTESTS CENSORSHIP

disloyalty and treason and the additional restrictions were unnecessary.

Organise Campaigns

With the dispute over radio speeches featuring political developments the major parties worked day and night organizing their campaigns. Prime Minister Mackenzie King makes his first speech tomorrow night over the National network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation and will outline the government's position. On Thursday, Dr. Manion starts a coast-to-coast tour by addressing a public meeting in Brockville, Ont.

Apparently in reply to Dr. Manion's charges that many Canadian troops overseas were sick, Defence Minister Rogers last night said he had received a summary report from the senior medical officer of Canadian Military Headquarters in London regarding health of the Canadian troops at Aldershot.

Mild Epidemic Cause

Mr. Rogers said the report stated that there has been a mild type of influenza epidemic throughout the country for the last six weeks and consequently a large number of Canadians were affected.

Only six of the cases admitted to hospital were diagnosed as pneumonia, however, and there have been no deaths from disease caused by conditions at Aldershot.

"Other than influenza, incidence of disease has been very light particularly considering weather and other factors. The health of the division has been very satisfactory," the Minister said he had been informed.

ALLIES INTENSIFY WAR ON U-BOATS

French Naval Minister States 40 Subs Have Been Sunk to Date and Navy Speeds Up Search

Paris, Feb. 6—(CP-Havas)—The French Navy Minister, Cesar Campiachi, said in an address here last night that at least forty of the fifty-five Nazi submarines in operation at the start of the war have been sunk by the Allies.

French Naval circles disclosed that British air and sea forces intensified their anti-submarine campaign last week coincident with the wave of Nazi raids on shipping off the British coast. British naval forces made numerous attacks on enemy undersea raiders during the week, but in conformity with the Admiralty's policy details were withheld.

Campinchi charged that German seamen were "pirates, who stealthily lay mines and sink merchantmen with utter disregard for the safety of passengers."

"Their efforts are useless," he said. "The mines are being swept away and the submarines are being blown up. Of the fifty-five Nazi submarines in operation at the start of the war, at least forty have been sent to the bottom.

"We shall perhaps know grave, painful hours, but the outcome of this gigantic duel upon which the fate of western civilization depends is not in doubt. Germany will be crushed and its arrogance, its cruelty and its disdain for moral values will be punished."

The Navy Minister said no decisive battle has occurred at sea because the German Fleet remains in hiding, knowing that disaster awaits if it comes out.

After paying tribute to the manner in which French seamen are pursuing their war tasks, he said:

"Without moral strength the most perfect arms are nothing but scrap iron. You saw what has happened in Finland, where a small army with magnificent morale had triumphed over gross materialism supported by the most modern armaments."

BRITAIN AGREES TO RETURN NINE investigation and possible rejection even though tickets already had been issued.)

Arita declared that Japan would continue to negotiate for the return of all 21 seamen. They were seized by a British cruiser Jan. 20 about 35 miles off Yokohama and interned at Hong Kong.

Arita told the diet that the Japanese government "cannot express satisfaction because the number of Germans to be delivered to Japanese authorities is only part of those whose extradition was demanded."

Seizure Legal, Proper

The Foreign Minister said that Britain, in the diplomatic exchange after the incident, pointed out that the seizure was legal and proper. However, an investigation showed that some of the Germans detained were "short in their military service and adaptability," Arita said. Apparently he meant that some of the 21 Germans were ineligible for war service.

The seamen, part of a group of 40 being repatriated by the Standard Oil Company, sailed from San Francisco Jan. 6. They had been employed on tankers in South American waters.

A foreign office spokesman had termed the seizure "disagreeable" because it occurred so close to Japanese shores. The Asama Maru was halted with a shot across her bows.

Arita told Parliament that Great Britain's reply to Japan's protest expressed regret that Japanese public sentiment had been aroused but said that the seizure was legal under international law.

Article Quoted

Article 47 of the London Declaration of 1909 states that a person liable to military service found on board a neutral vessel may be made a prisoner of war.

Saying the dispute centred around interpretation of this article, Arita said. "The British vews holds no conviction for the Japanese Government."

According to Arita, the British Government replied yesterday that it reserved legal rights in connection with the case but, to effect an amicable settlement, it was "ready to deliver nine Germans to suitable Japanese authorities at a date and place to be agreed upon later."

Relatively Unfit For Military Service

London, Feb. 6.—(CP)— Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax told the House of Lords today that Great Britain had decided to return nine of 21 German seamen seized from the Japanese liner Asama Maru since they "are relatively unsuitable for military service".

Reporting on the incident which brought a vigorous Japanese protest, the Foreign Secretary said the nine men will be handed over in "due course". The seamen, who formerly served in United States tankers in Latin-American waters, were on their way home when captured thirty-five miles off Yokohama.

"While His Majesty's government have maintained their view of a legal position in this matter, it is anticipated that such incidents . . . will be avoided in the future", said Lord Halifax.

The exchange of notes relating to the incident will be laid before the House of Commons tonight, he said.

Britain was regarded by these sources as having gained a major point in the Japanese announcement that Japan's steamship lines had been instructed to refuse to carry belligerent nationals liable to war service.

Second Protest Sent

Paris, Feb. 6—(AP)—France has made a second protest to Japan against repeated bombings of the French-operated Yunnan railway in Southwestern China by the Japanese air force, informed sources said today.

The second French protest was delivered in Tokyo by Ambassador Charles Arsene Henry, it was said, and followed closely the first one made Sunday. Five French citizens were killed in one raid last Thursday.

The United States has made informal representations in Tokyo concerning the Yunnan railway bombings on the ground they interfered with American trade with central China and endangered the only travel route by which Americans in Chungking could leave China.

BAYING OF DOG LIKE WOLF CRY

"Wo-oo-ow, Wo-oo-ow," and after-supper pedestrians walking along Front Street last night stopped and listened. It sounded like a long drawn-out and faraway wolf cry, but no, it was merely a great large police dog, unattended by its master and straying alone on the street. Well kept and undoubtedly some child's pet, the big dog would gaze intently up and down the street as if looking for someone and then, pointing his nose towards the skies, would give voice to that mournful "Wo-oo-ow, Wo-oo-ow."

HEAVY ARTILLERY SUPPORT GIVEN SOVIET ATTACKS

One Hundred Armored Cars Used by Russians During Battle

DRIVEN BACK

On Salla Front Russians Also Repulsed With Distinctly Heavy Losses

Helsingfors, Feb. 6 (AP). — Red army attacks heavily supported by artillery and using more than 100 tanks were officially reported today to have been thrown back by the Finns.

The battle, which lasted from morning until midnight, occurred on the Isthmus of Karelia between Hatjalahdenjaervi and Summa, the Finnish army announced in its daily communique.

The Finns said they destroyed 22 tanks, and that one Finnish position was attacked five times by the Russians.

The army reported that Finnish troops northeast of Lake Ladoga repulsed "continuous' 'attacks on the Pitkaranta Archipelago and on the shore of the lake, driving the enemy off with "several hundreds killed".

Farther north, near the Arctic Circle, the Russians were repulsed near Markajarvi in the direction of Salla, the Finns said.

During the night of Feb. 4-5, the communique said, the Finnish Air Force dropped bombs "on the enemy's troops encamped around their fires."

Landing Places Known.

"In North Finland," concluded the statement, "the enemy dropped parachute jumpers. Their landing places are known."

A decisive action north of the lake has been expected for several days since a Russian offensive was stalled and many Soviet troops were cut off from supplies, a Finnish headquarters spokesman said, but he denied foreign reports that the eighteenth Red army division had been destroyed in that region.

(However, a dispatch to the Copenhagen newspaper Berlingske Tidende went into some detail, saying the 18th division was destroyed between Kitela and Kasnaselka, according to "reliable information". A Finnish thrust southward from Uuksajaervi toward Uomas was credited with cutting off the division, and the Copenhagen paper said 1,000 Russians who tried to escape were killed or captured.

(The Copenhagen report said the 18th division was one of fice operating north of Lake Ladoga.

(A dispatch from Helsingfors by Reuters News Agency also reported the "annihilation" of the 18th division near Kitela.

DEFENCE MINISTER TO BE CANDIDATE

Norman Rogers Will Allow His Name to Go to Liberal Nomination Meeting

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 6 (CP) — Preparations were made today for the convention of the Liberal Association of Kingston here tomorrow night when Defence Minister Rogers will probably be again selected as the Liberal candidate in Kingston.

Alderman A. E. Ross, a member of the city council, has announced he will oppose Mr. Rogers as an independent candidate. He told council last night that he will ask them to urge the Dominion government to consider his plan for conscripting physically-fit young lawbreakers. He said he had decided on this plan after he had heard cases of non-support before the Social Welfare Committee. His motion to seek Dominion approval of the plan will be discussed by council on Feb. 19.

CITY STREETS ARE SANDED

Sanding operations were in full swing this morning as city employees preceded to remedy slippery walking conditions resulting from yesterday's slight thaw and last night's subsequent freeze. Sidewalks and pathways situated on the city's various slopes were in particular getting a thorough application of the non-slip substance, thus keeping walk-a-day Bellevillians on their collective feet.

REGINALD WHITE GOES ON TRIAL AT KITCHENER

Two Charges of Murder Preferred in the Deaths of John and Annie Milroy

JURY IS SWORN

Kitchener, Ont., Feb. 6.—(CP)—The Crown completed its preliminary address today as the trial of Reginald White, 35, opened before Mr. Justice J. C. Makins and a jury on two charges of murder.

The charges were in connection with the death of John and Annie Milroy, aged brother and sister, whose bodies were found on the floor of their farm home at Branchton, last August 19.

Special Prosecutor Walter P. Martin of Toronto, told the jury that evidence would be produced to place the accused on the Milroy farm on the day of the slayings. He declared that when White was arrested two days afterwards, police found bloodstains on his clothing.

White was formerly employed on the Milroy farm and the prosecutor declared "there is evidence to indicate that White said to a witness that Milroy owed him $500 prior to the time of the murders."

The greater part of the morning was occupied with selection of jurors under Mr. Justice J. C. Makins J. K. Sims of Kitchener and R. H. Myers of Galt are counsel for defence and the Crown's case is being conducted by special Prosecutor Walter Martin of Toronto and Crown Attorney W. P. Clement.

Before the Grand Jury returned its findings it was told by His Lordship that it was alleged an axe was used to murder the aged couple. The bodies of Milroy, 77, and his 73-year-old sister were found in "pools of blood" and His Lordship pointed out to the Grand Jury that Crown Counsel contended that blood was found on the clothing of the accused when he was arrested.

The defendant, who is 35 years of age, appeared in court in the same nondescript garments that he wore when arrested. He searched the courtroom for relatives or friends and recognized his fiancee and a brother. His aged father, Thomas White, was not present. The elder White collapsed in court yesterday while waiting for the Grand Jury's findings.

Mr. Justice Makins rebuked a juror whose late arrival delayed court opening for several minutes. "No doubt I could find an excuse as good as yours for being late", said His Lordship, "but I have yet to be late for a session of court".

White pleaded not guilty to each charge, the first charge being the murder of John Milroy and the second the murder of Annie Milroy.

White smiled wearly at his fiancee once in a while as the selection of the jury was completed.

Special Prosecutor Martin forecast a lengthy trial when he told the court that the Crown witnesses would occupy all of today and tomorrow, if not longer.

In his opening address Crown Counsel declared that White worked on the Milroy farm in 1935. "There is evidence to indicate that White told a witness that Milroy owed him $500 prior to the time of the murder".

"Saturday, August 12, the accused was seen on Milroy's farm some time before the noon hour. This was the Saturday before the murder.

"Then on the day the murder occurred the accused was working in Guelph until Friday night, August 18, the night before the murder. On Saturday at nine o'clock Milroy was alive and well. Then at ten o'clock, evidence will be adduced to show that White was seen on the Milroy farm. At 11.30 evidence will show White was seen driving the Milroy car at a distance not more than two miles from the Milroy farm. At 11.50 or 20 minutes later he was seen walking into Hespeler at the edge of Bexel's bush, where the Milroy car was found on Sunday.

"At three o'clock Mrs. Oliver, a neighbor of the Milryo's went over to pay a visit. She saw John and Annie lying on the floor of the living room. She called a doctor who in turn called the police.

"When the police went through the house they found an axe in the woodshed and two large pools of blood on the living room carpet.

"The accused was picked up Monday night Aug. 21. When he was picked up he was taken to the police station and his clothing removed. On the man's pants, which he was wearing at the time were sots of human blood. All this will be adduced in evidence to be presented to you later.

"Also it will be shown that after the tragedy White spoke with several witnesses and told of how well he got along with the murdered couple.

"There was a statement taken from the accused man after his arrest but I am not permitted by law to say anthing further about that at this time. There is a question whether it will be admitted as evidence. That is a question for His Lordship to decide.

"I have attempted to give you a brief outline of the evidence which the Crown will lay before you. It was not my intention to give you all the evidence, that will be done by the witnesses, but I did want to prepare you for what will come," Mr. Martin concluded.

The first witness was Herbert Johnson of Kitchener, an Ontario land surveyor. Two exhibits were introduced after they had been identified by the witness. One was a plan of the house, first and second storeys and a larger scale plan of living room and dining room and the other a plan of North Dumfries Township.

"GENERAL FROST" CARRIES ON WHERE FINNS LEAVE OFF

Bodies of dead Russians of the 44th division of the Red army are shown frozen where they fell on the Suomassalmi front. Many of the men were frozen in the life-like postures in which they fell, trapped and harassed by the Finns and finished off by the Finns' ally, "General Frost."

SEES NO BASIS FOR MEDIATION

German Gov't. Makes an Announcement on Russian-Finnish Conflict

Berlin, Feb. 6—(AP)—The German government can see no basis for mediation in the Russian-Finnish conflict, it was authoritatively indicated today after the Reich's envoys to Moscow and Helsingfors had come to Berlin to make personal reports.

Spokesmen said that Finnish President Kyosti Kallio's declaration last Thursday that Finland was ready to make an "honorable peace" offered no concrete basis for action by Germany.

Germany is keeping aloof from the Northern conflict, it was stated although of course Russia is the Reich's special friend.

Count Friedrich Werner von der Schulenberg, Ambassador to Russia and Dr. Wipert von Blucher, Minister to Finland, have come to Berlin to give first hand reports.

Von Schulenberg, who arrived yesterday from Moscow, conferred with various Berlin ministries today and it was indicated that difficulties in transportation between the Soviet Union and the Reich were under discussion.

Plans for exchange of Russian raw materials for German industrial goods can not be carried out efficiently, informed sources said, unless better communications are obtained between the two countries.

ADMITS THEFT CHARGES

Hamilton, Ont., Feb. 6 (CP— Peter Ferraro, 23, found about $1,300 hidden at a Clinton Street house and proceeded to dig into the money. He made it in three trips but he went once too often. As a result he appeared before Magistrate H. A. Burbridge in court today, and pleaded guilty to two theft charges.

He was charged with breaking and entering the house of Matt Krusto, and stealing about $10, and with stealing approximately $1,000 from the same place on other occasions. Ferraro was remanded one week for sentence.

Ferraro told police he had only $600 left—he had gambled the rest away in crap games.

King Gov't. Reports $50,891,744 Deficit for the Last Fiscal Year

Ottawa, Feb. 6—(CP)—Total deficit in Government financing for the fiscal year which ended March 31 last was $50,891,744 which is about $5,000,000 less than estimated by Finance Minister Dunning when he delivered his budget address April 25. Final figures were shown in the public accounts made public today.

Total expenditure for the year was $553,063,098 and total receipts and credits $502,171,353. Total net debt of the Dominion at the close of the fiscal year was $3,152,559,314.

Expenses for ordinary purposes of government amounted to only $413,032,202 and ordinary revenues were $498,016,706 which would have meant a surplus of $84,984,503.

But special expenditures due to relief, unemployment, wheat marketing assistance and railyway deficits brought about the deficit on total account.

Drought relief, grants in aid to provinces, works projects and provision against loss in wheat marketing took $71,895,406, to which was added $58,943,494 in deficits on government owned enterprises, $5,424,276 for capital expenditures and $3,767,718 for write down of assets, bring total special expenditures to $140,031,876.

New Scale of Rations for Canadian Military, Air Forces Announced

Ottawa, Feb. 6 (CP). — Defence Minister Rogers announced today a new scale of rations for the Canadian military and air forces calculated to modernize the dinner table of the fighting forces with all the calories and vitamins.

The new ration list includes seventeen standard commodities and certain alternatives. It lays special emphasis on fresh apples, milk, fish and eggs.

A committee of scientists and experts in dietetics, upon the request of the Defence Department, through the National Research Council of Canada, drew up the new ration list.

As well as providing a diet arranged to bring undernourished men to the pink of physical condition in a short period and maintain that condition, the minister said, the proper preparation of their food has been arranged for by the provision of cooking schools for army cooks.

The soldier of 1914-18 saw little fresh fruit, fresh milk or eggs, even when in training in Canada. Sometimes there were dried prunes, then the only alternative to jam. Now Canadian honey, corn syrup and molasses are on the list as well as fresh apples.

Canadian Pumpkin Used.

When these cannot be obtained, dried Canadian apples, canned Canadian apple-pie filler and canned Canadian pumpkin will be available.

Inclusion in the new list of Canadian fish, whether fresh, dried, canned, filleted or smoked, reduces the ration of beef and other fresh meats from one pound for each man each day to fourteen ounces in order that a greater variety may be had in meals, Mr. Rogers said.

Bread is now provided on the basis of 14 ounces a day, but the cook may draw 14 ounces of flour as an anternative, plus shortening and baking powder. This enables cooks to produce pies, cakes and cookies, for the mess hall. There is now an issue of four eggs a week for every man, and three ounces of salt pork for each man, as desired, may be had in lieu of the bacon allotment.

Cereals (two ounces) and macaroni (four ounces) are alternative issues to the rice ration of two ounces per day. The issue of cheese is one ounce. It now is possible for the units to draw 10 ounces of fresh pasteurized milk for 50 per cent of its strength each day and five ounces of irradiated evaporated whole milk for the remainder.

Chocolate Added to Diet

One quarter ounce of chocolate has been added to the list of beverages as an alternative to coffee and tea.

The daily issue of fresh vegetables is increased from six to eight ounces for each man. Canned tomatoes are an alternative, to be issued twice a week.

Split peas and dried beans remain on the list as before. The soldier or airman still consumees three ounces of granulated sugar a day. Iodized salt, one-half ounce a day, replaces the ordinary table salt. Each soldier is alloted 1-36th ounce of pepper in his daily diet.

SURPRISING LAST ACT

The events surrounding the New York premiere of "My Dear Children," marking John Barrymore's return to Broadway after 17 years, was only act one of the evening's events. Act two would be the dressing room scene when his wife, Elaine Barrie, stormed in and engaged in a verbal spat with Barrymore's daughter, Diana. Act three would be this fadeout at the Monte Carlo. When photographers asked Barrymore if he would pose kissing his estranged wife, he answered: "It would be a pleasure."

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT GIVEN THE PRESIDENT

Joseph P. Kennedy, U. S. Ambassador to England, Analyzes British Strength

$1,000,000,000 IN GOLD

(By Lloyd Hehrbas)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Feb. 6.—(AP)—A document which might guide a mathematician toward predicting the victor in the war is locked in a safe at the United States State department.

Joseph P. Kennedy, Ambassador to Great Britain, recently brought from London this confidential report analysing the monetary and economic resources possessed by the British Empire in the United States.

The informaton in the document is known only to the President, some members of the Cabinet and a select group of State, Treasury and Commerce department experts.

Analysis of the data will enable United States authorities to determine Great Britain's maximum capacity to pay for airplanes, munitions and other war supplies in the United States. It may provide a forecast of the influence which those purchases—already under way on a large scale in planes, tools and a narrow list of manufactured goods —may have on industry, agriculture, labor and trade.

President Roosevelt has received —or will receive when Ambassador William C. Bullitt arrives from France—a similar report on French resources in the United States.

Report Remains Secret

War goods already bought in the United States, and orders placed and in prospect, show that Great Britain and France plan to make purchases running into millions of dollars. Some estimates place potential allied war orders at $1,000,000,000 while Kennedy's report remains a secret, clues are available from other sources.

Winthrop W. Case, Associate editor of The Annalist, etimated last April that Anglo-French gold and other reserves in the United States amounted to between $9,500,000,000 and $12,000,000,000, which he figured would provide war supplies for two years.

Large shipments of gold, accelerated after the Czecho-Slovakian crisis, have boosted earmarked gold in the Federal Reserve banks to more than $1,000,000,000.

The Commerce department on August 29, estimated total British and French investments in the United States, not including earmarked gold, at between $2,800,000,000 and $3,000,000,000, somewhat less than two-thirds as large as in the years just preceding the first Great War.

Ex-Mayor of Trenton to Offer Name at Liberal Nomination

Ex-Mayor Harry Cory of Trenton will offer his name as candidate for the riding of Hastings South at the forthcoming South Hastings Liberal Association nomination meeting, he informed the Ontario Intelligencer today.

Well-known in the town of Trenton and its outlying districts Mr. Cory has been identified with the municipal life of his community for a number of years. Associated with the town council for a lengthy period of time he was elected to the office of chief magistrate a position he held two years. He has also served as a member of the board of education.

In making his announcement, Mr. Cory added, that he endorses the King government in its action of calling a general election at this time.

Hungary, Bulgaria Question Entente on Territory Issue

Two Nations Who Have Been Pressing Claims on Rumania Seek to Learn if Entente Had Agreed to Resist Possibility of Territorial Concessions

STRENGTH OF ENTENTE

Budapest, Feb. 6. —(AP)—Hungary and Bulgaria today indicated vigorous opposition to the Balkan entente's newly-proclaimed policy of "safeguarding National territory" by demanding explanations as to whether this phrase means upholding the present boundaries of southeastern Europe.

The two nations, which have been campaigning for settlement of their claims on Rumania for territories lost to her in the 1919 settlement, undertook to learn from the foreign offices of the Entente whether it had undertaken to resist all possibility of territorial concessions.

The Entente— Rumania, Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey—concluded a three day conference at Belgrade Sunday.

The Rumanian Press declared the Entente showed "the four states truly were in unity in case of war" and "this will have a good influence on Bulgaria and Hungary, perhaps persuading them to join the Balkan bloc since their pretensions are postponed till after the Great Powers' war."

The Yugoslav, Greek and Turkish press almost unanimously hailed the Entente's united strength.

Hungarian Foreign Policy

However, a four column editorial in the semi-official Hungarian newspaper Pester Lloyd, which often reflects Hungarian foreign policy, bitterly attacked the entente's territorial stand.

The Belgrade conference, Pester Lloyd said, "Recalls dangerously the spirit of the little entente"— Czecho-Slovakia, Poland and Rumania— ended by Germany's conquests.

The newspaper asked whether Rumania's "National territory" included Transylvania with a "Hungarian minority of nearly 2,000,000."

If the entente guaranteed Rumania's transylvania border, Pester Lloyd declared "it is useless to waste one word over starting discussions" with that power over Hungary's claims.

Hungary's disappointment was echoed in Bulgaria. Sofia newspapers were permitted by government censorship to declare that the conference failed "because the question of revision was postponed although it must be discussed in order to bring about true peace in southeastern Europe."

SMALL BONDS MAY BE ISSUED

Canadian Government Considers System of Issuing Savings Certificates

Ottawa, Feb. 6 (CP)—With the first loan of the second Great War now in the hands of the Canadian public, the government is considering the issuing of some form of small investment bonds or certificates offering a continuous opportunity to small investors.

A promise that this procedure would be instituted was given by Finance Minister Ralston when he gave a public address Jan. 21 expressing satisfaction at the manner the first war loan was received.

It is understood the government may adopt a system whereby war savings certificates in denominations as low as $5 or $10 may be purchased at post offices by those whose means do not permit them to participate in larger issues.

These certificates would be sold at a slight discount and redeemed at par after a certain period, thus providing a small profit to the holder.

Boundary Com. Reports on Work of Past Year

Washington, Feb. 6—(AP)—The International Boundary Commission told the Congressional Appropriations Committee it had to keep the Canada-United States border cleaned up to help prevent spies and saboteurs from sneaking into Canada along the wilder parts of the border.

Thomas Riggs, member of the commission, said Canada was carefully watching the border to prevent undesirables from entering and he assumed the United States was just as carefully watching to prevent such persons from returning to the United States. He said, in testimony made public today, that Canada particularly wanted the Maine-Quebec border cleared where the vista had been filled in by hurricanes and storms.

Riggs said during the last year work of the commission's employees included recovering and placing boundary marks along the St. Lawrence river.

Riggs said that in the Detroit and St. Clair Rivers many reference markers had been destroyed, moved without notice or had been covered by structures and must be renewed.

Why The Weather?

By Major . H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Evidence of climatic changes! The question is often asked what is the nature of the evidence supporting the claim that there have been great changes in climate in the past. The evidence is geological, and of two types—first, there are fossil remains of both plants and animals; second, there are certain physical features on surface rocks. The evidence of plants and animals has to be very carefully weighed as both may have changed their habits, that is, they may have originally developed in a warm climate and afterwards become accustomed to a cold one. The evidence of old and surfaces, such as glacier scratches, old salt beds, and so on, are more easily interpreted.

U. S. Takes Move To Improve Trade Relations With Italy

Washington, Feb. 7 —(CP)— The United States has taken a step toward improving relations with Italy, officials said today, by agreeing to remove penalty tariff duties from Italian silk.

The penalties were imposed last Aug. 12, but since Italy recently modified its purported subsidies on the products, the Treasury has reconstructed its action. The Treasury is said to have approved, in principle, the cancellation of the duties, and is expected to announce the decision as soon as various formalities are completed.

Although Italian silk shipments to the United States never were very large—amounting to $3,349,000 in 1938 and less in 1939—the penalty, or countervailing, duties were resented by Italy, and the State Department was reported to have been anxious for adjustment of the dispute.

The Evening News said a mine struck the forward part of the fast motorship and that the radio aerial was blown away, making it impossible to send distress signals.

First Civil Execution of I.R.A. Members Since 1867

Birmingham, England, Feb. 7—(CP) — Two members of the outlawed Irish Republican army died on the gallows in fog-shrouded Winton Green jail today for their part in the terrorist bombing which took five lives and wounded close to 100.

As a clock chimed nine, the hour of execution, those in a throng outside the prison bared their heads. There was no sign of a demonstration.

The crowd watched silently when seven minutes later, a prison official tacked up notices of the execution on a small door in the centre of the prison gate. The notices disclosed that the men, James Richards, 29 and Peter Barnes, 32, went to death at the same moment.

Thousands of police reinforcements were held on overtime duty in London and other large cities on the possibility that the execution might signal a new outburst of terrorism.

Extra guards had patrolled the prison grounds and Birmingham police the nearby streets. All

ALLIES MUST BE PREPARED TO ARM NEUTRAL NATIONS

A Declaration of 'There Are the Arms' Would Greatly Encourage Neutrals Threatened by Enemies Says French Writer

DEFENCE OF LIBERTY

Paris, Feb. 7 (AP)—A popular movement in France favoring "complete" aid for Finland in her war against Russia assumed increasing proportions today.

The authoritative newspaper Le Temps devoted both its editorials to aid for Finland, asserting this must be "effective, complete and total."

The newspaper said it was no longer possible to separate the "Russian-Finnish war from the European war properly speaking."

The newspaper's demand for quick aid to the Finns came on the heels of insistence by Premier Daladier's own Radical-Socialist party that France go to the aid of the northern state.

"It is under different names one and the same conflict which had its origin in the Russian-German collusion," Le Temps declared.

Germany Leaning on Russia

Germany is leaning on Russia for effective military and economic aid, the newspaper continued, "the two forces of oppression now are only one, it is already impossible to separate them; their destinies are linked."

(In Berlin today German spokesmen denied Germany had been asked for or was giving any military aid to Russia in her fight against Finland.)

"Any blow against the aggressor in Finland," the newspaper concluded, "is against the ally and helper of Hitler and directly affects him."

Jean Fabry, writing in the newspaper Le Matin, said France and Great Britain must be prepared "to

Soldier Son of Pacifist Parents Longs for Letters That Never Come

(By Guy Rhoades, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Aldershot, England, Feb. 7—(CP-Cable)—This camp's loneliest man is the Canadian son of pacifist parents. He joined the Canadian Active Service Force against the wishes of his relatives.

Since enlisting he has received no letters from anyone. Each time a Trans-Atlantic mail arrives, bringing whoops of delight from his buddies, he goes to the barracks post office—then walks off empty handed.

He told his story to a pal and here it is: "It has been tough right along, but it is toughest when the mail bags arrived with nothing for me."

His name? "No," his pal said, "he's too good a soldier to want to penalize his parents, no matter how they've penalized him. Just call him the 'loneliest man in Aldershot.' "

Necessity of Conscription Can be Dismissed—Gardiner

More Men Willing to Enlist Than Authorities Can Take Care of is Claim

'IN-BETWEEN' GROUP

Markinch, Sask., Feb. 7.—(CP)—More men are willing to enlist in Canada's army today than authorities can take care of and necessity of conscription of man power can be dismissed, Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Dominion Agriculture Minister, assured electors of Melville constituency.

When the call for recruits went out the response was so great an immediate supply of sufficient clothing and boots was impossible and large numbers of enlisted men had to be sent home temporarily.

This shortage of clothing for soldiers was subject of the only criticism levelled at the Liberal Government in connection with the call for men for the First Division, Mr. Gardiner said yesterday in addressing meeting at Markinch and Dysart as he opened his campaign in Melville riding where he is Liberal candidate for the March 26 Federal election.

The Liberals, he claimed, were the "in-between" group of those in

British Censorship Condemned by Paper

Sydney, Australia, Feb. 7—(CP-Cable)—The Morning Herald severely condemned the British censorship of news bound for the Dominions in an editorial today.

"The suppression of news, which on the face of it can be of no conceivable value to the enemy, is bad enough when the British and Dominion peoples are equally the victims of official timidity and rigidity—to use no harsher terms," the paper said.

"But when the British ministry of information or the services intervene to prevent the people of Sydney, for instance, from reading news which is not banned in London the position has become frankly intolerable.

"So anomalous and so unjustified on any discernible grounds of policy is this interference with the imperial channels of communication that mere publication of the facts relating to it ought to have been sufficient to ensure its discontinuance.

SENT TO TRIAL IN ACCIDENT CASE

Sequel to Highway Death is Heard in Magistrate's Court at London

London, Ont., Feb. 7 (CP)—Victor Kulaski, 38-year-old lawyer of Detroit, Mich., was committed for trial on a charge of manslaughter in County Magistrate's Court today. The charge resulted from a highway death Nov. 18, 1939, of Mrs. Mabel Wheaton, London. Bond of $10,000 was renewed.

The woman's husband, William F. Wheaton, and driver of the second car in the collision, died from injuries early in January. Kulaski faces only the original charge, however.

Only defence witness today was Mrs. Thelma Sutton, of Lambeth, who was an eye-witness to the crash on a No. 2 highway hill eight miles west of the city. Mrs. Sutton said that just before the collision, she saw the Kulaski car and a truck travelling side by side on the highway. She could not estimate the speed of the Detroit lawyer's auto.

Three Royal Canadian Air Force members who were passengers in the Wheaton car escaped with minor injuries.

Premier Hepburn Likely to Announce Sizeable Deficit for Year

DUTY ACT PASSED

Toronto, Feb. 7—(CP)—Queen's Park today pondered possible contents of the Ontario budget and speculated on the size of the expected deficit. Premier Mitchell Hepburn told the legislature yesterday that the budget, expected earlier in the session, would not be presented until next Tuesday.

It is known that the premier, who is also provincial treasurer, will report a deficit on the current year's operations. Reports have placed the deficit at from $500,000 to $2,500,000, with the latest forecast placing the amount nearer the second figure. The fiscal year ends March 31 and the revenue and expenditure figures for the last two months will be estimates only.

Given Third Reading

The act to amend the Succession Duty Act was given third reading yesterday after Conservatives fought to send it back to committee of the whole for amendment. Premier Hepburn and Conservative leader George Drew had a debate on the measure on third reading, an unusual procedure. No party lines were broken on division, giving the government a 53-20 victory.

ATTACKS FEARED

Russians May Try to Drop Sizeable Detachments on Stretches of Ice in Wild Countryside

Helsingfors, Feb. 7 —(AP)— Today's Finnish army communique stated the Russians have lost 1,500 dead in the last few days in fighting at Kuhmo in north Finland, where the invaders have been making repeated efforts to advance.

Northeast of Lake Ladoga, the Finns said, the defenders dispersed an entire Russian ski battalion, killing 300 men.

Destroyed 20 Tanks

On the Karelian Isthmus, said the communique, the Russians failed yesterday in attempts to carry infantry troops into battle on sleds drawn by tanks. The Finns said they destroyed or put out of action 20 tanks during the day.

The Russians were reported to have attacked between Hatjalahti and Summa, with all attempts unsuccessful.

"The enemy launched four attacks during the day, supported by tanks, but was beaten back each time with heavy losses," the communique said.

In air fighting the Finns said they shot down six Red planes and one barrage balloon.

The possibility of attacks by parachuting machine-gunners far behind the lines was advanced as the Finns noted mysterious scouting activities by Soviet planes over territory suitable for such a manoeuvre.

The Finns have reported the scotching of previous attempts on a small scale by marksmen who killed the parachutists in the air.

If great numbers should be dropped, however, it was said they might prove troublesome to the rear lines of the Karelian Isthmus defences and divert Finnish troops from the southeastern fronts where they have been holding the Russians at bay since the invasion began Nov. 30.

The Soviet aerial scouts were sighted yesterday over the vast Saimaa Lake system a sparsely-settled area north of Viborg (Viipuri).

Some military observers believed the Russians might try to drop sizeable detachments on the stretches of ice in this wild coun-

Man-attacking Bird at Noranda Keeps Lumberjacks on Edge

Noranda, Que. Feb. 7 —(CP)— A lone guard kept watch today for the mysterious Rogers Lake bird that has threatened to disrupt the normal day-to-day working of a northern Quebec lumber camp.

As hardy lumberjacks, some with patches of sticking plaster marking their faces and many wearing borrowed caps, went about their jobs, J. A. Charlebois, Canadian International Paper Company guard, awaited with a shotgun the appearance of a screech owl.

One well-directed shot, Charlebois believes, will solve the mystery. For he and Provincial Policeman Georges Lortie who accompanied the guard on an investigation trip to the camp 55 miles from here are convinced a screech owl has been the source of all the trouble.

New Tales Are Told

Lortie returned here yesterday with new tales to add to those which previously had reached the company's offices.

The 50 lumberjacks, who make their winter headquarters at Rogers Lake, have been the victims of attacks from the air since last fall. The attacks have been so fierce and so insistent that some of the men have threatened to leave their jobs. Others have expressed the belief that "the devil is after them."

Striking when the light is poor, in the early morning or at dusk, a bird has swept down suddenly on the men and invariably has left its mark.

Nineteen men have lost their caps and a number of others have been clawed.

Once Had Bird

Rene Mercier, a pulp-cutter, clung to the bird for a moment but received only a clawed eye for his pains. Antoine Boudreau, in charge of the camp and victim of seven attacks, once fired a shot in the semi-darkness and brought down a few feathers.

Traps have been set, tree traps, ground traps and, in some instances hat traps. All have failed. Some of the more ingenious lumbermen tied flashlights to their heads, hoping to keep the bird away.

The attacks were brought to the company's attention when a number of the workers threatened to quit their jobs. That was last week promptly set out for the camp, promptly set out for the camp, covering part of the snow-covered road from here to Rogers Lake by dog team.

Wellington, Feb. 7 (CP-Reuters).—New Zealand's devotion to the empire was emphasized in a message to the King made public today by Governor-General Viscount Galway on the occasion of the dominion's centenary celebration.

"Your Majesty's gracious message of congratulations and good wishes," Lord Galway said "was read to large crowds of people assembled at Waitangi to celebrate New Zealand's national centenary and was received with deepest appreciation and pleasure."

Italian Press Urges Finland's Friends To Hasten Aid

Vatican City, Feb. 7 (AP).—L'Osservatore Romano, Vatican City newspaper, yesterday urged Finland's friends to hasten aid against what is called "the most cynical aggression of our time."

While the Finns fight, L'Osservatore said, "the allies' aid amounts only to too facile praise of Finnish heroism."

Only Sweden, the paper said, has given "effective proof of solidarity."

"The crystaline clarity of the cause which was defended on the Karelian front should overcome all delay on the part of those who thus far have satisfied themselves with good intentions and good projects," he said.

CAMPAIGN WILL BE VIGOROUS

Prime Minister King Will Fire Opening Shot in Radio Address Tonight

Ottawa, Feb. 7 (CP).—A general election campaign which promises to be as vigorous as any in Canadian history will be opened formally today by Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Defence Minister Rogers.

Educating of Evacuated Children Proves Big Problem for Britain

London, Feb. 7—(CP)—Plight of nearly 500,000 British children who have had little or no education since they were evacuated from urban centres nearly six months ago came before the House of Lords today.

Debate centred on a question by the Archbishop of Canterbury as to how the government proposed to solve the education problem caused by the removal of children from large cities to places of safety from air raids.

An informed source predicted renewal of compulsory school attendance in "safe" areas, suspended at the outbreak of the war.

More than half of the children removed from cities at the start of the war have returned because bombing of British cities has not yet materialized.

The Times said that "if children are allowed to assemble in cinemas, run in the streets in the blackout, work at errands and in shops at 13 there seems to be no good reason why they should not run the risks of assembling in schools with teachers who look after them."

The newspaper quoted many teachers as saying the risk of air raids was preferable to the "damage now being done by neglect."

ONTARIO BUDGET TO BE PRESENTED

The measure is designed to facilitate the collection of arrears of succession duties from estates previously closed. It closes the courts to questions of the valuation of unlisted securities and certain other assets in estates, leaving the treasurer absolute discretion. It was these clauses that caused sharpest debate.

Moves for Discharge

When the act was called for third reading, Col. Drew moved the order be discharged and the bill be referred back to committee of the whole with instructions to strike out certain sections.

Col. Drew offered an addition to the bill which would have enabled any person to go to the courts to find out whether he was liable for payment of any duties arising from the death of any person. The courts would also have been enabled to determine the extent of this liability.

Retroactive legislation—the measure is retroactive to September 22 last when the Act it amends was passed—was generally bad, said Col. Drew. The present Act, removing pirvilege in many cases, as "improper, vicious and utterly lawless in its possible application". The speaker objected to the phrase and Col. Drew substituted. He said the Act was an "iniquitous mechanism of possible legalized blackmail".

Drew Quite Hostile

"Show your intellectual integrity", Col. Drew exhorted the Liberal members. "Show your freedom of membership in this House and put the Bill back into committee."

"The remarks of the leader of the opposition would sound better if there was less evidence of self-esteem", remarked A. E. Elliott (Lib. Peterborough).

"Surely we can't be built of all the things charged against us in this debate", said Premier Hepburn. Attorney-General Conant couldn't be as ignorant as Col. Drew had painted him. Surely he, the Premier, wasn't a party to legalized blackmail.

"I can't assess an estate without going to the courts to determine if it should be assessed at all", said the Premier, who is also Provincial Treasurer. The matter of determining the value of securities was not one for the courts. It was a job done better by experienced treasury officials and the system prevented endless litigation. Judges weren't experts in financial matters.

"I don't think there are many judges who have not been appointed for service to one party or the other", continued the Premier.

"I'm not a liar—I mean a lawyer", said Mr. Hepburn. The House laughed and the Premier observed that the line of demarcation was difficult at times.

Picton Would Employ Industrial Commissioner But Forbidden by Law

Picton, Feb. 7 (Special) — At the town council meeting on Monday night, Hollett Anderson was appointed as a collector to collect tax arrears. It was stated that arrears amounted to over $10,000 and members thought that there should be some pressure brought to bear on those in arrears as it made the burden of those who did pay taxes heavier.

There was a lengthy discussion on the matter of appointing an industrial commissioner for the town. At the previous meeting it had been decided to get legal advice on the matter and Clerk Fred Ward read a letter from the Municipal World which pointed out that towns were authorized to make grants for publicity purposes but that only cities have power to appoint and pay industrial commissioners.

The importance of such a commissioner was stressed and indignation expressed that such legislation was allowed to continue. On the motion of Reeve Colliver and Councillor McGibbon, the following resolution was passed "that this council petition for an amendment of the Municipal Act whereby councils of towns shall be empowered to employ and appoint industrial commissioners, thus being given the same powers as councils of cities.

No Military Agreement With Russia Nazis Say

Berlin, Feb. 7 —(AP)— Authorized German sources declared today that no military agreement whatever exists betwen Germany and Soviet Russia.

This statement was made to counteract reports that military or technical aid was being given Russia in the war against Finland.

"The Reich never has been asked for military assistance or technical aid of a military character and no agreement exists for extending such help," these sources said.

Reports received here had indicated that part of the Russian strategy was to frighten the Finns by holding up the prospect of German intercession on the Russian side.

Yesterday authorized spokesmen said the German government had decided there was no basis for mediation in the Russian-Finnish conflict. This decision, it was stated, was reached after the German envoys to Moscow and Helsingfors had returned here to make personal reports on the situation.

Leader of Alsatian Movement Shot

Nancy, France, Feb. 7—(CP-Havas)—Dr. Karl Roos, leader of the Alsatian Autonomist movement was shot here today as a spy.

A soldier named Lobstein, convicted with Roos as an accomplice, received a last minute reprieve. His sentence was commuted to one of life imprisonment.

Dr. Roos and the soldier were sentenced on Oct. 26 by a military court and several appeals have since been rejected by the civil courts.

On last Oct. 29 Roos was reported to have been shot, but actually the execution had been delayed pending action on his appeal. Roos went before the firing squad on the garrison parade grounds.

At the time of his trial, French newspapers published pictures of the heavy-set Roos in a Nazi uniform. Such a photograph was reported to have been found in his home. He was arrested Feb. 7, 1939, almost seven months before the war started.

He was accused of having furnished information to German agents on the movements of French troops in March, 1936, when Germany reoccupied the Rhineland and in September, 1938 during the crisis over Germany's claim to the Czecho-Slovak Sudetenland.

Compromise With Japan Considered Satisfactory By London Newspapers

London, Feb. 7 —(CP)— Progress toward a satisfactory compromise between Great Britain and Japan on the Asama Maru case was welcomed by London newspapers today. Great Britain has agreed to give up nine of the 21 Germans taken off the Japanese liner by a British warship and Japanese liners have agreed to accept no more Germans as passengers.

The Times said that "both foreign offices reached a settlement which reflects great credit in particular on the two foreign secretaries and the two ambassadors who personally conducted the negotiations."

The Daily Express termed the settlement "satisfactory."

"We decide not to enforce our strict legal rights," the paper said. "The Japanese take a step for which there is no legal obligation. And there will be no more incidents of the same kind to cause trouble and make mischief."

The Daily Herald called the settlement "a good example of two governments sensibly agreeing to differ—a victory for common sense."

The Daily Telegraph paid tribute to Sir Robert Craigie, the British Ambassador in Tokyo, and the Japanese government for their success in reaching a friendly agreement on the incident.

Martin-Senour Company Opens Modern Paint and Wallpaper Store

Complete Line of Household, Industrial and Commercial Paints—Also Wax Polishes and Section Devoted to Watson Foster Wallpaper—Installation of Paint Agitator Will Ensure the Stock Will be Always Easily Worked

An ultra-modern paint and wallpaper store will be opened tomorrow at 282 Front Street by the Martin-Senour Company, with W. J. "Bill" Dougherty, formerly of the Smith Hardware, as manager. The new store will retail a complete line of household, commercial and industrial paints and paint products, cleaners, waxes and polishes for home, car and other purposes. The wallpaper section will carry over 200 patterns of Watson Foster designs. This store also is to be the wholesale distributing centre of Martin-Senour products in the Belleville district.

For several weeks interior reconstruction and decorating has been in progress. Occupying a frontage of 20 feet, the property has a depth of 70 feet, of which some 30 feet is taken up with the retail shop. Carefully arranged centre display counters and shelves on one side of the premises carry paint and paint products. The wallpaper is displayed on two large stands with some 60 patterns well exposed. One of the large windows and several small stands complete the wallpaper display.

The whole interior of the retail store is finished in buff tones which with the indirect lighting, produces a natural life effect that presents the stock in its true colours. The entire arrangement has been designed for customer convenience and comfort.

The rear section has been fitted with ample shelving to hold the stock of paints and wallpaper necessary to supply district retailers. The paint stock is large and varied, including even artists' and sign writers' paints and supplies. Every grade and price-class of paint is to be found in the shelves.

In order to ensure that the paint stock will always be fresh and easily worked a paint agitator is being installed.

The reconstruction and decorating job on the store was done with local labor.

The manager of the store, W. J. (Bill) Dougherty, was born in Belleville, is married, and worked for about ten years with the Smith Hardware. His assistant, Clifford Gibson, also was born in Belleville and has worked for various local businesses.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

ALLIED PLANES SHOW SUPERIORITY

Proofs of the superior quality of the British and French airplanes over the German continue to be given in air battle after air battle. The number of the British and French warplanes is constantly growing and this fact with the superior quality of the planes and the fine spirit of the Allies in the air gives a sense of security and confidence as to the successful outcome of the struggle.

The other day the Germans lost four bombers in their attacks on the British coast. The supremacy of the British planes and the pilots and other airmen was demonstrated by the high percentage of loss sustained by the enemy planes taking part in the raid.

The flow of United States warplanes from the United States to Britain goes on in earnest. Already 1,100 have been shipped, according to a Washington report. More than 4,000 planes have been ordered in the past eighteen months and negotiations for about 8,000 more bombers, pursuit craft and other types are under way, it is said. It is likely the delivery will increase to over 100 per month to the Allied Governments.

FUEHRER LEADS SECLUDED LIFE

Adolf Hitler is rarely seen since the war broke out over five months ago. Once he broke his solitary life, spent in the Berlin chancellery, to go to Munich where he figured in the narrow escape from the bomb explosion in the beer cellar which he had just left. Once again he came out of retreat, last week, to speak to the German nation by broadcast from the Sportspalast.

The chancellor is working it is said two thirds of the entire day and night on problems connected with the German nation at war and this labor has reduced his weight as pictures from Germany indicate. His friends assert, however, that he is well in health, though he is slightly more nervous.

When a man sets himself up as dictator and rules a nation by his own will and threatens an entire world's security by his action, it is not to be wondered at that time is too short for him to accomplish everything which should be done to bolster up his plans. Such a man is driven by the fury of the impulse which has brought him to the present pass. He may be constantly writing what in time will take the form of laws and regulations to maintain that dictatorship and control which is the master of Adolf Hitler and every other dictator, for it drives them on relentlessly.

This man, who has figured in one of the greatest crises in history, might well be losing weight with anxiety over Nazism and a country which he has plunged into a war which will end only with his own removal as a force in the political life of Europe.

WINS NAME IN TWO FIELDS OF ART

Arthur Heming whose literary work has been known for many years, has had a double appeal to the people. He was about sixty years of age before he began to express himself in paint and colors, his canvasses dealing with an aspect of Canadian life which appeals to the Canadian who likes scenes of life in the forest, rivers. For ten years he has been painting and now he has decided to return all his attention to literature, his paintings having won the praise of experts.

It is rarely that a man is adept in two fields. There are of course men like Leonardo da Vinci, who was sculptor, painter, architect, engineer, scientist, philosopher, but he was one of the most unusual men of all time. Sometimes the art of music and painting are met in the same individual. But it is rarely that one arrives at painting or other art late in life, though even here there are exceptions.

Mr. Heming has made a notable contribution to Canadian writing and art for many years. That his paintings will exert an influence on those who follow him there is little doubt. To have won the praise of experts and connoisseurs is reward, second only to the realization that he has been able to accomplish so much in two fields.

Those who have seen his paintings give them highest praise and regret that he has laid down the brush and palette to devote his attention to writing, outstanding as he is in this field.

THE MAYOR OF NEW YORK KNOWS BOYS

'A little boy in the Bronx' wrote Mayor La Guardia of New York, thanking him for his public warnings against against the waste of water, the mayor's office solemnly disclosed the other day.

This little boy's gratitude came from a motive that the mayor did not care so much for. This 'little man' had said in the letter, 'I am glad you told every one about saving the water. Every time my mother tells me to take a bath I remind her of your suggestion, and then I only have to wash my hands and face. I'd much rather do that than take a bath.'

The mayor wrote back to this boy, telling him he had misunderstood the appeal. 'The reason we want to save water is so that all little boys like you can have a nice bath every day. Your bath is important.'

Then came the mayor's words 'Whatever happens, we want all our little boys and girls to take their daily baths, so tell Mother now to be sure to give you a bath and plenty of scrubbing with it.'

Now Mayor La Guardia is one of the keenest of wits and he must have been delighted to have the retort on any youngster who liked to escape the bath. Incidentally there is a little hint to mothers to see that every little boy and every little girl in the great city gets a bath and scrubbing every day.

That little boy should not have written to so wise and witty a mayor. If there were any other little boys dodging the daily wash about the neck and ears or the bath, by pleading wastage of water, they have had to take their baths, for their mothers have read the papers.

There are no doubt many who would like a shortage of water for no other reason but that they might have reason for dodging the wash or bath.

Out of this story came healthy advice to householders in New York on means of saving water—to see that all faucets are closed, and that there is no leakage, that the pipes in the building have no leaks, that when water is needed and obtained the faucets be then turned off and the water not permitted to run.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

The longer the Russo-Finnish war continues the closer it becomes to merging with the larger conflict between Great Britain on the one hand and Germany on the other.

The fact that the fundamental moral issue raised by Russia's invasion of Finland is the same as that raised by Germany's invasion of Poland outweighs the fact that neither the Allies nor Germany have any direct material interest in the status of Finland.

So far as they are concerned, leaving aside possible long-range imperialistic ambitions on the part of Germany, it matters little whether Finland remains independent or becomes another member of the union of Soviet Socialist republics.

The most military expressions of Allied sympathy for Finland come from France. Yesterday the French | Radical Socialist party to which Premier Daladier belongs and which is one of the principal political groups supporting the Daladier government, went on record with an outspoken declaration.

It called upon the French government to do all necessary to permit Finland to continue the fight and win, and said: "the definite defeat of the Soviet aggression against Finland will hurt our enemies in their military power as well as in prestige."

It is no secret that the Germans are annoyed and a bit perturbed by the trend of the Russo-Finnish fight or that many Germans entertain lively sympathies for Finland. Certainly the continuance of the war with the employment of ever larger Russian air and land forces will interfere with German plans to obtain supplies from Russia with which to support themselves in a long war under conditions of blockade.

Rumors of possible German efforts to mediate in the Russo-Finnish conflict received a measure of confirmation when German ministers at Moscow and Helsingfors were called to Berlin for a conference. After the conference, however, it was intimated the German government could see no basis for mediation.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

The Effects of Not Enough Thyroid Juice

When you see a boy or girl or an adult with a heavy body, short arms and legs, a thick, glossy skin, and a stupid expression on the face, you know that the individual is a cretin and that he has this appearance because of lack of thyroid juice.

Similarly, when you see an individual with a thin body and alert face, and bulging eyes, you know that the individual has goitre due to too much thyroid juice.

What many parents and others fail to realize, however, is that an individual may not have enough, or may have too much thyroid juice and because he has not the appearance, or outstanding symptoms, of the cretin or the goitre patient, his symptoms may not be recognized as due to lack of, or too much, thyroid juice.

It might be well to mention again the article by Dr. G. K. Wharton in the Canadian Medical Association Journal of "unrecognized hypothyroidism" (hypo means less, not enough, or lacking in).

The most common symptoms are fatigue, upsets of stomach and intestine, emotional disturbances and menstrual disorders. Other conditions frequently found when there is insufficient thyroid juice are some forms of arthritis, acne or pimples, and disturbances in growth.

While the coarse skin and stupid expression may not be present, there may be dry skin with a tendency to crack, eczema, and, as before mentioned, acne; dry, brittle hair and loss of outer third of the eyebrows. Instead of overweight, underweight may be present.

Dr. Wharton suggests that thyroid extract in small doses be given twice daily in these cases to see what the effect will be in correcting the above symptoms. If effect is noted, large doses can then be given.

Fatigue, not laziness, is a common symptom of lack of thyroid juice (hypothyroidism);; it apparently results from slowing of the rate which the body processes work, so that there is little or no reserve strength or power in the tissues.

Sometimes the symptoms due to lack of thyroid juice do not appear in women until the menopause (change of life), which accounts for the overweight, arthritis, tiredness, and other symptoms which are blamed entirely on the lack of ovary extract which occurs at the menopause.

The Treaty Alibi

Speaking at Newcastle-on-Tyne, the British War Minister reiterated the determination of the Allies to continue hostilities until Germany as a War Power was overcome and made reference to a recent statement by ex-Premier Hertzog of South Africa, which placed the responsibility for the war on the Treaty of Versailles. General Hertzog, suffering from an injured pride, practiced the art of political duplicity as Premier of South Africa for years. During his tenure he witnessed the successful development of the Union economy, made possible by Britain and the Dominions. Like all defeatists, the "operatic" General chooses his time to become overtly anti-British. This craven mentality is not a novelty.

The Treaty of Versailles was not sustained, not because its demands were harsh, but because they were not sufficiently severe. Today we are engaged in annihilating Hitlerism. Yesterday we should have destroyed Kaiserism. If those who framed the Treaty of Versailles realized the implications behind the policy of Bismarck, who in the eighteen sixties ravaged Denmark and Austria, and finally invaded France ,exacting an enormous tribute in gold and annexing Alsace-Lorraine, they would have made every article in the treaty absolute and airtight, and would have insisted that nothing short of "blood and iron" would compensate for default. The treaty restored Alsace-Lorraine to France, deprived Germany of territory in Europe acquired by aggression in the past, confiscated the German colonies, and in limiting the military strength of the Reich, required as a last measure reparations to make good the destruction and vandalism of the Hun invasion of France and Belgium. The reparations were whittled down from time to time, until finally the Lausanne Pact of 1932 reduced them by 90 per cent. Even then Germany did not pay.

By the Treaty of Frankfurt, ratified in 1871, Bismarck exacted from France an indemnity of one billion dollars, allowing three years for payment, and to enforce the demand, which was honored, German troops were in occupation of French territory. The Treaty of Brest-Litovsk signed under duress March, 1918, forced Russia to surrender and evacuate politically Ukraine, Esthonia, Finland and various islands in the Baltic. Other possessions were ceded to Turkey. By this treaty Russia lost one-fourth of her population, of her arable land, and of her railway system; one-third of her manufacturing industries, and three-fourths of her production in iron and steel were surrendered. Such were the terms exacted from France in 1871 and Russia in 1918 on the "blood and iron" principle by the German people, who squeal and protest against the harshness of the Treaty of Versailles. In these conditions one can imagine what the German terms might have been if Germany had won the Great War.

The League of Nations was established to give practical effect to the treaty. Mandated territories were put under its supervision, and revision of the mandates was within the power of the League. The racial and religious minorities were placed under its guardianship, as was also the question of universal disarmament. The most binding obligation of members of the League was the requirement of a guarantee not to go to war in disregard of its covenants until three months' arbitration and inquiry had elapsed. Germany dishonored the treaty in every vital particular.

The treaty was scarcely punitive in comparison to Frankfurt and Brest-Litovsk. Moreover, the establishment of the League of Nations, and the elasticity of its functions, were intended as a medium to investigate complaints and redress grievances if and when they arose, and were proven substantial. The enforcement of the treaty could have been affected by Britain and France were it not for lopsided and destructive neutral opinion. If international opinions were based on logical deductions, and considered in the light of cause and effect, the League of Nations would have been a success. But as soon as opinion is influenced by prejudice and policies of obstruction, the foundation of permanent peace must remain subordinate to the caprice of well meaning, but inordinately unrealistic, outsiders. Neutrals in the prosecution of peace or of war have a stupendous nuisance value. They rove away from the spirit of international enactments, and quibble about their legal technicalities. Attitudes of this nature undermined the League of Nations and nullified the object and purposes of the Treaty of Versailles. The co-mingling of maudlin sentiment, ignorance, and a positive genius for destructive interference, are qualities which are disabling in the futherance of peace, or the prosecution of war. Such qualities being negative and destructive, can do much harm, but little good. The Treaty of Versailles sought to bring about lasting peace. Hitler and his apologists cannot justify aggression by condemning the treaty. — Globe and Mail.

Getting the Mail Through

Some United States newspapers and commentators have been working themselves into a lather over what seems to them as the rape of American mail bags by British contraband searchers. They have been arguing that the sanctity of the sign "U. S. Mail" is something that must not be violated, war or no war.

It is unfortunate that this criticism should have been directed against Great Britain as strongly as it has since much of it must be based on misunderstanding.

The United States has previously recognized the right of a blockading power to search parcel post mail for contraband. Furthermore during the last war it recognized the right to check first class mail for such important things as securities and negotiable instruments of all kinds, an important form of contraband.

The British on their side have not only the strong legal argument, but they have vital necessity. The blockade is England's most important single campaign in her war against Germany. To make it effective she must take every possible means in her power to prevent contraband goods reaching Germany. When they check mail bags the British do not expect to find cannon and aeroplane. But large quantities of other important goods may be shipped easily by parcel post. If the mails were not watched the Germans could send large amounts of things they want, as British reports say they have been trying to do. The French Blockade Ministry has stated that in the last three months alone the United States mails have yielded $8,000,000 worth of contraband, besides over $75,000 in currency and cheques amounting to $425,000.

It is certainly not in the interest of the British to annoy the Americans, and they know it. They are not going to do anything that might affect susceptibilities in the United States unless it is necessary.

The same applies to the detention of ships at contraband control stations. Washington says that American ships have been held in many cases longer than vessels of other nations. That may be so, but it is hard to believe that there was not a reason for it. Some American correspondents in London say that the delay has been occasioned because the cargoes of American ships have not been covered by navicerts and also have been more diversified, necessitating longer examination. Against the best assurance that there is no intentional discrimination against the Americans is the interests of the British themselves.

It should not be hard to smooth out the difficulties. What is needed and what should not be hard to obtain is consideration and care by the British, understanding of war necessities on the part of the Americans. It is a first premise that the British will ask as little as they can, since American friendship is so vital for them.

Nor should it be so difficult for American critics to make allowances for the restrictions which Britain has to impose as part of her war plans. In many cases the strongest critics of the mail search are the same who in the past have bitterly attacked the "weakness" of the British Government toward Germany in recent years. Yet when Britain is engaged in a war with Germany they want to hinder the British war effort by keeping the American mail to Germany as a freely running stream under the British blockade dam. We think that the Washington and London Government will be able to soon reach an agreement since there does not seem to be grounds for a continuing dispute. — Montreal Standard.

Osculation and Inoculation

Said Ben Jonson: "A soft lip would tempt you to eternity of kissing."

Ben Jonson did not know about influenza, and he obviously did not know much about scientific enterprise.

For along came Dr. William G. Donald, of San Francisco, the other day to state that the spread of influenza on the University of California campus was due to kissing—"a mouth to mouth disease."

Flat on the heels of this came a rival claim from Dr. Simon L. Ketzoff, consultant for the San Francisco Institute of Human Relations: "If there is an influenza epidemic at the university—which there is not—I might suggest there has not been enough kissing lately." The heat generated by the Ben Jonson variety of kiss, he explained, will kill any lurking germs. Anyway, he added, no ordinary germ could get through the lipstick used by the average girl.

All of which is a dubious contribution to medicine, and a very bad one to romance.

If they are keen on settling this controversy there will be unquestionably evolved a kiss detector along the lines of a lie detector, and in such a grisly atmosphere science will be up against a dilemma almost insurmountable.

Tin Pan Alley alone will profit. For already one can well imagine a new one: "When love flies in the window, 'flu flies out the door." — Hamilton Spectator.

CHAPTER 19

Reunion and Premonition

A thousand fears assailed Claire as she crouched on the cot in the little secret room waiting for Roland to leave the flat. Listening intently, she could hear his voice mingled with those of Frau Weber and her daughter Lili. She twisted her handkerchief in her hands, fighting for self-control.

Suppose Bill Cameron should come while Roland was there? She had no doubt that Roland would immediately denounce him—call the brown-shirted police, and Cameron would be marched off to face a firing squad.

Claire had no way of knowing that Frau Weber had prepared against just such an eventuality. That a secret signal had been arranged which was passed on to Cameron. If he came stumbling into the place now, it would be only because he was closely pursued or had failed to see the narrow edge of white paper that had been slipped under the door, an end protruding into the hall. This was the signal arranged earlier in the day, the signal of danger.

To Roland or to any one else, it would appear to be merely a scrap of paper which had been carelessly dropped. To Cameron, it would mean that some one was in the flat—to stay in hiding until the paper was removed.

It was nearly 7:30 when Claire was starteld by a light tap on the wall and heard Lili calling in a low voice that the visitor had gone. Claire unlocked the lever which slid back the wall panel and stepped out into the bedroom.

Frau Weber was plainly nervous, although she tried to conceal it, she had taken up her knitting and her needles were flying, although Claire couldn't help but notice that she often glanced toward the outer door of the flat—the door through which Bill Cameron would come—if he came.

"Oh, Frau Weber, do you think anything's gone wrong?" Claire asked, her anxiety reflected in her voice.

"I don't know, my dear," the older woman answered, truthfully. "I do know, though, it was fortunate that Herr Cameron did not come a little early. If he had, he would have met Her Roland—and that would have been fatal."

She glanced at the door.

"The way is clear now," she went on. "I had a signal placed to warn Herr Cameron away if he had come while our visitor was here." She explained about the paper, and Claire saw that the floor under the door was now clear.

"What will I do if anything has happened to him?"

"We'll see that you get back to Paris," Frau Weber said.

"I'm not thinking about myself ......"

The buzzer sounded in the room and although it had been muffled so that it was barely discernible, it seemed so sharp, coming when it did, that the three women started up impulsively.

"Some one's coming. Get out of sight," the woman ordered, and Claire scurried into the bedroom, through the wall and slid the panel in place.

Straining her ears, she heard the front door open—the sound of voices. Then she heard the door slam shut. She had unlocked the panel was through the heavy chest and into the bedroom before Lili called her name.

"Clara! He is here!"

Claire sped through the room and stopped in consternation as she saw a tall man in Nazi uniform, crutches under his arms. Beside him stood a shorter man, also in Nazi Uniform. For a moment Claire didn't recognize Cameron, and then with a glad cry was in his arms, he was kissing her and tears were streaming from her eyes.

No word of love ever had been spoken between them, but it was as if deep affection always had been there, below the surface, needing just some incident to crystalize it.

"Oh, Bill, Bill!" the girl cried. "I thought I'd never see you again!"

"Dearest," Cameron murmured. "Dearest Claire."

The girl suddenly realized that she was held tightly in Cameron's arms. His crutches had fallen, unheeded, to the floor. She was conscious that Frau Weber and Lili were laughing and that the small man who had been Bill's guide was grinning broadly.

"Oh," she said, shyly. "Oh, dear, what am I doing?"

Lili, her mother and the man in Nazi uniform laughed aloud then, and Cameron joined in the laugh at their expense. Claire found herself laughing with them.

"Well, Herr Cameron," the other man said. "I must be off. Good luck to you and a safe journey."

"I can never thank you enough, Eric." Cameron said sincerely, holding out his hand. "If I ever can do anything for you......"

"If you can do something for Germany—the real Germany—sometime, Herr Cameron," the man said, "I will be a thousandfold repaid. If you can tell your government the true situation—how many of our people really feel but do not dare to speak anything we have been able to do will be well worth while. Good-bye."

He clicked his heels stiffly, saluted, did a military about-face and marched to the door. He opened it, went out, and shut it without turning around.

Frau Weber took charge then and told them they had better get closer to the hideout room.

"Some one may come," she warned. "We can't always depend on them stepping on the stair that sounds the buzzer. If they came in a hurry, should happen to miss it, they'd be on us without any more warning than the key in the lock."

Cameron agreed that it was foolish to risk capture or endanger the Webers needlessly, and Claire took him through the adjoining room and showed him where they could hide.

After he had carried his crutches into the hideout, and removed the heavy bandage which had been about his right foot, Cameron sat down with Claire in the bedroom and demanded the full story of how she had come to Berlin.

She told it as simply as she could but before she finished he was kneeling on the floor beside her, his arms about her.

"You darling child," he said softly. "You went through all that for me. Why—why did you do it?"

"Because I . . . " She stopped in confusion. "I think, Mr. Cameron," she said as primly as she ever had spoken to him when she was his confidential secretary, "you should explain why you have your arms about me."

"Because, Claire, I love you," he said, simply.

She leaned forward, her lips touching his and clinging to them for a moment.

"I love you, too Bill—my Bill—dear Bill". She finally had spoken aloud the words that had been in her mind so much in the last few days. Words that were engraved on her heart.

They clung together for several minutes, and then Claire pushed him gently away.

"You haven't told me yet," she said, "if you followed the instructions I was told to give you".

"I did. I pretended to break down, after word had reached me, and told them I was ready to talk if they would promise to see that I got safely out of the country. They promised, of course, and I put on a good act—I told them the whole plan, the date and everything, but I gave them the wrong time as your message instructed".

"Then what happened, dear?"

"They tossed me in a small room and locked the door. Later, some kind soul told me I was to be taken out and shot at seven o'clock tonight. Of course, I put up a yell—reminded them of their promise. They were very polite, but quite firm about it. They had the information they wanted. I was no further use to them alive—so . . ."

"My poor darling," Claire murmured. "How, then, did you get away?"

"Albert, my guard, slipped me a note later. It instructed me to make a terrific noise when he gave the signal. I was to demand to be taken to the commandant. My friends—or your friends, they must be—knew that the Nazis were none too certain of their ground and would at least give me a chance to make one last plea for my life. The note instructed me, when I was opposite the second corridor, to slug Albert and make a run for it. A plan was drawn out to show me how to get through a broken part in the wall where I would be met and helped".

"So that's what you did?"

"Yes. I hated to hit Albert, but he knew what I had to do and begged me to hit him hard enough to knock him senseless. Otherwise he would be summarily shot, he said. So when I swung suddenly on him, I gave him a good one. I hope he wasn't badly hurt."

He paused for a moment while his hand stroked Claire's brown hair.

"Eric was waiting outside the wall for me and hustled me into a car and we sped away. The uniform was in the car, and while he drove around I got out of my clothes and put it on. Then I adjusted the bandage on my foot, and took the crutches he gave me. When we reached the alleyway here near the apartment, he let me out and I waited in the shadows until he took the car several blocks away and came back for me. I had no idea where he was taking me—and I almost fell over when I saw you rushing out of that room, dear."

Frau Weber interrupted them and insisted that they go into the hideout.

"I have a strange feeling", she said, "that all of us are in great danger".

Cameron got to his feet and, with Claire leading the way, went into the small room. The girl slid the panel shut after them.

TRENTON and DISTRICT

Trenton, Feb. 7 (Special)—Wilfred H. Cooke, "alias" William A. Cook brought about his permanent expulsion from the R.C.A.F. service last Friday when he pleaded guilty to a charge of stealing $37 from a room in the barracks at the Trenton Air Station. Cooke was sentenced to six months definite and one year indefinite in the county jail by Magistrate Butler who had ordered him a week previous to pay $35.90 restitution as a penalty for conviction of a similar count. Cooke was on six months suspended sentence, when he came before the Magistrate on Friday and his criminal record did not lighten the penalty. The C.I.D. at Ottawa showed that Cooke had been convicted four times prior to his arrest last week, and his record reads: 1938, Mar. 6th., Vancouver, B.C., retaining stolen goods, 6 months from arrest. (2) burglary, 6 months from arrest concurrent as William H. Cook. 1938, Aug. 26th., Vancouver, B.C., retaining stolen goods, 3 months from Aug. 24, as William A. Cook. 1938, Nov. 25th., Vancouver, B.C., break and enter, 9 months from arrest, as William A. Cook. 1940, Jan. 26th., Trenton, Ont., theft suspended sentence, for 6 months, and make restitution, and pay costs totalling $35.90, as Wilfred H. Cooke.

Bill Spencer Better

A late report from the Toronto General Hospital indicates that principal Spencer's youngest son Billy is on the road to recovery, but will remain under the care of a Queen City doctor for at least another month. The youth was injured on Mount Pelion when the bob-sleigh he was riding left the runway and crashed into a tree. Other young people were on the sleigh at the time but young Spencer was the only one hurt.

The "Missionary Purpose of God" as revealed in the Old and New Testaments was the theme for the worship service, which was conducted by the leader, Mrs. T. Burnside, with several members assisting. The Study Book chapter, dealing with the Church of India as it is today was ably presented by Mrs. Caverly. The president, Mrs. Fox, in conducting the business period, asked for reports from the various departments. Thirty-four calls were reported for January. Various items of business were discussed and plans made for the work of the month. Closing exercises were conducted by the leader. A pleasant social period followed.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Law of the Pampas"

Swapping his lasso for the deadly boleadores of the South American plains and riding to the rhythm of fascinating Argentine tangos, "Hopalong Cassidy," in the person of William Boyd, rides the range of our great Southern neighbor in his latest outdoor action thriller, "Law of the Pampas," opening next at the Capitol Theatre. In this exciting tale of romance, family feuds and border warfare on a vast ranch in Argentina — with American cowboys battling outlaws from every corner of the earth—Boyd is assisted by the biggest-name cast he has had yet. In addition to Russell Hayden, who plays the energetic young "Lucky Jenkins," it includes Sidney Toler, as a comic gaucho, fiery Steffi Duna, as a dance hall girl, and Sydney Blackmer, popular screen "heavy," in another of his menace roles. This most elaborate of all "Cassidy" films offers four original songs: "Habanero,' "Rosita," "Los Gauchos" and "La Jornada," all sung by The King's Men, popular radio quartette, and the popular "Fantasia Argentina," sung and danced by Duna.

The companion feature on the same bill is the riotous comedy featuring the Higgins family in "Should Husbands Work," starring James Gleason, Lucille Gleason and Russell Gleason.

An added featurette, "First Days" which was made in England with the co-operation of the government shows how London looked during the first few days of the war.

AT THE McCARTHY

"Man from Montreal" and "Little Accident."

The McCarthy Theatre, in line with its policy of providing the best in motion picture entertainment for its patrons, announces that Baby Sandy in "Little Accident," a feature-comedy scream with a supporting cast of favorites including Hugh Herbert (the "woo woo" Hughie panic of fun), Florence Rice and Richard Carlson, two of Hollywood's most popular screen sweethearts and Edgar Kennedy, one of Belleville's best liked comedians will be presented next at the McCarthy Theatre with a second feature presentation a Canadian Mounted Police story entitled "The Man From Montreal," featuring Richard Arlen and Andy Devine with Kay Sutton, Anne Gwynne, Addison Richards and Joseph Sawyer.

"The Sisters"

Bette Davis and Errol Flynn are now showing at the McCarthy Theatre in "The Sisters" based on the famous novel by Myron Brinig. Our advice to you is "do not miss it;" it is one of the finest films in which the above two great stars have ever appeared and the supporting cast including Anita Louise, Ian Hunter, Donald Crisp, Beulah Bondi, Jane Bryan and Alan Hale all give excellent performances. Leon Errol in "Crime Rave" a laugh - crammed comedy and a Walt Disney technicolor Mickey Mouse cartoon, adds variety to the show and makes the program ideal entertainment from beginning to final fadeout.

A Nose For Beauty

MARY CARLISLE . . . . whose nose is an asset of her beauty.

By HELEN FOLLETT

GIRLS fuss everlastingly because they don't like the kind of a nose Mama Nature gave them. Grecian, Roman, snub or a sassy one; it does not give satisfaction. Silly flub-dub. Taking noses, by and large, they usually suit the face, get along agreeably with other features. They're just pet peeves with the young creatures.

Noses can be remodeled. Plastic surgery can do miracles. But the surgeon of good standing will not operate, as a rule, unless the feature is so disfiguring that it causes unhappiness. The operator must not only be highly skilled but he must have the eye of an artist, knowing beforehand what the new contour will do to the face in general.

When there are collapsed nostrils, the nose is narrow and pinched looking. Operation will improve breathing as well as appearance. A pronounced hump isn't pretty and the saddle nose is an affliction. The bulbous tip, wide nostrils and the nose that twists to one side are nothing to brag about. Girls who have 'em, hate 'em.

Plastic surgery is expensive, should be resorted to only in extreme cases that call for extreme measures. If one seeks the services of a specialist, it is wise to ask the family doc to recommend one. He will recommend a man of good standing in the medical profession.

Complexion troubles that are hardest to cure are the ones that come with advancing years. When the tissues have lost firmness, the skin is too loose and falls into fine lines. To tighten the skin and firm depleted tissues is no easy task— if it can be done at all, which is often doubtful.

Take out an insurance against the future by keeping the skin lubricated with a heavy cream, giving yourself a five-minute massage every night, using cold water freely every morning.

Could Hardly Breathe Due to Stomach Gas

"The first thing I want to say in this statement is that it is the truth, in each and every respect, and I will gladly verify it to anybody," said Mrs. Broadbent. "I had gotten into a real suffering condition with a sour, upset stomach. It made me sick to think of eating, and if I did try to eat I would simply be IN DISTRESS for hours afterward. Another thing, my kidneys were so sluggish that I had severe pains in my back and knees and legs. My rest was repeatedly broken up at night, due to this sluggish condition of my kidneys.

"I felt like I couldn't stand the suffering much longer, and the worst thing was that it looked like nothing could help me, as I tried medicine upon medicine but got no better. Finally I found Mosby's Tonic, and I am simply SURPRISED at what it has done for me. Why, after a FEW DOSES I could see a big change. I kept on with it and now eat my meals with a relish and no gas distress afterward. It invigorated my sluggish kidneys and relieved those back pains and I can sleep fine at nights. In short, I feel like a NEW PERSON, and I want to say to others who suffer as I did. "This is the medicine for you. I KNOW!"

Acts on Bowels, Stomach, Liver, Kidneys

MOSBY'S TONIC contains 20 Ingredients, including 15 Roots and Herbs. It acts on the bowels, stomach, liver, kidneys. Makes weak, worn out people feel different all over. The Stars Say

For Thursday, February 8

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

COMMOTION, excitement, sudden change or disruption prevail on this day, according to a very interesting, if ambiguous, chain of planetary configurations. The mental forces and faculties will be pitched to high levels of inspiration, progressive ideas and brisk action, with the physical energies ready to jump into harness to put over brilliant programs. New projects, based on innovation and novelty, being pursued vigorously, diligently and decisively, may have aspects of disruption and devastation prior to attaining high objectives.

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year of definite accomplishment, possibly in new fields of enterprise and with side issues of dusturbance, devastation and seeming disaster. But these are preliminary to uprooting old or static situations prior to rebuilding on modern and progressive foundations. Be prudent.

A child born on this day may be forceful, ingenious, keen and original in thought and audacious in action. It may have great initiatve in new and progressive lines.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

COURTESY PAYS—WITH A LIFE WITH A LEGACY

"Courtesy pays" is a compelling fact that sometimes takes us by surprise. If real consideration for other people has become a habit with us, we never can tell what rewards Fate holds in store.

Two recent news stores are thought-compelling lessons in the fact that courtesy—kindness, etiquette, consideration for other people, call it what you will—pays enormous premiums.

The heroine of the first news story is fourteen-year-old Lucy Bertucci who saved the life of six-year-old Harry Clarke. Harry, in his hazardous pursuit of wishing to be a sea captain when he grows up, fell off a pier into fifteen feet of water. Lucky saw him struggling unhesitatingly jumped in, grabbed Harry by the hair and towed him to shore. She refused to be considered a heroine, said modestly, "I just did what I learned in school . . in our etiquette lessons. "So Harry owes his life to Lucy and her etiquette lessons, learned in the eighth grade of the Visitation Parochial School.

Again, William J. Reilly, formerly chief usher at the Roxy Theatre in New York, received the $500,000 legacy left him in the will of Mrs. Edna Morss Allin Elliott. Because of his exceptionally courteous manner, Mr. Reilly won the promotion to chief usher at this large movie theatre, and because he was an exceptionally courteous chief usher, he won the admiration and gratitude of a patron, Mrs. Elliott. Mrs. Elliott died on September 23, 1938, and in her will left Mr. Reilly $500,000 "in appreciation of his kindly and courteous acts".

Mrs. Elliott was apparently a woman who had a seeing eye and an understanding heart for courtesy and consideration, for she also bequeathed to Miss Rosalie Knisbern, a dancer, the tidy sum of $53,000 as a bow of appreciation for Miss Knisbern's "kindly deeds".

Not Proper

Dear Mrs. Beeckman,

Will you kindly let me know if it would be improper for a mother to announce her son's engagement, since the girl has no mother, and she lives many miles away?

C.

It is not proper for the fiance's mother to announce the engagement. This announcement should be made by some member of the girl's family. If the father of your grandparents or (a grandparent), or would be the one to make the announcement; if he is not living, her sons' fiancee is living, by all means her aunt and uncle might make this announcement.

Courtesy Tip

Children should be taught that "Hello" should be used only when they greet other children. When they greet grown-up people, they should say, "How do you do", followed by the name of the person whom they are greeting.

Out of Our Mail Bag

Last week I got a letter from a woman in one of the western States who wants me to send her the tail of one of my old shirts. What she wants it for she didn't say. The week before another woman wrote me a plea for money to put her boy through college. Every day I get similar letters with all sorts of unusual and surprising requests. Naturally, I look forward to my mail bag every morning with the greatest interest.

It used to be that I tried to fulfill all the simple requests made of me by correspondents. But too often when I sent along a photograph, or a donation of some sort, it caused me to get a whole flood of similar requests from the immediate neighborhood of the beneficiary, so I had to adopt a rule about these material requests that I receive.

Some of the requests come from persons who seem to think I know a lot more than I do. One stranger in a Southern State wrote me, asking me to advise him on investments in gold mines here in this part of Ontario. "I might invest a small amount up to $100,000.00 on your recommendation," he said.

Of course, I didn't attempt to advise him about gold stocks.

Another man seemed to think that I keep close track of all the thousands of tourists who visit Callander every year. His letter said, in part,—

"Dear Sir,—Please send me information about a lady of the name of Marie S—— who should have been to see the Quints in 1935. She left me at the Johnson Hotel saying she was going to Callander and I haven't been able to find any trace of her since——"

Well, I am as curious as the next person, I suppose. I would like to locate Marie and find out why she left her friend and didn't return, but finding the needle in a haystack would be easy in comparison to checking up on whether she came to Callander. We have about a quarter of a million tourists every June, July and August.

Some of my correspondence moves me only to pity, for it comes from people whose minds are affected—every person whose name gets into the papers recurrently, gets mail from such "fanatics". One man wrote me last summer to say that he was mentioned in the Bible along with the Quintuplets who were five angels. He thought if the Quins would work along with him, he could make all the multimillionaires in the world give up all their money and their jewels so that the poor people wouldn't be poor any longer.

Well, I must say that if poverty could be abolished so easily in this world I'm sure the Quintuplets would be glad to work along with any one.

Some amusing malapropisms appear in the letters. A woman, writing a compliment on the care the staff has given the Quins,—"— they have had kind nurses to look after them. God has blessed you too, Doctor for your loving care of them. Could I buy a picture of them? I just love little children and President Roosevelt suffers from the same complaint. . ."

I'm afraid I can't feel much sympathy for either this writer of this letter or President Roosevelt if their only "complaint" is that they love little children. I suffer keenly from it myself.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

She Gave Up Her Friends and Hobbies For Him

Dear Miss Fairfax—

I am 19 years of age and went steady with a young man my own age, for about ten months. I have given up all my hobbies and friends to please him. Whenever other boys asked me to go out I refused because I loved this one so much.

Shortly before Christmas we had a quarrel on account of his habit of breaking dates which he thought he had the right to do. I let it pass a few times, but then we broke up because of this failing of his. I even gave him money when he needed it, as he is very fond of playing cards.

Now I've come to the point where I want to forget entirely what a fool I've been, but it's so hard He is employed at the same place of business with me, so I have to see him occasionally there. He also tells me not to bother him any more, that he doesn't want to see or hear of me again.

I'm so unhappy, Miss Fairfax, because you see I still love him. How can I forget him?

B.

Where is your pride, my dear girl?—that sense of self-respect which keeps one from joining the doormat guild. The young man has proved conclusively he is not interested in you. And as for borrowing money with which to play cards, if he had no other shortcomings, that stamps him as undesirable.

Cultivate a little egotism and make friends who are more appreciative.

Perhaps He's Too Humble With the Girls

Dear Miss Fairfax—

When I was just out of high school I thought I was in love, but all of a sudden something broke us up. I was heartsick over it, until I found out it was because I wasn't good-looking. Since then I've met another girl, who's very sensible and now I really know what love is.

But now this girl is beginning to change toward me. I don't know why, and I can't ask her outright. I think I'll write her a letter, but I can't get beyond "Dear——". If something doesn't happen soon, I'll go crazy. She told me herself, at one time, that she liked me very much. We're both 21 years old, and have many things in common. Please tell me how to gain her confidence. I just can't give her up.

Jim.

If there were only space in this column I could give you the names of scores of homely men, about whom women have been "crazy", men who have had world wide reputations as charmers. So, my dear young friend, it can't be your appearance. Perhaps when you go over to see these girls you go too humbly, and no woman can forgive excessive humility on the part of a suitor.

Things have a way of seeming final at 21, but it's only youth and a lack of knowledge about how to play this game we call living. Suppose you let the young lady severely alone for a while. Girls have a way of never realizing they care for a boy until he stops being attentive. My advice is to be more assertive with girls in general.

An Affair of Long Standing

Dear Miss Fairfax—

My father and his best man have been friends ever since before their marriage. The best man was married later, and they have a daughter in whom I've become interested. We have been visiting back and forth at each other's homes for years now. The last time they came, during the holidays, the girl and I went riding and I put my arm around her and wanted to kiss her. I thought there'd be no harm in that, since we've practically grown up together. She refused to let me kiss her and I'm afraid I've hurt her feelings. I am crazy about her, and I thought she liked me. She's so good and sweet, and I believe I'm the first boy she ever went out with. She is 17 and I'm 18.

I've had a couple of letters from her since they left, but it seems to me they aren't as friendly as they used to be. I'm terribly worried about the matter, and hope you can help me out.

C.

I don't think you need worry about this affair. The girl is probably a little shy, and is as frightened as you are, and perhaps she thinks you are angry because she wouldn't allow you to kiss her. You both seem very young, and if you don't mind my saying so, I'd advise you to forget all about the little flash of love-making when you are writing to her and make your letters bright, full of news about school and town gossip.

"They take away BABY'S TEETHING FEVER"

SO writes Mrs. B———, of North Sydney. Then a Toronto mother says: "I used Baby's Own Tablets and the babies were always so good. No cramps, pain or trouble when teething. In fact, I hardly knew they were cutting their teeth as they never were any trouble at night."

Baby's Own Tablets are quick, safe and effective, sweet-tasting and easy to take. Contain no opiates or stupefying drugs. Try Baby's Own Tablets not only for teething troubles but also for colds, constipation, upset stomach and other simple ailments of babyhood. 25 cents. Your money refunded if you are not satisfied.

The "Late" Miss Smith
Isn't late any more!
"How can I be early when I even wake feeling tired?" she used to say. Many people have this dull feeling that drags on them like a ball and chain.
Often the cause is a sluggish system—due to too little "bulk" in the diet.
Post's Bran Flakes help to prevent this trouble. They provide bulk in the form of bran—the natural regulator—to keep food wastes moving promptly.
"Now I eat Post's Bran Flakes regularly," says Miss Smith, "I'm always right on my toes. And how delicious they are, too!"

HELP keep your family free from the effects of faulty elimination by serving Post's Bran Flakes regularly. They are so appetizing, wholesome and convenient. If this does not readily relieve constipation due to insufficient bulk in the diet, it's time to consult a physician.

Women's Christian Association Concludes Sixty Years Of Service to Community

Local Organization Has Splendid Record in the Public Welfare of the City—the Sick and the Aged Have Been Cared for Through the Purchase and Maintenance of a Home for the Aged as Well as Providing a Hospital for the Sick—Work is Carried on Only Through Efficient Management and Kindly Interest of the Members of the W.C.A.

Maintaining to its fullest efficiency the widespread community service that has made it unique among organizations throughout the entire province, the Women's Christian Association yesterday concluded a proud record of sixty years' endeavours for the welfare of the city.

From a small beginning arising through the Christian charity of women of Belleville, the association has progressed through tireless effort and often discouraging circumstances to the realization of its aims of caring for the poor, the sick and the aged by organized relief work, the building of a hospital that has grown with the times and the purchase of a modern residence for Belleville's aged.

Throughout its sixty years the Association has received the support of women who have the welfare of the city at heart and the record of the organization's achievements is the story of their unselfish and tireless devotion to an ideal.

Yesterday's meeting was in charge of the President, Mrs. Van Blaksiee, and was opened with prayer by Rev. C. T. Olmstead.

A splendid picture of the past year for the W.C.A. was given in the report of the Recording Secretary, Mrs. W. N. Hurst, which follows,—

60th Annual Report of the Women's Christian Association

This year, I have the honour of presenting to you the 60th annual report of the Women's Christian Association of the City of Belleville. It has been a most satisfactory and successful year under the most competent leadership of the President, Mrs. Blakslee, to whom we express our sincere appreciation of her most untiring interest and work.

All the departments have functioned most efficiently.

The Home for the Aged owned by the W.C.A. is a flourishing institution, (providing a home for several elderly people). It is operated under the very capable direction of Mrs. A. E. Purdy, chairman of the Home Board, Mrs. Harry Thompson, assistant chairman, and the Board of twelve members, whose activities have been most commendable during the past year.

The W.C.A. is proud in the ownership of the Hospital, and while it has no power of management, is very interested in that organization. It is most gratifying that the new wing is nearing completion, as there is a great need for more accommodation for patients, and also that the City of Belleville is to have an adequate Isolation unit in the East Wing of the building. The members of the W.C.A. have voted $100 to the hospital for furnishing rooms in the new wing in memory of the late Mrs. R. J. Bell and the late Mrs. F. B. Smith.

To the Board of Governors, on which there are five members appointed by the W.C.A. we extend a hearty vote of thanks for their untiring efforts, interest and time given, especially at the present time, in connection with the new building. The financial reports, presented at each monthly meeting by Mr. Friesen, administrator, are most gratifying.

The W.C.A. expresses deep regret in the passing of Mr. Fairfield and appreciates the valuable services rendered by him on the Hospital Board.

The Hospital Auxiliary, deserves a great deal of credit for their excellent work.

The City Council and W.C.A. are fortunate in having Miss Helena Lynch as chairman of Indigent Committee. Due to present conditions her duties are arduous.

To the members of the Advisory Board the W.C.A. is indeed grateful. They are always willing to lend their valuable assistance in making decisions and offering advice, whenever called upon to do so. The W.C.A. deeply regrets the passing of Mr. R. J. E. Graham, who for seven years was a valued member of the Advisory Board.

The W.C.A. greatly appreciated the generous gifts from the estate of the late Mrs. F. B. Smith of $1,000 to the hospital and $500 to the Home for the Aged.

The W.C.A. is a civic organization, undenominational, and carries on a worthy work in the city. It holds monthly meeting on the first Tuesday and every organization should have representatives at the meetings.

We ask for the prayers, interest and co-operation of all.

This report is respectfully submitted.

Louise Hurst.

Mrs. G. A. Morton, corresponding secretary, reported sixty-one letters written during the year and the publication of accounts of all meetings in the local press.

Details of the work of the upkeeps of the Belleville Home for the Aged were given in the following report of the Chairman, Mrs. A. E. Purdy,—

Home For the Aged

During the year 1939, the Board of Management for the Belleville Home for the Aged, has done its utmost to make this institution a real home and happy place of refuge for the inmates, many of whom have previously known little happiness and comfort.

At present there are sixteen inmates, four female, twelve male, during the year, two were admitted, one discharged and two transferred to another institution.

Last August the board fence enclosing the garden was replaced by a stone and cement one. The stone work on the main building was all repointed and the chimneys repaired. The Board wishes to thank Dr. Jack Marshall as he was instrumental in having the City Engineer have this work done by the unemployed.

A new iron fireman was installed in the Home. This has greatly improved the heating conditions of the building.

Our appreciation is extended to all who have remembered the inmates with gifts and entertainment, particularly Col. P. H. Wills, who bought a new suit for each of the men at Christmas, also the St. Julien Chapter of I.O.D.E., Belleville Fair Board, Girl Guides, St. Michael's, Queen Mary School, Dr. and Mrs. Bunting, Dr. Semple and Mrs. Ackerman.

To the doctors and clergy of the city, we are grateful for looking after the old folks.

I would like to thank each member of the Board for her splendid co-operation through the year, particularly Mrs. Thompson who so kindly took complete charge during my absence in the summer months, also to Mrs. Palmer, the matron, for her kindliness to the inmates and her co-operation with the management at all times.

This report is respectfully submitted,

B. M. Purdy,

Board of Management, Belleville Home for the Aged.

Reporting for the Magdalene and Jail phase of W.C.A. work Mrs. Alderman showed what is being accomplished through understanding and warm hearted friendship for those girls and women whose misdeeds have caused them to be inmates of the jail. Mrs. Alderman's splendid report said,—

Magdalene and Jail

It is my pleasure to have the privilege of visiting the inmates in the Women's Ward of the local jail. Mrs. French calls me each time a woman or girl comes into the institution.

The ward and cells have been newly painted and decorated. There is nothing drab about the colours, they are bright and cheery, and the place is always lovely and clean. The sun streams in the windows and there is nothing that would suggest, a place of punishment or the dreaded dungeons of years gone by.

The inmates are very comfortable. They cook their own meals and do their own work. They have good reading, books and magazines, and the Bible is always before them.

I want to say here, that the prisoners speak very highly of Mrs. French and of her kindness to them. I don't think there could be anybody more like a mother to them. One woman, the other day, said, "I don't know how I could have put in these first few days, if it had not been for Mrs. French. She found me something to do. She has been very kind". I have never heard one complaint either about their quarters or of the treatment they have received while in jail.

There were twenty women, who served time last year. Some of them, of course, blame the law, or the officers for picking them up, and feel they should have been let alone. They are only sorry for being in jail, not because of what they have done wrong. Others feel bad because of their wrong doings and say that "they deserve their punishment" and I feel are truly repentant.

Most of the cases are for liquor troubles or misconduct while under the influence of liquor. This is a terrible curse that our country is going to have to answer for in the coming days, and the people who encourage them in their wrongs don't come across and pay the fines.

I have tried to tell them, that it is the devil's game and the devil's pay. I try to encourage them to turn over a new leaf and seek the I take them fruit and candy. I pray with them all. We never talk church creeds. There are those of different faiths but I'm made welcome by all and I will endeavour to do all that I possibly can from time to time to point them to the Saviour of the World, who can make them into better citizens.

(Signed) Mrs. Major Alderman.

Hospital's Progress

Mr. Gordon Friesen, administrator of Belleville General Hospital, which was built and is owned by the Women's Christian Association, gave a most interesting survey of the growth of the hospital during the past five years. Progress has been marked, especially in the period since 1937. During January 1940, the hospital reached an all time high for activity. One hundred and fifty-one patients had to be accommodated at one time and some adroit arrangements had to be made, with the board room ready to be utilized as an emergency room in case of a highway accident.

Over crowding had decreased a little but the hospital is still so busy that it is easy to see that the addition is being built none too soon. Mr. Friesen explained that progress was being made on the building structure. When completed the new part will contain twenty-five private rooms, eighteen semi-private beds, a delivery room, operating room, nursery, emergency room, central supply room, laboratory, X-ray room.

The Hospital Alumnae is providing a Children's Ward, a nursery is being donated and an isolation hospital will be included, through the city of Belleville. Several individuals and organizations have already offered to furnish rooms and such donations will be keenly appreciated.

Other improvements planned are renovating the kitchen and dining room.

Miss Thompson, director of the School of Nursing, gave an interesting report of the work of the School which had received high commendation from the provincial inspector of nursing schools, who praised the improved quarters for nurses, the changed curriculum and more adequate teaching facilities. The School is now affiliated with the Children's Memorial Hospital, Montreal, instead of the Shriners' Hospital.

Indigent Committee

Miss Helena Lynch, chairman of the Indigent Committee, reported that of the Corby Christmas order $95 had been expended in fuel (36 1-2 tons of coal and 6 1-2 cords of wood) and $15 in food. Seventy-five yards of cotton and seventy-four yards of flannelette had been purchased.

Miss Lynch said that 191 baskets were distributed by churches and organizations at Christmas-time and explained the condition of relief in the city.

Mrs. G. F. Stewart, presided for the election of officers during which Mrs. Van Blakslee was unanimously re-elected president in tribute to her faithful and efficient work as presiding officer.

Petes Easily Defeat Redmen In Last Scheduled Game Between Clubs This Season

Score is 10-2 With the Winners Always in Front Due to Weakened Lineup of Losers

PETES SHOW SPEED

McCreary and St. Louis Carry Load for Redmen Playing Entire 60 Minutes

Playing wide open hockey from the outset, Peterboro handed the Belleville Redmen a 10 to 2 set-back in the competing clubs final meeting of the Intermediate O.H.A. ranks for the current season at the Hume arena last night. The Petes' victory marked their fourth consecutive win over the red-shirted Belleville sextette in as many games played and assured the Buckland-led Petes of no worse than a tie for first place in the group standing, regardless as to the result of future group games scheduled. The second-placed Air Force "Flyers" journey to the Liftlock City for a battle on Friday night.

Icing a make-shift team composed of players garnered from various rural leagues, the Redmen battled the speedy Petes courageously and won the admiration of 400 faithful fans in their vainless effort. Sensing a weakened Belleville lineup, Coach Buckland, of the Petes, moved four players to the attack as the game got under way with Alex Weir of Brighton, handling the pastime as Referee McAlpine, of Oshawa, was late in arriving, but who officiated the final two sessions. The Petes gained early reward for their offensive play as they scored two goals in the first few minutes of play. Later Belleville settled away to outplay the visitors in the latter part of the initial frame, that saw Howie score on a three-ply combination play and the period ended at 2-1 for the Petes.

Added Three in Middle Period

The Petes added three more in the middle session as they drove hard in an early attack and with the score standing at 5-1, the Petes broke away to score five in the last session, while Storms scored for the home team as the result of some fine stick-handling around the Petes' net. The Petes scoring points were well divided, their final five counters came as the result of breakaway plays as the Redmen moved five players to the attack, leaving Watt, in the Belleville net, practically unprotected throughout. The Petes' speed and rapid passing plays left the locals bewildered and helpless before the visitors' undiminished attack.

The veterans, St. Louis and McCreary, headed the Redmen in their final attempt to gain at least one victory over the Petes this season, with Watt, Storms, Windsor and Crawford following in line. For the Petes Gardner, Ellis and Crowe gave Harding plenty of protection in the Petes' nets, while Art Heale sparked the Buckland lads with continued turns of speed. Kingdon, Coughlin, Blewett and Starr also shone and played fast steady hockey. A minor scuffle between McCreary and Tompkins in the last session was the only excitement seen.

The shots on net by periods were:

Indianapolis Player Jumps Into First-Place Tie in Scoring Race

New Haven, Conn. Feb. 7.—(AP) — Ronnie Hudson, scoring sparkplug of the league-leading Indianapolis capitals, added three points to his season total during the last week and climbed into a first-place tie with New Haven's Tony Hemmerling for scoring honors in the International — American Hockey League.

League statistics released today credited Hudson with a goal and two assists during the week and Hemmerling, kept out of his club's last two games by illness, added but one goal for the 41-point total each has.

Norm Schults of Springfield added five points to his total and was pressing the leaders with 38.

JOE BEATON SETS PACE IN ENGLISH HOCKEY LEAGUES

Nova Scotia Star Leads Point - Scorers — Native-Born Players Round Into Form

London, Feb. 7.—(CP)—Rugged Joe Beaton, Nova Scotia's only representative in English hockey, collected nine goals and eight assists to top the point-getters in the four-team National Tournament, according to statistics just released.

Graduate of Charlottetown, P.E.I. in the Maritime "Big Four" circuit which produced the Allan Cup winning Moncton Hawks, Beaton proved a healthy contribution to the victory of his Harringay Greyhound team-mates in this second round of Old Country hockey.

Racers won the season's opening tournament—the London Cup. The final fixture the National League program, now under war, has seen the revival of a fifth club, Wembley Monarchs. There is talk of still another round of play to be called the London Provincial League which would include teams from Brighton, Nottingham and Bristol and possibly several teams from the Canadian Active Service Force at Aldershot.

While Beaton amassed the best total, a couple of Winnipeggers, displayed the best markmanship with Alex Archer, Wembley Lions, notching 11 goals and Dunc Cheyne, Greyhounds, 10.

Canadians Dominate

Canadians still dominate the top of the points column, but some of the native players, inserted in the game this season to make up for a dearth of overseas stars due to the war, are adding some impressive totals. Take young George Greene, 23-year-old product of Wembley's junior development program. With five goals and four assists he ranks above many of his "colonial cousins" supposed to be born with skates on. And George, whose big ambition is to take an English team to Canada and beat the hockey Dominion in its own rinks, has never seen natural ice except for the fleeting shell forming sometimes on Hyde Park's Serpentine.

Another Englishman, Maurice Simon, showed the best net-minding record, allowing only 17 shots to penetrate his barrier. But the racers out in front failed to take advantage of his example and the team only stayed out of the cellar by one point.

Two Free-for-All Fights and a Charging Penalty Keep Fans in an Uproar

BILL COWLEY STARS

Jack Adams' Team Has Not Been Defeated in Last Seven Games

By JACK CALDER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Look out for Bill Cowley, the blond and personable centre from Ottawa, via Halifax, as Boston Bruins drive down the National Hockey League stretch in pursuit of the leading New York Rangers.

At this time last season Cowley had scored three goals and contributed 15 assists to the Bruin cause. When the schedule ended, after most of the all-star teams had been picked, Bill had eight goals and 34 assists and had leaped from far down the list to third among the league's individual pointmakers. In the playoffs he led everyone with three goals and 11 assists as Boston won the world championship.

Last night Cowley popped in two quick goals and the Bruins swept to a 6-2 success over the Rangers before 15,000 howling customers at Boston. Their first victory over the blueshirts this season lifted the unpredictable bears to within a point of the leaders and brought the slippery Cowley his tenth goal and 26th point to date.

Fired Loose Puck.

Cowley fired a loose puck past Davie Kerr after six minutes and then sliced his way through the Ranger team from his blueline in the second period to make the lead 2-0. Scrapping with the Bruins and arguing with the officials, the Rangers fought in a hopeless cause after that and Kerr took his worst beating of the campaign.

Red Hamill made it 3-0 before the second ended and Herbie Cain scored another Boston goal midway through the third. Neil Colville finally punched in a New York counter but Woody Dumart and Milt Schmidt came right back with goals that put the Bruins up 6-1. Alf Pike hammered a meaningless Ranger score fourteen minutes from the finish.

The clubs staged a free-for-all fight in the bitter first period and Johnny Crawford of the Bruins drew a misconduct penalty for arguing the wrong way. Cowley drew a major in the second for charging Kerr and the rival captains, Dit Clapper of Boston and Art Coulter of New York, got major sentences in the third for precipitating another free-for-all.

Wings Stop Amerks.

Detroit Red Wings extending their string to seven games without defeat, stopped the Americans 3-1 at New York despite the brilliance of Eddie Shore. The Wings climbed to within two points of the fourth-place Chicago Black Hawks.

Shore sped away from his defence position to tie the score at 1-1 in the second period after Mud Bruneteau had scored for Detroit in the eighth second of play on a dash from the opening face-off. Captain Ebbie Goodfellow and Syd Howe scored for Detroit in the third, however, and Goalie Tiny Thompson was brilliant in the face of American drives led by Nels Stewart.

Toronto Maple Leafs, gradually being left behind by Boston and the Rangers, staged a minor shake-up in an attempt to improve their scoring punch. Hank Goldup, who has gone like all get-out since being farmed to Pittsburgh, was recalled from the International-American League club in exchange for two other young forwards, Billy Taylor and Red Heron.

The Giants admit Mel Ott is a hold-out and Bill Terry has turned him over to Horace Stoneham to sign . . . Mello Bettina imported one of his seconds all the way from Miami for the Apostoli fight last week . . . Dave Castilloux, the lightweight who doesn't smoke or drink, is saving his dough to buy a tavern in Montreal . . . National Baseball League teams will play 42 night games this summer.

CANADIAN BOXERS HOLD THEIR OWN IN FAST BOUTS

Maxie Berger of Montreal Wins Unanimous Decision Over Johnny Rinaldi

FRANKLIN DRAWS

Hamilton Ontario Boxer Tackles Tough One in Harry Balsamo

New York, Feb. 7.—(CP)—Canadian boxers more than held their own in hard-fought bouts here last night before sell-out crowds.

Maxie Berger, clever Montreal welterweight, pounded his way to a unanimous eight-round decision over Johnny Rinaldi of New York before a capacity crowd of 6,000 at the Broadway Arena in Brooklyn.

At the Bronx Coliseum, Walter Franklin, hard-hitting middleweight from Hamilton, Ontario, battled the "belting brakeman" Harry Balsamo of New York to a draw in the eight-round main bout before a crowd of 13,000.

Berger, fighting his first bout since his wedding last December, found a tough opponent in the bull like Rinaldi. Maxie weighed 142 1-2 pounds, 1 1-4 less than his opponent.

Berger began to flash some of his old style after the fifth round and punished Rinaldi with a hard left.

The Montrealer ran away with the last two rounds when he brought into play his right hand, opening a bad cut over Rinaldi's right eye. The Italian was in bad shape at the end of the bout.

In the Coliseum bout, Franklin at 162 1-2 was 1 1-2 pounds lighter than Balsamo. The Canadian brought his heavy artillery into play to floor the Italian for a count of five in the opening round.

Balsamo, reputed to have one of the hardest right hands in the business, did little damage to Franklin. He was penalized two rounds for low punching, Referee Al Reich awarding Franklin the fourth and seventh rounds.

Balsamo suffered cuts over the right eye and right cheek in the third round.

Root Pitched Way Out of Paper Mill To Big Time Greatness With Chicago

(By Central Press Canadian)

Baseball's champion globe - trotter pitched his way out of the Ohio paper mills.

Charles Henry Root was born in the shadow of the mills on the outskirts of a factory town, Middletown, O. In those days Middletown was a village with a big paper factory, several lumber mills and a scattering of homes for the mill workers. In one of them lived young Charley. He was ambitious, determined to get what he wanted.

Through the next few years Charley was first a pattern designer and then a factory hand in one of the paper mills. Saturday afternoons he pitched for the factory baseball team. He lay awake nights dreaming of far places, of travel, the adventure he wanted most in the world. At last the chance came. Young Charley started the upward trail through the semi-pro class to the minors and the major baseball leagues.

Charley Root had the patience to wait and the ambition to keep hammering away while apparently standing still. The important point is, he never gave up. Baseball is ever-watchful for men of Root's stripe and calibre. No community is enough isolated to hold for long the secret of a major "find." And Root was good before he left the mill town. Any boy with a superior pitching arm who works as Root worked to develop its stamina and cunning can get a crack at the major leagues.

Chicago's Cubs brought Root into the fold after five years in the minors. Cool, methodical, unruffled. Charley Root became the ace of the Cub mound staff, the inevitable starter in a tough series, the sure-fire relief man in the pinches.

Root is now in his 16th year in the majors. He has won nearly 200 games and has been in four world series. In 1927 he won 26 games.

Charley Root was—and is—the dean of the Cub mound staff. Through the years he put away his rich earnings—in good securities, real estate and in the bank. He bought a 1,300-acre ranch in California and then began, in the off-seasons, to satisfy his yearnings for travel.

He journeyed to Australia, Hawaii and Europe and then went back again to see the things he had missed the first time. Root still makes pilgrimages abroad retaining his reputation as the most widely travelled ball player.

As the Picton juniors are scheduled to play at home on Friday night, Coach Larry Goyer's Picton charges flatly refused to postpone tonight's Picton at Belleville junior tussle 24 hours, as was advertised. "You'll play the game tonight or not at all. We are not going to meet the strong Belleville team on Thursday and then battle Trenton on Friday." Coach Goyer told Secretary Jack Yanover over the telephone this morning, which simply means junior hockey will ensue at the Hume Arena tonight instead of Thursday, as previously announced. Incidentally the game was originally scheduled for tonight, but as there had been O.H.A. games on Monday and Tuesday, President Bill Cook and his henchmen deemed it advisable to postpone tonight's game 24 hours. However, tonight's game marks the final junior O.H.A. game of the current group schedule and with the exception of one more intermediate game next week, tonight's Picton at Belleville rings down the regular group scheduled games. Last week the rejuvenated Picton teams beat Trenton 5 to 2 so the Quintes had better be looking to their laurels tonight, especially after their mediocre showing of Monday night.

There is little to say when the home team gets trounced 10 to 2 on their own ice, except to admit the visitors were just too good—and that's exactly what took place at the Hume Arena last night, when the Petes drove hard to beat the Redmen by eight goals. However, the last five counters can be discounted as they came as the result of break-away plays as the locals moved five men to the offence in a futile effort to haul down the score. Thus far this season the Petes have scored 67 goals in seven games played, during which they've won six and lost but one decision. The Air Force beat the Petes 2-1 once. Some credit must be given to Skipper "Speedy" St. Louis and those players who stuck to the ship knowing full-well there was little chance in victory after Eddie Thomas announced his retirement. It was no great credit for the Petes to pile up ten goals against a team that was of the make-shift calibre and composed mostly of players drafted from various rural leagues in order to fulfil the schedule.

Referee Scotty McAlpine, veteran Oshawa defenceman, was late in arriving so Alex Weir of Brighton, tooted the whistle (and very softly at that) for the initial period. However, when McAlpine took over he allowed a goal scored by Jim Ellis, after some dispute and following which the Peterboro goal judge was removed. Later when Storms and McCreary combined to score what appeared to be exactly the same calibre of a counter, Referee McAlpine ruled "no goal," despite the fact the goal judge flashed his light. The goal made no difference at any stage, but the similarities of the two incidents brought criticism upon the official's head.

Neither of the Jackson boys put in an appearance for the final game against Peterboro. It is stated that Bill Jackson sustained an injury at the last practice held by the Redmen and brother Clayton refused to play unless Bill lined-up last night. The incident was regrettable from all angles.

Nile Kinnick, Iowa University's All-American football star, who was presented with the Maxwell Memorial Award in Philadelphia last week in token of his selection as the nation's outstanding gridder was Bob Feller's battery-mate during the Cleveland flinger's high school days. "Bob and I went to school together at Adel, Ia.," Kinnick said. "Bob was the team's star pitcher and I was the catcher. He had plenty of zip on the ball then and he would nearly knock my knuckles off. The high school kids he pitched against were scared to death of Bob's fast one and I can't say I blame them."

Do you remember when 'way back in the days only sport fans of the horse-and-buggy era will remember, John L. Sullivan knocked out Paddy Ryan in the ninth round at Mississippi City, Miss., 58 years ago tonight, and claimed the world heavyweight boxing title. He later won universal recognition by defeating Jake Kilrain in a 75-round epic at Richburg, Miss., in the last fight under bare-knuckle rules.

The City softball moguls will be in session at the Aajmaa Club tonight when the annual election of officers will be the main issue of the evening. Other items on the agenda will include a discussion on proposed amendments to the O.A.S.A. constitution, the treasurer's report and general business discussions for the well-being of softball in general. Several new clubs are expected into the fold next summer, but tonight's conclave should throw much light on the newcomers and their intentions.

With his eye-sight so badly affected that he was discharged from the Air Force, "Tonypandy Tommy" Farr looms on the boxing horizon again to say he'll fight champion Joe Louis next summer. Farr must have plenty of courage because he took a severe beating at the hands of the champ in their last meeting, following which it was announced Farr's eyes had become severely affected as the result of the punishment he was subject to. However, Farr gained the admiration of the fans and with poor eyesight or otherwise he will prove as popular a contender as Mike Jacobs can dig up anywhere in this realm. On Friday night at Madison Square Gardens Louis defends his heavyweight crown against Arturo Godoy, the Chilean heavyweight titlist, who may be more chilly than Chilean before the scrap is over. Recently Champion Joe Louis was selected as the "Outstanding Fighter of 1939" and awarded the Ring Magazine Trophy emblematic of that honor.

"Red" Townsend is quite proud of his city volleyball league, that operates every Tuesday night at the Y.M.C.A. with six teams entered. "Take it from me some of these younger teams really set-up some fine plays, while the team from the Bata Shoe concern, have taken to volleyball like a duck to water. Last night's Bata-"Y" game was the best game of volleyball I've ever seen", boasted the genial "Red", who is in charge of senior physical training at the "Y".

Sport Spice — Eddie Shore's goal did the Americans little good as the Red Wings downed the "home for the aged" N H L club 3 to 1. . . . Credit the Peterboro' forwards with the success of the Petes' defence, not their rearguardsmen. . . . Players like Art Heale, Bun Kingdon or Eddie Starr are back checking the opposition forwards before they can get organized. . . . . Legitimate old time body-checks are about as frequent as kisses received by an old maid these days. . . . . Billie Conn says he's the man to beat Joe Louis, and he admits it, but we wouldn't advise Conn to hasten his enthusiasm too rapidly. Kingston's Hank Goldup has been called up by the Maple Leafs.

Intolerance of Rights of Others Called Enemy of Freedom

Glasgow, Scotland, Feb. 7 (CP).—Sir Archibald Sinclair, opposition Liberal leader in the House of Commons, said today the "dangerous enemies of freedom" in Great Britain are not Fascists or Communists, but "those intolerant of the rights of others".

Speaking at Glasgow University, where he was installed as Lord Rector, Sir Archibald called freedom of the press and publicity the "best antidote to corruption".

He declared strong currents of controversy in parliament and the press would result in a "more vital, progressive and robust national life."

RECEIVE SAME SCALE OF PAY AS R.C.A.F.

Ottawa, Feb. 7 (CP).—Men of the Royal Air Force who have come to Canada to act as instructors under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan are being paid the same scale as corresponding ranks in the Royal Canadian Air Force, it was learned today.

This is in line with conditions drawn up when agreement was reached between the United Kingdom, Canada, New Zealand and Australia on establishment of the plan in Canada to act as instructors.

Already some of them have been granted temporary commissions in the R.C.A.F., for the duration of their stay in the dominion.

French Patrols Penetrate Deep Behind Foe Lines

Paris, Feb. 7 (CP-Havas).—French patrols, filtering deep behind the German lines, were credited today with having gathered highly important information regarding German military positions in the sector to the west of the Saar River.

According to army quarters, the French patrols succeeded in worming their way past the German outposts without being detected and returned to their own lines without firing a shot.

Activity increased yesterday along the western front with the return of comparatively good weather. In no case, however, did operations extend beyond the limits of patrol work. Air operations were kept to a minumum on both sides.

This morning's official communique again advised that there was "nothing to report".

FOXBORO FOXES AND ZION HILL TO START SERIES

Winners Will Play Glen Ross for Championship of Hastings Rural Loop

SCHEDULE COMPLETE

Glen Ross Defeats Ivanhoe 5-3 While Zion Hill Scores 5-0 Shutout Over Foxboro

Stirling, Feb. 7 (Special)—Playing the final games of the regular league schedule of the Centre Hastings Rural Hockey League last night at the Stirling arena Glen Ross clinched first place by defeating Ivanhoe five to three. In the second fixture Roblin Dulmage sent a full strength team of "Fighting Irish" to blank the Foxboro "Foxes" five to nothing. These three teams with very little choice between them will battle it out for the league championship and the silver trophy, which for the past year has adorned the mantel of the Glen Ross club. Foxboro and Zion will meet in a two game series with goals to count on the round and the winner will meet Glen Ross in a best two out of three game series.

The first game of the semi-final series is slated for next Friday night with the face-off at sharp 8 o'clock. As an added attraction the customers will be given an hour's free skating after the game. The fans have been treated to some fine hockey during the season for the paltry sum of seven and a half cents per game. The admission will be advanced slightly for the play-offs but the customers will get a real evening's entertainment for their two-bits with a spot of skating tossed in. The league has moved steadily forward this year and the players and league officers are grateful for the support given the boys. The boys express their appreciation in a tireless effort to improve their game.

Glen Ross 5; Ivanhoe 3
(In First Game)

Handicapped greatly by the absence of Cooke, Wright and Reid from their lineup the short handed Ivanhoe squad made it plenty interesting for the league leaders for two periods but faded slightly in the final period. Less than thirty seconds of play netted Ivanhoe their first counter, when Bray batted in a pass from Kirby. Martin got the equalizer and the first period ended 1-1. In the opening minute of the second G. Fraser scored on shot from the blue line and Hagerman and Martin added goals to put the Riversides well in the lead 4-1. Play was fast and even throughout the final period and Ivanhoe were robbed on several good trys by good netminding of Hagerman. Thompson scored at eight minutes and gave Kirby the pass for their third counter. Sending every man up on the play the Easterners pressed hard but hope slipped, when Armstrong broke away to make the final score 5-3 for Glen Ross.

"Irishers" Earn Shutout Against "Foxes"

The Zion Hill - Foxboro game provided much faster hockey with both teams having two fast lines, that were changed often to maintain the sizzling speed. The winners moved to the front with two fast goals in the first period, J. Ray getting the first on a pass from Simms who was responsible for the second counter himself. Both teams played fast and thoughtful hockey throughout a scoreless second period with both goalies having plenty of work. Simms and Ketcheson divided the three goals scored in the last peri to make the final score 5-0. Guay, brother Walt and Thompson went well for the "Foxes" as did "Elder" but they were unable to beat Gifford in the Zion nets who was given real support by Dickey and Bedford on defence.

Summary:

First period.
Zion Hill, J. Ray (Simms) .. 3.00
Zion Hill, E. Simms 6.20
Second period.
No score.
Third period.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

Ebbie Goodfellow, Detroit, scored the winning goal as the Red Wings stretched their unbeaten string to seven straight games with a 3-1 victory over Americans.

Bill Cowley, Boston whipped home two goals as the Bruins walloped New York Rangers 6-2.

Eddie Shore, Americans, provided his team's goal against the Wings.

DEACON HELPS TO WIN CONTEST

Player Transferred From Indianapolis to Cleveland Scores Winning Goal

(By the Canadian Press)

Don Deacon didn't waste much time in paying dividends to Cleveland Barons on the deal that saw him switch from Indianapolis Capitals for centreman Bob Gracie and cash.

Deacon, the leading scorer in the International-American League last year, switched teams Monday and then went out last night with his new club to score the winning goal in a 2-1 victory over New Haven Eagles.

The victory advanced the Barons to second place in the western division 10 points behind the leading Capitals and a point ahead of the third place Pittsburgh Hornets. Meanwhile, Springfield Indians scored a 2-1 success over Hershey Bears.

Deacon, who had a spell in the National Hockey League this winter with Detroit Red Wings, scored his winning goal in the ninth minute of an overtime period after Earl Robinson had tallied for the Eagles and Ossie Asmundsen for the Barons.

The Indians had to play without owner Eddie Shore, who was in uniform with New York Americans against Detroit, but they still packed enough punch to edge out a victory on goals by Joe Lamb and Alf Thurier in the third period after Hank Lauzon had opened the scoring for the Bears with a goal early in the session.

Tony and Yussel Thinks Joe Louis Might be Beaten

(By Sid Feder)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Feb. 7.—(AP) —That old cauliflower combination of two-ton Tony Galento and Yussel the Muscle Jacobs are varying with a great deal of vigor these days.

It's all because heavyweight Champion Joe Louis and the Chilean rough-rider, Arturo Godoy, are tangling for the title in Madison Square Garden Friday night.

Now, that doesn't seem to add up at first glance, since Tony isn't a party of the first or second part in these festivities. But remember that the barrel-shaped gent has met them both and knows what each can do. And, because of—or in spite of—his four-round showing against the Brown Bomber last June, he's in line for a return shot.

Tony and Yussel, his manager, took a look at Joe's semi-final boxing drill up at the Champ's Pompton Lakes, N.J. training camp yesterday, and that's when the praying started.

"Y'see Pal," two-ton said, "Joe's in great shape, and figures to win this one. But he's slipped back, and I'm afraid maybe Godoy or some other guy is gonna hang one on him before I get a crack at the champeenship."

"Look", Yussel interrupted. "Godoy is all shoulders and head. No fighter can get a clean shot at him. His best "punch" is his head to the other guy's chin. And there's always the chance some one he fights will punch him on top of the head—and that fellow's hand will be broken. That happened to Tony with Godoy in Chicago. (Godoy won a six-round decision in that one, and previously had taken a 10-round verdict over Galento in New York.

VOLLEYBALL

Three fast games of volleyball were played in the City Volleyball League at the Y.M.C.A. last night when two teams, in the six-teamed loop, continued undefeated.

After winning opening games last week the Bata Shoe Company team of Frankford and the Ontario School for the Deaf five both triumphed again last night to assume the league leadership. The City Firemen, under the direction of "Warpy" O'Brien, won their initial contest beating the St. Mikes "Irish."

The final game, of three played saw the most excitement of the evening and the hardest struggle when the Bata team won two successive games from the "Y" seniors by the identical score of 15 to 13. Valchar and Kotek spiked well for the winners, while Cole and Wickerson paced the "Y" team.

Willie Kiniski and Glen Robertson headed the O.S.D. five to successive wins over Albert College, as the "deaf lads" won handily by 15 to 0 and 15-3 scores. Thompson and O'Brien headed the "fire-fighters" who beat St. Mikes 15-3 and 15-13.

The lineups:

Bata: Valchar, Zajicek, Sedlbaur, Kotek, Mrysliner.

Y.M.C.A.: Brown, Wickerson, Cole, Saunders, Hackborn, Clare.

Ontario School for Deaf: Brown, Kiniski, George, Cook, Robertson, Barter, May, Graziano, Hazbett, Quinnell.

Albert College: Munn, Chamberlain, Buchanan, Burley, Weaver, Townsend.

Firemen: Kokesh, Post, Thompson, O'Brien, McDonald, Pomeroy.

St. Mike's: Donavan, Doran, Ciceri, Holland, Barrett, Moher.

TWO TIE GAMES IN RURAL LOOP

Tweed and Plainfield Also Roslin and Farnsworth Provide Contests

Tweed—A large crowd of fans turned out at Tweed Arena on Tuesday night despite the unfavourable weather, for the third double-header in East Hastings' rural league.

The two contests were nip-and-tuck battles from the opening gong and resulted in tie scores in both games. Tweed and Plainfield battled to a one-all draw, while Farnsworth and Roslin were deadlocked at two goals each when the game ended. The quality of the hockey is improving with every game as the players become more familiar with their surroundings and gain experience.

In the first period of the opening game there was no score, although both goalies had plenty to do. Platt, who has been a standout for Plainfield all season, opened the scoring halfway through the second period, incidentally securing his team's only marker. R. Hayes, Tweed defenseman, evened the count a short time later and there the count stood for the remainder of the encounter.

There was more action in the second half of the twin bill between Farnsworth and Roslin. McCaw scored the opening goal in the first period for the only counter. Farnsworth made it 2 to 0 early in the second frame on D. Meraw's goal. Their lead did not last long as Mattis and H. Hart ran in two fast goals to knot the count. There was no further scoring in the final period and once again the teams divided the points.

Tweed—Goal, McInroy; defence, Hayes and Emerson; centre, Thompson; wings, Tufts and Gilroy; subs Woods, Courneyea, Sherry.

Plainfield — Goal, Pennington; defense, Parks and Dunning; centre, Platt; wings, D. Denyes and G. Denyes; subs, Harrison, C. Carleton, Palmer, W. Carleton.

Farnsworth — Goal, R. Palmateer; defence, L. Gunning and A. Tufts; centre, McCaw; wings, R. Palmateer and G. Gunning; subs, L. Gunning, D. Palmateer, A. Palmateer, D. Meraw, J. Lajoie, G. Jones.

Roslin—Goal, C. Mills; defence, Slingerland and Colden; centre, Hart; wings, D. Chisholm and Mattis; subs, W. Chumbly, D. Chumbly, Tracy, Parker, Vance, C. Hart, E. Burleigh, A. Alford.

Referees — J. Tummon and R. Sayers.

Standing of the league:

	P.	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
Plainfield	3	2	0	1	5
Tweed	3	1	0	2	4
Farnsworth	3	0	1	2	2
Roslin	3	0	2	1	1

Master Spy—Boris Karloff, Man of Mystery in "British Intelligence," now on the Belle screen.

NO COMPETITION

Selected, without much competition as the "outstanding fighter of 1939", Joe Louis receives a plaque from Nat Fleischer of Ring Magazine, which annually selects the outstanding fighter. The presentation took place at Joe's training camp at Pompton Lake where he is preparing for his bout with Arturo Godoy.

An 'Ant' - I Climax

By MARGARET BLOOMER

Mr. Karnot, the insurance agent, laughed as Tony, the ant-killer, stood up arms akimbo, spraddle-legged. A cutlass at his side and a bandanna about his sleek black head would have completed the picture of a swash-buckling pirate — whose only victims now were ants.

"They all die, he keel!" Tony grinned.

Mr. Karnot almost expected to see Tony lift his great boot, pirate wise, to crush the little mounted ant city. Just so Tony's forebears had probably ground the conquering heel into the torsos of fallen foes. Tony's eyes were mere slits as he watched the mound where an industrious army of ants carried the poison away.

"They all feed the ba-bee," he grinned broadly, "get-a da beeg stomach ache."

"Aren't you ashamed, going 'round giving ants ptomaine?" asked Mr. Karnot.

"I like-a my job, Mr. Karnot," laughed Tony, carelessly tossing cans onto the seat of his car, as he prepared to leave.

Two days later the insurance agent telephoned Tony's boss. Mr. Faunce was angry. Tony hadn't been to work for two days. As Mr. Karnot still sat at his desk the telephone rang. "Where the devil have you been, Tony?" he asked.

"I been taking care, Mr. Karnot," Tony answered.

"Taking care of what, your ant-hills?" Mr. Karnot was decidedly exasperated.

"Oh, no," answered Tony with complete lack of concern for the ant business. "About my insurance, you know I have to take care!"

"Well, if you don't 'take care' of it before midnight tonight it'll lapse," said Mr. Karnot caustically.

"No use pay now," sighed Tony, "my wife she die, no need insurance."

"When did that happen, Tony? I'm sorry! Why didn't you tell me she was sick?"

"It's no happen yet,' answered Tony.

"Say, what do you mean? Is your wife ill?"

"No sick' but no use pay now," replied Tony. "My wire she die tomorrow, no need 'insurance."

"I'm coming right over," yelled Mr. Karnot. But Tony had hung up.

Visions of Tony distributing deadly ant food flashed across Mr. Karnot's mind and he started across town with record speed. Then he remembered Tony's childlike grin and slowed down. But if Tony's wife wasn't even sick, why did he think she was going to die tomorrow? he cogitated, and stepped on the accelerator again.

He stopped before a modest house in the Italian quarter. On each side groups of children sat in the dusty yards playing noisy games. Tony's green square of lawn with its prim flower beds was an oasis, a trim mirage of order and neatness in a desert of untidy dwellings.

As he walked up the steps Mr. Karnot saw a slip from one of his choicest rosebushes. "Aw, Tony's all right, the guy loves flowers." his heart jumped with relief as a handsome Portuguese girl came to the door. Her cheerful smile showed that she was in complete and happy ignorance of her impending demise.

"Er-is Tony home?" Mr. Karnot stammered. Her earrings danced as she shook her head.

"Do you feel all right?" he asked solicitously.

Tony's wife looked surprised. "Sure, I'm fine!"

The telephone was ringing as Mr. Karnot entered his office. It was Tony. They duplicated the conversation of the morning. But before Tony could hang up Mr. Karnot demanded "Tony does your wife know she's going to die?"

Tony lowered his voice, "Mr. Karnot, you think I'm crazy that I tell my wife?" That was too much for public-spirited Mr. Karnot. He called the police. He hated doing it but Tony had left him no choice.

The desk sergeant took down Tony's name, address and occupation. "Ant killer—handled poisons, huh? Might bear watching—might bring him in on some technical charge," the sergeant thought. Mr. Karnot was glad he had passed the information on. At least it was off his conscience. That was Saturday.

On Monday the sergeant asked Mr. Karnot to stop in at the station. Tony was seated in the middle of an iron contraption that looked like a huge bird cage. He was a deplorable sight. Vacancy overspread his usually grinning countenance.

"A hard case," said the sergeant. "Admits his wife is marked for death that all we have been able to get out of him."

Relief leaped into Tony's eyes at sight of Mr. Karnot. The sergeant repeated the questions he had been asking Tony at intervals for twenty-four hours. Between them they goaded and prodded and probed till at last Tony broke.

"Mr. Karnot can tell. What's use pay insurance then call police?" Tony grabbed a worn piece of paper from his shirt pocket. "Damn insurance company!" he yelled. "See, they say my wife, she die!" As Tony waved it under the sergeant's nose, Mr. Karnot recognized the [illegible] the home office. [illegible] then did Mr. Karnot remember that Tony's wife, the beneficiary to his policy, was called Grace. The notice read, "Grace expires June 23."

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Feb. 7 (CP)— Base metal shares displayed strength in early trade on Toronto exchange today. Western oils held firm and golds and industrials were off slightly. Trading dwindled to 138,000 shares.

Dominion woollens featured the action in the industrial section, advancing a fraction to a new high on good volume. Other textiles were strong and gains predominated in the steel and food groups. Other groups were inclined to easiness.

Wright-Hargreaves, McIntyre, Kirkland Lake, O'Brien and East Malartic were weak spots in the golds. Nickel, Steep Rock, Sherritt and Falconbridge were base metal gainers.

Changes in the western oils were limited to a cent or two. Home Oil added 3 cents and Anglo-Canadian firmed 2 cents.

WALL STREET

New York, Feb. 7.—(AP)—Metals and industrials, with steady although small gains, lifted the stock market a bit higher today.

Transactions were nominal, but early gains were fairly firmly held toward the fourth hour and the trading range widened to take in many stocks which of late have been comparatively inactive.

Share gainers included American Smelting, Kennecott, Cerro De Pasco, American Can., Westinghouse, Dow Chemical, Allied Chemical, Union Carbide, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck and Continental Can.

Brooklyn - Manhattan transit, moving actively, reached new 1939-1940 high.

Fractional losses were registered by Canadian Pacific, McIntyre and Hiram Walker, in the Canadian group. Dome Mines and Distillers Seagram improved while Canada 4s, among bonds, dipped 1-4 point.

Snow Melts Quickly Under Strong Sun

Noonday sun and spring-like zephyrs turned city streets and sidewalks into tiny lakes and rivers at noon today as last night's snowfall fast disappeared into the sewers. Pedestrians had to keep a sharp lookout for thoughtless motorists, who splashed their way through the puddles with apparent disregard for the persons walking along the sidewalks and more than one lady was heard complaining of spotted stockings as she waited at the curb before risking her way across the intersection.

LIVESTOCK OF WELLMANS SOLD

Some Household Effects Sold at Auction on Tuesday Afternoon

Rawdon, Feb. 8 (Special) — Sale of the livestock and some of the household effects of the late Arnold and Nancy Wellman, the aged Rawdon couple, who last Thursday morning were found slain on their farm, took place on Tuesday afternoon and drew an immense crowd of more than one thousand people, according to estimates, hundreds of motorcars being parked on the roadway and up a lane for half a mile and more, so great had been the interest in the tragedy which fell upon that community the middle of last week.

The property of the two hundred acres and the dwelling and barn was not put up for sale, the members of the family not having yet decided what disposition to make of it.

Fred Johnson of Marmora, was the auctioneer. Practically all the household effects were sold except a few keepsakes and other articles treasured by the family. Three horses, two cows, one calf, and three brood sows were also disposed of at auction.

Dr. Victoria Wellman of Chicago, and Dr. Marvin Wellman of Whitby, are staying in the neighborhood for a couple of days, but Dr. A. L. Wellman, the other son, has had to return to his practice at Waterloo.

He still was in a faint an hour after court had adjourned.

SOVIET BOMBING PLANES TAKING

tryside where the chances of landing alive would be enhanced.

Communique Issued

The Finnish army communique yesterday reported:

"In north Finland the enemy dropped a few parachute-jumpers. Their landing places are known."

It reported also that the Finns were employing an aerial innovation, bombarding Red army infantry encampments at night by the light of the Russian camp fires.

Couriers from the Karelian Isthmus front said Russian infantry was massed heavily in the Summa sector, 20 miles southeast of Viborg, and that, due to inadequate shelter, the troops were forced to build open fires which served as beacons for the night-flying Finns.

The 701-ton Swedish steamer Wirgo was sunk by bombs in the Gulf of Bothnia and power lines at the northern city of Rovaniemi were broken by Russian fliers last night.

A Finnish officer from the Summa front said the 11-mile line between Muolaajaervi and Hatjanlahti had undergone the heaviest artillery fire of the war during six days of attacks still in progress.

TWO MEMBERS OF OUTLAWED I. R. A.

vehicles were stopped some distance from the prison. Officers forced the waiting throng of several hundred persons back into side streets.

A priest who had administered last rites for Barnes and Richards left the prison half an hour before the execution.

The rites were administered last night, and the priest told the pair all hope for reprieve or clemency had vanished. They were reported to have spent their last hours quietly.

First Civil Trial.

Theirs was the first civil trial and execution of Irish Republican extremists since the 1867 hanging of three men for the killing of a Manchester police sergeant. These three became known as the "Manchester martyrs" to Irish Republicans.

Theirs also were the first death sentences handed down since the I.R.A.—outlawed in Great Britain and Eire—began its violent campaign a little more than a year ago for the avowed purpose of forcibly uniting Northern Ireland with Eire.

Barnes and Richards went to their death despite numerous appeals for clemency or reprieve.

One of these, initiated by Premier Eamon de Valera of Eire, was carried last night to Prime Minister Chamberlain.

Nationalist sentiment had risen in Eire accompanied by pleas that carrying out of the death sentence might make British-Eire relations difficult.

Authorities were confronted with the possibility of a renewal of time-bomb explosions such as those yesterday at London's Euston railway station and at post offices in Birmingham and Manchester.

Five Persons Injured.

Five persons, postal employees, were injured at London and two at Birmingham in yesterday's renewal of a sporadic, year-long campaign of I.R.A. terrorism.

In the past year, time-bombs have been planted or sent through the mails to burst in public places—particularly railway stations and post offices—in power stations and under bridges. In 1939, bombings attributed to the I.R.A. totalled 291. Seven persons were killed and many injured.

The bomb which Barnes and Richards were convicted of planting burst in the crate of a tradesman's delivery tricycle as it stood along the curb at Coventry last Aug. 5. Five persons were killed.

Barnes and Richards were convicted of murder in connection with one of the deaths—Miss Elsie Ansell, a shop assistant, who was to have been married the following month.

On Dec. 14, the two men were sentenced to be hanged. When sentence was pronounced, Richards shouted "God bless Ireland and God bless the men who fought and died for her!" Barnes declared he was innocent.

$1,745 FINES PAID IN LONDON IN MONTH

London, Ont., Feb. 7—(CP)—City police court received $1,745 in fines during January, Magistrate D. M. Menzies disclosed in a report today.

During the month four were convicted of drunk driving, 10 for careless driving and three motorists were found guilty of reckless driving. Drunks accounted for 25 cases, while six persons were convicted under the Liquor Control Act.

PRELIMINARY HEARING HAS BEEN POSTPONED

Cornwall, Ont., Feb. 7.—(CP) — Preliminary hearing of an attempted murder charge against Gerald Duvall, 28, of Newington, Ont., scheduled to be heard in court here today, has been postponed indefinitely, police announced. Duvall is charged with attempted to poison Robert Young, Cornwall centre, by administering mercury bichloride, carbolic acid and strychnine.

NECESSITY OF CONSCRITPION

Canada with opinions as to the best method of prosecuting the war.

One group, including the co-operative Commonwealth Federation, urged conscription of wealth. Another group, including the Conservatives, opposed conscription of men to be sent out of Canada but did not oppose conscripting men for home defence.

Take Definite Stand

The Liberals had taken a definite stand against conscription of men or wealth but proposed to provide men and money for the war effort.

The Liberal election victory in Quebec province last Autumn had been a clear indication that the people, in Quebec at least, approved the Liberal policy.

Mr. Gardiner said Prime Minister Mackenzie King had no intention of calling a general election without discussing the war effort with parliament for at least a month.

Possibility of a big offensive on the European war front at the end of March or the beginning of April, need for a parliamentary vote on estimates before March 31 and criticism of the Federal government by Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario, however, had combined to force an appeal to the people.

German propagandists had used the Hepburn "blast", Mr. Gardiner said, telling the German people, "the President of Canada had rebuked the Prime Minister for entering the war".

ALLIES MUST BE PREPARED TO ARM

arm all neutral countries that Russia or the Reich may throw into the war."

Western powers must be ready to "utilize powerfully any battlefield which may open up," Fabry added.

The writer declared it would "back up the conscience" of each of the neutrals if the Allies could say, "there are the arms—we have forged them for the defence of liberty."

Echoing Premier Daladier's Radical-Socialist party call for the government to give Finland the help needed to "fight and win," the newspaper Excelsior said in a headline:

"Let us aid Finland without awaiting the mediation that Berlin is manoeuvring."

MAY ABROGATE 9-POWER TREATY

in connection with the two powers' frictions in China, replied:

"I do not want to regard the American attitude with ill feeling but I will reconsider if the United States continues its oppression and interference with Japan."

Yoshimichi Kuboi, member of the Seiyukai, major political party, declared the United States' abrogation of the 1911 trade treaty "should be regarded as an insult."

Japan is preparing for "anticipated difficulties" in her economic relations with the United States, the lower house of parliament was told.

"The government is devising methods of industrial expansion and other rearrangements in order to prepare for such difficulties, especially in importation of needed supplies," Kakichi Takeuchi, president of the cabinet planning board replied to a questioner.

Becomes Serious Matter

In a discussion of American-Japanese relations in the light of the expiration Jan. 26 of the 1911 trade treaty, Yoshimichi Kuboi, member of the Seiyukai, major political party, advocated economic preparedness, declaring "it is a serious matter if Japan relies on the United States for the majority of her imports."

(In recent years about one third of Japan's imports have been from the United States. She has relied heavily on American sources for oil, scrap iron and other military necessities).

Arita declared that "at present the government is not considering strengthening the Anti-Comintern Pact" which linked Tokyo with Berlin and Rome against communism. Spain, Hungary and Manchoukuo also were signatories of the Anti - Comintern agreement which went into eclipse after Russia and Germany staged a rapprochement last August.

No Negotiations Underway

Parliament was told there are no negotiations under way for a modus vivendi-working agreement —to govern trade relations with the United States in the absence of a treaty and "judging by the present situation, it will be difficult to conclude a trade agreement."

Commerce Minister Ginjiro Fujiwara said the Diet would be informed at a private session concerning plans for even closer co-operation with Manchoukuo and China in an effort to offset the effects of the United States treaty abrogation.

Though the nine-power treaty technically still is in force, the Japanese invasion of China in fact has closed much of the country to the trade of other nations. This has been a constant source of friction with the United States and Great Britain.

It might interest the public to know that the Chapter is working under the War Charities Act of the Department of the Secretary of State, and the regulations make it necessary to report monthly to this Department. We might say since the war began the Chapter and Auxiliary members have knitted and distributed 271 pairs socks, 35 sweaters, 31 pairs wristlets, 14 scarfs and 18 pairs mitts. These were all made from wool bought by the Chapter and war funds. There has been 8 pairs socks, 24 pairs wristlets, 1 scarf and several substantial donations of money given by private citizens interested in our chapter work. Besides this we have made and donated hospital supplies for the local Red Cross, and our Sewing Committee meet every Thursday p.m. at the Singer Sewing Machine office to work on hospital supplies for the Red Cross.

The demand for knitted articles is as urgent as ever for the Army, Navy and Air Force. Word has been received this week that the length of the army socks has been again changed, and it is now to be 13 inches when finished, including the heel.

Plans are being made by the Chapter for raising funds to carry on our activities, among them being a band concert at the Capitol theatre this month by the Air Force band, as advertised elsewhere in this paper."

Originally from Montreal, the late Mr. Strachan was transferred to the Corbyville plant of his company where he remained for two years as credit manager. Later he was transferred back to the head office of the company in Montreal where he remained to the time of his demise.

PTE. LEE KEECH OF HILLIER DIES IN ENGLAND

News is Received From Ottawa of Death of Member of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment

NATIVE OF L'AMABLE

Announcement of the first casualty in the ranks of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment overseas, was made yesterday when Mrs. Florence Keech, of Hillier, received an official telegram from Ottawa stating that her husband, Private Lee Keech, had died in an Aldershot hospital. Details will be forwarded as soon as possible, the cablegram stated.

The late Private Keech enlisted with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment in Picton soon after recruiting opened. He was an ideal soldier and proved very popular with his comrades. He went overseas with his regiment when the First Canadian Division sailed a week prior to Christmas. He was in training at Aldershot when he was apparently taken ill and succumbed in a military hospital.

Born in L'Amable, Hastings County, the son of the late William Keech and of Mrs. Keech, who is at present resident on Church Street, Belleville, the deceased soldier moved with his family to Wellington in Prince Edward County when he was two years old. He remained there practically all of his life and is well-known in Rosehall, Hillier and the Lake Shore where he worked prior to enlistment. He was thirty-six years of age.

Mrs. James Alexander of this city is a sister.

Pugnacious Cat Puts Dog to Flight

Belleville has a "Joe Louis" of its own. The nominal counterpart of the Sepia Slugger is not an exponent of the manly art, but an ebony-colored cat, whose fighting characteristics have inspired dread in practically all the fighting canines along Front Street.

"Joe's" hangout is in the stockroom of a Front Street Department Store, and there he is monarch of all he surveys. Large, well-proportioned and utterly fearless, he rules his realm with swift claws, that strike with the rapidity of lightning. Apparently tired of his favorite sport of rat-hunting, "Joe" has of late, extended his activities to the rout of any unsuspecting dog that may wander through the store.

Yesterday afternoon, while shoppers wandered through the aisles, they were startled at a shrill "Ky-yi" that resounded through the store. Came a commotion near the stockroom door at the rear of the premises, and women hurried to the safety of other aisles as a large dog tail between legs, ears flat on its head, dashed at breakneck speed through the opening.

A black flash, green eyes balefully glaring, ears flat, tail abrush flew in pursuit. It was "Joe" at his favorite pastime. The innocent dog had made the mistake of invading "Joe's" domain in the stockroom, and was paying the penalty.

Behind counters the strange pursuit took its way. A dish clattered to the floor as the pair flew behind a soda fountain. Fortunately for the dog the front door of the store was open and feet flying he gained the safety of Front Street and disappeared among the crowd.

Meanwhile "Joe," another win chalked up, smoothed his ruffled fur, and stalked majestically down a main aisle, triumphant in victory, to the sanctity of his beloved stockroom.

SMOKE IS FORCED OUT INTO ROOMS

City firemen were occasioned a short run this morning at about nine thirty, when smoke filled the apartment occupied by Mrs. Johnston at 213 Pinnacle St. Apparently Mrs. Johnston had filled the stove with paper which had blocked the chimney forcing the smoke out into the rooms and the alarm was turned in. There was no fire, however, stated Fire Chief Lynch and the trouble was soon remedied.

MERCHANTS REPORT SPLENDID VOLUME OF BUSINESS

It may be the fact that various commodities and articles of wearing apparel are rumored to be advancing in price, or perhaps an aftermath of the best Christmas sales season in many a year, but the fact remains that a number of merchants on Front Street report one of the "best January's" in a long period of time.

One store reports a 57% increase over the volume of business done a year ago, while others report similar advances.

Department store business is well ahead of that done in January of 1939, and all-in-all January business done in all phases of merchandise is generally well in advance of last year.

Fred Thain Appears for Preliminary Hearing on Murder Charges

Courtroom Filled to Capacity Hours Before Hearing Opens

Robert McCulloch, Local Barrister, Engaged to Defend Accused Man.

7 WITNESSES CALLED

Groups of soft-spoken residents of South Hastings and Belleville gathered in front of the County Court House hours before the preliminary hearing of Frederick Thain, 46-year-old Rawdon farmer, which opened in Belleville this afternoon. Thain was arraigned before His Worship Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in County Police Court charged with the double murder of Arnold and Nancy Wellman, aged Rawdon township couple, who were found shot to death on their farm exactly one week ago today. Thain, the accused man, is a life-long neighbor of the murdered victims.

R. McCulloch Defence Lawyer.

Thain, who was arrested last Friday night, was arraigned today when Crown Prosecutor B. C. Donnan, K.C., will attempt to establish evidence in preliminary hearing sufficient to put the accused man on trial. At the opening of court Robert McCulloch, local barrister, announced to Magistrate Butler that he had been retained as defence lawyer and would appear on Thain's behalf. The accused man was escorted into the court room by jail officials, assisted by Provincial Police, but he showed no outward emotions as he was conducted to the prisoner's docket to face a dual murder charge, the first double murder charge to be heard in Belleville in over fifteen years.

Seven Witnesses Called.

Before the proceedings opened, Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., prosecuting attorney, announced that he hoped to introduce seven witnesses this afternoon and was of the opinion preliminary hearing would conclude some time late on Thursday. Some of the witnesses to be heard today will include City Engineer Chas. Mott, G. Scott, photographer, Edmund Faulkner who found the dead couple, Mrs. Victor Graham, Rawdon store keeper, who is said to have sold Thain shot gun shells one week ago yesterday and others.

A crowded courtroom, tense with expectancy grew suddenly hushed as Frederick Thain entered. The low hum of voices of those unable to obtain admission, who milled in corridors, was plainly audible. A woman's muffled sob broke the silence.

Looked Around Room

Thain smiling looked around the courtroom as he entered with Constable Adair. He turned and spoke to Dr. E. A. Carleton, Stirling, physician, who sat near a press table. Thain was dressed in a grey suit, blue shirt and blue tie. He was clean-shaven and sat with folded arms, awaiting the opening of the hearing.

At times he half-turned that quizzical smile still on his face. Then he turned, facing the bench his face wrinkling, as if puzzled about something.

Conversation grew to a low hum after the entry of the accused.,

Courtroom Crowded

Rawdon farmers, neighbours of the accused, and the slain Wellmans, formed the greater part of the courtroom audience. Seats were filled to capacity. People stood in ranks against the side and back walls of the courtroom.

Robert McCulloch, appeared for the accused, with County Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, conducting the hearing.

Inspector A. L. Ward, C.I.D., Toronto, who headed the investigation which culminated in the arrest of Thain, Inspector Frank Gardner, Sergeant Harry Thompson, Constables Everett Smith, Jack Morgan and R.C.M.P. Constable Beattie were present in court.

Thain stood up as the charges of murder of Arnold and Nancy Wellman were read by the Crown. He rested his arms on the bar, the same interrogatory expression on his face. He nodded when told to sit down.

City Engineer Called

Charles Mott, Belleville City Engineer, identified plans of the locale of the murders on Concession 9, of the Township of Rawdon, surrounding lands, and the house and barn in which the shootings occurred.

Photos Identified

Several photographs depicting various scenes pertaining to the crimes, house, barn, cowstable, etc., were identified by Godfrey Scott and Arthur Cole, press photographers.

Takes Little Interest

Thain, appeared to take little interest in the proceedings thus far. He sat quietly in the dock, his hands clasped in front of him. At times his eyes drooped and once he nodded sharply as if drowsy.

Once, his eyes swept rapidly around the scene in front of him. He passed a hand over his face, and looked at the ceiling, that interrogating look knitting his brows.

Vernon Runnells, Harold farmer, told the court, he had seen Arnold Wellman on January 31st, when he asked for employment. He was to start work cutting wood on Friday. He did not see Mrs. Wellman.

Wellman Had Feed Ground

Robert Fleming, Springbrook, flour and feed merchant, had done grain grinding for the slain man on afternoon January 29th. He left for home at 2 p.m. He had twelve bags wheat and oats and brought them with horse and sleigh. It was bagged in eight cotton sacks and four jute sacks.

The Crown, here, offered a grain bag, marked with A. Wellman's name. Witness had seen similar bags brought to his mill by Wellman, he said.

Cross-examined by Defence Counsel, witness could not identify bag as one brought by Wellman to his mill.

Both Had Heart Conditions

Edward Faulkner, mail carrier, testified he took mail occasionally into the Wellman home at the request of Dr. Iona Wellman, daughter of the slain couple, because they both had heart conditions.

Wellman had 2 cows, 3 calves, 2 sows and three horses.

He last saw Mr. and Mrs. Wellman alive at 10 or 10.30 a.m. on Jan. 31. Mrs. Wellman was in bed. He had talked with both.

Wellman did his evening chores between 3.30 and 4 p.m. because he did not like to use a light in the barn.

He walked into the house on Thursday morning and saw the pantry door open.

Thought She Was Asleep

He walked to the bedroom door of Mr. Wellman's room, saw nothing.

He looked at Mrs. Wellman's bed, and saw her apparently asleep. He did not notice anything unusual except the house was cold.

He went to the barn, where he heard cattle bawling.

He went to the west corridor of the basement, and saw a milk-pail in the cow section of the stable under a cow. He turned away, then looked back, and saw boots, one below the cow and the other behind it.

"Then I saw Mr. Wellman. He looked to be dead".

Called Dr. Carleton

"I then went to the house and called Dr. A. E. Carleton, and told him I thought Wellman was dead. I called Mrs. Reed a neighbor, and then Dr. J. J. Robertson of Belleville because he was a friend of the family."

Mrs. Reed discovered Mrs. Wellman's body in tne presence of witness he said.

She said something about waking her up, then she said she was dead." Witness said bodies were not touched until police arrived.

Witness said Wellman's grain, when ground was always left on wagon until it was used.

He was not familiar with the type of grain bag used by Wellman.

Cross-examined, witness stated he had looked on the wagon on Thursday previous and saw one empty grain bag.

HUNDREDS ATTEND FOUR FUNERALS

A. H. Schlegel and Three Members of His Family Burried at Preston

Preston, Ont., Feb. 7—(CP)—Hundreds of persons from Preston district bade their last farewell today to A. H. Schlegel and the three members of his family he shot to death Sunday evening.

Business was at a standstill in the town as throngs gathered at the funeral home and at the cemetery to pay their last tribute to the prominent sportsman who was believed to have suffered mental breakdown shortly before he shot his wife, his married daughter, Mrs. Bruce McCullough and his 12-year-old son, Jack.

Rev. W. H. Knauff, pastor of St. Peter's Lutheran Church, attributed the tragedy to "acute dementia" on the part of Mr. Schlegel, immediate past president of the Ontario Hockey Association.

"What shall we say?" asked the clergyman as he stood before the four caskets. "What can we say? This tragedy shocked not only our own fair town but was felt many miles beyond." He paid tribute to the family and said he believed the tragedy had resulted from the father's sudden mental disorder. And, he added, "because of my firm conviction of acute dementia I stand here to give Christian burial rites."

Prior to the funeral services, scores of persons passed through the funeral chapel where the four caskets were arranged in a semicircle, Mrs. McCullough dressed in the gown in which she was married last Nov. 11.

SUMMER COTTAGE IS DESTROYED AT MOIRA LAKE

Contents Are Also Burned in Late Afternoon Blaze.

Madoc, Feb. 7 (Special). — Fire completely destroyed a summer cottage belonging to Thomas Rupert of this village and situated on the north short of Moira Lake. The fire was discovered by three lads who were skiing near Moira Lake three miles south of here late yesterday afternoon. Before help could be summoned the cottage was levelled to the ground with all contents being a complete loss.

Police Constable Arthur Dymond, Madoc, who investigated the fire, stated that motor vehicle tire tracks were found crossing the ice on Moira Lake and leading to the vicinity of Mr. Rupert's cottage and returning in the general direction of Belleville-Madoc highway to the south.

"We are confident that the fire was the result of either a careless transient who was taking shelter in the cottage, or of thieves who might have ransacked the cottage, stolen what articles they desired and transported them away in the motor vehicle of which we found the tire tracks in the freshly-fallen snow," Provincial Constable Dymond informed the Ontario Intelligencer today. Rumors were heard in Madoc that a transient was seen in the vicinity of Moira Lake yesterday. Provincial Constable Dymond later made a thorough search of all the cottages along the upper portion of Moira Lake, but failed to discover any trace of any persons wandering about.

"Mr. Rupert's cottage was a frame building and easy prey to the flames that burned it to the ground thus removing any clues that might have remained if robbery was the motive," Constable Dymond added. He continued his investigations today.

London, Feb. 7 (CP)— Several wireless-equipped weather balloons which apparently had been sent out from across the North Sea were found today on the east coast of England.

Berlin, Feb. 7—(AP)—Lively scouting activity developed between Mettlach and the Palatinate forest on the western front, the German News Agency reported today in elaborating on a brief military communique.

In response to a question the Prime Minister said that "without damaging the interests of the nation" nothing further could be disclosed. Reynders resigned Feb. 5 after serving five months as commander-in-chief.

London, Feb. 7—(CP)—British-Spanish talks are under way concerning the sale of copper from British-owned mines in Spain, the Ministry of Economic warfare said today.

Frederick, Md., Feb. 7.—(AP)—Senator Millard E. Tydings, Maryland Democrat, told an audience last night that military necessity may force Germany to invade Holland and establish an airbase within 150 miles of England. Economic necessity may force Germany to invade Rumania to obtain wheat and oil supplies, he said.

Tydings advocated an American Army and Navy "equal to those of any other nation, for there is not only the possibility that we may be drawn into the war against our will; we must be prepared for the dislocations and difficulties that will accompany the cessation of war".

EXPRESS APPRECIATION FOR WAR WORK BY S.A.

Sincere appreciation of war work being done by the local corps of the Salvation Army was embodied in a letter received the other day by Major Alderman from Sapper W. E. Lambert, stationed at the Exhibition Grounds Military Camp, Toronto.

The letter acknowledges receipt of socks by soldiers stationed at this camp, and voices the sincere thanks for the gifts as well as appreciation of the fine work being done for the troops by the "Red Triangle" famous insignia of the Salvation Army.

PUBLIC URGED TO GET CAR LICENCES EARLY

Urging motorists and other owners of motor vehicles to secure their licence plates as soon as possible, Major Edgar Vermilyea, local issuer, told the Ontario Intelligencer today that potential purchasers would be forced to wait in line when the inevitable rush occurs on March 31st, the last day to secure the markers. Thus far only 650 sets of plates have been sold out on an allotment of 5,500.

"It will be much easier for people to secure their plates now, when no rush is on," Major Vermilyea said, "but I guess it is human nature to wait until the last minute."

"However," he continued, "it will be the driving public's own fault if they are forced to wait in line. We will allow only a few in at a time and the remainder must wait outside regardless of the elements and take their turn."

Boys Tell Those Ashore Ride Across Just "Like Ride on Duck Pond"—Strictest Secrecy Maintained Before Embarkation

(By Edwin Johnson)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Somewhere in Britain, Feb. 8.—(CP Cable) — Under the guardian wing of the Royal Navy, a third contingent of the Canadian Active Service force has crossed the Atlantic and landed safely in Britain.

Like the two contingents that arrived before it, the latest khaki wave of Canadian youth came unheralded. During the night grey troopships glided silently into harbor under cover of darkness and rode at anchor until morning.

Crowds thronging docks and promenades overlooking the harbor waved and cheered without knowing from what part of the empire the convoy had come. They were kept in suspense until the first tender brought ashore its cargo of singing, whistling Canadians.

Easily Recognized

It did not take the crowd long to recognize the khaki-clad men.

"Why it's more Canadians", someone shouted.

The roar of greeting that followed rolled across the water and through the welcoming din came the chorus "Well done Canada!" and "Bravo! Bravo!"

Not until the entire force had disembarked and dispersed to its allotted training camps was word flashed to the Empire at large that a further contingent of Canadians had arrived.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

How high can an airplane fly? While the atmosphere makes flying possible it also limits the possible ceiling because the pressure decreases with elevation and therefore there is less oxygen. The pilot begins to need more oxygen when higher than 12,000 feet, and oxygen may be supplied him artificially up to 45,000 feet without using extra pressure, but above that to get through it must be supplied him under pressure. He may therefore under these artificial conditions operate at almost any height. The engine however, can not, because while more oxygen may be supplied to it by superchargers, these have their limitations. One authority believes with the present materials 61,000 feet is the limit. New materials and design may extend this limit.

Judge's Advice To the Fair Sex—Beware of Sideburns

Philadelphia, Feb. 8 (AP) — A Judge with an antipathy to sideburns sent George Wilson, 48 — with sideburns—to prison for 2 1-2 years yesterday on charges of swindling a widow of $5,500. Commented Judge Raymond MacNeille: "Whenever you see a man with long sideburns paying undue attention to any woman, you can be sure it's for financial profit. There are honest men who wear sideburns, but they don't fool around with women."

I.R.A. MAY HAVE SUNK VESSEL

London, Feb. 8 —(CP—Cable)—The Daily Express suggested today that the outlawed Irish Republican Army might have been responsible for the sinking of the 4,305-ton Irish mail steamship Munster which sank in the Irish Sea yesterday after an explosion.

"Sabotage—bombs planted in the ship by I.R.A. terrorists—was suggested by experts last night to be the reason for the sinking of the crack Irish mail ship Munster," said the Express." "Statements by passengers suggest the I.R.A. was responsible."

The Express article had no reports from survivors to support the theory but gave the impression investigators have statements along this line from some of the vessel's 200 passengers and crew members, all of whom reached land safely."

Shot Gun Taken From Thain's Home Had Strong Powder Odor Sergt. H. Thompson Tells Court

Testifies He Thought Gun Had Been Recently Used, in Answer to Question by Crown Attorney

SHELLS PURCHASED

Mrs. Mildred Reed States 12-Guage Shells Bought by Thain on January 31st

The story of the relentless tracking down of clues, links in a chain of evidence that led to the arrest and charges of murder laid against Frederick Thain, 46-year-old Rawdon farmer, following the discovery of the shot-blasted bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Wellman, well-known Rawdon residents, in their farm buildings last week, was unfolded before a crowded courtroom in the latter stages of the opening session of the preliminary hearing yesterday afternoon.

Presiding Magistrate E. J. Butler heard the evidence of seven witnesses throughout the sitting which adjourned at five o'clock until ten o'clock today. Following adjournment, Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan stated that he expected the hearing would be concluded at an early hour this afternoon.

Star witness for the crown, whose evidence featured the later hours of the sitting was Sergeant Harry Thompson of the Provincial Police detachment at Belleville, who conducted the investigation into the murders until the case was taken over by Inspector A. L. Ward, C.I.D., Toronto. Later Sergt. Thompson, and Police Constables Everett Smith and Samuel Ervine rendered invaluable assistance in the unravelling of the clues that ultimately led to the arrest of Train.

Survivors From Sunken Freighter Beaverburn Landed in England

By HAROLD FAIR
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

A port in the south of England, Feb. 8 (CP-Cable). — Seventy-six survivors of the torpedoed Canadian Pacific freighter Beaverburn, mostly clothed scantily but smiling through a three-day stubble of beard, were brought to this port in safety today insisting they had not had their "wind up" at any time.

The men said the 9,874-ton Beaverburn sank quickly but that time was left for the launching of all the boats and for getting off al lthe crew except a cook, who was lost.

Members of the crew fell over like tenpins when the blast of the torpedo struck the ship, but none were in any way seriously injured.

No one knew positively how the lone fatality, Cook Alf Hockley, an Englishman, died. He was seen on the deck as the ship sank and it was believed he leaped overboard and was drowned.

Bert Coxen of Montreal, one of four Canadians aboard, was most anxious that "the missus should know I'm fine". The other Canadians were Albert Kelly of Ottawa, Jack Foley of Montreal ,and Eddie Chambers of Wynyards, Sask.

Captain Tom Jones, a rotund, bald little Welshman, had little to say about the sinking of his ship. He could not even admit he got a ducking when he was the last man aboard and had to jump.

Picked Up By Tanker.

The Beaverburn survivors were picked up and brought here by a tanker whose crew believed the torpedo was meant for their ship, for it "missed our stern by only a couple of yards".

When the survivors landed most of them were clad in overalls. A couple who were bathing when the torpedo shattered the freighter escaped wearing towels in the sarong manner and with blankets over their shoulders.

A dingy clothing store here promptly became the most popular place in town, after which the men went to the Seamen's Hospital for a feed of ham and eggs and Cornish pastry, which is a small meat and rice pie.

The hospital is in the charge of two former residents of Canada, the Rev. T. H. Elkington and his wife, who used to work in the Seamen's Mission in Vancouver.

After the blast the lost cook Hockley, directed cook's boy John Burns how to save his life.

"Take your time, you'll be all right," the cook told the boy.

Burns, 20, was so affected by the loss of Hockley that he did not eat for three days.

GOVERNMENT NOT ON THE DEFENSIVE SAYS MR. ROGERS

Opposition Must Produce Support for "Bitter and Unwarranted Attacks"

SPEAKS AT KINGSTON

Defence Minister Unanimously Chosen as Liberal Candidate in Kingston City

Kingston, Ont., Feb. 8 (CP).—In calling this general election, the government is taking the initiative, placing its critics in a position where they must produce support for their "bitter and unwarranted" attacks on the government's conduct of the war, Defence Minister Rogers maintains.

"The government is not on the defensive," he said here last night in one of the key-note speeches opening the Liberal campaign. "We have appealed beyond parliament and legislature to the source of all political power and authority. Our opponents are on the defensive.

"We have compelled them to go to the people and prove that in thought or deed we have failed to put forth our maximum united effort or that this effort in the light of all the facts does not entitle the government to carry on with the great undertaking it assumed five months ago."

Selected As Candidate.

The defence minister outlined this approach as he addressed a nomination convention of 400 persons which unanimously selected him as Liberal candidate in Kingston city

'I Have Nothing to Say' Statement of Accused When Committed

Fred Thain, 46-year-old Rawdon farmer, charged with the murder of Arnold and Nancy Wellman at their farm home near Harold, on January 31st., last, was committed to stand trial at the Fall Assizes of the Supreme Court, which will be held in October, by Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., late this Thursday afternoon, when B. C. Donnan, K.C., County Crown Attorney announced he had concluded the number of witnesses he intended to call.

When the last witness had completed his testimony, the Crown Attorney asked for a committal to the next court of competent jurisdiction for the accused Fred Thain.

Ordering the accused man to stand up, Magistrate Butler read the charges of the murders of Arnold and Nancy Wellman laid against him. After the usual warning, that anything he might say might be used against him, Magistrate Butler asked Thain if he had anything to say.

"I have nothing to say, Your Honor" ,the accused man said in a clear firm voice, his inevitable smile twitching his lips.

Magistrate Butler then formally committed him for trial at the Fall Assizes.

Cross-examined by Defence Counsel McCulloch upon resumption this afternoon, Constable Smith told the court that the Wellman home would be visible from tracks discovered north of a small knoll north of the Wellman barn.

Answering a query of the Crown, witness stated accused had a bobsleigh on his premises and tracks found on Wellman property could be made by runners of these sleighs.

Samuel Woodard, brother of the slain woman had been in the Wellman barn on February 5th., when David Wellman was getting articles ready for the auction sale. He found a shotgun shell in the cow-stable about an inch from the wall. He gave it to Constable Smith. Woodard could not swear that his brother-in-law owned a pair of sleighs. There were no sleighs around the Wellman property at the time, however, Constable Smith, recalled to the stand said.

Exhibits Go To Expert

Inspector A. L. Ward, C.I.D., Toronto, placed on the stand, corroborated police officer's statement. He listed articles received from the officers, shotguns, shells, wadding, false teeth, eyeglass lens, letters, clothing, etc.

He had examined clothing, overalls, coat, etc., and found spots resembling bloodstains on them. He

POLICE HOLD CONFESSION IN AXE SLAYING

Joe Duglos, Czecho-Slovakian, Admits Killing His Landlady, Mrs. John Mazsin

HELD FOR MURDER

Toronto, Feb. 8.—(CP) —North York township police said they held a written confession today from Joe Duglos, 36-year-old native of Czecho Slovakia, in the axe slaying of his former landlady, Mrs. John Mazsin.

Two hours after the hacked body of Mrs. Mazsin was found in the basement of her home Duglos rushed into the township police station last night and declared "I murdered her".

He was arrested on a murder charge and locked up. A neighbor of the Mazsin family said he was chopping wood in the back yard of the home yesterday.

Mrs. Mazsin's husband was too grief-stricken to speak, but their four daughters related that Duglos had spent the past two winters as a boarder with the family. Three weeks ago Mazsin ordered him from the home because, the children said, he tried to run the affairs of the house. But Duglos came back yesterday and asked to be allowed to room at the house again.

Mrs. Margaret Seminsky said Duglos was chopping wood when she called on Mrs. Mazsin in the early afternoon. He came into the house and said he had chopped enough for one afternoon, Mrs. Seminsky revealed.

The youngest daughter, Martha, 12, found her mother's body when she returned home from school and started to climb through a basement window because the doors were locked. Missing from the home was jewelry and a small amount of money.

CONSCRIPT ARMIES ON WAR FOOTING BY MID-MARCH

Little Neutrals of Southeastern Europe Fearful of Springtime Crisis

SCRAP IRON SOUGHT

By DANIEL DE LUCE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Budapest, Feb. 8 (AP).—The little neutrals of southeastern Europe, fearful of a springtime crisis imperilling their peace, will have their conscript armies on a war footing by mid-March.

A survey showed today that defence measures repeating the "military concentrations" of 1939 are ready to be put in force in Rumania, Yugoslavia, Hungary, Turkey, Bulgaria and Greece.

Some of these small powers already have announced the calling of certain classes for "additional training", but none permits use of the word mobilization to describe its plans.

Rumania, holding about 700,000 to 1,000,000 men under arms through the winter, will increase the total during spring exercises.

FURTHER BRITISH AID FOR FINNS

Mr. Chamberlain Says More Aid is on Way — Finnish Success Admiration of World

London, Feb. 8 (CP) — Prime Minister Chamberlain told the House of Commons today that further British aid for Finland was on the way and that "the help given from this country has been of real value to Finland.

The success attending Finnish arms, Mr. Chamberlain said, "has evoked the admiration of the world."

This statement drew loud cheers from the House.

The Prime Minister voiced satisfaction over the results of the recent Balkan entente conference in Belgrade.

He asserted the seven-year renewal of the Balkan Entente Pact "indicates the determination of the governments of those countries to do everything in their power to maintain stability and security in southeastern Europe."

He expressed the belief that other states of southeastern Europe had "this important object equally at heart."

On the Russian-Finnish conflict, Mr. Chamberlain said: "The Finnish people continue their heroic struggle against an enemy who is using his huge air fleets in a vain endeavour to shake their spirit by burning the homes of the poor, shattering with high explosives hospitals full of wounded men and pursuing defenceless citizens with machine guns."

FRENCH SEND OUT SCOUT NETWORK

Take Advantage of Improving Weather by Scouting Between Moselle and Saar Rivers

Paris, Feb. 8 (AP).—Steadily increasing French patrol activity on the western front was reported in military dispatches today.

The French command was said to have taken advantage of improving weather conditions to spread out a network of scouts, particularly on the northern flank of the front between the Moselle and Saar Rivers.

Military advices said three patrols filtered "deep" within the German lines and returned intact with "important' information.

JAPAN REPORTS CHINESE PLAN TO RAID COUNTRY

Defence Precautions Taken Throughout Western Part of Japan

DETAILS REFUSED

Planes Would Only Have to Fly 200 Miles From China Coast

Tokyo, Feb. 8 (AP)—There are "definite grounds" for reports that the Chinese plan air raids on Japan, a spokesman for the Japanese navy said today as newspapers declared that defence precautions were being taken throughout the western part of the country.

The spokesman refused to give further details on the plea of military secrecy. It was learned military authorities believed such raids possible. There was no "official nervousness."

(Similar reports in Shanghai were described by various foreign military men as "propaganda aimed at taking the minds of the Japanese public off domestic troubles."

(These observers, all widely-travelled in the interior of China and familiar with the extent of Chinese equipment, said, "China hasn't a single aircraft capable of reaching Japan from present Chinese bases with a cargo of bombs."

(Kyushu, southernmost of the main islands of Japan, is about 500 miles from the China coast at the nearest point, and 200 or 300 miles more from the nearest possible point of departure for a Chinese bombing aquadron.

(The Chinese air force made a 1,000-mile round trip, however, on Feb. 23, 1938, to bomb the Japanese-owned island of Formosa, which is about 700 miles south of Kyushu. Japanese and chinese sources dis-

GRAIN BAGS IDENTIFIED

Mrs. Heagle States She Saw Thain Driving Past Her Home With Team on Sleigh on Wednesday

Identification by David Wellman, Rawdon farmer, a new witness introduced by the Crown, of grain bags, a pitchfork and a scoop, found on the premises of Frederick Thain, Rawdon farmer charged with the slaying of Arnold and Nancy Wellman, aged Rawdon farmers, last week, featured the resumption of the preliminary hearing in county court buildings today.

Seven witnesses were called by the Crown during the morning session of the hearing, principal among whom was Sergt. Harry Thompson, who resumed his evidence interrupted last night by adjournment. Chas. Dunham and his son, Wellman neighbors told the court they had seen a man crossing a field near their woods about three o'clock on Jan. 31.

David Wellman, besides his identification of his dead relative's property, stated that he had found the key of the Wellman granary hidden in a small tin, while getting articles ready for auction sale held on Tuesday. Later his father had found the lock of the granary hidden in a pile of rubbish.

Freshly-shaven Thain again flashed a smile as his gaze swept rapidly

Radio Censorship During Election Will be on the "Honor System"

Ottawa, Feb. 8—(CP) — Radio censorship during the Dominion elections campaign will be on the "honor system," according to a modification of the wartime broadcasting code announced Wednesday by Lieut.-Col. R. P. Landry, radio representative on the censorship co-ordination committee.

Instead of submitting texts of broadcast political speeches to regional censors, the speakers and managers of the radio stations "will be required of their own accord to observe the defence of Canada regulations."

Regulations barring broadcasts from the public platform remain in effect, with all political broadcasting confined to radio studios.

The modification, Colonel Landry announced, was made at "the unanimous request of all political parties."

Speeches broadcast on free time over the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation will be the responsibility of the party leaders in so far as observance of the defence of Canada regulations is concerned.

"The objects of censorship," the announcement said, "are to guard against communication of information useful to the enemy, the making of statements intended or likely to cause disaffection to His Majesty or to interfere with the success of His Majesty's forces, the spreading of reports and statements intended or likely to prejudice recruiting, training, discipline or administration of His Majesty's forces, and the spreading of reports or statements prejudicial to the safety of the state or the efficient prosecution of the war.

"Constant vigilance must be maintained to avoid communication of any information useful and beneficial to the enemy, and paragraphs 16 and 39 (referring to statements prejudicial to the war effort) of the defence of Canada regulations will apply without exception during the election campaign."

Texts of broadcast political speeches must be kept on file at each station, according to the regulation in the C.B.C. and this must be observed, the radio censor said.

Referring to the ban on broadcasts from public platforms, the censor said that "it has been pointed out that at public meetings statements and utterances by persons in the audience cannot be checked."

Believes Liberal Policies Will Keep Canada United

In Radio Address Prime Minister Asks Electors to Consider Several Questions Before Making a Decision as How to Vote

ONLY TWO ISSUES

First is Maintenance of National Unity and the Policy of the Present Gov't. in Prosecution of the War

Ottawa, Feb. 8—(CP)—On the decision of the voters at the March 26 general election "will depend not only our contribution to the war but the maintenance of our own integrity and unity as a nation in a shattered world, to which a united Canada may well bring a new hope of mankind," Prime Minister Mackenzie King said in his opening speech of the Liberal campaign.

In a 30-minute address last night over the national network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, the Prime Minister said that never before have the Canadian people been called upon to make so serious a decision.

Questions Asked

He said: "I would earnestly suggest that before arriving at your decision you ask yourself these questions:

"Should not this great task be entrusted to men who, tried in the school of experience, familiar with the problems to be faced, and advocates of policies widely supported, have throughout been united by a community of views?

British Censorship Condemned by Paper

Sydney, Australia, Feb. 7—(CP-Cable)—The Morning Herald severely condemned the British censorship of news bound for the Dominions in an editorial today.

"The suppression of news, which on the face of it can be of no conceivable value to the enemy, is bad enough when the British and Dominion peoples are equally the victims of official timidity and rigidity—to use no harsher terms," the paper said.

"But when the British ministry of information or the services intervene to prevent the people of Sydney, for instance, from reading news which is not banned in London the position has become frankly intolerable.

"So anomalous and so unjustified on any discernible grounds of policy is this interference with the imperial channels of communication that mere publication of the facts relating to it ought to have been sufficient to ensure its discontinuance.

CONANT MOVES BILL ELIMINATING GRAND JURIES

Also Introduces Bill to Reduce Jury to 6 in Civil Actions in Inferior Court

PROSPECTORS HELPED

Toronto, Feb. 8 (CP).—Two measures designed for streamlining Ontario court procedures in the interests of economy and speed were scheduled to be debated today in the Ontario Legislature.

The bills, sponsored by Attorney-General Gordon Conant, would eliminate grand juries, familiar feature of assize courts, and would reduce from 12 to 6 the number of persons required on a jury in civil actions in inferior courts.

It is possible that both measures will receive second reading today. They may then be referred to the committee of the whole or to a special committee.

Municipal Franchise.

The legislature heard yesterday from Hon. Eric Cross, Minister of Municipal Affairs, that the government is studying the question of the municipal franchise. His announcement came as the House gave second reading to a bill sponsored by

MEN REFUSE TO DIVULGE NAMES

Two Men, Arrested, Are Said to Have Damaged Plumbing at the Police Station

Two members of the R.C.A.F. (Trenton) who police state had been imbibing too freely of intoxicants, were arrested by city police on the market square at midnight last night. Upon their arrival at the police station, however, the men refused to divulge their names to Sergeant Arthur Booth, who promptly ordered the pair locked into the women's cell block.

Later police heard disturbances in the cell block and upon investigation discovered the two airmen had dislodged the lead pipe leading from the wash basin to the sewer and were making disturbances with the pipe. Sergeant Booth immediately removed the men to the men's steel cell block and notified R.C.A.F. authorities.

Upon arrival of Air Force police one of the men refused to return to his base, but later accompanied the party to Trenton. Today the wash basin in the cell block is being repaired, while the names of the two men were given by R.C.A.F. officials as George McGouran and Sidney Patrick.

Citizens Asked to Send for Sand Early

City Engineer Charles Mott today issued a plea to citizens desiring sand, to be used for sidewalk sanding purposes. "If householders would telephone to our office at times when things are quiet in our department they would receive more prompt service in the matter of obtaining sand from the city yard. Unfortunately the citizens wait until there is ice formed and then dozens of requests are received in a short space of time. We cannot accede to these emergency calls simultaneously, but citizens should make their requests for sand early and avoid disappointment in last minute emergency calls," pointed out City Engineer Mott. Sand is available at the city yard, Church Street, for persons who wish to make their own deliveries, as well.

Thain's Appearance Described at Opening Session Preliminary Hearing

Seemed to Show Little Interest in Court Proceedings — Gazed With Mild Curiosity at Witnesses Who Were Giving Testimony

SMILES AT SPECTATORS

A small slim man wearing a grey suit, blue shirt and tie stood in the prisoner's dock in the County Court yesterday afternoon.

He is Frederick Thain, 46-year-old Rawdon Township farmer, the central figure in one of the most shocking murder cases ever tried in a Hastings County court.

Escorted into a courtroom crowded with people he had known for years at the opening of his preliminary hearing before Magistrate E. J. Butler, he gazed around the room, a smile breaking over his face. He nodded and spoke to Dr. A. E. Carleton, Stirling physician, whom he had known for some time and who sat near a press desk. His eyes swept over the courtroom scene before him. He seemed unperturbed when he rose to hear charges of the murders of Arnold and Nancy Wellman, his farm neighbors, read to him by County Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan.

He appeared to show little interest in the proceedings as evidence of witnesses called by the crown slowly unfolded. He sat in the dock, arms folded across his chest at times, at others he sat with hands clasped in his lap. He gazed with what seemed mild curiosity at the various witnesses as they stepped into the witness-box to give evidence, but this was momentary and he seemed to lapse again into a more or less stoical attitude as the case proceeded.

During recess, however and following adjournment of the hearing, he seemed bright and cheerful. He chatted with reporters speaking of the excellent treatment afforded him by jail officials.

Talks to Former Employee

After the hearing, a friend and former employee, Albert Cotton, approached him, as he was about to be led away by Provincial Constable Adair. "Hello, there, Albert," he smiled, "how is everything going?" Cotton was visibly moved. Tears glistened in his eyes and his voice shook a little as he replied.

They conversed for a few minutes about things pertaining to home life in their community. A reporter passing by glanced at Thain. He smiled a cheery greeting. "How are you?' he said.

Turning again to Cotton: "Tell them that you saw he and that I am still kicking around," he laughed, as he was led away to his cell.

Police Blotter

An R.C.A.F. officer, who gave his name as Mr. Smallman, reported the loss of a valuable Irish Setter to the city police yesterday afternoon. A few minutes after the loss of the canine was announced, P. C. Wm. Evans recovered the animal on Front Street and returned it to its rightful owner.

An inebriate, who is known to police as an old offender, fell into the clutches of the law when arrested on charges of intoxication yesterday. The man was remanded to the county jail pending Friday's police court, when he will be arraigned under L.C.A. charges.

An average number of transients, ten in number, slumbered peacefully and without incident in the men's cell block last night.

"Y" to Provide Hospitality for Soldiers and Relatives

In co-operation with the Belleville and District War Service Committee, the House Committee of the local Y.M.C.A. is preparing and furnishing rooms for enlisted men, their relatives and friends.

One club room will provide for games, reading, music, etc., with writing desks and other equipment. Papers and envelopes will be provided free of cost.

Another parlor will be equipped where enlisted men may meet relatives and friends in quiet and comfortable surroundings.

The Red Triangle Sign to be placed at the corner of Front and Campbell Street, will be quickly recognized by all on active service as a standing invitation to enjoy the hospitality of the "Y" and the War Service Committee.

GREY TROOPSHIPS GLIDE SILENTLY

Today the boys are busy settling down in their billets, sorting out their kit and equipment, and trying to find their land legs after a bit of tossing on the war across.

The voyage, which was without incident, was described, however, by veteran sailors as a "ride on a duck pond".

Represent All Parts

The newcomers who have crossed the Atlantic to swell the growing force of Canadian fighters already in training at Aldershot represent every part of the Dominion. Among the contingent were many specialists skilled in the technical brunches of a modern, mechanized army.

essential to the efficient operation

There also was a handful of men in Air Force blue, several artillery units, mechanical maintenance detachments, ambulance corps, and other units whose function and composition cannot be disclosed.

No Official Greeting

Apart from the informal reception of the enthusiastic townspeople of the part of debarkation, there was no official ceremony of greeting. They marched off the transports singing the rollicking tunes heard whenever soldiers are on the move.

They came ashore in the same high spirits, cheering and shouting a mixture of warm greetings to natives of the port.

Before debarkation began, Major-General A. G. L. McNaughton, general officer commanding the C.A.S.F., accompanied by the Duke of Devonshire, under-secretary of State for the Dominions, and a group of senior staff officers, paid a personal call to each troopship.

Tour in Naval Pinnace

The party set off on its unique tour in a naval pinnace belonging to one of the warships which escorted the transports across the Atlantic. As the chugging craft approached the first ship, the troops lining the guard rail recognized their commander, who stood at the prow of the pinnace, and sent up a roar of cheers.

There were cries of "Good old Andy!" and "now we'll get ashore!"

Standing on the top of a Jacob's ladder hanging over the side of a luxury liner, General McNaughton recognized the ship's captain who brought him over from Canada nearly eight weeks ago.

A Fine Lot Says Captain

"Hello Captain", the General shouted. "So you've brought us over another good packet".

"We've that, and a fine lot of boys they are," the Captain shouted back.

Led by the General, one after another of the party climbed up the wobbly ladder to the promenade deck where the men lined up to pay a further tribute to their popular commander.

There were brief conferences in the ship's lounges between the smiling G.O.C. and the equally happy unit commanders. On deck squads were going through routine drills of physical training or otherwise limbering up. This continued until buglers called the officer and men to lunch and it was a farewell meal fit for a king.

As he departed, General McNaughton once again was surrounded by a throng of cheering troops. Then, as the pinnace pulled away, the strains of "Hail, Hail the Gang's all Here", and shouts of "Don't keep us here too long", drifted through the curtain of silvery fog.

Spent Day With Men

The General spent a full, eventful day among his men. Each ship's company tried to outdo the others in the warmth and volume of its greeting and all showed the same eagerness to get ashore and down to serious business.

Before the G.O.C. and his party left for the training camp, he was the guest of honour at a dinner given by the civic chief and councillors of the port of debarkation. As a remembrance of the landing and in tribute to "a great military leader and scientist", General McNaughton was presented with a rare edition of a collection of the letters of James Watt.

The volume will be especially valued by the General as his grandfather was closely associated with the researchers and engineering achievements of the famous Scot,

'CAROL LINE' OF DEFENCE

Newspapers are telling the story of a fourth great line of defence. There was first the Maginot Line, then the Siegfried Line or West Wall as it is known to the Germans, then the Mannerheim Line in Finland where the Finns are performing deeds of valor against the Russian invaders and now comes to notice the "Carol Line" in Rumania, built by military engineers with the labor of thousands of peasants, across the flat plains of Rumania along the borders separating that country from Hungary, Russia and what was once Poland. Defences have been under construction for four years and recently a forty-foot-deep moat has been excavated which can be flooded if occasion demands.

The new fortifications are modern in principle, barbed-wire baricades, anti-tank barriers of steel pickets in concrete bases, pill boxes with walls thirty feet thick and impervious to shell fire and block-houses of steel-reinforced concrete. In these pill-boxes there are special portholes from which flame-throwers may spurt fire or grenades may be hurled.

Never in history have there been such fortifications as today to guard defences. Now one danger to a modern fortification is the turning of the flank by invasion of adjacent territory but this danger may not be so real as it might be thought.

Probably this new system of fortifications may change the whole face of war as to methods of fighting. Terrific havoc can be caused an enemy attempting to break through one of these lines. One new meaning to war is of caurse the great attention given the air branch of the service for its importance in bombing and in spying out the camps of the enemy.

The war is too young for this world to know whether any attempt will be made to storm these "lines" which are supposed to be invulnerable.

In one way it seems like the style of the middle ages repeated in modern days, except that there is one line for a country or group of countries, whereas in the middle ages the land was dotted with the castles of mighty nobles which were fastnesses against the enemy of the country as well as against other chieftains.

FARMERS' SONS AND OCCUPATIONS

A survey made at Cornell University finds that a farmer's son is more likely to follow his father's occupation than is the son of a man in some other kind of work. The study was based by Prof. W. A. Anderson on 850 Cornell students covering three generations. Twice as many farmer sons as non-farmer sons were shown to have taken up the fathers' occupation. Other lines followed were mainly law, medicine, business ownership and skilled mechanical trades.

The report showed that where three generations in farming or other occupations are studied, there is a tendency towards decreasing transmission of the father's occupation to the sons. However farmers' sons are more likely to follow the family tradition even to the third generation than are the sons of non-farmers.

One of the facts brought out is that there is little tendency for the sons of non-farmers to switch to farming. This means that farming is largely self-perpetuating.

The Cornell report also indicates that it is the oldest son who is most likely to take up his father's work in farming or in other work.

Farm boys who go into urban and other non-agricultural pursuits turn to all sorts of occupations.

Another finding is that there is no indication that, where social classes were comparable, farmers' sons were any less successful when they entered other work than were the sons of fathers who were not farmers.

It is generally believed that farmers' sons in any profession outside of farming make a success in the new field of effort.

Undoubtedly it can be seen from this that farming is the outstanding profession in many ways for the farmer feeds the nation and the world and his occupation requires so thorough a knowledge of many fields of interest all classed under farming. It is no doubt the widest of the professions. It practically can live on its own efforts and it makes it possible for other professions and activities to exist. Some professions seem narrow in their interest as compared with the wide range of general knowledge and experience which go into farming.

It would seem natural that farmer's sons should follow the ancestral occupation though where there are large families most will have to branch out and secure farms of their own, while some may drift to other occupations. The farm life is rooted in the soil and really the farm is an estate. It is more than a home to live in. It is the place where the farmer carries on a unique industry. In that home the families are in fact all farmers. In city homes there is not the same unity. On the farm the great aspect of growth in nature overshadows all. It is this which makes agriculture so essential and so enduring. Other professions cannot so influence the home life. If a city man is a lawyer or business executive, the home life is not altogether affected by what profession the father follows. On the farm every member of the family is a farmer more or less even as a child. In the city the lawyer's, the doctor's, or the business man's or storekeeper's family are not all inclined along the same line as the father.

Life on the farm too implies that farmers have farmers as neighbors. In cities, the callings are mixed up only as the constant movement of the people can move them. Lawyers are not necessarily neighbors but farmers are. So the country is a unit of a community quite different from the unity of the city.

THE STORY FROM POLAND

A terrible story has been told by the Poles of the German treatment of this conquered people. Neutral sources too have stated that firing squads, starvation and disease have taken toll of from two to five million of the civilians of Poland since the first of September. The story is one of the ghastliest of all history. The neutral reports blame the persecutions on the drastic stand taken by German officials in the conquered country.

The Nazi reaction to the Poles, their claim that the Poles are an inferior people, cannot but have an effect on officials the Nazi government has sent to Poland. The Nazi Germans look on themselves as masters and the Poles as slaves. It is charged that orders have made subject to death all Poles who in any way have since 1918 and 1919 interfered with German authority, even those who last year burned their homes and crops before the invading Nazi armies. It is charged that from ten to fifty Poles have been executed for every German who lost his life, even if his fate was brought on him by his cruelty to the Polish people.

That is the charge against the Nazis. What the Polish people who survive have suffered in cruelties and in lack of food and fuel no story can tell.

Poland was the ground on which Nazism showed its wolfish fangs. The degraded principles of the Nazis have produced this callousness to human woe and suffering and have shocked the moral conscience of the world.

One has an example how this has worked out in the movement of the population. German families have been uprooted from their homes in the Baltic republics though they have lived there for as many as seven hundred years. They are brought to Poland and are given the best parts of that country at the cost of the Poles. How ruthless Nazi Germans are is shown by the fact that the Nazis themselves have even removed Germans from the Tyrol where they have lived for generations and have planted them in Germany. The Nazis which will outrage humanity in the other peoples does not mind outraging even German sentiment.

The world sees in Poland reason enough why there can be no peace with the barbaric Nazis. It is such cruelties which have made all nations active or potential opponents of the Nazis. It is such which are stiffening the resolve that those responsible for these horrors shall be brought to justice and punished for their crimes.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M.D.

Swimming Pools as Cause of Head Colds, Nose and Thoat Infections

During the months when the waters of lakes and oceans are too cold for swimmers, many towns and cities are equipped with swimming pools. These pools are in the great majority of cases kept very clean by washing down the sides and floor once or twice a week, allowing the water to drain over troughs at the edges, and the use of chlorine every 24 hours. Despite all these precautions the number of head colds and nose and ear infections is very large. Patients state that just as soon as they begin "indoor" swimming, they seem to have a continuous head cold.

Because of these colds there has been much criticism of these indoor pools; the water is not changed often enough, too much chlorine is used, the air about the pool is too hot and wet causing a cold when going outdoors after the swim.

What really is the cause of these head colds, nose and ear infections?

Swimming instructors tells us that human beings engaging in sport on land, learn to breath naturally and as slowly or rapidly as the exercise demands. But when they enter the water, they tense their bodies, breathe irregularly and unnaturally, and so get water into nose and throat from whence it may enter into esutachian tube (at back of throat) and get carried up to the middle ear.

Another cause for these head colds and infections is pointed out by Dr. H. Marshall Taylor, Jacksonville, Florida, in the Journal of the American Medical Association. "It is now an accepted fact that chilling of the body surfaces causes constriction (partial closing) of blood vessels of the skin including the blood vessels in the lining of nose." It is also an accepted fact that prolonged lack of blood to the lining of the nose (due to this partial closing caused by cool air) naturally reduces the local resistance of the lining of the nose, so that this lining is unable to fight off infection.

The cause of these head colds and infections in most cases is thus believed to be (a) breathing in when head is under water, and (b) sitting or standing around the swimming pool and allowing the skin and mucous membrane of the nose to get chilled instead of keeping body warm by moving around.

The remedy is to learn to take a long breath when head is out of water and breath out when under water. Also, to keep the body active when not in the water.

Daily War Survey

By The Canadian Press

Although German attacks on Allied shipping in which submarines, aircraft and mines are employed continue they are annoying rather than dangerous. All available figures on shipping losses indicate the present rate of destruction when countered by the construction of new ships, capture of German and purchase of neutral vessels, falls far short of the rate which would be necessary to starve Great Britain into submission.

The German sea campaign has recently been described as a counter measure to the Allied blockade. It may have some effect in that Allied warships required for the convoys of shipping and the protection of coasts and port approaches from mine-laying can not be used in the blockade.

If it has a larger objective it is obviously a failure but so far there is no indication of the employment of other tactics by the enemy. The talk heard from time to time of a big offensive against the Maginot Line or of a march through Holland and Belgium or Switzerland has no more basis than at any time since the Polish campaign ended and Germany's traditional horror of a war on two fronts was removed.

Recent events in the Balkans and the reaction of German officialdom to the renewal of the pledge of solidarity among the Little Entente powers, Rumania, Yugoslavia, Greece and Turkey, make Nazi aggression in that section of Europe look less probable than before.

Possibly the long-expected spring push is already decided upon and the present situation is merely the calm before a storm.

Bombs Over Cities

The walled medieval town was as characteristic of its period as the cut of a robber baron's beard. It sprang out of the exigencies of war, and it was not without its hygienic deficiencies may have been. Behind its high, thick walls not only the normal inhabitants but the whole countryside fought and cowered in an hour of need. Today the capitals of Europe forsake the city when the sirens scream and death from the sky seems imminent. Will the fear of bombs accelerate the slow decentralization which began with the automobile and the wide distribution of electrical energy and thus reverse the medieval flow to the city?

In a mournful effort to extract some prospective social benefit from the conflict that has unnerved the world, The Technology Review quotes the optimistic views of British town planners who believe that a healthy decentralization of industry will be one of the necessary consequences of the war. On the other hand, skeptics will not fail to point out that the residents of Barcelona soon adapted themselves to air raids and learned how to seek refuge in underground shelters which accommodated hundreds and which were well ventilated and drained and electrically illuminated. It is the stupendous expense that deters Europe from building vast emergency quarters underground. Hence the elaborate plans for evacuating towns when enemy propellers begin to drone overhead, and hence the interference of Government with the plans of industries and citizens. If what we are experiencing now is but one of a succession of wars, as many historians think, the city planners may be right. Possibly some Swift of the year 2200 may point rather sardonically at the England of his day as an example of what a cruel and unnecessary war can accomplish by way of restoring to huddled humanity its birthright of fresh air, sunshine and outdoor recreation.—N. Y. Times.

Part Played by Camera Patrol Of Immense Value to Britain

"Zero hour is 0900. No bombs, cameras only. Fly at 5,000 feet (1,523.3 metres). Objectives—docks, shipping, defences. Right, good luck, boys."

x x x

That is the sort of message that British Royal Air Force bomber squadrons are receiving day after day. They are sent out in small flights to reconnoitre the enemy positions. Their task is to take photographs while the enemy ground defences blaze away at them; to keep on a steady course while fighters swarm round, writes Keith Rogers in Hamilton Spectator.

The most difficult and dangerous job in the air, they call it. But it has to be done, and during the first three months of war British planes have photographed the whole of the Siegfried line, great tracts of Germany and many of the most important aerodromes, ports and railway junctions.

Cameras weighing twenty-eight pounds, without the electrical batteries to operate them, are fixed to the bodies of the aeroplanes. They are controlled by a small panel in front of the observer, which enables him either to select single pictures or to set the camera running to take 125 exposures in one run, with a definite interval between each picture.

That interval varies with both the height and the speed of the machine. The observer works it out from a simple formula while in the air. Apart from deciding that, and judging the light within wide limits, and setting his shutter to suit, he has nothing to do that a mere amateur photographer could not accomplish.

The wizardry of aerial photography has been worked out on the ground. There, in the aerodromes and laboratories, are skilled men who have been through an intensive course to enable them to process film, to make prints, set cameras, work out exposure schedules, construct photographic map mosiacs, and generally to make certain that the aerial camera will do its job without fail.

Thirty-six weeks is the full course of training, divided into numerous sections of one or two weeks' duration. And at the end of each section examinations weed out those who have not proved sufficiently proficient or skilful.

British-made lenses are used in the cameras. The photographs measure five inches square and a speed of 1-300 of a second is used for the exposure, no matter what the weather. So fast is the film used that full exposures in the dullest lights are obtainable with that speed of shutter.

I have mentioned the map mosiacs. They are made from enlarged prints of the negatives brought back by the camera patrol. Fitted together they form an accurate map of the country over which the planes have flown.

There is more in it than a mere map, however. The pictures taken by the automatic electrically-driven cameras are taken at such intervals of time that each exposure overlaps the one before by 60 per cent. Thus the whole of the ground is photographed twice, from positions many hundreds of feet apart. The result is that a stereoscopic picture can be built up as well as a single plane map, and a good idea of heights and contours can be obtained for use by ground forces. The tell-tale shadows of fortifications, gun emplacements, and tank traps all tell a story to the keen-eyed officers at headquarters.

x x x

Next time you read about a camera "raid," picture this scene. The departure of the aircraft with loaded cameras aboard, and probably spare magazines of film for insertion in the cameras when in flight.

As the machines approach the objective they dive, and flattening out, fly over the area at an even speed and constant height. Though bullets and shells scream past, the pilots must not vary from the course or the whole value of the map that is being made will be lost.

Click . . . click . . . click . . . goes the focal plane shutter in each camera. Planes fly side by side or in echelon so that a wide area is covered at a time. Then they turn and come back again to cover further ground. Click . . . click . . . click . . . with intervals of, say, twenty seconds between the exposures.

When the job is done the machines abandon their steady course. Turning for home, they climb and dodge the attacks from below and from fighters. If intercepted, they may give battle, but they have orders not to seek a fight. Those photographs are wanted at the base — and wanted urgently.

Details of the subject taken, the light and the height of the machines are given by the observer to the photographic unit in the home aerodrome, so that compensation may be made for under or over-exposed negatives when developing takes place.

Sixty-five feet (19.8 metres) of film at a time is processed in one great reel as it comes from the camera. Then it is dried and printed in special enlargers. Photopraghs are taken of the prints, too, so that there are many copies of the original negative in case the master negative should be damaged. And the whole lot are filed away in an intricate filing system.

Meanwhile the map-makers are busy with the map. In a remarkably short time they have translated the pictures into a living sky view of the objective. Notes made by the observer, while the camera was clicking, assist in recognition of unfamiliar objects.

x x x

In bright weather infra-red photography is occasionally used to pierce the camouflage which would defy the normal camera. But infra-red photographs are not easy to take. The speed and the unsteadiness of the machine affect the slow exposure of the infra-red film. So far the fastest film allows 1-100 of a second exposure with a stop of f.4, but nothing faster.

Filters are used on the lenses during all photographic "raids" to clarify the atmosphere, and at night it is possible to drop flares that will light up the ground so that pictures may be taken. In such cases, an ingenious and most effective method is used. The camera shutter is set at "open," a flare is dropped, and immediately the ground is illuminated a photo-electric cell comes into operation and closes the camera shutter.

Two hundred men are constantly going through the British Royal Air Force training school of photography before taking up jobs in aerodromes all over Britain and abroad. They have to deal with ground photography, as well as aerial work, taking pictures of crashes, of enemy planes brought down, of new apparatus, beside the copying work that is always required so that maps and plans may be duplicated.

x x x

The men of Britain's Air Force are busy, night and day, and the photographers are busiest of all. Already millions of photographs have been taken of the barriers which lie between the British armies and victory. And there are millions more to come.

ARCHERY CLUB FORMED IN CITY

William Vaisil Named President and Shoots Held in Armouries

Archery, the most ancient and honored sport known to mankind, will be available to Belleville sportsmen with the organization of the Belleville Archery Club yesterday. William Vaisil, provincially-wide known archer, who recently known archer who recentwas elected to head Belleville's newest sporting venture as President of the Belleville Archery Club.

The art of sport with the use of the bow and arrow dates back well over 3,000 years B.C., as Egyptians are believed to have used bows and arrows nearly 70 centuries ago. Besides being splendid recreation, archery teaches those interested in poise and steadiness of nerves. The Belleville Archery Club is open to membership from the entire district and interested persons should either contact the club officials or attend the practice archery shoots now being held semi-weekly in the Belleville Armouries.

The officers elected to office in the Belleville Archery Club yesterday were:

President—Wm. Vaisil.

Vice-President—Inspector Frank Gardner.

Sec.-Treas.—Russell Smith.

For some weeks past several ardent archers and others, beginners, have been shooting at archery targets in the Armouries, but the club intends to extend its activities once the weather is suitable for out-of-doors archery. Competent instruction for beginners is assured those who may be interested, but who never drew a bow. The next club shoot at the Armouries ranges will be on Friday evening to which interested persons are welcome as guests to learn the finer points regarding this new sporting venture—archery.

Prank Not Appreciated By Younger Boy

Everyone likes to see the kids enjoy themselves and playing little tricks on one another sort of helps the younger element in attaining this end, but there is a wast difference in the nature of tricks and one we saw enacted yesterday afternoon was decidedly in bad taste.

One young lad was hurrying up Front Street being followed by two larger fellows who were continually molesting the lad as he tried his best to evade them. Whether it was the continuance of a feud started at school or maybe it was just pure deviltry, but anyway one of the older chaps suddenly snatched the young lad's cap off his head and chucked it in the water-filled gutter. Crying furiously the little fellow reclaimed his cap and ran sobbing up the street, while the two miscreants, realising the error of their ways, glanced guiltily around and scampered up a near-by alley.

ELSA IN OTTAWA

Ottawa,— Elsa Maxwell internationally-known party giver, believes that if "Hitler ever had a good belly laugh, there would be no war".

She came to Ottawa to lecture and expressed amazement at the lack of visual evidence that Canada is at war.

Discussing her art at party-giving she said her secret for a successful party was to make everything completely natural—no fuss, no pretense.

Only two accessories matching each other should be the rule for Spring—the rest can match the costume as in the case of shoes, or they can introduce a harmonizing third color.

PERSONALS

E. P. Clarke Kinnear sailed from New York on Friday for British West Indies on business for W. C. Pitfield and Company, investment brokers. He will be away for six weeks.

St. John's Guild meeting was held at home of Mrs. Putman, Herchimer Ave., with an all day quilting and a pot-luck dinner. Euchre was held Tuesday evening, at the home of Miss Beatrice Jones on Dundas Street. The proceeds were given to the Wardens of the Mission.

Mr. Jack Thomson, College Hill, entertained a number of friends to an old fashioned sleighing party last evening. After an enjoyable drive the guests returned to the Thomson home for a social evening of games, music and old time square dancing. Later an appetizing lunch of hot dogs, cakes and coffee was served.

An interesting meeting of Christ Church Guild was held in the Parish Hall Tuesday afternoon with a good attendance. Several new members were introduced. At this meeting the 1940 executive assumed office, the members being Mrs. G. G. Wright, honorary president; Mrs. F. B. Sprung, president; Miss F. Fitzgerald, first vice-president; Mrs. R. A. Backus, second vice-president; Mrs. A. S. Duffield, secretary; Mrs. B. J. Theobald, treasurer. The business of the meeting was devoted to making plans for the cooking school the Guild is sponsoring. At the conclusion of the program, Mrs. Embury Adams' group served afternoon tea.

Following Dr. Richard Maresch's address to the Belleville Lecture and Study Club last evening, an informal reception was held in his honour in the Collegiate Library. The tea tables were beautifully arranged with snapdragons, daffodils and irises. Mrs. Norman Edwards and Mrs. A. C. Locke poured tea, and members of the executive assisted in serving. Catering for the reception was capably carried out by girls of Miss Grout's department at the Collegiate.

In the personal note yesterday regarding Dr. E. M. MacDonald commencing practice in Belleville, it was stated he served his internship at Belleville General Hospital. While he was there as an undergraduate for a brief time, his postgraduate courses were in connection with Kingston General Hospital, where he spent two years, later going into practice in Northern Ontario.

HOLLOWAY ST. W.M.S.

The February meeting of the W.M.S. of Holloway Street Church was held in the church parlours on February 7th. Mrs. Newman, the new president, was in the chair.

Reports of the various secretaries were received and plans made regarding the W.M.S. Presbyterial for March. Mrs. Cordes then took charge of the meeting. A solo "My Task" by Miss Clarke was much enjoyed. The Scripture readings were by Miss McCroden, Mrs. Kerr and Mrs. Mott. Mrs. Coulter read an article on "Temperance and the War".

Mrs. Holmes in her talk based on "Moving Millions" made India and her people seem very real. She ably portrayed the contrasts existing there in caste, climatic conditions, languages, education, wealth and poverty, palaces and hovels. She concluded with "The Indian Road", of which the first and last verses are:

"I love to meet the common folk
Who travel the Indian Road
Whose feet are dusty
Whose backs are bent
Beneath their daily load.

"He will enter their homes as in Galilee,
Their humble food He will share,
And His glory and love
Shall shine in these
Who purely meet Him there."

For a Healthy Color

JUDY GARLAND. . .outdoor exercises gives her cheeks healthy color

By HELEN FOLLETT

BLUSHING is the only trick a smart girl can't learn, and it's a question whether she'd bother to turn on the rosy-posy glow if she could. The modern girl is not coy or naive. She is a clear-eyed, clear-thinking young lady and knows what she's about.

What she does want is a healthy color in her cheeks. It's nice not to have to resort to the rouge pad; it makes one feel superior. Girls who have a fair amount of outdoor life usually have glowing complexions. Those who are blessed with zestful appetites, down their beefsteak and onions with pleasure and enthusiasm, never suffer from pallor. Good circulation is a factor. One way, besides exercise, to get it is to have a salt glow every morning.

Stand in the bath tub, friction the flesh all over the body with moistened table salt. The tiny crystals stir up the capillaries close to the surface of the skin. Rub briskly with the palms of the hands.

Turn on the warm shower, stand under it while you count 30. Turn on the cold for the same length of time. Then warm and cold again. Nothing like alternating temperatures to make blood streams skeedaddle. Have at hand a turkish towel of unbleached linen which takes hold like a guilty conscious; use it vigorously. Then friction with a bath tonic that has an alcoholic content.

When a woman has a cold sore on her lip, she feels as if her face had gone to seed. If she is wise, she will do nothing at all, let Nature attend to the repairing of tissues.

Oftimes the simplest application will cause a large swelling to form and the infection will travel down to the glands in the neck. Camphor, the old-fashioned remedy, may raise the mischief. Peroxide, which is also recommended, may do the same thing. Every victim does not have the same reaction. And keep the fingers away from the little blisters.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Children's Clothes

Don't make your children feel conspicuous by dressing them in clothes inappropriate to their age, or in a ridiculous fashion that makes them feel strange. Children resent this, and rightly. Whether you buy or make your children's clothes, choose simple patterns or designs and materials suitable for children.

Children love to be consulted in the choosing of their clothes. And here is an opportunity for you to develop their taste, agreeing with them when it is good and explaining to them why it is not good taste, if they want the wrong things.

Stork Shower

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

My daughter is expecting a baby in about three months. I am in doubt as to whether or not it is proper for me to give her a stork shower. She does not have any sister or brothers to give her a shower, and no aunts or any cousins in the city. May I properly give her a shower, or must we wait to see if her girl friend might?

Mother

You apparently have the same intuitive feeling that most people have—that for a member of the family or close relatives of the guest of honour to plan a shower for her does perhaps give the unattractive impression that the party is a direct bid for gifts. If a close friend of your daughter's plans a stork shower for her, it gives the impression that it is a gathering of her well-wishers, but when a relative gives the party, the reason seems forced.

However, there isn't any rule about this, and if you think your friends and your daughter's friends won't put this interpretation on it, you can abide by your own or your daughter's decision.

Informal Dinner

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

I am to have an informal dinner for twelve people. The party will include my mother and father, three married couples between thirty-five and forty years of age, my married sister and her husband, and my boy friend.

Please tell me how the party should be seated at the table?

Jane

I am sure that you would want your mother to have her accustomed place at the head of the table, with your father seated opposite her, at the foot of the table. Then your place might be in the centre of one side of the table, and your young man friend might have the place opposite you. If you wish to give honour to your sister and her husband, you might place your sister at the right of your young man and her husband at your right. Or you might properly select another couple for this seating of honour.

If your mother and father are the real hosts of this dinner, seat at your mother's right the man to whom you wish to give most honour, and at your father's right the women guest of honour. Remember that a husband and wife are not seated next to each other at a dinner party.

The Nearly Blind Child

Every now and then the family doctor or general practitioner comes up against a problem that is difficult to handle, because he knows what is wrong and how to remedy it, but can't apply the remedy. Such a problem is bothering me now. A family I have known for years had a child who is partially blind, that is, its vision is very badly impaired.

The child's sight is so bad that it cannot read ordinary school books or do lessons properly and is falling behind in its classes. The ordinary country school hasn't teachers to give special attention to such cases, of course. Do you parents realize, by the way, how many times poor marks aren't due to stupidity or laziness of a child, but to a defect in the child's hearing or sight that parents and teachers aren't aware of?

I have been trying to arrange for this family to send the little girl to a special sight-saving school to be educated, and haven't been successful so far.

Everyone feels a great deal of pity for a child who is blind, but sometimes I think the partially blind youngster is an even more unfortunate case. Often his sight is so bad that it is all but useless to him. Yet, the public does not feel the same sympathy and generosity toward him as it does for the boy or girl who has no sight at all. Apparently, as far as most persons are concerned, a child is either blind, or he isn't. They never seem to take borderline cases into consideration.

For all practical purposes, I think any child is blind whose vision cannot be improved enough by the use of glasses to enable him to read ordinary school books, or whose eyes would be injured by reading them. Some children who see a little are in the same class as the completely blind when it comes to school, others can be taught by modified methods although not in ordinary schools. That is why school systems all over United States and Canada are organizing special sight-saving classes.

Our trouble out in the country is that these classes are all held in the larger cities, and are inaccessible to many country children who should be in them.

On the other hand, I think that here in the country we have less eye trouble than city children have. Eyesight depends a great deal on general physical health, and it seems to me that country children have a better chance to be well physically these days. Also city children seem to be subjected to more eyestrain than country children are now.

Children's eyes were always a problem to me in the early days of my practise. Parents didn't pay a great deal of attention to a child's eye sight and any defects usually showed up first when the children went to school. However, I found also that we couldn't always depend on the teacher to detect the trouble.

Now we have fewer cases of neglected visual defects in children's hereabouts for the Red Cross maintains nurses in our outlying districts who check up on all school children periodically. Any found to be defective in any way are reported to the proper authorities and they get glasses, or have their teeth fixed, or have done for them whatever is needed.

The result of this work has been remarkable. A child will be thought stupid or lazy in school. The teacher will just give him up in despair. Then the Red Cross nurse comes along, finds his eyes are bad. Right away he gets a test by an optician and is given glasses. Well, again and again, I have seen these apparently stupid children, forge to the head of their class.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Another Girl Caused a Break Between Them

Dear Miss Fairfax

My girl friend and I were getting along swell, and I was sure that I loved her. All of a sudden things changed just because another girl interfered and told her things about me which were only partly true. Do you think I ought to explain to my girl, telling her the truth, or try to make the other girl apologize and tell a straight story?

I'm only 17 and I know I'm too young to marry, but I do think the world of this girl friend, and no other girl has ever meant as much to me. Don't say I'm too young for love; I feel it's an inspiration to everyone, and what is life without it?

P. M.

You are quite right, in thinking that love plays an important part in inspiring people to work for the better things in life. If you have found the girl whom you like better than all the rest, and she is a source of inspiration, don't lose any time about getting back into her good graces. I believe the best way would be to go to her and explain everything.

Loves Her Sister's Boy Friend

Dear Miss Fairfield

I'm 19 years old and very much in love with my 22-year old sister's boy friend, who is 25. He tells me he is fond of me, but never speaks of love.

My sister and he usually stay at home when he comes over, so I see a great deal of him. No one knows of my love for him, not even the young man himself. He and my sister are in love with each other and are making marriage plans.

I love him so much that I hate to give him up. Is there any chance for me? Please tell me what to do. I'm counting on your help.

Polly

The most sensible thing for you to do, my dear, is to try and get over this affair as speedily as possible. You will only be making yourself unhappy if you continue these day-dreams. Your sister and her fiance are making plans for their marriage so there is nothing left for you but a rightabout face.

If you haven't got a job, lose no time in trying to get one. The N.Y.A. (National Youth Administration) is making heroic efforts to place young people from 18 to 24 in gainful occupations. Apply to the principal of your local high school and see what suggestions he has to offer. If you have a job, fit yourself for a better one by taking Vocational Training. Nothing like being busy to get one over an unprofitable love affair. See your friends, go places. Make all the new contacts possible.

I don't really believe you're in love with his prospective brother-in-law. I've had so many letters like yours. It's being thrown with a couple who are in love that makes you feel you'd like to be loved too. Wedding preparations are positively contagious.

They're Considering Leaving the State

Dear Miss Fairfax

A few months ago I met a boy of whom I think more than anyone I've ever met. We started going steady, but my parents don't approve. We want to marry but I'm not of age. Since our parents have met, mine will not allow me to see him at all.

Please advise us what to do. I'm bored to death unless I go with someone, and if I go out with other boys, I'm afraid they will become interested in me, while I'm always thinking of the other boy. Would you advise us to leave the State?

His parents are not very well-to-do, while I have always had everything I wanted. My father is afraid that this young man can't keep me supplied with all the things I need.

I'll be watching for a reply in your column.

Worried

As you're not of age, if you leave the state with this young man, he is very likely to land in jail, so please give up that idea immediately. Your parents, who have given you everything as you tell me, probably see the consequences of your marrying this boy more plainly than you do. I've not given all your letter but you can read between the lines of my answer that I think it would be wiser if you waited until you are older before taking this attachment too seriously.

W. M. S. Holds Executive Meeting

The executive of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Belleville Presbyterial convened in Bridge Street Church, Belleville, on Tuesday, Feb. 6. The service began at ten o'clock with almost a full executive and with several presidents of auxiliaries present.

Mrs. W. P. Osborne opened the morning devotions with the hymn "Come let us sing of a wonderful love". Luke 8, verse 25 was read and an inspirational talk given by Mrs. Osborne on the Scripture. The man whose life had been changed, asked Jesus, what shall I do to repay Thee, and his answer was, return unto thine own people. Mrs. Osborne felt that our everyday lives should affect our friends and those about us, and the missionary spirit will spread to far lands.

A sincere prayer was offered by Mrs. Lewis and the president, Mrs. F. L. Hooper urged that those present let their hearts abide in the quiet places.

Mrs. Erie Denyes, the recording secretary, gave a full report of executive meetings held throughout the year.

As corresponding secretary Mrs. M. E. Knox reported 83 auxiliaries with a total membership of 2116. All secretaries had reported their worship services helpful, as followed in the Missionary Monthly, lifting women out of a worldly rut.

$13,032.06 has been raised during the year ,as reported by the treasurer, Mrs. Frank Herrington.

Mrs. Arthur McCreary reported eight new Mission Bands with a total of 61 and 952 members.

Mrs. W. P. Osborne as secretary of Christian stewardship and finance reported twelve societies having reached their allocations. Nearly all societies have systematic giving, using the envelope system.

Definite interest is being taken in community friendship work, as reported by the secretary, Mrs. A. H. McGuire.

As supply secretary, Mrs. O. S. Reddick asked that bands and auxiliaries sending bales direct, send the value of bales to her, in order to receive recognition.

Mrs. Albert Lewis as secretary of associate helpers feels this is a very important work, but reports coming in not properly filled out, full credit cannot be given in the blue book.

Mrs. Hooper asked that auxiliary presidents assist secretaries in preparing annual reports.

Mrs. Manley Fox reported for temperance and Christian citizenship and read a copy of letters prepared to send to members of parliament concerning progress in temperance and social reform.

Mrs. Albert Empey, secretary of Missionary Monthly, reported an increase in subscriptions, the total being 1198 in the presbyterial.

In the absence of Mrs. Milton Robson, Baby Band secretary, Mrs. Denyes reported six new Baby Bands with a total of thirty.

Mrs. H. D. Williams in reporting as literature secretary, asked that secretaries stress where possible the literature in their reports.

Mrs. E. K. Hubble reported activity in the press department and urged that items be sent in for the Missionary Monthly. The scrap book contest was emphasized, entries to be brought to Presbyterial.

Increase In Organizations.

Mrs. McKenzie as secretary of Mission Circles and Mrs. Clarence Holmes for C.G.I.T. reported an increase in organizations, with thirteen Circles and eighteen C.G.I.T. groups. They asked for co-operation with auxiliary presidents and members.

Greetings were read from Mrs. W. C. Haggerty, past president, voicing appreciation for remembrances sent during her recent illness.

"He leadeth me" was the opening hymn for the afternoon devotional period, followed by prayer by Mrs. A. H. Foster who was in charge.

Inspiration and guidance were found in the words of Mrs. Foster in her address on "God's care and protection". A solo rendered by Mrs. Walden of Picton was appreciated at this time.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent in general discussion and several committees were formed with a special committee to deal with the five-year plan.

Mrs. F. L. Osborne was appointed to attend the Belleville Presbytery to enter into discussion on the Christian stewardship program.

Plans were made for the Presbyterial to be held in Holloway Street Church, Belleville, in March.

The meeting was closed with prayer by Mrs. Hooper.

Dinner was served at noon by the members of Bridge Street Auxiliary.

The Stars Say

A PROMISING and pleasant day, with lively and lucrative conditions in all phases of living, is forecast from interesting lunar transits and mutual aspects. The mind is under very progressive but profound and sober urges, making for definite accomplishment in the direction of fulfilled ambitions. Social, emotional and affectional qualities are also under deep and stabilising impetus, which may tend to promote social or romantic enterprise.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of progress and profit, largely through the exercise of a shrewd, astute and profound state of mind. This may inspire constructive ambitions which are likely to attract co-operation from influential sources. However, the social, sentimental and festive proclivities are likely to accent some very happy and important experiences.

A child born on this day, while keenly intellectual, studious, hardworking and dependable, may have strong social and congenial proclivities, combining to make a successful and happy life.

SHOT GUN TAKEN FROM THAIN'S

Other witnesses called at this part of he hearing were Mrs. Eleanor Reed, close friend and neighbor of the slain couple who discovered the dead body of Mrs. Wellman in her bedroom; Mrs. Mildred Graham, Wellman's Corners storekeeper who told the court of the purchases of a file, shotgun shells and a chocolate bar by the accused on Wednesday, Jan. 31, and Dr. A. E. Carleton of Stirling, physician, called to the scene of the tragedy after the first discovery of the killings, had been made by Edwin Faulkner, rural mail courier.

Sergt. H. Thompson.

Sergeant Thompson testified that he was called on the case on Feb. 1 by Inspector Frank Gardner and arrived at the Wellman home at 11 o'clock. "I inspected the house and saw the body of Mrs. Wellman lying reposed with hands across her chest." At the time of the first intimation of the tragedy it was understood it was an axe slaying but shot gun shell wadding was found and we concluded the victim had been shot.

Head Just a Shell.

"What was her condition?"

"The inside of her head was just a shell as all the brains had been blown out and scattered over the room."

"What else did you find?"

"A partly written letter to her daughter, Dr. Iona Wellman, and her teeth were out of her mouth. One lens of her glasses was on the coverlet of the bed and the other in the rims. All these exhibits were given to Dr. E. R. Frankish."

Skull Blown Fourteen Feet.

"What next did you do?"

"I went to the barn and visited the cow stable, finding the body of Mr. Wellman and part of his skull was blown fourteen feet from the feet of the deceased. The milking pail was held tightly between his knees and the milking stool was close by. The wall near where he was lying was spattered with brains and blood.

Pellets Found In Room.

"We found pellets of small shot, I believe number four, in the house," witness said.

"Pellets found in the bed and the wall in the bedroom indicated Mrs. Wellman met her death from discharge of a shotgun."

Powder Burns On Face.

"What at first made you believe she had been shot?"

"A distinct dark ring was on her face."

"What was that?"

"Powder marks."

Shot covered a radius or spread of 21 inches about 46 inches above the floor, witness said.

Pieces of bread with imbedded pellets taken from the Wellman home were introduced by the crown.

"Had you any knowledge of a grist?" the Crown asked.

"We did not find any grist, but there was considerable wheat and oats in the granary."

Samples of ground grain had been taken by police officers, witness said, while a check of the barn floor had been made where grist had been on the wagon.

Sleigh Marks and Hoofprints.

A fresh sleigh mark on the barn ramp indicated a team had been turned around. There was a distinct difference in imprints of horses hooves. One on the right being much larger than the one on the left.

"Did you trace movements of the sleigh?" he was asked.

"The sleigh came in the laneway and went out the same way. Tracks showed it went to a sideroad leading south of the concession line.

"Near a small tree on the sideroad west of the house marks showed where a team had been tied up, and turned around. Prints showed tracks of large hooves on right and small ones on left. Where the sleighs had stood was a quantity of hay which showed considerable quack grass.

Footprints In Field.

"Marks of a man walking northeast had been observed," Sergt. Thompson said, "going into field south of the Wellman house for about 20 or 30 rods or halfway across the field toward a hardwood bush.

The tracks retraced themselves at this point, and pointed backwards towards the place of origin. Later, Sergeant Thompson said, he saw the same tracks leading northward along the sideroad where their owner had climbed over a fence and walked in a north-easterly direction, circled a small knoll and came out at a point back of the Wellman barn. After the tracks entered the barnyard they were lost sight of, he said.

Search of Fred Thain's premises was made at 10:30 a.m. Feb. 2 by Inspector Ward, witness and Constables Smith and Ervine.

Eating Supper.

A warrant for arrest on charge of theft of grain was secured and when police entered the home, Thain, his wife, his daughter and two boys were eating supper. Thain was dressed in overalls, shirt and rubber boots. A 12-gauge, two-barrelled shotgun was found during the search, witness said, and investigation showed corrosion in barrel while a smell of powder indicating recent use, was evident.

Blotches On Clothing.

A coat and vest belonging to Thain bearing marks or blotches, suspected to be blood was found. His rubber boots and overalls were removed at the jail where witness was sure the same marks were on overalls as on coat and vest.

Compare Boots With Prints.

A rough measurement of the boot taken from Thain compared favorably with footprints found in the fields, witness said.

Wellman Bag Found.

Thirteen cotton bags were taken from a granary in Thain's barn, one with Arnold Wellman's name on it, and found by Constable Smith.

Considerable ground grain was found in the granary, while a box in the cow stable was also found to contain grain.

Charged With Murder.

The prisoner was removed to Belleville, witness said, and the following morning was charged with murder of Arnold Wellman.

Statements Taken.

"I warned him, and took a written statement from him witnessed by Inspector Ward."

The statement was produced in court, identified by Sergt. Thompson and presented to the Bench. It was not read in court.

Later witness received a message from Constable Smith that Thain wanted to see him at court house. On his arrival accused made a further statement after being duly warned, Sergt. Thompson said.

He read the statement in full to accused, who signed each page, witnessed by officers.

The second statement was also produced in court by Crown Attorney Donnan and presented for perusal to Magistrate Butler. Its contents were not made known to the court.

Had Heart Condition.

Dr. E. A. Carleton, Stirling physician, told the court that Arnold Wellman's health had been better the last year than previously. He had had a large hernia, but no heart condition. Mrs. Wellman had a heart condition and had been treated frequently. Witness had been called on Thursday previously by Mr. Wellman because his wife had a "bad spell".

Witness had seen Mrs. Wellman the following day. She had been taking medicine given by a doctor son. It was recognized by witness as digitalis. He advised Mrs. Wellman to go to bed which she did.

Saw Body in Cow Stable.

He had received a call from Faulkner a few minutes after ten a.m. last Thursday morning and upon arriving at the Wellman barn, found Wellman's body in a drop in the cow stable, lying on its back.

He had seen by the light of pocket flashlight that the top of the head and brain were gone, witness said.

"The west wall was spattered with blood and brains."

Thought Pounded To Death.

"I thought the man had been shot or pounded to death. I felt his chest. His body was cold. In my opinion he had been dead for hours," Dr. Carleton said.

In the house were Mrs. Reed and Mrs. Thain, wife of accused. "There I saw Mrs. Wellman's body. Part of her head had been destroyed. The head was split, and the brains were on the pillow and the walls. The left eye lay on the cheek." Witness had no doubt that death was instantaneous in both cases.

External Violence.

Cause of death, witness testified, was destruction of skull and brains, caused by external violence. Under Crown questioning he admitted violence caused by shooting. He gave court identification of the bodies.

Cross-examined, witness testified he had not seen any evidence of foreign matter such as leaden pellets in Mrs. Wellman's pillowk. A piece of Wellman's skull had been severed and lay twelve feet away. Its edges were rough.

Thought She Was Sleeping.

Mrs. Eleanor Reed, Harold, stated she knew the deceased "very well" and was able to tell the court the ages of the deceased. "I was called by Edwin Faulkner and when I arrived the house was cold," she said. "I went into Mrs. Wellman's room and thought she was sleeping but when I touched her arm it was cold and I knew she was dead. I pulled up the blind and saw brains scattered on the wall."

Purchased File and Shells.

Mrs. Mildred Graham, Wellman's Corners storekeeper, stated she saw the accused at 2 p.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 31.

"What did he buy?"

"He bought a file and five shot gun shells of gauge 12."

"How did he come?" asked Mr. Donnan.

"With a team of horses," said witness.

"What else did he buy?"

"A chocolate bar."

Shells Produced.

Mr. Donnan produced a file but Mrs. Graham was not sure whether it was the one purchased by Thain from her.

"What quantity of shells did you have?"

"Just one box."

"Have you any of them left?"

"Yes, all but one that Constable Smith took."

Mrs. Graham then produced the remainder of the shells left in the box and they were taken by the court.

"What number were the shot?"

"Number four, I think."

BELIEVES LIBERAL POLICIES WILL KEEP

"Or should the conduct of your government in these critical days be handed over to men, most of whom are without experience in government, and who are bound together by no common principles or agreed policies?

"When a vague suggestion is made of a 'national' government of all the talents, you would do well to ask and to insist upon knowing who the men will be and what talents they possess.

Association Must Be Intimate

"Is it not further essential that you should know whether they represent, in fair proportion, the two great races of this Dominion? It is my firm conviction, on which I have acted throughout my political life, that our national unity can only be maintained by a government in which there is always an intimate and generous association between French and English".

A united war effort of a United Canada represents the heartfelt wish of the Canadian people, the Prime Minister continued. "If you ask yourself the questions I have suggested, ponder them in your hearts, and answer them as Canadians, I have no doubt what your decision will be".

Two Issues Speaker Declares

There are two "real issues" in this election, he declared. Behind the clashes of political conflict, the first issue concerns the maintenance of national unity and on the first issue depends the second—the whole policy of the government in prosecution of the war. "Both sides rise superior to personalities", the Prime Minister added.

The men the electorate selects to bear the responsibilities of government "must be ready not only to face unflinchingly the dire necessities of war; they must also be prepared with a sense of national unity and the idealism of international goodwill to face the problems of peace".

Reviewed in Detail

Mr. Mackenzie King reviewed in detail the circumstances under which he called Parliament Jan. 25 only to tell its members he proposed to have a general election as soon as possible and to obtain dissolution four hours after the formal opening.

He told of the government's reaction to criticism directed towards it by Ontario Liberal and Conservative leaders and said that they would have been ignored. But he could not ignore the Ontario Legislature's vote of censure and would have dissolved parliament at once but for his pledge to call a sixth session before the general election.

It had been hoped parliament might have discussed the government's conduct of the war but national unity was endangered by the political controversy which broke out.

Could Not Have Been Concluded

"That controversy, once it had begun, would not, because of the time at our disposal, have been carried to any conclusion on the floor of the House of Commons. It could not have been ended before there was reason to expect a spring offensive in Europe."

The Prime Minister declared that no government could allow a situation to drift in this manner and he acted as he did in order that the unity of parliament might be preserved in the eyes of the world.

"The decision to dissolve was not the result of impulse. It was the inevitable result of the outbreak of political and partisan struggle, combined with the factors of time. If there had been any hope of a brief session, calmly devoted to the discussion of national affairs, such a session would have been held."

Memories Still Bitter

In reference to proposals for "a so-called National government that might enforce conscription or disfranchise many classes of Canadian citizens", and to suggestions that life of parliament might be extended, Mr. Mackenzie King said "memories of those experiences in the last war are still bitter in the minds of Canadian people.

Canada could not have entered the war, without disastrous results, except as a united nation, the Prime Minister declared, and the Dominion cannot continue without this unity.

"I believe that every fair-minded citizen will agree that the policies which have united Canada are the policies which will keep our country united. Extreme measures, used by men of extreme views—whatever means or methods may be taken to enforce them—will only serve to divide and destroy what is most essential to the prosecution of the war—the support, by the people at large, of Canada's war effort".

Unity Fully Demonstrated

The reality if Canadian unity was demonstrated by the decision in the Quebec provincial election last fall, the Prime Minister said, adding that he would always regard this as evidence of the common determination of all Canadians to share in the struggle and sacrifice.

The government's record will be presented fully to the voters during the campaign and criticism of that record met without fear.

Constructive criticism has been met by appropriate measures but other criticism has developed in recent days, Mr. Mackenzie King warned, which is destructive, is designed to advance personal ambitions, spread disunion and undermine confidence in the present administration "whose conduct of the war up to the beginning of the present year received general commendation".

CONANT MOVES BILL ELIMINATING

Louis Hagey (Lib. Brantford) to remove the disability imposed on tenants by reason of non-payment by landlords of taxes.

Under the law as it stands at present a tenant may not qualify for council, even though his rent is paid up, if the taxes on the property for which he pays rent have not been paid.

Whether it is possible or desirable to protect further the investor in stocks, particularly mining stocks, was discussed during debate on second reading of a unanimously-supported measure to amend the Securities Act.

Make Prospecting Easier.

The government-sponsored amendment is designed to make easier the path of mining prospectors. Syndicates to finance prospecting and early development are to be exempted from incorporation when their capital does not exceed $10,000. Liability of each member of a syndicate is to be limited to the amount subscribed.

Arthur Roebuck (Ind. Lib. Toronto-Bellwoods) started discussion by saying legislation in the past had piled obstacles in the way of the prospector "until we've pretty well killed an industry that was so valuable and picturesque." He urged an easier path for the prospector and a heavier annual levy than five cents an acre on mining claims.

Finds No Damage.

Hon. Paul Leduc, Minister of Mines said he had discussed the matter with officials of prospectors' and developers' associations and found no demand for abolition of the requirement for assessment work on mining claims.

"I was told the old set with its assessment clauses had made the north," he said.

It was true one Ontario company held a large acreage of mining claims for speculation—100,000 acres was the figure mentioned by Mr. Roebuck—but Mr. Leduc could not recommend an increase in the five-cent levy unless the House was prepared to make a difference between prospectors holding only a claim or two and large companies.

The mines minister announced that by the end of the year the government hoped to have cleaned up all arrears more than three years old on mining claim taxes.

Conservative leader George Drew said he was satisfied "caveat empor" (let the buyer beware) was the best principle for securities legislation.

"Let us recognize the simple fact that if you intend to put a protective umbrella over the supposedly helpless investor, you're just making him soft and careless," he said. "The best protection is to make the individual cautious about his own affairs."

Put Onus On Investor.

Every man who sells securities should be required to give a clear explanation of what he is selling, urged Col. Drew. With all this information furnished there would be a greater onus on the invester.

"The question is whether you should leave the lambs to be shorn or place a possible curb on mining development," said Attorney-General Conant. He feared the suggestion of Col. Drew, if adopted, might result in building up in the public generally an unfavorable attiude toward investment in mining stocks. It was difficult to see though how by legislation the public could be better protected.

"We'll make an intensive study and perhaps have legislation the next session," said Mr. Conant.

Agreed With Principle.

The attorney-general said that in a general way he agreed with the principle of individual responsibility, but there were most distressing cases in which the state seemed to owe some responsibility. He cited the cause of an aged couple induced to trade $8,000 in government bonds for worthless mining stock.

It was to be admitted, said Mr. Conant, that under the present restrictive regulations many mines that have been great successes would never have got going.

OBITUARY

LATE FRED CARR
(River Valley).

The funeral of the late Fred Carr, who passed away on Saturday at the Belleville General Hospital, took place from his late home in River Valley on Wednesday afternoon. There were a large number present to pay their respects to one who was held in the highest esteem in the community in which he resided all his life. The Rev. A. S. McConnell of the Anglican Church of Stirling, a personal friend of the deceased, conducted the funeral service at the house and at the graveside. There were many beautiful floral tributes which bore silent tribute to the memory of the deceased.

The bearers were Edgar Morrow, Earl Morrow, Edward Palmer, Reginald Coombes, John Kane, Thomas Donoghue.

Relatives were present from Toronto and Oakville.

REPORT GIVEN CLUB MEMBERS

A comprehensive achievement report was submitted by Secretary George Griffin of the Belleville Kiwanis Club at the weekly luncheon held on Tuesday at the Queen's Hotel.

It was an open luncheon with no special speaker but the members discussed various phases of the club's activity and plans were laid for the year's activities. The financial statement for the year was given the members and details of all items fully explained to the satisfaction of all. The club spent a great deal of money last year but got in return considerable satisfaction from the community service, which was rendered. The various projects instituted by the club and carried to successful conclusions were each enumerated by the secretary. The social activities of the club were not forgotten and besides visiting other clubs the club entertained various organizations. The work among underprivileged girls and boys, the Boys' Camp at Lake Moira and the poultry project were all fully discussed. The thanks of the club was tendered the genial secretary for the fine report, which will be submitted to district and international headquarters.

The statement on the dance was given by Jack Trudeau who stated "if the dance was not a success financially it was a success as entertainment". President Bill Anderson presided with Ted Hughes as song leader with Leo B. Riggs accompanying on the piano. The attendance was not quite as large as formerly.

GOVERNMENT NOT ON THE DEFENSIVE

riding, which he has represented since 1935. No other names were submitted to the open convention.

Following his nomination he carried the fight into the opposition camp by a joint attack on Conservative leader Manion, Premier Mitchell Hepburn of Ontario, and Col. George Drew, Ontario Conservative leader.

These gentlemen, he said, were silent when members of the King government were fighting a battle for Canadian unity and Canadian participation in the war during the Quebec election.

The defence minister stressed how different the organization for this war was from anything before it, how vital was the unspectacular but essential long-range planning in a "total war".

Calmness, Steadiness Needed

In such a struggle, calmness, steadiness and determination were fundamental requirements. "Those like (Conservative leader) Dr. Manion who give way to impatience, ill-temper and reckless accusations, those who demand hasty, ill-considered and spectacular action are really the first casualties in this war of nerves," he said.

Mr. Rogers described how the government had worked to maintain national unity in the crisis, first obtaining almost unanimous approval of parliament of its war policy and then in the defeat of Premier Duplessis in Quebec and his opposition to active participation in the war.

The minister doubted that the same unanimity of sentiment could have been perserved by Dr. Manion, by Premier Hepburn or Col. Drew.

Watched From Sidelines

While the struggle in Quebec was raging, with national unity at stake, Dr. Manion had watched from the sidelines. "The very men who charge us now with doing so little in this war are the very men who stood aloof for reasons best known to themselves when this crucial struggle was in progress a few months ago."

Mr. Rogers related how the government had selected the best men available, regardless of political connections, to fill the numerous wartime boards and posts. That policy gave the country the best kind of national direction without sacrificing the vitality of the parliamentary system by doing away with an opposition party in time of war, he said. He wondered where Dr. Manion would find men of greater capacity than those already lined up by the government.

Organization Reviewed

The government's organization of the economic front was reviewed briefly, the minister pointing out that the problems of the post-war period were being kept constantly in mind as well as those of the moment.

As to military efforts, the Defence Minister said that "no contingent of soldiers ever left Canadian shores with a better outfit of clothing and personal equipment than this first division of the Canadian Active Service Force."

There had been some occasional causes of complaint when Canada multiplied its army 10-fold almost overnight but steps had been taken to prevent a recurrence. The government had not possessed complete supplies for wartime needs at the beginning of hostilities but no country made military expenditures on a wartime scale during peace.

Tabulated Supplies

The minister tabulated the substantial supplies on hand at the outbreak. The only shortages in equipping the first division had been lack of new web equipment (and old web equipment had been distributed) and lack of flannel shirts, because of difficulties in speeding flannel production.

The soldiers' health had been protected by balanced rations and efficient medical organization with the result the troops' health right now is "most encouraging," considering the fact this is the season of colds and influenza.

CANADIAN TANKS AND INFANTRY UNDERGO WINTER MANOEUVRES

Discarding their kilts in favor of heavy khaki pants and puttees and wearing fur-lined caps, men of the Toronto Irish Regiment, supported by tanks from the Canadian Armor- of Fighting Vehicles Training Centre engaged in a mock battle under winter conditions at Camp Borden. Operating in below zero weather, the tanks led the attack across a stretch of open ground and when they reached the halfway mark toward their objectives, the Irish burst into the open and charged with fixed bayonets to advance a few yards and then drop to their knees to fire a volley at the opposing forces, then up again to advance through the deep snow to a new position. In the meantime a second wave of tanks moved up to prevent any flanking move by the enemy. The battle, carried out under the direction of Capt. G. C. Smith, chief instructor for the Canadian Armored Fighting Vehicles Training Centre, was made under instructions of Col. F. P. Worthington, O.C., of the C.A.F.V. corps.

Models Threaten 'Strip-Down' Strike Against Debbies

Boston, Feb. 8 —(AP)— Models preparing to compete in a tournament of glamor against Boston debutantes enlivened preliminary proceedings in the rival training camps today by threatening a "strip-down" strike.

Ruth Allen, captain of the models' team of 12 for the Feb. 19 battle of beauty, complained that the debbies had arranged for gowns from the city's best shops, while the models competing were told to "get their own."

"We will model in clothes as good as those of the debs, or we'll stage a strip-down strike to sarongs," she declared, and demonstrated what she meant. (Very fetching it was, too.) "We get our way or the whole show is off."

Letters From the Troops

Picton — Pay Sgt. Rufus Winston Wensley of Battalion Headquarters, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, writes to Mrs. Wensley telling of witnessing the inspection of the Black Watch by her Majesty the Queen and his Majesty King George.

He writes in part:

"Today I had a very interesting experience. Some of the N.C.O.'s of the 6th. Gordon Highlanders eat at our mess. Today (January 18) they were inspected by their Majesties. Another sergeant and I went down to see the inspection. The whole outfit was the 51st. Imperial Division—all Highlanders, 5th. and 6th. Gordons, Black Watch, Camerons, Seaforths and Argylls—and all were wonderful. We walked a couple of miles until we came to the Black Watch. We were on one side of the street, and directly across from us were all the officers of the Black Watch. Soon several big cars dashed up, two of them flying the gold colored Royal Standard with its emblems. One of these stopped and the Queen stepped out and it moved on. Her Majesty is Honorary Colonel of the Black Watch. Then she was just across the street from us, where she shook hands and spoke to every member of that unit. Then she walked down past the men and came back on our side of the street and shook hands with some of the officers of the Black Watch, who were standing next to us. She stood there chatting with them until the King arrived, being just a few feet distant from us.

"The King came along, walking, and together they walked past all the different regiments. They must have walked two or three miles with the soldiers cheering them. Then they went to lunch. There was nothing elaborate about either of them. She wore a blue suit with blue coat—not even a fur. The King was in uniform. She was right at home as the men were Scotties—her own people."

Tweed Cons. School Is Without Water Supply Two Days

There are a great many things which bring publicity to a community. Sometimes these matters do not reflect great credit upon the community or its citizens. In other cases they bring great satisfaction; and so.

It is with pardonable pride that this little hamlet of 1300 people points to the success recently attained by one of its young men, Mr. Herbert (Buck) Leal, of McMaster University who has recently been awarded one of the two Rhodes Scholarships granted in the province of Ontario. It is a safe supposition that seldom, if ever before, has a place of the size of Tweed, had the distinction of having one of its sons gain this enviable prize.

The entire community shares in the honor brought it by one of its finest young men. "Buck" Leal, as his friends refer to him, had an enviable scholastic record in the Consolidated and High Schools of the village before his name became more widely known. He obtained the Junior High School Entrance Medal, his first honor, on his graduation from Tweed Consolidated School in 1931. From that beginning, his scholastic career through Tweed High School and McMaster University has been marked by a series of medals and scholarships. His former principals, Mr. S. H. Connor and Mr. T. E. Moffatt, B.A., of the local Consolidated and High Schools and their staffs are pardonably proud of his attainments.

That's No Way to Treat Constipation!

Dosing with cathartics may give temporary relief, but the real way to handle constipation is to get at the cause. Common constipation often results from a lack of "bulk" in the diet. "Bulk" doesn't mean the amount of food you eat, but a particular kind of food that helps to form a soft "mass" in the bowels and thus aid the bowel movement.

If you are troubled this way, just try eating Kellogg's All-Bran. It only takes a small amount—an ounce a day is enough for most people—but you must have it regularly and drink plenty of water. All-Bran is a crisp, tasty cereal which gives you two things you need . . . "bulk" and the intestinal vitamin B_1. See how much pleasanter life can be when you are "regular." All-Bran is made by Kellogg's in London, Canada. At all grocers.

GIVE FREELY, GIVE NOW!

DURING the last war, thousands of young Canadians were transplanted from civil life into the army. Quickly and intensively they were trained for war. For months and years they lived realistic lives, suffered, faced death constantly. Then came peace. They were thrust into civil life again. No wonder many were unable to pick up the thread where it had been broken off.

Leaders in Canadian public life are determined this must not happen again. Our young men—soldiers for a few months or years—must also be developed as citizens of Canada. The Canadian Legion has been authorized by the Government to organize this great work, for the veterans of the last war are believed best able to understand the problems of the Canadian soldier of today.

To provide funds for this great new cause, Canadian Legion War Services launches a financial appeal for $500,000 on Monday, February 12th.

VAST EDUCATIONAL PROGRAM NOW UNDER WAY

The Canadian Legion War Services, in collaboration with the Canadian Association for Adult Education, has undertaken to provide educational and vocational training for the Canadian Forces. Our men will be able to continue their education, to take courses in agriculture, technical subjects, various trades, book-keeping, stenography and other subjects. Advanced courses leading to matriculation and college degrees will be available. Canadian universities, departments of education, and technical school bodies are co-operating actively in this effort. Co-operation of British and French educationists is assured.

Every effort will be made to focus the men's attention on their vocations after the war—to maintain their interest in pre-war activities at home.

Personal Services to Our Enlisted Men—Advice and assistance in the settling of any personal affairs of the soldiers on service, counsel on worrying business problems, will be undertaken by Legion representatives in the field in collaboration with 1100 Legion branches located in every part of Canada. Help in the solution of these intimate problems will relieve the soldier of a great deal of worry.

To Lighten War's Grimness—The establishment of leave hostels, assistance in forming and training soldiers' concert parties and help in the organization of sports activities will be undertaken where necessary by Legion men in the field. The Legion will also assist the I.O.D.E. in placing libraries of selected books at various places, as well as libraries of motion pictures.

HELP WIN THE WAR

Never has there been such an opportunity to invest in the future manhood of Canada. This is not charity—it is a great undertaking to develop character and citizenship, and to give our soldiers a leg up the ladder of success when the war is over. Give generously to this great new much-needed cause — the drive commences next Monday.

Top-Grade Eggs Gain ½ Cent

Toronto, Feb. 8.—Top-grade eggs registered the only price change yesterday on an otherwise dull Toronto open produce market. Butter prices were unchanged in slow trading.

Egg receipts arrived in average volume and cleared fairly well during the morning, when grade-A eggs gained 1-2c. Trading slackened its pace somewhat in the afternoon, however, and dealers described it as "just steady" in tone.

Both butter and cheese were quiet and easy in undertone. Local demand was light and trading limited. Offerings were not heavy, but buyers appeared content to draw on their present holdings rather than acquire new stock. First grade Ontario creamery butter sold at 27 1-2c and new, large current-make cheese at 19 1-2c per pound.

JAPAN REPORTS CHINESE PLAN TO

agreed on the extent of damage and the number of planes involved in that raid, which was not repeated.)

The Japanese navy spokesman who commented on the air raid possibly said also that "it does not stand to reason" that the United States should make representations against recent bombing of the French-operated railroad in the south China Province of Kwangsi.

Supplied over Line

"One-third of the resistance power" of China is supplied over that line, he said and Japan already has informed France that the attacks would be continued as long as arms were shipped to China over that route.

In the Lower House of the Japanese Diet, Masuzumi Ando, member of the prominent Seiyukai Party, declared today, "Japan as the leading nation of Eastern Asia must station armed forces in and undertake the economic exploitation of China in the form of a Chinese-Japanese investment."

At the same time, Adno voiced the first semi-official apprehension that the proposed Japanese-sponsored government of China under Wang Ching-Wei might not bring an early end to the 31-month-old Chinese "incident".

Economic Co-operation

If Japan assists a new regime, he said, "it must be through economic co-operation and the stationing of armed forces. Such a situation will conflict with the contentions of Wang Ching-Wei".

He asked that the Government publish details of its agreement with Wang Ching-Wei "to remove apprehension of the people".

In reply, General Shunroku Hata, Minister of War, said, "military operations prevent explanaton of the number of troops to be stationed (in China) for maintenance of peace and order.

"However, it is the intention of the government to give Wang Ching-Wei's administration assistance in military affairs as much as possible."

PITCHFORK, SCOOP FOUND IN BUSH

over the court when he entered court under police escort today. He nodded a greeting to neighbors seated in nearby seats. He appeared to be thoroughly rested and wore imperturbable air that characterized him throughout yesterday's hearing.

Sergeant Resumes Evidence.

Sergeant Harry Thompson resuming his evidence told the court that the accused had made a free and voluntary statement.

Asked by the Crown to form an opinion as to how many shots were fired in each instance witness replied two.

"One shot could not have done the damage evident in the condition of both bodies," he said.

Going to the Thain farm, witness, with Inspector Ward found a box containing two empty shotgun shells in a box near a pig pen.

The shells were new and had been recently fired, as indicated by corrosion. The firing pin was slightly off centre, he said.

Other shells, much older, were in the box, but he had not disturbed them for fear of damaging possible finger prints.

Spent Shell Found In Stall.

On Feb. 5 witness with Constable E. Smith found a spent shell in a calf stall in the northeast corner of the Thain barn. A lot of refuse and an old pail were evident, behind which the shell was found.

A file was found by witness and Inspector Ward on Feb. 6 on a window ledge in the Thain barn. Both shell and file were produced in court.

Footprints of a man had been seen by witness leading from the Thain barn to a cedar bush. In the bush was found a pitchfork and a scoop, which witness identified when produced in court by the Crown.

"Both articles showed no exposure to weather, indicating they had been placed in the bush recently, the witness said.

Some Drawers Opened.

Under cross-examination by Defence Counsel Robert McCulloch, Sergt. Thompson told the court of the condition of the Wellman bedroom following discovery of the body of Mrs. Wellman. Drawers in one of the two dressers in the room were open, those of the other were closed, he said.

Main splatters of blood in the Wellman barn were found in the centre of the west wall. Having in mind this fact, and that no damage was done to the cow, witness was of the opinion the shot was fired from the aisle in the barn. "There was blood and brains on the side of the cow," he said.

Compared Favorably.

Referring to tracks found in a field south of the Wellman farm and those found north of the Wellman barn counsel asked witness if they were the same. "They compared favorably," he said.

"Would you go so far as to say they were the same?"

"No."

Tracks found leading to the cedar bush, where the fork and shovel had been found near the Thain barn had been obliterated by storm.

Four spent shells had been found altogether, two in the Thain barn near a pig-sty, one by Constable Smith and another by another witness.

David Wellman, Fourth Concession of Rawdon farmer and a distant relative of the slain couple, saw them ten days previous to the murders. He had been to the Wellman barn on Feb. 6 and found a key to the Wellman granary in a fanning mill.

Lock of Granary Missing.

The lock was missing and yesterday the lock was found by witness' father in some rubbish and grain.

The fork found in the cedar bush on the Thain property was identified by witness by three marks as being the property of the slain Arnold Wellman.

Witness also identified grain bags produced in court, found in the Thain barn as the property of Arnold Wellman by the patchings and green yarn on the side of the sack.

A steel bag-filler produced by the Crown was also identified as being the property of his slain relative, by witness, but he could not say whether the scoop found in the cedar bush was the property of Arnold Wellman.

Drove By House.

Mrs. Hazel Heagle, Sixth Concession, Rawdon, resident told the court Thain had passed her home on the afternoon of Jan. 31 driving a black team on a sleigh, the horse on the left side being the smaller of the two.

Her husband, John Heagle, told defence counsel he did not see the accused on the afternoon in question.

While in his woods cutting wood on the afternoon of Jan. 31, Charles Dunham, neighbor of the slain couple, said he saw a man going in a southwest direction across a field. He did not notice where the man came from but saw him get over a fence in the southwest corner of the field and walk west along the road. He did not recognize the man.

It was about three o'clock, Dunham told Defence Counsel McCulloch, although he was not sure.

Jack Dunham, son of the former witness, corroborated his father's statement regarding seeing a man crossing the field. He did not observe how the man was dressed but "I would say he had no long coat on."

Sleigh Tracks Investigated.

Constable Everett Smith told the court he had been called to the scene of the tragedy and had immediately conducted a different line of investigation to that of the other officers.

He examined sleigh tracks that had entered the laneway and had apparently turned around on the ramp of the barn.

Horsehair Found On Bush.

Marks on a sideroad west of the Wellman home had been examined, these marks showing where a team had turned around and apparently had been tied to a small elm bush.

Footprints at this point were similar to those found at the barn. Tips of branches of the bush on the sideroad had been chewed, and horsehair found on the twigs of the bush.

Tells of Finding Tracks.

At a point in the first field east of the sideroad tracks had been found leading diagonally in the direction of the Wellman house.

Footprints Traced.

From this point Constable Smith corroborated evidence given by Sgt. Harry Thompson regarding tracing of footprints leading to the Wellman home, the search and finding of grain in the Thain home and information received from a Wellman's Corners store.

He told the court of the arrest of Thain on a grain theft charge and of the finding of a 12-gauge shotgun which had been fired recently, indicated by a strong smell of powder. He identified grain bags taken from the Thain barn. He also corroborated evidence given regarding spots appearing to be blood, found on clothing of the accused.

Early on the morning of Feb. 3, he charged Thain with the murder of Nancy and Arnold Wellman.

Says Voluntary Statement Given.

Two statements had been taken, the second one at the accused's request which was given voluntarily in the presence of witnesses and each page signed by him.

Witness returning to the Wellman farm, an empty shotgun shell had been handed to him by Dr. Marvin Wellman, in the presence of a witness. Further evidence of witness was of a purely corroboratory nature.

Samples of horsehair had been taken from two of the Thain horses, identified in a photograph as 'Molly' and 'Guy'.

Comparisons between hair taken from the horses and that found on the elm bush in the concession sideroad, were similar, Constable Smith said, but "I am no expert".

"What you are really saying," defence counsel said, "is that the hair found on the bush and that of the horses' mane are of the same color?"

GREY TROOPSHIPS GLIDE SILENTLY

Ottawa, Feb. 8—(CP)—The National Defence Department announced today the safe arrival in the United Kingdom of a third contingent of the First Division of the Canadian Active Service Force.

The statement from the department said: "The Minister of National Defence announced today the safe arrival in England of a further contingent of the Canadian Active Service Force."

By John Leblanc, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

An eastern Canadian port, Feb. 8—(CP)—When the third contingent of Canada's fighting men started off for Britain, precautions taken to ensure the safety of the men were, if anything, more rigid than measures adopted in the first two movements.

As before, secrecy shrouded the sailing date for the troops whose arrival in the United Kingdom was announced today. Even the soldiers themselves, didn't know when their convoy of five great liners was due to head out of this port with its escorting warships.

The troops departed on the afternoon of Jan. 30.

Military authorities said orders were to strengthen precautions against any leakage of information perhaps because the Nazis, failing to get a shot at the first two contingents of Canadians, might be expected to redouble efforts to do damage to this convoy.

At any rate, the sentries ringing the embarkation area scrutinized visitors just a bit more closely and restrictions were tightened up all along the line.

An illustration of how tough it was for an unauthorized person to nose around is afforded in the case of the two newsmen—including this reporter—who were gently but firmly escorted off the biggest ships, though they carried a fistful of passes from embarkation and other military officials, the navy and even the air force.

The skipper said he just could not afford to take chances, as he summoned a burly seaman to toss the reporters off. On other ships the welcome was a bit more enthusiastic, but the general attitude of these entrusted with charge of the men, was one of careful scrutiny of anyone not connected with the embarkation.

Loaded with War Material

The holds of the ships were loaded down with war materials—artillery pieces, sturdy trucks and great stores of food, especially flour. The great freight sheds at the piers were choked with cargo when the ships came in; they were virtually cleaned out at sailing time.
